Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, retiring president of the college to whom the Virginian staff dedicated their 1946 annual.

Annual Dedicated To Dr. J. L. Jarman

Virginian Divided Into 4 Sections

Lillian Elliott, editor of the annual, dedicated on May 25 the 1946 Virginian to Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, retiring president of S. T. C.

The dedication reads: "The ideals and principles upon which our college was founded have been preserved, strengthened, and encouraged largely through the living example of one person. By no such artificial means as words, gifts, or tributes can we express gratitude for the fundamental truths with which he has endowed us. In each one of us there is an indescribable spirit created by his love and interest. Along with this will live in our minds forever a picture of a stately gentleman with a rose in his lapel and with a choice cigar; whose philosophy may be characterized by the title of a favorite song, "Keep on Hoping." Mindful of these thoughts the staff dedicates the 1946 Virginian to an educator and friend —Dr. Joseph L. Jarman!"

In event the annuals do not arrive in time for the girls to receive them, they will be mailed out to them.

The Virginian for this year is divided into four parts. The parts are derived from the paintings on the Rotunda. These paintings represent teaching, rest, recreation and meditation.

There will be pictures of eight senior personalities, and pictures of every organization in college.

The staff who edited the Vir-

Seniors Remember STC Life As Four Long, Happy Years

By BETTY DEUEL COOK

"Four long years have gone by" . . . Sound familiar? Well, it ought to. Time just flew, we must admit, but despite the fact that people all over the campus are stating things like, "I just can't realize it!" the time has finally come when realization is just about the realest part of this whole commencement program.

Do you realize that half these people whom you see flying here and there selling text-books and sitting on over-loaded suitcases or bellowing for Harry are leaving these parts permanently? Do you realize that you may never see some of your best friends again?? You're bound to realize these sad facts, but think of this too: Once you leave S. T. C. do you realize that you'll never be able to "get away with" plaid shirts and blue jeans again? After all, as Dr. Jarman told us in chapel one morning, gals in pigtails and overalls just don't look like school-teachers! Where besides Farmville can girls our age go downtown barefoot in the rain and not be considered abnormal. Who else can build snow-men and wage snow-ball battles 'way into the night with only Miss Hamner to care whether they come in and go to bed or not? Where else will you find the companionship of a half-hour each night like that in the Southside or Shannon's, and who besides Mr. Sanford would know at a glance the right answer to "Are my pictures back yet?"

We realize a lot of things these last few days. We've certainly come to realize what a lot of junk can be accumulated in four years' time, and to see the difference in being able to pack a box for Harry to store and to have to pack boxes which meet the express regulations for shipping!! Since classes are over, we've realized, too, just how much time per day we used to spend in lecture-rooms or labs and how the days do drag when there are no lectures to help take up the twenty-four hours. We've stopped to think, also, about how very fond we really may be of some of the faculty members who use to "give the darndest assignments." After all, well most of us will be dishing out assignments ourselves comes next September. Look what we've learned from these faculty advisors of ours.

We Are Now Alumnae

On behalf of the underclassmen, one year ago I wrote an editorial to say farewell to the seniors of 1945. Realizing that we were to be the senior class and that others would be looking to us as we had to them, it was hard to say good-bye. We knew that they were leaving the peaceful harbor of college and were setting forth on a rough and dangerous sea of life. We knew, too, that they were capable of meeting life as they found it because of what they had learned here in the way of friendly cooperation, leadership, and service.

Today, our undergraduate days are ending. Today, on behalf of the senior class of 1946, I shall pause to take one backward glance at our college days. Long shall we remember our freshman joys and sorrows, our sopohomore days as we ratted the freshmen, our junior days when we welcomed our sister class, and finally our senior days with Senior Chapel, Senior Sing, our farewell parties, the daisy chain, as we sang, "Singing we near the end;" our lantern parade with the words, "We'll think of you as ever true, carrying on the torch;" our baccalaureate sermon, and finally, graduation exercises.

Yes, it is all over now. We shall leave this college in body but not in mind. Always shall we remember the faculty, the administration, and the underclassmen who will, in years to come, attain the rank of seniors. Above all, we shall remember Dr. Jarman, as he stands on the stage in the auditorium and reads to us, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." We shall see him with the red rose in his lapel, his cigar, his Senior Class Day song, "Keep on Hopng".

Today we join thousands of other alumnae in pledging our support and loyalty to our school, our college, our alma mater. We now lay aside our hoods, our caps, and our gowns to assume our places in the world, working hand in hand with other daughters of Farmville that the profession of teaching might be exalted.

Shakespeare has said, "All the world's a stage, And all the men and women merely players." Regardless of our vocations, each of us will go out to play on a stage. The curtain has fallen on another completed act. However, just as the sun will appear in the eastern sky again tomorrow morning, even so a curtain will rise and each of us will begin another act in the great play of life.

Virginia Treakle

Farewell Seniors

Today another classe of Farmville girls became alumnae. With joy in their hearts because they could make the grade and with tears in their eyes because they were leaving Farmville, the graduate marched out of the auditorium.

To the class of 1946 we say farewell, and and we wish you the best of luck wherever you go and whatever you do. We're going to miss you and when the college bell begins to toll next fall, it just won't be the same with out you. You have been a grand class, and we who will try to carry on in your place, have a hard job ahead of us. You have left for us the highest standards possible. By knowing you we have been made better girls.

You have been the best possible leaders. When going was hard for the rest of us this year, you have always been there to lend a helping hand and to give a word of encouragement. We appreciate the many little things that you have done for us. You have been our leaders and our friends, friends as individuals and as a class. Thanks for all you have done for us and given to us.

Having lived together during four years of college, our graduating seniors have shared joys and sorrows. You have come to know what it means to live with other girls who live for the same things and who are interested in the same things.

Seniors, accept the challenge given you by the commencement speaker. You know that the road ahead is not an easy one, yet you are aware of the preparation which you have had to prepare you for this journey of life. You might not remember all of chemistry formulas that you had to l or the classifications that you knew so for your biology exam, but remembe ways that you are a Farmville alumna and and carry on with the ideals and principals that you have learned and learned to love here at State Teachers College.

We will miss you, seniors. Another class will come in next fall to fill in and we will have to go on, no matter how hard the struggle is going to be without you. You will always have a place in our hearts. We can't forget the class with the school spirit, the class that was always ready to go.

Goodbye and good luck, class of 1946.

He's All Right

There has been a great deal written and spoken about Dr. Jarman in these last months of his administration and yet there is so much that has been left unsaid. We can't attempt to say these things now, because if they could have been put into words someone would surely have said them. The best that we can do is to repeat the same things—the same expressions of gratitude, love, and respect—in only slightly different phraseology. Perhaps the students themselves, who owe him most, are the ones who have been most hesitant about expressing themselves, feeling that there were those older and more gifted with words who would do it more effectively. And we really haven't needed to make any formal declaration, because Dr. Jarman knows. The spontaneous "What's the Matter With Jarman?" which has survived, not as Dr. Jarman says, "because it's a catchy tune," but because—well, maybe because we like to see him blush; the sudden silence in the auditorium when he stands up even just to read the announcements; the red roses which must have stuck a million holes in his lapel—those are things which tell their own story.

The educators, and maybe even the faculty, who admire and respect him for the really big things he has done, not only for Farmville, but for the state of Virginia, know one man, but not many of them have listened to him read in chapel—"Faith, Hope, Charity,"—or heard him say "All of you guirls are ladies, and THAT is not lady-like!" And certainly none of them have gone into his office with quite the same problems as ours, and come out with quite the same feeling of having had the most momentous problem in the world solved in the most soothing way. Then, there are the times when, with tight lips and a definite gleam in his eye, Dr. Jarman begins a sentence in chapel with, "Now, I want to talk to you girls about—." Dr. Jarman is displeased, and whatever our offense has been, it rarely happens again. Oh, yes—he'll see everything we do next year, but we can count on one thing—'cause he SAID it—he won't tell on us!

Well, there they are—the same old things, and the phraseology isn't even very different, but after all, the girls have been saying it for years—"What's the matter with Jarman? He's all right!"

HEARD AFTER

Bed Check

Congratulations Seniors of '46. We wish you all the luck, success, happiness and good fortune ever. All of us feel as if the school has been made better by your having been a member of its student body and we will all miss you very much.

Best wishes to those girls who will become June Brides. All of us want to see each of you————, but that would be impossible, but you know we will be thinking of you.

Ann Bear seems to be all aglow these days. No—one seems to quite know the whole story, but we think it has to do with the third finger, left hand.

Shirley seems excited over the up and coming June Week at Annapolis, but then who wouldn't be over something as big as that.

Carmen took off for West Point in a big way last Tuesday—We know she's having a big time.

That sure was a good party out at Bear Creek Lake. For further details just see Sue, "Pete", B. Lee, or any one who lives on second floor Junior.

Peggy T. was the happy person over Fitchet's coming up. Wedding bells will be ringing for them in July. Best of luck to you.

Margo and Kackie have taken off to Washington and Lee. Honestly we can't figure out who stayed up here for finals.

Kitty Parham is seen going around singing My Bill these days. Now just what could she mean by that?

Bessie and Shirley are all up in the air because their men are here for graduation. At least Bob is here and Lulu is on his way home. Ah! Happy day.

Frances Lee is getting excited not only because she's graduating, but because Frank's on his way home and we all know what that means.

"Goonie" gets all these calls, telegrams, and Specials from Maynard these days. It must be true love, or else there's something in the wind.

Betty Parrish is trying to make two finals. One here and one at W. and L. Now that's what we call nice!

News hot off the wires of the Associated Press — Evelyn Grizzard's Ed is scheduled to arrive this Friday. Maybe that accounts for that happy smile on her face these days.

Katie, we know it will be hard for you to say good-bye to Farmville, especially since you have met tall, dark, and handsome Ed.

The Chapman boys really believe in picking their brides from S. T. C. First, LeRoy purchased a solitaire for Lorraine Smith and now Bill has caught the bug and bought a beau—tooo—ful one for Mary Ellen Petty. Fred, we are wondering about you.

If anybody wants any suggestions as to how to file letters, just ask Jane Anderson; she has really

Y News

The time has come for us to leave school, but there are still lots of summer opportunities open for us all.

Many Baptist girls are attending the Student Week, June 5 through June 12 at the Southern Baptist Assembly, Ridgecrest, North Carolina. Then too, some Baptist girls are going to the mountains in southwest Virginia to teach in the Vacation Bible School there.

Betty Bennet, president of the Baptist Student Union has already gone to Oklahoma where she will be working for the Home Mission Board among the Osage Indian Tribe.

Patsy Dale, vice-president of the "Y" will attend the Southern Y. W. C. A. Regional Conference at Camp Highland Lake near Hendersonville. We are sure these girls will have some very interesting as well as inspiring experiences.

"Y" Cabinet and Freshman Commission, don't forget to return to school September 16, 1946, to greet the new freshmen.

The "Y" wishes you all the happiest summer vacation and will be looking forward to many more good times next fall.

Tearful Seniors Form Arch of Caps Under Which Juniors Proudly Walk

Senior Chapel Friday was a tearful occasion for a great many of us for it is as hard to part with our seniors as it is for them to go. The lump that rose in our throats when the Alma Mater was played seemed to be contagious because everyone appeared to have one. Some smiled, some cried when the seniors sang their farewell songs, but there was a veritable wave of tears that swept across the auditorium when Dr. Jarman sang "Keep on Hoping."

"The Sophomores are darling girls" which the seniors sang to their sister class was the song which they used at their ratting when they were freshmen. Songs from the circus, songs from the various sports and the touching songs of farewell brought both tears and cheers from the rest of us. It made us sad to think that we must break off our friendships, and yet we all look forward to the day when we will stand in their places.

Senior Chapel is a well established custom at Farmville, as much a part of it as the columns on the Colonnade or ice cream for Thursday night dinner; the only change, outside the girls themselves, is that Dr. Jarman used to sing "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day." There were also the vocal tributes to the class sponsor and president, then for the big surprise. Everyone was all a dither to see who would be the honorary member of the senior class of 1947, but since everybody knows that it's Carlotta Norfleet we're not going to tell who is. Grace Loyd announced—just to be perverse, you understand.

Finally all who are coming back have just loads o wishes for the seniors so w body's permission we're go barge on in with a bit of Anyone who objects can just stop reading at this point.

The time has come to say farewell
So wish we now for one and all
Good luck and health where 'ere you dwell
And a grand job come next fall.

STC Art Department Displays Drawings Made By Students

Art Department held its annual exhibit of student art work during the week of May 20 to 27 in the art laboratory showing a representative cross section of the results of all the classes in the department.

The chief aim of the department has been to help students to an understanding of all of the arts for their own enjoyment through creative participation in manipulating materials, experimenting in color, design, and drawing and gaining a working kowledge of mediums used and techniques possible in the medium.

Included in the exhibit are abstract arrangements, done by beginning students as orientation in color, texture, and space relation, advanced work in design using subject matter in semi-abstract interpretations as animals, flowers, landscapes and figures. Paintings in water color and oil of local landscape were done by freshmen and sophomores in art structure classes. Figure studies were done by an advanced class who worked from the model for proportions, action, and composition. Craft work of special interest was done by all classes including a group of physical education majors interested in recreational camp craft activities. This included weaving, book binding, linoleum block prints for textiles, wood decoration, metal etching and embossing, jewelry, leather tooling, and stencil on cloth. Seniors Remember

Then there is the realization that leaving Farmville means leaving Hampden-Sydney. That's pretty hard on some our Seniors! No more serenades from the cars behind the building; no more Garnet and Gray rat-caps drifting around, no more picnics at Bear Creek Lake; no more ball games to root for. Is it possible that they Graduate, too, or doesn't Hampden-Sydney just go on the same as usual forever?

Oh, its been a great life all right. Four years of fun and frolicking; four years of serious studying. We've shared our successes and our failures, and our little gripes and good fortunes. We've "supported" our roommates and our room-mates have supported us when allowances ran low or were slow in coming. We've studied together, eaten together, gone to church together, wept over movies together, and played together for four long years and though our courses may have varied we've all learned so many of the same general fundamentals which go to make up a normal happy life outside of college.

We realize that through the efforts and ideals of Dr. Jarman and the faculty and the Home department that Farmville is indeed as homelike as a place could be with 800-some in one "family", and we realize full well the possible anxiety and unhappiness which we, through our own selfishness and thoughtlessness, may have caused him at one time or another. And above all we realize how fair-and-square he's been with us the whole time.

Our college friendships soon may sever, but the Farmville Spirit can never be broken, and though we may not have believed all these "old fogies" who have insisted it, the last thing we'll realize about S. T. C. is that the four long years we've spent together on this campus have been four of, if not The Four happiest years of our lives!

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

JANE PHILHOWER

One of the personalities that the senior class will never forget because of her love for it, is Jane Philhower. She has devoted much of her boundless energy to class activities.

Early our freshman year, Jane was elected to the Freshman Commission and was a member of the College Choir. Her other activities were concentrated on the "Owls Club" and its many problems. She helped immeasurably with our circus stunt, class song, and the coke machine her sophomore year. Last year found her chairman of our circus stunt and one of the Spanish activities of the Mardi Gras Court. This, her senior year, has been filled with various activities. We were proud to acclaim her as circus ringmaster, Mardi Gras Queen, and a member of the May Court. She was recognized by AKG for her outstanding leadership. Again she led her class as Senior Dance chairman and made it a perfect occasion for all of us.

Her unique personality is marked by ready wit, her friendliness and ability to get along with others sincerily, frankness, and the love for a good time that she seems to have. Her interests have reached out into the town where she has many friends, but "the one" is Powell Tynes.

As we leave, we will take with us the memories of many of our class mates, but we can never forget one who loved us, her class, Jane Philhower.

Pianist, Singer Will Appear Here At First Lyceum

Cuella Gnevek, pianist, and William Hess, tenor, will come to the Farmville State Teachers College campus to present the first Lyceum of the season on Friday, October 11.

A native of Detroit, Michigan, Cuella Gnevek is not only a brilliant solo pianist, but also an experienced and highly dependable ensemble player. She began her piano instruction early under F. S. Baldwin, Jr. In 1938 she won a scholarship to the Curtis Institute of Music for study with Mme. Isabella Vengerova. For the past two years Cuella has been studying with Muriel Kerr, well known concert pianist, and at the same time playing with numerous chamber music groups. She has also been teaching the veterans with spinal injuries at Halloran Hospital.

William Hess is a young tenor who has just recently been discharged from the Air Corps. Prior to his enlistment in 1943 he scored brilliantly as leading tenor of the Philadelphia Opera Company, in Mozart Operas, in radio, concert, and oratorio, and as soloist with symphonies. Girls Rave, Boys Scramble As College Becomes Co-ed

By MARGARET WILSON

Something new has been added! And it isn't "apple honey" although honey may describe them very well. S. T. C. has opened wide her doors, not only to old girls and new girls, but to men. It sounds unusual to say S. T. C. is co-ed, but it is certainly true, and who's complaining? Although our masculine students have no dorms and are forced to register as day students they are still as much a part of S. T. C. as any feminine creature.

Rumors have not confirmed the exact number of boys we have with us and the amazing number of Hampden-Sydney boys strolling around the campus make it impossible to count ours, but is is pretty certain that we are blessed with at least seventeen, and maybe more to come. Thirteen of these are veterans, and by the way we have seven women veterans also. Our group of vets come to us from the Army, Navy and the Marines.

Needless to say "our boys" have caused the teachers no little confusion during the first couple of days of classes. When the prof. calls for a "Miss Southall" and a booming bass answers "Here", the class is automatically disrupted for at least five minutes. Due to the amazing fact that the girl students greatly outnumber the boys, it is unusual to find more than one or two vets in any particular class. Please don't feel out of place, boys. It is as much a novelty for us as it is for you.

Three of the men are business ed. majors, three are taking a B. A. and six are working for a B. S. degree. The other five are classified as special students. Now, girls, you know how to arrange your schedules.

Just a reminder: the same rules apply to dating our boys as any other town boy—only on weekends, so make all the time you can between classes.

Boys, we are sincerely glad you are with us and we want to welcome you. We want you to feel at home here and in time, to think of S. T. C. as fondly as we do.

Dr. Dabney Lancaster Assumes Duties of College President

Stancell Elected Dramatic Head

The Dramatic Club held its first regular meeting on Tuesday night in the small auditorium, at which meeting they elected officers to fill vacancies on the executive board and accepted new girls into the apprentice groups. The officers elected were: Eloise Stancell, senior from Emporia as President, she will succeed Rebecca Williams who did not return this fall; Christine Shiflet, senior from Churchville, head of Properties Department; Jean Cake, sophomore from Hilton Village, chairman of Play contest; and Sue Davis, junior from Lynchburg, chairman of the Poster committee.

The Dramatic Club received 78 new girls who signed up as apprentices in the various departments. Dorothy Ramage, head of Lighting, reported that 6 girls have joined her group; Betty Scroggins has 14 in her make-up group; Gwen Cress received 12 girls who wish to work with her costuming group; Pat Carter has 8 apprentices for her energetic staging crew, while Christine Shiflet signed up 9 girls in her Properties group. Finally Martha Frances Webb had the prize number—31 signed up for her Acting group. With all these girls who seem eager to aid in producing good plays, the club is looking forward to a successful year.

Of interest to others beside Dramatic Club members, Miss Wheeler has announced that the Hampden-Sydney boys will be in the plays this year. Hugh Warren,

Cut System Changes Announced In Chapel By New College Head

According to an announcement made in chapel Monday, September 23, by Dr. Dabney Lancaster, there have been several changes made in the cut system. He also stated that the Dean's list would be extended to include the sophomore class as well as juniors and seniors.

Heretofore, every student has been allowed one cut in each class per quarter. Now the number of excused absences allowed will be based on the scholastic average of the preceeding quarter. All students with an "A" average will be allowed three cuts per quarter; those with a "B" average, two; and those with a "C" average, one. Any students who have a "C" average with one or more "Fs" or an average of "D" will not be allowed any class cuts.

Only sickness or some unavoidable cause will be accepted as excuses for absence from class for the two days immediately preceeding or following a holiday. Double assignments will be made for unexcused absences on these days.

In order to be on the Dean's List a student must make B or higher on all her work, with the exception of floor work in Physical Education, on which she must make C or higher. The average for the previous three quarters cannot be lower than C. Students on the Dean's List may be absent from classes when they can use their time in ways that seem more profitable.

All transfers and new students will receive their cuts for the first quarter on the basis of a C average. According to Dr. Lancaster's announcement, any excused absence whether it be for sickness or any other cause will be counted as part of the students allotted excuses.

DR. DABNEY S. LANCASTER

Chapel Attendance Becomes Voluntary

That chapel programs will be held only on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of each week and will be put on a voluntary attendance basis was announced by Dr. Jeffers in chapel Friday, September 20. Dr. Jeffers has been appointed chairman of the chapel committee by Dr. Lancaster.

Serving with Dr. Jeffers on this committee are Mr. McCorkle, Dean Smith, Dr. Moss, Mr. Coyner, Miss Patterson, and Miss Clark. Several students will also be asked to serve on this committee.

According to Dr. Jeffers, this plan is to be accepted on an experimental basis for fall quarter. Whether or not it will become a permanent thing depends on the reaction of the students. The principal aim of the committee is to plan programs which will appeal to the students so that they will want to attend. Definite programs will be announced later.

Improvements Made In Main Building

During the summer months improvements were made in the interior of the main buildings.

Rooms on third floor main have been painted in shades of pink and blue. The upstairs rooms in the infirmary have been painted pink. Pictures have been hung in the rooms and along the stairs.

Head Considered Leading Educator

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster assumed the duties of president of State Teacher's College, on July 1, 1946. He succeeds Dr. J. L. Jarman who is retired after 44 years service. Dr. Lancaster is considered one of the top educators in the state.

In 1941, the new college president succeeded Dr. Sidney B. Hall as state superintendent. Dr. Lancaster has been a leader in the movement to increase teachers pay and has placed great emphasis on vocational education in Virginia. He came to the position of state superintendent from Sweet Briar College, where he was executive secretary of the board of trustees. Prior to that Dr. Lancaster was dean of men at the University of Alabama from 1929 to 1937.

Dr. Lancaster received his A.B. degree from the University of Virginia in 1911. After graduation from the University he was an associate master at St. Christopher's School in Richmond and did graduate work at V. P. I. where he received his M.S. degree in 1915.

From 1914 to 1923, Dr. Lancaster taught agricultural education at V.P.I., and then began a six year association with the State Board of Education. For two years he was supervisor of agricultural education and from 1925 to 1929 was secretary of the State Board of Education, a position which at that time was comparable to the assistant superintendency.

Changes Announced Concerning Guests By Miss Garnett

Rules concerning guests in the dining hall have been changed according to an announcement by Miss Alpha Lee Garnett.

Students must report their guests to the dean and receive meal tickets for them in the dean's office.

The meal tickets for lunch and dinner will be fifty cents each. Breakfast meal tickets will be thirty-five cents.

Alumnae do not have to have meal tickets.

Katherine Hundley, senior from Lynchburg, is chief dining room hostess this year, and it has been requested that all students seeking to leave the dining room early receive permission from someone at the head table.

Short Story Contest Deadline Announced

November 10 is the deadline for all entries in the short-story contest which is being sponsored by the Colonnade, according to Margaret Wilson, editor. Any student may submit as many entries as she desires.

There is no restriction as to length or subject. Veterans attending S.T.C. are especially urged to enter the contest.

The Colonnade is a literary magazine to which students, members of the faculty, alumnae, and others contribute. It publishes in literary form some of the results of the thinking and writing done in the college and among its friends.

Margaret Wilson, senior from Washington, D. C., is editor-in-chief of the Colonnade. Barbara Lee Myers is business manager.

Civil Service Open Stenogs and Typists

Civil Service applications will be received at the Commission office in Winston-Salem, N. C., until October 17 for stenographers and typists. Applications may be had at the Farmville Postoffice.

Farmville Opens Doors To Welcome Students

Once again the doors at Farmville have been opened and both new and former students have arrived at this institution. To you, the new girls we extend a cordial welcome. You will begin a life here that differs somewhat from the life you led before. However, the change should prove interesting and challenging. We want you to know how happy we are that you have chosen Farmville as your alma mater.

Many opportunities exist here for you. They are yours for the taking. Will you accept the challenge? And if you do, are you willing to acept the responsibility? Perhaps at first things will seem new and strange to you. However, we hope not for long. We, as upperclassmen, want you to enjoy college life. This is possible only by giving of your time and your talents, and by having a sincere desire to see things done well. You will find that if you give, you also shall reap.

This first year at college will mean much to you, therefore, start off on the right foot, and your remaining years at this college will be exceedingly happy ones. You will make new friends, and friendships made at college are often friendships that last through one's lifetime. You will see the need for cooperation, effort, and school spirit as you work and play together. Will you help us carry on the spirit that has pervaded in this institution for many years? We need your help. Won't you accept your responsibilities here with gladness, because you, as future teachers, will soon have the task of moulding the young lives of American youth? We have faith in you, the freshman class of 1950, and we are looking forward to sharing many experiences with you.

Successful College Life Requires Full Cooperation

In order for us, as students, to have the best possible life at college, there is one thing we must learn. That is cooperation. We mean by that co-operation in both the small and large things that make up our everyday life. Cooperation was a favorite word of our retired president Dr. J. L. Jarman. According to him, anything was possible if we cooperated.

Most of the upperclassmen know just how important this is, but the new students will see the necessity of cooperation as they study and play together. Without cooperation on every student's part, this institution could not possibly maintain the high standards left to us by those who lived here before.

Perhaps we have had experience in cooperating with others before, but this year the need is greater. As Dr. Lancaster said recently he is faced with a great new responsibility. We, as students, should pledge ourselves to help in every way that we can. He needs our cooperation, the school needs it, and our respective classes need it. We should not think of ourselves as individuals too much, but as one large family that cannot survive without it.

We shall have many opportunities this year to prove that we can cooperate. In practically everything we undertake to do, we will realize that our part is but a small cog in the wheel, yet, the wheel could not turn without our help. We should strive to keep that wheel turning regularly by being faithful.

This year we are hoping for a closer cooperation between faculty, administration and students. This cooperation has always been present before, and we want to do our share in maintaining it.

Let's try to make this year at the college more successful than ever before. Every student here has a challenge to face. Are we going to meet our challenges bravely? We must if we are to enjoy college life. Yes, college makes many demands on us as students. But, in return, we receive a greater benefit. Let's cooperate and make this the best year in the history of the college. We can do it, if we will!

Chapel Program Success Depends Upon Students

With Dr. Lancaster as the new president of our beloved Alma Mater, we students are already seeing changes being made. One of these changes, and one which is particularly appealing to the student body, is voluntary chapel attendance. For several years there has been some complaint about compulsory chapel and the programs. Dr. Lancaster has now given us the privilege of making our own decision about attendance. Let's not abuse that privilege. Yes, voluntary chapel is appealing, but it should not be appealing because we can do as we please. Rather, we should be grateful that we have a part in making this trial a success. Dr. Jeffers, chapel chairman, has promised that if we do our part, the new arrangement may be carried on throughout the year. He has also promised that the programs will be more interesting. But, he and his committee can't do all the work. It's up to us to give him our full cooperation and talents.

Fellow students, a real and challenging opportunity has been given us. If we fail to do our part, we are the ones to suffer. With only three days of chapel, we should try to get all the fun and inspiration we can from them. We will either make or break this new plan presented for our approval. Will we continue to have compulsory chapel or will it be voluntary?

Jane Williams: It's like a second home.

Gwen Grow: I'm starving to death.

June Banks: We missed the hot water at home.

Nancy Shorts: I wished they would supply more bath tub stoppers.

Barbara Andrews: Swell!

Pat Davis: I liked the friendliness of all the girls.

Puckett Asher: I loved it. It's colossal.

Dramatic Club Affords Opportunity For Expression In Various Ways

Interested in Dramatics? Almost everyone is, which makes the Dramatic club a very popular organization. We began Tuesday night with our first meeting to carry out the high aims of the club, by electing new officers to fill vacancies in the executive board, and by welcoming a large group of new girls who will help us make our organization even better this year.

It is the purpose of the Dramatic Club to select and produce the Fall and Spring plays, to cooperate with the May Day committee in putting on the May Day program, and also to hold the annual play contest in which the high schools of this region participate. The departments; Properties, Lighting, Make-up, Costuming, and Acting, carry on the stage work and train the apprentices. This year we received a gratifying number of girls who seem genuinely interested in the activities of the club, so that we are looking forward to a very successful year.

There are still some, we are sure, who did not come to sign up because they cannot act; therefore we take this opportunity to tell you about the many things which the club affords.

The purpose of the Acting group is to teach acting to those interested and it puts on apprentice plays at the regular meetings, it also is invaluable training for those who wish to do play directing. The Costuming Group has charge of costuming all the plays and it has one of the best wardrobes of any school in the State. We have at our disposal costumes of many periods as well as several complete sets given to us by the Federal Theater Project. For anyone interested in style, clothes, or the making of costumes this field is extremely interesting. Staging is responsible for all the stage settings and scenes involved in the play. We can produce an African jungle, or a homey living room with a bit of ingenius paint and the necessary "props". Anyone who loves to dabble in paint (and you needn't be an artist) will find this group delightful. Properties group is the one which collects and is in charge of all the necessary "odds and end" called for in the plays; while Make-up does the magical conversion of familiar S. T.C. faces into old men, bearded villains, or Chinese ladies.

It is still possible for those interested to sign up and any member of the executive board will be happy to welcome you into her respective group.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

We hear that June Cregar cries over kittens since David is in Manila and she can't cry over him. Tuff, ain't it, June?

Have you heard the latest? Just ask Gussie Hargan what her new nickname is? How are you, Jane?

Wonder why Barbara Kelham doesn't like the dark? Ask someone who was in the "rec" Saturday night.

K. T. Rainey is really drooling over a guy who goes by the initials R. S.

It appears that Louise Dalton acquired more than a sun tan this summer. Could Curtis be responsible for that certain gleam in her eyes?

Incidentally, it's nice to see men around the campus during the week. Welcome you vets.

Around the telephone booth Hilda Abernathy may be seen walking the floor over (? ?)

How about that certain freshman who talks about some guy named Meena? What's cooking, Puckett?

Agnes Millner is looking forward—to the Danville fair or is it to seeing Bill?

Frances DeBerry went out and got herself a new man this summer. Wish you'd tell us how, Frances.

Mary Helmer keeps her suitemates giggling all the time. And sometimes there're drastic results. Don't you agree, Litz?

Pat Stowitts is wasting no time in grabbing several Hampden-Sydney men. Oh, you lucky men.

Troxie keeps insisting that she has to go to Fork Union every other week-end. Is he cute, Troxie?

Why does Pat Davis blush when you mention V. P. I? We know you just can't resist the place, but neither can we.

Mary Harrison has certainly started the year off right. No lonely week-ends will exist for her with that handsome man around.

Wedding bells will soon ring for Lorraine Smith and LeRoy Chapman. The best to both of you.

Sue Davis seems to be having a nice time. Why? Because of those good looking H. S. boys?

Shirley Trout is one of the more lucky freshmen when it comes to begging dates. She really gets around.

Have you seen the sparkler on Carmen Lowe's third finger, left hand? Tell us about it, Carmen.

Hope Duke surely was excited when she got that long distance call Sunday night. Is he "the one" Hope?

Dolores Duncan surely isn't losing any time getting dates. Lucky girl.

We hear that Joyce Townsend made a trip to Puerto Rico but all those good looking Latin Americans didn't appeal to her. She had to go back home to Richmond to find her man. Now what do you think about that?

Charlotte Thorp is still carrying a torch for John.

Be good now 'cause we know where you were when the lights were out.

Y News

By SUE DAVIS

The "Y" extends a hearty "welcome" to all the Freshmen and to all the old girls who came back. We are really glad to see you again.

It seems that all the girls who attended the church parties Saturday night had a wonderful time. The Hampden-Sydney and town boys added a lot of excitement to the parties. After playing games, dancing, and eating, the girls and boys left having found many new acquaintances. We are sure that the students will enjoy attending and working in the churches during the coming year.

Prayers will be held Monday through Friday in the auditorium immediately after supper.

The theme for the week is "Have you ever thought about it? What shall I do with my life?" Everyone is cordially invited to attend these programs.

"I will major in the power of God rather than in the power of things."

SO YOU WANT TO RIDE?

Even Freshmen learn fast! It seems to have gotten around campus that we're going to have riding this year, better than ever before, and we're glad to confirm said rumor. Indeed, S. T. C. students will have the opportunity to hit the trail this year with Miss Lucie Shields on hand to guide them. Soon she and her five horses will arrive, so you'd better watch for notices to sign up for classes. Things are not definitely settled yet, but you will probably be able to have a good ride, getting credits toward your diploma all the while.

Miss Shields is well-known as one of the first horsewomen in this locality. A native of Farmville, she proved her versatility by serving with the Red Cross overseas. Now she's back to the saddle again. She should really know the ropes around here for she was graduated from none other than Farmville S. T. C.

For our new instructor and for the new students, we fling out our saddle blanket with "Welcome" on it. Here's to a successful year with no spills and lots of thrills!

NOTHING BUT BLUE SKIES

Well, an occasional cloud has showed its face, but when you're up on Eagle or King, every day's a holiday. King has apparently forgotten his tricky little side-step and is content to rack along at a fast gait which delights Anna H. no end. He'll take a lot of blues (we hope) if he continues to behave his pretty self. Eagle is fine but one of the trio is missing. Poor Red Fox met death down in a gulch this summer, but we hope he's happy in Horse's Heaven, if there be such a place.

Leave us not end our column on such a sad note, however. We can't begin to describe the endless joy of trotting over a wood's trail in autumn, with dried leaves crackling under your horses hooves and tangy smell of burning leaves crossing your path. Neither can you know the surge of power of a horse taking a jump until you've done that very thing yourself.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Back to school, means back to sports for a lot of us; of course it doesn't mean neglecting our studies while we play. During your stay at Farmville you will find any sport to suit your interest, not to add the new ones you will learn.

In the near future you'll find yourself on a hockey team, or playing basketball, and trying your skill at tennis. If you aren't in a swimming class, there are recreational swimming hours for you.

The inter-class games will soon appear on the sports calendar, so brush up on your hockey and tennis, since these are the first ones for the fall quarter. Check the bulletin board for scheduled practices, and try to be on hand. To participate in the class games you must have eight practices, so come on down to the A.A. field and play with your class when the time comes. Perfection only comes through practice and more practice.

New girls on campus should form a habit of participating in the sports here. A walk down to the corner, and back can hardly be called exercise, but never let it be said that following a hockey game, isn't fun and exercise.

You will find the class games exciting as you watch your team make a goal in hockey, or smash shots over the tennis net, or struggle for the ball and a goal in basketball. Be a spectator even though you aren't a player on the team.

This is merely an introduction to the games you will see on campus, so come on out and be a good sport.

Swim Test Periods Named By Dabney

Classes in beginning and intermediate swimming are being offerred at 11:40 MWF, 11:40 TTS, 2:50 MWF, and 3:50 MWF. The Freshman swimming tests are being given on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from four to five by Miss Dabney, swimming instructor.

On Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday nights at 9:00 there will be a recreational period for swimming for anyone in the school who has passed their beginners swimming test.

A general practice of archery will be held every Monday and Wednesday at 2:50. This is open to everyone in school and someone will be there to help and teach those who do not know anything about the sport.

Blouses, Sweaters Rate New Honors

Welcome new girls and old ones to tips in class room fashions. With the return of fall and with it school days, sturdy sunsuits give way to equally sturdy sweaters and skirts, the elected uniform of young Americans from kindergarden through college.

Sweaters that are fitted are trying to replace "sloppy joe" but its going to be a hard acquaintance to make for most girls. Also returning this season is the once popular "turtle neck." There is still a race in the popularity contest between slipovers and cardigans; there seems to be a tie at the finish line. The twin set is going to be worn when the weather becomes cooler. There just isn't any way of stating colors—all are used, no one leads. Sweaters tucked in the skirt with a belt are also popular and new.

Wool jersey blouses are being used as a substitute for sweaters, nigh round neck, turtle neck; long, bracelet length and cap sleeves. Colors are in as much variety as in sweaters. The new bell-puffed sleeves are also featured in this type and other blouses.

Skirts are very much the same as they have been for many seasons. The newest design is the unpressed pleats and also unstitched. Gathers are used a lot in soft woolens. Pockets are in great demand, stitching used to brighten the solid colors.

Feet Ache, Bones Crack In S. T. C. Daily Rounds

By JANICE SLAVIN

"Thy halls and thy arcades"—eek!! I can truthfully say I have never seen so many steps and halls in one place in my life.

You walk calmly down the hall assuring yourself that this is the way you went to class yesterday—but wait! Yes, you're lost again. It seems to no avail to ask an upper classman where the room is to which you would very much like to go. For some strange reason they don't seem to know much about it either. Oh, well, that's life.

We bewildered freshmen certainly have good excuses for not being on time to class. Now maybe if we had a road map . . . . . .

Another disastrous experience a good many freshmen have undergone is that of the highly waxed halls and steps. Ker-plop, and your best pal is at your feet, and I don't mean proposing! If this happens to you, pick yourself up (if possible) and head for the infirmary. More than likely you'll be in bandages for the next six months.

Upon entering and leaving the dining room, you are immediately transformed into a sardine. In fact, the only difference between you and a sardine is that the sardine remains stationary and you get pushed around. Don't worry about that, though. You couldn't possibly fall down.

On top of all this the shrieking and crowding at the post office around 10 a. m. is something that would drive an insane person crazy, if you get what I mean.

Here we freshmen have been pitying our lot; but now it's time to consider the million and one steps the juniors and seniors take. By the time they reach the third floor, they either look like the original Sad Sack or the man with the drape shape. And don't you feel for those seniors who wear the dirt thin between here and the Farmville High School? Oh, well, somebody is going to benfit from all this shindiging. It's not the butcher, the baker, or the candlestick maker. You guessed it, the shoe maker.

Honor Code Forms Basis For College Behavior

Freshmen and new students will have the opportunity soon to sign the honor code. The honor code is the basis for all work here at college. We caution you not to just sign your name on the dotted line, but to think seriously about it. Think for just a moment about your sincerity when you sign it.

The honor code really puts you on your honor. We say that cheating is one of the things that the honor code seeks to eliminate. By that we mean, it seeks to do away with cheating in every phase of college life. It is not concerned just with classroom cheating, but with cheating in any form. Every student here at college desires to do good work, but let's make sure that it is our own work.

However, the honor code is not just a promise that we won't steal or cheat. Honor plays a large part here at State Teachers College where we are living together with a large number of girls. Every girl has a certain pride in herself and in her school; she has enough pride to want everyone to think the best of her and her surroundings.

We should be thankful that we are living in a country where honor is highly regarded. Our honor is something that we have to live with everyday of our life, and if it isn't what it should be, we have only ourselves to blame.

We couldn't possibly say what the honor code should mean to you. To each of us, it has a different meaning. But the main thing for you to remember is to let the honor code be a part of you.

We, as upperclassmen, realize the importance attached to the honor code, and we are continually striving to uphold it. Won't you do your share in maintaining this code of honor?

Study Should Challenge Our Best Capacities

Seemingly a trivial and insignificant word, study really should include the major part of our efforts during the time we spend at S.T.C. Certainly most of us came to college to learn, to acquire more knowledge, to become more educated. If this is true, study is important for, according to Mr. Webster, it is "the application of the mind to books, arts, or any subject for acquiring knowledge".

As to how and when one should study depends upon the individual. Approximately two hours of study and preparation should be spent for each hour of class work. Some prefer to don their plaid shirts and blue jeans and settle down to an evening of work in her room while others who find that the telephone, radio, or friends who drop in to call prevent her from really concentrating prefer to study in the library. Others find the quiet and solitude they desire in the empty classrooms. Here they have the use of maps, books, and the blackboard.

There are many different formulas as to how to study. After locating the proper atmosphere, we must find the quickest and best way to digest the necessary information. Most people agree that notes taken on lectures in class are definitely essential. Incorporating these notes with the most important facts from the textbook should give you a good outline or condensation of the material.

Cramming for tests or exams is definitely not an example of good studying. It overtaxes your mind and physical endurance and your work does not show up as well as that of one who does her studying thoroughly day by day.

Although study is important it should not require all your time. To be a happy, healthy, normal person relaxation and recreation are also essential. A friendly chat with your next door neighbor or a hand or so of bridge is always in order, but just see that it does not interfere with your study hours. They do not nearly fill the complete day. As the old saying goes, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy".

Now that your allotment of cuts is based on your grades, it should make the problem of studying more important to us. Let's get down to some real work and build those averages up!

Success of Y. W. C. A. Depends Upon Students

From year to year on our campus, girls have been given the opportunity to develop a well-rounded life through curricular and extra-curricular activities. One of the most important organizations on our campus is the Y. W. C. A. This coming week-end the "Y" cabinet is having a retreat at Longwood to formulate plans whereby each girl on this campus may come to know God better and to serve him more faithfully in these halls of learning.

We, as students, on a college campus, will live our school days to fullest only if we realize this fact and live accordingly. We elected the officers of the Young Women's Christian Association, pledging them our support. They strive to keep the fact before us at all times that Christ is the only Way, Truth, and the Life.

We will realize the part we can play in spiritual welfare as we attend the various programs sponsored by the "Y" throughout the year. We will see, too, the part the church of our choice plays in this respect.

We can help make this a most successful year for ourselves and for the Y. W. C. A. by being active in its work, by taking a sincere interest, and by realizing the fact that Jesus said, "No one comes unto the Father but by me. I am the Way, the Truth and the Light."

Joan Wilson—Because I had to.

Mary Ann Morris—I don't know why, I just did.

Lynda Black—I wish I knew.

Tillie Tillett—To get some good food.

Margaret Gregg—So I could get that Sunday night ride back to S. T. C.

Alice Hewitt—So I could get some private mail—did I say private?

Peggy Smith—So I could be closer to Randolph-Macon and you know—ha ha.

Mary Frances Robins—To have the thrill of week ends.

Ruth Rodogna — To see if I could dig up enough credits to be a sophomore before I got too old.

Elizabeth Watts — So I could hurry up and graduate.

Helen Whirl—I'm just "Drifting along with the tumbling tumble weed."

Mary Agnes Millner—It was always taken for granted that I'd go to college.

Betty Jones — "Cause Vick was at Hampden-Sydney. Little did I know that he'd be leaving in a week.

Voice of Our Readers

Dear Editor,

I think Emily Neal, senior from Chatham, has caught the spirit of State Teachers Colelge in the following poem. The comparison is appropriate and the advice good. If we will all "heave ho" together, we are destined to make this year at college one of the best. With new faculty additions and a new president, it is our duty to be cooperative "working passengers". For Dr. Lancaster and these teachers wil be beginning a "voyage", too. The success of that "voyage" will depend in part upon us students. Let's show them our appreciation for their efforts, and at the end of nine months, we will be able to look back and truthfully say, "It's been Bon Voyage and a trip of direct, smooth sailing".

Sincerely,
Mary Agnes Millner

THE S.T.C. SETS SAIL

EMILY C. NEAL

Ahoy! there all mates!
And shout you loud with glee!
For we're about to begin our voyage
On the good ship S. T. C.
Let's heave ho!
Lift up the anchor,
And raise high the blue and white.
Let's be working passengers
Who are happy day and night.
Let's say, "Aye, aye", to our Captain new
And all the other aids-in-crew
So that nine months hence
When we pull into port
From off the Sea of Learning
We can look back and say
It's been Bon Voyage
And a trip of direct, smooth sailing.

Dear Editor,

Next week, October 11 is the date, we students here at State Teachers College will have the opportunity to attend the first lyceum of the year. We shall have two talented artists appearing here, and they have selected many favorite pieces to present a well-rounded program.

We think that the attendance at lyceums last year could be improved upon. Surely these programs deserve our cooperation and support. We think it might be well to point out the fact that these lyceums are staged mainly for our benefit.

After a busy day in class, what better way is there to relax than listening to good music. Music is one of the things that can brush all worldly care away and lead us to think of nobler things.

How about showing our appreciation for these fine programs by having a large attendance? Arrange your plans to include attending this lyceum, for you will come away from it saying, "I'm glad I went."

Another reminder—don't forget to reserve your ticket, so you'll be sure of a seat.

We'll see you at the lyceum.

Sincerely,
June Cregar and Augusta Hargan

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

To start off—we are all wondering just how Betty Bibb picked up poison oak at this time of the year. You tell us Betty, it's a mystery to us.

Shuffle is still walking around in a daze. We can't figure out if it's from the phone call or having to get out of bed early to answer it.

For the benefit of a small group of Juniors—if anyone sees a tall, dark and handsome man going by the name of Jimmy Bings, please notify them immediately.

"Kackie" came back from her week-end in Carolina aglow—Hokie! Hokie! Hokie! Hokie! Hi!

We are all anxious to find out just what makes Norfolk as interesting to Claudia these days. It couldn't be the beach—or could it?

Marjorie Vaughan is all smiles because she received so much mail from her PAO. Tell us about him, Marjorie.

"Aber" and her man are a cute two-some. And we dasn't forget Doris Brooks and her fella. How 'bout that?

Martha Frances and Dick don't like crowds. It seems that the movie is better when you see it from a distance.

Mary Lou Graham had her date so entranced Sunday that he'd been walking in the rain for a half hour before he realized it!

Who was that cute man with Ella Stone Smith Saturday night? Give us the info, Ella Stone.

Anne Homes and her date don't like hillbilly music. Why Anne, we thought you liked them thar mountaineers!

We sure do miss the bright, energetic gal that is our ed-in-chief. We wish you a speedy recovery, Shirley.

"To Susan My Dear"—the letter began, and all we see now is one big smile from Sue! The mail finally came through, and so did Bill!

Off to Virginia this week end went hosts of Farmville gals and H.-S. guys. For full particulars of the gala event just ask Gee Gee, George Ann and Martha Russell.

"Nick" and Betty P. came back from Richmond all excited. We think the score had something to do with it, but we're not sure. Ah, ha!

Now Gin Tindall, you'll have to admit you've been holding out on us. Blondes are sooo cute, but def!

Betty Ann Smith knows what love is, so all you poor souls who are in the dark about it, get her to tell you about it.

How about that senior that kept a date waiting for an hour and then nonchalantly walked up to him and said, "Gee, I'm sorry, but I forgot I had a date with you." That's a big mistake in this day and time.

The sight of the week happened a few days ago when a vet had four girls surrounding him and carrying "his" books to class.

That's about all for this heah week, but we'll be back! Bye now.

Y News

By SUE DAVIS

We are glad to see such splendid cooperation with the Chapel Committee. The programs show signs of being a great success, and we hope the attendance will continue to grow during the coming year.

The Newman Club is invited to attend dinner and a general meeting at the Rectory in Crewe next Sunday at which time all Newman Clubs in this district will be present. All members are cordially invited to attend.

Y. W. A. members, don't forget the meeting November 8 at the Baptist Student Union at 9 o'clock. There is to be a very interesting program and a missionary from China will speak.

The topic for prayers this week is "The Influence of Our Life." Did you ever think that someone was watching you? Well, they are. Though you do not realize it, your actions and attitudes are copied by those that admire you, so, think twice before you do anything that might have a harmful influence on others.

"A good example is the best sermon."

Fall Schedule Set To Include Tennis

Although no definite date has been made, Betty Burchett, manager of tennis, has announced that there will be a singles tennis tournament this fall. Five points toward the color cup will be given to the class winning.

The courts can be used at any time except on Monday and Wednesday at 1:50, and Tuesday and Thursday at 2:50 and 3:50. Regular classes are scheduled at these times. A tennis doubles tournament will be offered in the spring.

Students are asked to wear tennis shoes while playing and not to step on the white lines of the court. They are also asked not to use the courts if the ground is damp. These few reminders will help keep the courts in good condition.

NORTHERN NECK CLUB

The Northern Neck Club held its first meeting Thursday night, September 26.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Let's take a look at the sports events from the dug out. Shade off those aching muscles if you've followed sports this past week, and take on some new ideas. Have you tried your luck on the tennis courts? The courts have been lined off and if you are not in a tennis class, you will find the courts available for use after class hours. How about your new love, hockey, for those who haven't played this game before? You have probably without a doubt gotten the bug by now—if not, by game time you will. This sport will be one of the most interesting for you during inter-class competition for the cup of cups—our "color cup", try to be on hand or playing when the whistle blows.

Quite a few have already found their way down that beaten path to the stables, and taken rides to Longwood or other trail rides. Riding will surely give you the exercise, and after a brisk country trot you'll be ready for a warm shower, and not to mention the hearty meal you'll want. The weather is excellent for afternoon rides. Find a friend and saddle up for a ride soon.

The pool you've found on campus is for your use. Make it a favorite haunt on recreational swimming nights. Check the bulletin board, and your nearest neighbor will no doubt want to go along for a dip. After a day of class work, you'll find this cool past-time—so splash away!

Have you tried that mile hike with your friends yet? Take along a couple of apples and sandwiches and hit the road out of town. If the buzz of "city" noise gets you down, and you have a desire to hide away from it all, try it once, and you'll have other trips planned for a near future date.

Play the sports on campus, and watch for coming events on campus, and plan to be more than a spectator, who really wanted to play in the games but never got to enough practices, be sports conscious and you won't regret that you gave up a movie for class practice.

Until the next issue be a good sport in all sports.

who wouldn't go "all-out" for this tricky Billie with its two bill pockets (one zippered), coin and card pockets. It's the one practical gift she's certain to welcome. Fashioned from fine leathers in five smart colors.

New Foot Apparel Coming In Style

Your shoes are your footprints in leather. Look at them; everyone else does. Sloppy, floppy loafers and dirty saddles are bowing out, and in their place is a trim, polished footwear.

To accent skirts and sweaters on campus this season appears the flat suede wedgie in black, red, or green. The latest thing yet is the tartan styled like the ballet. It is adorned with a silver buckle. In shining black patent, the tartan is just the thing to wear with plaids. Of course, the loafer is still good if it is trim and well brushed.

Let's dress up shoes feature closed toes and heels. You can be comfortable and in style too this year with no more frozen toes. The best color is black. Platform soles flesh-lighted by nailheads or embroidery are very smart now, and a flirtatious sling is flattering to the foot. These are made of various materials and colors; black gabardine, deep rich brown plastic, red, green and neutral colored reptile skin. To add that final touch to your best black dress, wear dramatic grey or neutral lizard skin shoes with matching bag.

As much a part of campus life as hockey games, and mid-night bridge parties, chemistry labs and senior proms is the new "Monk" shoe. For pattering around the dorm on week nights, with suits for shopping, with jeans, shorts, and casuals the "Monk" is the answer.

Fall Play Rehearsals Will Begin This Week

Rehearsals for the fall play will begin this week, according to Miss Wheeler; however the entire cast has not yet been chosen. The play which has been selected for production is the extremely popular Broadway and Hollywood hit, "The Man Who Came To Dinner."

The play is most commonly associated with Monty Wooley who made it nationally famous on the screen, yet it was written about and occasionally acted by the late Alexander Woolcott. The cast is to be quite large and many Hampden-Sydney boys are taking part in it in cooperation with the Dramatic Club.

Dramatic Clinic To Be Held Here

Local Club To Serve As Hostess to Group

On October 12, the Dramatic Club will serve as hostess to a conference for directors of dramatics in this region. Miss Wheeler, who is chairman of the conference, has stated that the purpose is to hold a "clinic" at which several people, prominent in the field of school dramatics will speak on improvements and suggested programs for the benefit of high school coaches.

The schedule is as follows:

From 10:30 to 12:45, speakers, which will include Mr. Richard Fletcher of the University of Virginia, secretary of the Virginia league; Mrs. Thurman Pyle, Editor of the Virginia Drama News; and Mr. Roger Boyle, associate professor in the drama department at the University of Virginia. After they have spoken, luncheon will be served from 12:45 until 2:00 p. m. From 2:04 till 3:00, Miss Dorothy Crane, head of the speech and drama department of Newport News High School will discuss play production in high schools. At 3:00 there will be a round table discussion of pertinent topics led by Miss Wheeler. All the speakers for the conference and Miss Amanda Gray of Newport News High School will take part in the round table discussion. This session will last approximately an hour.

Jean Cake is chairman of the committee acting as hostesses. The meeting will be held in the Student Lounge and all students, faculty, and administration who are interested are cordially invited to attend any of the sessions.

Y.W.C.A. Installation Planned For Tonight

Wednesday night at prayers, all freshmen and new girls will be installed into the Y.W.C.A. "All girls are expected to wear white," according to Martha Russell East, president.

Special music will be played and the girls will sing "Follow the Gleam." The service will begin in the large auditorium and will end in the court in front of Annex.

PGM Issues Bids To Upper Classmen

3 Seniors, Junior Join Honor Society

Bids to Pi Gamma Mu were issued to three seniors and one junior today. Those seniors receiving bids are Barbara Graham, Pulaski; Alice Burks Davis, Phenix; and Dot Turley, Wytheville. Tucker Winn, junior from Wilson also received an invitation to join the society.

Pi Gamma Mu is a national social science honor society. The purpose of this society is to further the scientific study of the problems of social science. The Virginia Gamma chapter, the local organization of Pi Gamma Mu, was organized in 1927. In addition to a high standard of general scholarship required for entrance each member must show an outstanding interest in the social sciences and must do a piece of original work in some of the social sciences while a member of the society.

Officers of Pi Gamma Mu are Louise Rives, president; Mary Stewart Buford, vice president; Margaret Wilson, secretary; and Betty Bennett, treasurer.

Inter Varsity Elects Davis As Librarian

At the regular meeting of Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship on Tuesday night, Audrey Lee Davis, senior from Farmville, was elected librarian and magazine representative to succeed Jane Thorp, who did not return to S.T.C. this year.

Other officers are president, Lee Carter; vice president, Mary Agnes Millner; secretary, Gertrude Driver; treasurer, Nadine Lewers; missions chairman, Betty Bennett; chorister, Joyce Fleet; and pianist, Mildred Williams.

The Farmville chapter of Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship, an international, inter-denominational Bible study group was begun here three years ago. Meetings are held at 7 o'clock on Tuesday night in the Student Lounge. After breakfast each morning, a prayer meeting is held in the Dean's Parlor. The group invites all students to attend these sessions.

Chapeaux Known as Rat Caps Given Frosh by Lordly Sophs

Last Wednesday night as the weary clock was striking for the tenth time, a mob of wobbly kneed innocent little Freshmen (Freshmen are always little according to upperclassmen) were seen in the Rotunda, impatiently shifting from foot to foot, clinging to their worldly-wise Sophomore friends (we say "friends" for lack of a better word) awaiting the moment when they would descend into the Rec' for the solemn ceremony of capping.

As time marched on and on, the line of Sophs and their underdogs stretched out and wound around the columns, while each rat had horrible visions of how she would look in her new chapeau, or wondered if she were glad or sad at the prospect of being a full-fledged rat.

When conversations lagged during the long wait and the fiendish caps; Sophs delighted in undermining the fast sinking morale of the Fresh with threats and horror stories of the approaching Rat Week.

Presently, some enterprising rat struck up a lively version of "Red 'n White", followed up by the Soph "Green 'n White".

While Fresh and Sophs tried to sing each other out, the line miraculously started to move, at first in snail fashion, then faster until the quaking Freshmen and smug Sophomores found themselves descending the stairs and moving 'round and 'round inside the Rec.

The merry-go-round finally screeched to a stop, and Tootsie Hamliton, president of the Slavedrivers, Inc. stepped into the limelight, made a short speech on what pleasure she knew the rats would derive from the daily wear of those divine creations, the rat caps; and then she uttered that long-awaited, momentous phrase, "Freshmen, we now cap you."

The evil-eyed Sophomores lost no time in plunking a shiny new Blue and White cap on each Freshman dome.

The ceremony over, the newly capped rats climbed the golden stairs to their respective residences where they swapped hats in an effort to find the right size, more often than not ending up with a worse fit than the original.

The rats were preparing to hit the sack when the strains of beautiful music hit their ears—the

Sigma Pi Rho Bids Varner As Member

At a recent meeting of Virginia Alpha Chapter, Sigma Pi Rho, Catherine Varner, senior from Farmville, was received into membership. At this same meeting Dr. Thompson, head of the Latin Department, became an honorary member and sponsor. Miss Minnie V. Rice, former sponsor, assisted with the program.

Sigma Pi Rho, national honor fraternity for excellency in Latin, was founded on this campus in 1932 when the local chapter united with six others to form a national society. This society consists of Juniors and Seniors who have shown outstanding interest in the field of Latin and general scholarship.

The officers of Sigma Pi Rho are: president, Lovice Altizer, vice-president, Lee Carter, secretary-treasurer, Audrey Lee Davis.

Annual Pictures Taken in Rec, Smile Now For the Nice Man

"Does my hair look all right?"

"Yes it looks lovely. But look at my bumps, would you?"

"Hey, Anne, take off your glasses."

Such were the remarks that we heard as we went to have our pictures taken for the 1947 Virginian. Girls crowded in one room to make last minute repairs on their make-up, to fix that strand of hair that just would NOT stay down, or to wash the bags from under their eyes. Some were scared; some were anxious as to the outcome, and one girl admitted that she enjoyed it. But we all combed, powdered and made-up, until one of the student helpers came in to say "I believe you are first?"

Taking a deep breath, I went in. Could I smile without grinning? Did I look all right? Was my lipstick too dark? By the time I pondered all these questions Mr. Hering had already taken one pose. I gulped. This was going to be terrible.

"Can you smile?"

My Dear roommate's remark on my beauty that morning took care of that request.

"Turn this way, please."

I didn't know which way was "This way," but I turned, only to find that he had taken another shot. With my mouth wide open, too!

"Perhaps you will want this last one serious?"

Now I am not a serious person, but since I just came from a Health Ed test, this wasn't too hard a task.

Well, freshmen, your OAO should be well pleased, for Mr. Hering said that freshman pictures were easier to take than any other class. One worried "frosh" was afraid that only the back of her head would show. "He turned me around so many times that I didn't know where I was." said she. Well, maybe the back was curly.

Seniors had the extra thrill of being draped. I tried to ask some of them how they felt about this. One very popular girl said, "I was cold—very cold." But one bright senior (name withheld) remarked that she "loved it." Yes, our STC seniors are going Hollywood on us.

I asked Mr. Hering if he would say anything for us. He smiled and said, "You have some very beautiful girls here." (All right, Mary, put that mirror down. Let's not take that as a personal compliment.) He also asked me to thank each and every girl for her co-operation and help.

Girls, you'll just HAVE to buy a copy of the 1947 Virginian. (plug). Think of the thrill of looking at your roommates picture ten years from now! Think of the thrill of opening the page to your picture! Think of seeing your neighbor in all her glory! As one person said "There's no word to describe it."

Attend the Lyceum

We students here at State Teachers College will have an opportunity to attend the first lyceum of the year on Friday night when Cecelia Gnevek, pianist, and William Hess, tenor, appear here. They will present a well rounded program, which will include many of our favorites.

This program is being sponsored for our benefit, and will prove a real opportunity for us to hear good music. Since we have this opportunity, it behooves us to take advantage of it.

To you, the new students, we say attend this lyceum and you will be glad that you did. Most of the upperclassmen realize how beautiful our lyceums are, and they will surely want to make every effort to attend. Don't save that s t u d y i n g until Friday night, or if you really must study then, plan your work so that you'll have time to attend.

We will have several other lyceums throughout the year, and they will include a dance program, and a speaker on international affairs. Yes, this is the first of many lyceums planned for this year, so we want to have a large attendance to show our appreciation.

We should be aware of the cultural benefits that can be derived from this concert. We can develop a well rounded personality through music.

Lyceums cost money the same as all other programs of this nature do. Of course if one even thinks, she would immediately recognize the fact that such talent could not be secured without time, cost, and considerable thought.

It is most important that we accept our programs enthusiastically and cordially. Won't you come out Friday night to hear our first lyceum program? We can either make or break these programs, because any performer likes a large attendance. Let's do our share in proving that we appreciate such programs.

The Rotunda staff joins the student body, faculty, and administration in extending sympathy to Mr. Samuel M. Holton in the recent loss of his mother.

Unification Through Y. W.

We, the students of State Teachers College, see the world faced today with a battle—a battle we talked about, wrote about and thought about during the long war years. Yes, that battle for a lasting peace is being waged in our midst.

But what can we, as future leaders in our nation, do today to help win this battle? What is our solution for the problems facing us? Or have we thought about these problems enough to suggest a solution?

Have you thought of the part a Christian society could play in this battle? Is not the solution to be found in a Christian spirit of love and brotherhood? Students who have decided that this should be the answer to building a lasting peace are represented on our campus by our YWCA. Students in colleges all over our nation and all over the world are joined together and united through our National YWCA.

"We are united in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and follow him."

Membership in our YWCA is a privilege extended to every student on our campus. It is an opportunity that can be meaningful to you as a person, to you in service to your college and in preparation for service to your nation.

Keep Your Room Neat

For most of us, a small dormitory room will suffice as our home for four years. Will it be just another place where we sleep or will it be an abode in which we thoroughly enjoy living and entertaining our friends?

True enough, our rooms have to stand inspection. But how often do we try to cover up an untidy room by hiding a full trash can behind the door or by sweeping stray trash under the bed. The house mothers don't have time to look in every corner, and when they pass a room you know shouldn't be passed, nothing is being pulled over their eyes. On the contrary, it is the student who is being cheated—cheated of valuable training that will be so helpful in later life. Doubtless the habits we are forming now will be carried over beyond graduation. If we practice keeping a neat and attractive room at all times, the habit will stay with us. The same is true if our housekeeping is sloven or if we do just enough to get by. These habits once established are hard to break. Many of us will become wives and mothers, and the training that we get in house keeping here at Farmville will launch us on that most important career.

The condition of our living quarters has an effect on our mental attitudes. A dull depressing room tends to make us feel the same way. An attractive room cheers us and makes us contented and happy. A good frame of mind is essential to effective work and study. Taking this as a tip, the next time you feel moody give your room a good cleaning and in so far as possible, a redecoration. The results will amaze you. A neat room is all that's required, but odds and ends give color and warmth.

Significant, too, is the fact that we are judged as persons by the way in which we keep our living quarters. Our room reflects our character. And lets not be guilty of letting our roommate do all the work. Each of us share its pleasure so why not share in its upkeep?

Wouldn't it be nice to have the most attractive room in S. T. C.?

Short Story Writer Must Undergo Series of Trials, Tribulations

Have you ever tried to write a short story?—well don't!

(I have a sneaking suspicion that that remark will be censored.)

To mention a few of the trials and tribulations you must undergo in order to assemble a so-called literary masterpiece, you calmly seat yourself in a comfortable chair (which isn't possible to start with) and proceed with the business at hand. Pick up a pencil and start to work—but wait! The question of what to write about enters your mind. Shall it be love, college, murder . . . Slam! Yes, it'll be murder. Some hoodlum has just broken your busy sign and also interrupted your train of thought! They say writers are temperamental. If this is so you certainly have a good beginning.

What some people (like me) won't go through to see their short story in print in the Colonnade. Ah, peace and quiet reign again as you notice that you have just yanked the last two strands of your hair out in an effort to regain self-control.

After biting a fifth pencil in two you get the brilliant idea that perhaps you could experiment on your roommates, and write down your results on a piece of paper much as you do in chemistry lab. No, that won't do. You'd probably get ninety days for being cruel to dumb animals, and the story has to be in in in twenty-two days.

Ah, you have it! The ten-cent store is full of dime detective stories which ought to make a chill go up and down anybody's spine. Now all that has to be done is to copy word for word from this very enticing magazine a thrilling story. You can't miss (or can you?) Where have you heard of the word plagiarism before? Well, it was a good idea.

"Lights out", screams the hall president! Oh well, maybe you'll have a nice peaceful nightmare that you can put down on paper before Nov. 1.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Here we are back again with the idle chit chat, but who said it's idle. "Shuffle" is the cute girl these days. She doesn't get one engagement ring, but actually two and from the same man. Whew!

If you want to know something about the big weekend at W&L just see Jean Shepherd, Millie and Mary to tell you about it.

Nancy Dickerson seemed to have enpoyed her weekend muchly. For full particulars see Jennie Sue. She knows!

Doris is all aglow over this David deal. Come on down to earth with us, gal. It's not so bad once you get used to it.

Sure was good to see Ray Baby on campus this past week end. How 'bout it B. Lee!

"Birdie" and Joe have been voted just about the cutest two. Now we know why "Birdie" goes around singing that dear old song of Wah Who Wah!

Say Heidi, where did that tomato hit you?

Jackie Watson is seen these days singing "All week long I dream about our Saturday date"; must have something to do with Jack. Hmm! Could it be that he's coming up this week end?

Dot Bousman went to Richmond and came back with an engagement ring. Nice going gal!

Frances Blanton is the popular girl on first floor junior building How 'bout those many phone calls she's been getting? Could Ralph be responsible, huh?

Lorena Evans surely looked happy Saturday night. Could that cute date be the reason? We wonder.

And Nancy Taylor seemed to be having a big time with her boy friend. More power to you!

Virginia Wilkins and Emma Sue Hubbard certainly had those boys in Shannons fascinated. You cute gals!

Jeanne Ellett seems to have one of those Hampton-Sydney men under her spell.

What about that sparkler Peggy Cabiness is sporting? It's a beauty!

Hilda Kauffman is burning the roads up between here and Green Bay. What's the reason? John Redd, naturally.

Jane Mantiply seems to believe in variety. Every time we see her she's with a different man.

We certainly were glad to see Maude Savage, one of our old gals back. She even brought her man with her.

This seemed like old home week with so many former students back. Among them were Kitty Maddox, Dottie Hubbard, Peggy T., Jean Freeman and Bette Epperson.

How 'bout that man that caused a sensation in junior building Sunday night! He should be able to find his way around the building in the dark.

Can't ya just see Jeanne Sauerwein sleeping through a date? And a cute one at that!

Jeanne Tolley and Anne Motley captured many hearts in Dan-

Y News

By SUE DAVIS

We hope that after attending prayers this week, the Freshmen will have a clearer and better understanding of w h a t the "Y" should mean to us. Freshman Installation will be at prayers tonight. All Freshmen and new students please wear white. It will be an impressive ceremony at which time the Freshmen will take as their goals the goal of the National Y. W. C. A. "to know, to seek, and to follow Jesus".

The "Y" Cabinet planning retreat at Longwood last week end was very successful. The program for next year was planned and much constructive planning and discussion was carried on. Every one had a wonderful time and we are looking forward to big plans this year.

The Westminister Fellowship had a supper last Sunday night. The food was grand and every one left fully contented. They are also starting early with plans for a good successful year and hope to have a week end retreat at Longwood soon.

Tennis Entrance Will End Tonight

According to Betty Burchett, manager of tennis, after supper Wednesday, October 9, will be the latest possible date to sign up for the singles tennis tournament.

The schedule for the playoff will be posted on the Athletic Association bulletin board. The schedule will list the opponents and scores after the matches. The final date for the tournament will be announced at a later date.

Five points will be given towards the color cup for the winner of the singles tournament. Five points will also be given towards the color cup for the doubles tournament which will be held in the spring.

Regular tennis classes are scheduled on Monday and Wednesday at 1:50 and Tuesday and Thursday at 2:50 and 3:50. The courts can be used any time except those class periods listed above.

Those in charge of tennis ask that everyone wear tennis shoes while playing and not to step on the white lines of the court. They have also been reminded not to use the courts if the ground is damp.

The student body is invited to attend the tennis matches.

Frosh Now Feel Like S.T.C. Girls

By BETTY SPINDLER

So this is S. T. C.! Isn't it wonderful? The Rotunda with the statue of St. Joan, the Colonnade and all the other beloved places we've heard so much about. Of course the first few days were a bit trying. All those tests, getting used to strange, new surroundings, and making new friends; but the thrill and excitement of just being here made each turn of events something to look forward to.

First there was the problem of getting all the baggage here, (the Romans surely were right in calling it "impedementa"—it can get under foot as badly as a dog on a leash!) Then came matriculating, which someone naively remarked that she thought one did that in Math class. Fees paid, rooms assigned, then the anticipated moment of meeting one's roommates. Joy, joy! We have a blue, a green, and a lavender bedspread and the study lamp has an orange shade—well so what? We'll just get red curtains with pink elephants ("beasts of Bourbon", you know,) on it, then with a bit of psychology we can convince any unwanted

Iler Announces Cabin Availability

Miss Olive T. Iler, physical instructor, has asked that anyone desiring to use the cabin at Longwood for a weekend see her about signing up. She will be in the Field House every afternoon. The cabin can also be used for picnics on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Iler urged that everyone sign as soon as possible so there will not be any confusion spring quarter. She said that if this is done now, there will be more chances of getting the week-end that you want.

All groups spending the night at the cabin must be chaperoned by a faculty member, and each group is expected to leave the cabin clean and in neat order, ready for the next group.

ville this past weekend. Tell us about it, girls!

Well, th-th-th-th-that's all for this week, folks.

The Army Air Force is planning on the construction of a rocket plane to be known as XS-1, that will have a top speed of 1,500 miles an hour, twice the speed of sound, at an elevation of 80,000 feet.

Left Lead

The "hoss people" of our fair college welcomed Miss Shields with open arms this week. Trim, slim, and a whacking good riding teacher is the opinion of most who have started to work in her classes. Already her horse's names are becoming part of the daily conversation around campus. Jaspar, Pokey, Midnight, and Flag Day are certainly easy to love. Just let Marjorie B. show you the blisters on her hands that "Pokey" left her as a little love token.

At the present, the horses still plod back and forth to Longwood because the long-dreamed-of stables at Longwood have not materialized yet. However, Miss Shields says we'll get them soon and we hope so, too. That will be a day of rejoicing for the horses as well as their riders!

Speaking of shows, a good one was held in Amelia last week. Flag Day must not have anticipated it too greatly, however, because they cajoled, wheedled, and whacked her for over an hour before she most ungraciously went on the trailer they had provided for her. The trouble was worthwhile to Miss Shields, though, for the little mare showed nicely beside the other entries from surrounding territories.

You've heard of Prom-trotters, I'm sure, but have you met the "Horse Show Trotters" we have? Just ask Ducky, and Jeanne S. to give you the low down on any show since 1940. They can tell you a thing or two!

Entertainment a la Tournament

Fair-goers and horse-lovers witnessed a good tournament at the fair grounds the week of September the twenty-fifth. Though it threatened rain, the heavens held out until the crowd had seen the whole thing. Cumberland seems to have walked away with all the honors, so here's to 'em. Anna and Ducky didn't let the show get by without their seeing it. They rode

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Let's nose around the sports again, and see what will be on schedule for this week. Have you new comers followed the practices this past week? No doubt by now all of you have found your way to the hockey field. If you haven't, follow the crowd down one afternoon around 3:50, and put on your chin guard—I mean shin guard and get in one exciting workout, and by next practice you'll be raring to do the same again. If the game is new to you, there will be new thrills and excitement in store for you. When game time comes you will be glad you gave up a movie that can wait another day, and decided to add another practice to your score. It only takes eight practices, and we can't repeat too many times perfection in a sport comes through practice, practice, practice.

ARCHERY

Have you tried your skill in the ancient art of archery? Take aim and let it go; who knows you may have a bull's eye, if you're brave enough to take a look. Archery is one sport you'll enjoy on campus, something you can take home with you and prove to your kid brother that he isn't the only one who has an eye for archery.

GOLF

Fore!! Get into the swing, and par no. 1; Have you tried your luck in golf lately? No doubt if you try hard enough your score won't be merely beginners luck, but just good shooting, so, make up for lost time, and try to make golf one of your many favorite sports here on campus. You'll be over-joyed to show your dad how you can beat his score on your weekend at home. Won't you give golf a try?

TENNIS

This is just a brief reminder for those who haven't signed up for tennis to add your name to the list on the A.A. bulletin board by the P.O. If you wish to enter, all you need is some extra practices, and you'll be ready to tackle the game during the coming tourney. Some color cup points are given to the winning class in this sport. Who knows, you may be just the one to walk off with the honors. Try, won't you?

Until next week, see you at the field. Be a good sport in all sports.

Stettinius Speaker University, Saturday

Edward R. Stettinius Jr., rector of the board of visitors of the University of Virginia, former Secretary of State and U. S. representative to the United Nations, will be speaker this Saturday, October 12, at the opening convocation of the 125th academic year of the university.

The session will be in McIntire theatre at 11 a. m. on the Charlottesville campus. Seats are being reserved for governing boards, faculty and invited guests, who will meet at the Rotunda at 10:30 for the academic procession.

In case of rain, exercises will be held in the Memorial gym.

Evening Wear Can Perform Miracles

Yes, it's true! Evening wear can really do miracles. It actually changes us for the moment into another being. So it's time to be considering the purchase of that snazzy, up-to-date formal, and there are lots of new styles to choose from.

Bare shoulders are prevalent this season, so select your dress in red, white, or black if you really want to shine! For soft pastels, the pale blues, pinks, and greens are definitely good especially if you still have a little summer tan left. Chartreuse and yellow are nice shades also. Taffeta plaids and combinations of plaid and jersey are still popular and most attractive.

Many of these dresses feature that new uneven hem which gives a sweeping effect in the back. Peplums and two or three-tiered skirts are characteristic of this type. Bustle puffs, especially on taffeta gowns are just the thing for tall, slim girls. These can be easily removed if you wish to simplify the dress later on. Gathers in the skirts will most likely appear on the sides at the hips.

For that next formal occasion, make his heart palpitate. Meet him in a rayon velvet creation, preferably black, with dropped shoulders, lace trimmed sleeves, and sweeping bouffant skirt.

SIGN OFF

I (name of rat) from (name of home town) am a seditious, sciolistic freshman and seem to sense that the sensationally sagacious sophomores surpass us scholastically and socially, for standard statistics state sophomores stand stable, steadfast, and staunch since stratosphere started. Such singular stamina surely speaks splendid success secured, showing sufficient, even superfluous signs of success. Sophomores should really sever all connections with the silly, shallow freshmen, since they are scrapping in a sciamachy. Praise '49!

RAT COURT

Miles Clark of Elizabeth City, North Carolina, population 25,000, has made his town high school band his hobby and as such has spent to date some $50,000 to make it the best in the state. He has purchased new instruments and new uniforms and each year hires an entire hotel at Nag Head Beach where the members of the band spend ten days, drill and practice and stage dances, concerts and parties. The band travels over the entire state giving concerts. "Making" the band is considered quite an honor.

Information, Please

There is one little phase of this column perhaps a few amateur horsewomen would like to be enlightened about. That is the name "Left Lead". After hearing someone pronouncing it "Left Led" instead of "Lead", we all concluded that not everyone is familiar with the term. When a horse is cantering, he either has his left foot or right foot slightly ahead of the other, leading, that is to say. Hence we use the term "Left Lead" to signify that the horse has his left foot forward, and the writers of this humble syndicate use the term to designate the fact that we're putting our best foot forward to give you horse news. With this bit of historical data, we say finis and Making schedules was a major problem because they just simply wouldn't fit themselves into our plan of sleeping late in the morning. At least til 9:00, no Saturday classes so we could leave Friday for home, and no 2:50 Phys. Ed. so we can go to the show in the afternoon. Of course, everyone plans to study and work hard, but in this modern age of education we simple must have time to play and how can we maintain our date rate with so many classes!

Now that we have survived the first wave of homesickness, have had plenty of good laughs at the clown (there's always one on every hall), and have consumed every bit of food in sight, we feel like honest-to-goodness S. T. C. girls. Come what may, rain or shine, this is going to be a grand year!

Ten years later it was merged into Kappa Delta Pi, which emphasized the qualities recognized by Pi Kappa Omega with an additional emphasis on a professional outlook as broad as the college itself in all of its departments and activities.

Two of the old girls, Virginia Tindall at the piano and Tucker Winn with her saxophone played on Wednesday to entertain the assembly.

Artists Reveal Life Story With Added Bits of Humor

By BETTY SPINDLER

Artists are the most delightful people! At least the two who performed here last Friday night were. Miss Cecelia Gnevek and Mr. William Hess were even more charming and friendly off the stage than they were in performing for us. Wouldn't you have enjoyed talking to them personally about their careers, their concert tour, and what they are privately interested in? Of course it wasn't possible to, but here is an account of a private interview in which they told "all about it."

In answer to our query on the beginning of their respective careers, Miss Gnevek gave a most unusual answer in that she said that she began her music lessons at the age of nine but can't remember when she made any definite decison to become a concert artist. Mr. Hess followed with a little more usual response when he said that he began to sing as soon as he could talk and never stopped.

The whole interview was a constant source of amusement for these two young artists could tell of some amusing incident that had occurred at almost all of their very important concerts. For instance at a Red Cross Benefit Miss Gnevek was to play Rachmaninoff's Greek Concerto with a large concert orchestra—it was her first perfomance but she was'nt a bit nervous—and they were unable to find a chair of the right height for her; therefore, someone rigged up a bicycle seat for her to sit on. Strangely, she admitted, except for her constant fear of falling, she came through will flying colors. Mr. Hess also had an amusing "first night" affair, though he wasn't amused at the time. He was singing "Faust" and in the first act his beard became so loose that he was sure that it would fall off before he could leave the stage—it didn't.

When asked about their future engagements, Miss Gnevek is planning to go to Massachusetts where she will appear with concert orchestras. Mr. Hess will go to Lubbock, Tex. to appear as soloist with a symphony orchestra which is being organized at the air base there. He also has a very interesting engagement scheduled for this winter. He will sing in the C. C. S. production of DeBussy's "L'enfrit Procligue."

"Praise Sophomores" Is Cry Of Mournful Rat Victims

By JEAN CAKE

The sensationally sagacious sophomores triumphantly ruled the seditious and sciolistic freshmen yesterday. The traditional Rat Day had been anticipated for some weeks with eagerness and some misgivings. It began on October 14, with the sophomores ruthlessly pouncing upon the rats to claim appointments. At ten o'clock that night a ghostly train of black-robed sophomores marched in chain style through the halls singing their eerie, threatening song, warning the trembling freshmen of their coming fate.

At the unearthly hour of 6 a. m., the freshmen roused their tormentors. Amid much bowing and scraping and "praise sophomores", the rats were herded to the gym. The sophomores shouted and the frosh obeyed. The bewildering searches for personalities and sex appeals added to the confusion. When the breakfast bell rang, the rats scampered to the dining hall, seeking peace and quiet. The story was a bit different, though. They could hardly eat for trying to fill the demands of the lordly sophs.

The rooms on annex, gym and student were spic and span after the thorough tidying job that the little freshmen "insisted" on giving

"Praise Ye The Lord"

"Praise ye the Lord. Praise God in his sanctuary: praise him in the firmament of his power . . . Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."

These few words from Psalm 150 should make us mindful of our duty to the Lord. How many of us choose Sunday mornings to catch up on our sleep? And put off our studying for the week end until Sunday night? How many of us make the best use of our Sundays and use it as a day of worship and relaxation and follow the Scriptures when they say "Praise ye the Lord"?

New students with the help of upper classmen are introduced to the various church groups almost immediately upon their entrance in college. Church parties and special services are given the very first week. New friends and acquaintances are made through attending these services. Should we not be thankful for the guidance these churches and friends offer and heed the Scriptures when they ask that we "Praise ye the Lord"?

Not only are we given the opportunity of attending preaching service on Sunday mornings and evenings, but there are other programs which invite our interest and participation. Special classes for college girls are included in the Sunday School departments of each church, and young people's evening worship and fellowship groups meet immediately preceeding the evening sermon every Sunday. On Wednesday night mid-week prayer services are held which all STC girls are invited and urged to attend. Does this not afford many different ways in which one might "Praise ye the Lord."

After a hard week of play and study, nothing could be more beneficial than an inspirational hour or two spent at the church of your choice.

"Praise ye the Lord. Praise God in his sanctuary: praise him in the firmament of his power . . . Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."

Attend Chapel

A new plan for chapel has been worked out for this year, whereby compulsory chapel attendance has been done away with. The success of the new plan lies with the students.

Chapel has been cut down so that now it is held only three times a week. This adds up to one hour and a half of our time each week. This seems to be a very little time to add to our schedules. So far the attendance has been good, but it could be improved. Every student should not feel that she has to go, but wants to go. We should show enough school spirit to be interested in our chapel exercises.

Several students who have attended the exercises every day have remarked that they have not regretted going regularly. Many have remarked that they have enjoyed every program this year. Those students who missed hearing the Italian girl speak in chapel Friday certainly let a priviledge slip by them. This half an hour helps us to forget the many problems that we have to face each day. Part of the time allotted for chapel is given to devotions. These few minutes of worship help us to relax and give us a lift for the rest of the day.

On Monday we get together to sing, Wednesday is student chapel day, and on Friday we have a more serious or inspirational chapel program. Singing is a large part of what we have heard about and felt so much, Farmville spirit. Student chapel is our day to make what we want to of it. One day out of the three we certainly want to attend a program that is more of the serious nature.

The quarter is well underway now and if at the end of this time the authorities feel that we have not made a success of our chapel, we will go back to compulsory chapel attendance. Since we have been given the privilege of voluntary chapel, we should show the school authorities that we as a student body can work together for a perfect chapel system. Chapel is what we ourselves put into it.

Thanks For Telephones

Much has been done to improve the telephone situation in junior and senior buildings, and we want to express our thanks and appreciation of this effort. However, we still have a problem to face, and it is really the students' problem. Our chief concern now is to see that the phones are answered. We all love to get telephone calls, but we seldom want to answer it.

It isn't fair for one student to do all the work. Surely, it would be much easier on all of us, if we did our share. We should take it upon ourselves to answer the phone occasionally. We are not asking that all of us be "Johnny-on-the-spot" when that familiar ring sounds through the halls. If you happen to be near a phone or live near one, answer it.

We complain frequently because the ring continues so long before anyone answers it, but why not stop complaining and do the job yourself. Can't we be unselfish enough to stop whatever we are doing at that moment, and answer?

Another suggestion that we could all take heed to is to make a conscientious effort to find the person the operator asks for. Think how much a call will mean to someone, and try to find her. It's easy to let out a yell for the person but suppose she doesn't hear us. Put yourself in the other person's place, and imagine how you would feel if you missed an important call. Another important thing to remember is to get the correct information when the operator leaves a number for the girl to call.

Let's try to improve the telephone situation by doing our share, and by being courteous.

Dreaded Ring of Alarm Clock Ends Dreams, Starts Classes

JANICE SLAVIN

My! my! What a nice beautiful day in which to sleep. Bur—! Must that hateful ole alarm clock ring off at such an unheard of hour!

Oh well, there's nothing to dragging (and I do mean dragging!) through a full day of classes.

Now there's nobody around here like those lucky people that work all day, and come home to a nice soft bed and sleep (sleep? What's that?) until at least nine o'clock in the morning with no worry of homework to give them "a morning after the night before" feeling

After all though, we do have homework and should make the best of the horrible situation. Best, that is.

You walk to supper very high-spirited. Why high-spirited? You have no meetings to go to and will be free to study without interruption for two and a half hours of peace and quiet. Oh yeh, nice thought. Have you heard the announcements at supper yet?

Bur—! (another bell). Here comes the announcements, and much to your non-amazement you have about six places to go to at the same time and during study period at that! Now, I ask you, what's a poor gal gonna' do in such a case?

"How will I ever get all that shorthand assignment done by tomorrow?" moans a pathetic little freshman.

Meetings, meetings! It's enough to give you gray hair trying to get them straight, and at the same time making an unsuccessful attempt to get a nice bit of study ing done with all of this going on.

Oh well, there's nothing like going to class without your assignments—absolutely nothing! You certainly have a right to glare at some bright young thing who knows the answer, and apparently was born educated.

Of course these cases are very rare—perhaps scientific phenomena.

However, you may draw one conclusion. If you are absolutely vague on every subject, you can rest assured that you will be well aequainted with one thing—the sixth letter in the aiphabet.

Question of the Week

What is your idea of a perfect date?

Wilda Hunt: A little engineering student from the University of Virginia.

"Woodie" Fifield: The moon, a grey chevrolet, and the man of my dreams.

"Tootsie" Hamilton: One with plenty of money.

Renie Horton: One who will be a gentleman, and oodles of fun at the same time.

Nadine Lewers: Going to the carnival on the caterpillar . . . with Joe.

Martha Stringfield: I really really wouldn't know. . . long time and no see!

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Marion Lotts had a gay time in Washington this week-end. We hear that her main purpose in going was to keep Gordon out of the army. The generals just wouldn't heed her plea, though.

Who were those two men you had Saturday, Harvey? How you rate!

Marjorie Williams has that gleam in her eye because 'twon't be long before Gene comes home.

"Doofy," why don't you behave yourself at Longwood? We hear that you wield a mean blow with a broom.

We hear that Judy Dailey can hardly keep from running to Roanoke every week-end. Could Gordon be responsible?

Peggy Fink, what's this about your spending a lost week-end? Just what did happen?

Mrs. McCoy was practicing the Charleston in the Rotonda the other night. Joan of Arc, isn't a very responsive partner, is she? See what you miss by going to bed on time at night, girls?

Wilda Hunt is flaunting a good-looking man. What's his name, age and phone number, please?

Muriel McBride thinks a certain someone is wonderful. You don't have to take our word for it, she said it herself.

Hutt really goes in for those key-dets. A uniform sure makes a difference, doesn't it?

Joyce Hill and her man are a winsome two-some. The real question is "Who does he love best, Joyce or that Hat?"

Katie Lawrence is making big plans for the Homecoming dance at V. M. I.

Brickbats to those two rude men in front of junior building Saturday night.

Why is Showaiter so excited about that man who is suppose to land in New York soon? Tell us about it, Martha.

Those cute roommates, Minetree and Sue had A-1 knocked out time in Charlottesville this past weekend. Girls, you're doing fine.

If you don't want to get dizzy, then stay away from second floor senior annex when Margo, Kakie, and Sue start gabbing about Bill's. 'Tis enough to make one lose her feeble mind. If you don't believe us, ask B. B.

Charlotte Grizzard not only had an invitation to the Hampden-Sydney dances but to the William and Mary Extension dances in Richmond as well. Now what do you think of that?

Polly Reaves had A-1 good time in Richmond this past week-end.

Nancy Jessee and Betty Bibb seem to like "Bell bottom trousers and coats of Navy blue."

K. T. Rainey claims she's a man hater, but her most frequent question is "Didn't I hear someone mention me?"

Bye for now. See you next week.

The topic for prayers this week is "Prayer." Prayer is an essential factor. It is not a luxury, it is a necessity. It provides that spiritual tension which is necesary to hold one to the doing of his best. "Why should I pray if my prayers aren't answered?" asks one. God does not answer every prayer. Sometimes he says yes; in other cases he says no. It depends upon what he thinks is best for us, and who above God could know what was best for us? Have you felt the need to pause and commune with God every day?

Miss Jinny Lind Gatlin, Southwide Baptist Student Secretary will be on our campus October 16 through 18. She will talk at prayer meeting at the Baptist church Wednesday night. If you would like to talk with her, please feel free to do so as she will be glad to help you in any way.

Baptist girls, don't forget the State Baptist Student Union Convention at Bristol November 1 through 3. If you are planning to go turn your name in at the Student Center as soon as possible.

On the Ball

All over the country this is football weather, while on campus it is definitely hockey season. Of course, we can't play football but we can surely create a lot of excitement from watching a forward line charge down the field heading for a goal. Won't you help support your team and come out for an afternoon's scrimmage? There will be great fun in store for you. The inter-class games will bring you to the edge of your seats, but if you have gotten in your practices, eight to be exact, who knows, you may score the goal.

The tennis form has already been made out and matches will begin this week. Those who failed to sign up will find time to come and be in the cheering section. The winner of the finals matches will be awarded five points for the color cup. Those who haven't frequented the courts at regular intervals should find a person who enjoys the game, and practice your strokes. If you failed to sign up for this tourney, won't you keep in mind the fact that spring quarter another tournament will be played here on campus?

Hiking

Have you tried out those country lanes, away from the crowded ways of life? If you have never found any particular interest in this quiet activity, won't you take a friend along and start for the open country? This is one sure way to do a lot of clear thinking in clean air rather than chatting in a smoke filled room or over a bridge table. These cool afternoons are made for walking, and will definitely cure you of all your aches and pains. Take a brisk walk some afternoon, after classes, and lessons are behind you. No doubt the next morning you will feel like a new person—relax and take a hike!

Sophomores Hold Rat Court Tonight

Tonight at 10 o'clock, Big Rat Court will be held in the auditorium according to an announcement by Nancy Dickinson, chairman of ratting. The Best Rat will be named at this time and other good Rats will be awarded orchids and honorable mention for their cooperation.

Attendance is compulsory for all freshmen. They are to dress in their class colors, red and white, and will be escorted to the auditorium by sophomores dressed in green and white.

There were some gruesome sights that shuffled to class with tennis shoes on the wrong feet. Pig-tails bobbing in the breeze, baggy blue jeans, stuffed in green and white socks; an untidy skirt; a trailing laundry bag filled with bulging objects; a drab, pale face that cried out for a cigarette: such is the portrait of an S. T. C. Rat.

Woe unto the freshmen that had vacant periods in her class schedule. She was sure to get a call to visit a fiendish sophomore's den. The most fortunate and honored rats had the privilege of being invited to a "little rat court" at night. They were royally entertained by the gracious sophomores, or should we say the sophomores were entertained by the quaking freshmen.

However it was, it was a tired and worn out lot of girls, freshmen and sophomores, that crawled in bed when the lights out bell tolled the end of Rat Day. Congratulations freshmen! You are all grand sports and you are really full fledged S. T. C. girls now.

Commercial Club Holds Meeting In Student Lounge

Commercial Club had its first meeting of the school year on Wednesday night, October 9, in the Student Lounge. Plans for the year were discussed after which a quiz program was given by Mary Lou Bagley and Barbara Lee Myers. The questions were concerned with the business department. Those taking part on the program were Clara Ann Ashby, Wilda Hunt, Margaret Jones, Clie Sarver, Lee Staples, and Mary Towles Waldrop.

A short play is being planned for the Novembor meeting. All new students in the business department, including freshmen and transfers, are invited to attend this meeting.

Approximately 300 books were ordered during the summer for Farmville High School's library.

STC-ers Prepare For Rainy Weather

Let it rain! Let it pour! Who cares! Not an S. T. C. girl! Time was when the heavens opened up, the young lady stayed at home; or if she must go out, she was burdened with a long heavy raincoat of a dark drab color, clumsy galoshes, and hat. This "Mother Hubbard" costume is no longer necessary.

When the clouds loom overhead and precipitate their moisture, with utter disdain for the rain don an attractive raincoat with the new full sleeves gathered at the wrist and a tie belt. These come in many materials, the most popular being of smooth rayon satin. Black is always good; if you prefer something a little brighter, select a red or a pastel shade. There is no limit to the variety of colors. Also new is the shining red, black or blue slicker. If you would like something more dressy, choose an oilskin or transparent plastic coat with flared skirt to fit over suits. Always in style on campus, too, is the cotton gabardine trench-coat.

The cutest thing on campus is the hooded cape made of water-repellent cotton gabardine. From top to toes it gives protection, and there is even room for an armful underneath.

The head gear is next in importance. If there is no hood attached, wear a kerchief (it must be large) and top with a rain hat.

Dress up the hat with your initials, S. T. C., or the name of your home town. To wear with a plastic raincoat, a matching kerchief is very smart.

Last but not least, you need foot protection; smart rubber boots fulfill this requirement. Most popular again is black, with brown, red, and white runners up.

But umbrellas? Never! Not at S. T. C. Give the weather a scornful laugh; you're not a plain Jane in your wet weather attire.

About jewelry: Keep attractive with simplicity. The object is to be well groomed and not look like a collector of carnival junk.

the distinction of having presented the first concert at Hampden-Sydney. Despite the fact that Mr. Hess nearly fell from the stage, he easily regained his composure and the concert continued without further mishap.

In the way of biographic information on our two recent guests, Miss Gnevek spent a great deal of her time teaching and playing for the patients at Halloran General Hospital. She said that the music meant a great deal to them and helped lessen the weary hours of just lying still. Mr. Hess has recently returned from India where he said he "drove a B-25" and taught the Chinese air-corps cadets to fly.

Their performance at our Lyceum was marvelous, and we wish them success and many appreciative audiences in their careers. We repeat here that artist are delightful people!

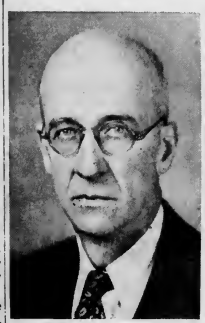
Past Presidents of College Added to STC's Expansion

Inauguration of a new president inevitably signals the introduction of new ideas, new plans, new ways of doing things; and, just as inevitably, it calls for what are generally known as flashbacks. It is not an easy task which Dr. Lancaster has undertaken. Our world is changing; today's need is for women stronger mentally, physically, and morally, than those of fifty, or even twenty-five years ago, and a large share of the responsibility for preparing such women to take their places in a changing society rests with our colleges and universities. As president of one of the oldest teacher training institutions of the south Dr. Lancaster has a sound foundation upon which to work. Under his leadership Farmville will continue to grow, to keep abreast of new educational trends, to send better, and even better equipped teachers into our American schools.

It has taken sixty-two years and four presidents to develop the college as Dr. Lancaster finds it. Dr. William Henry Ruffner came to Farmville in 1884, charged with the responsibility of organizing a teachers' college. He was the first superintendent of Public Instruction in Virginia, an educational expert, fully equipped for his job. The doors of the college were first opened to a student body of one hundred and seven and a faculty of seven, in the fall of 1884.



Dr. John Atkinson Cunningham succeeded Dr. Ruffner in 1887 to carry on the work begun three years previously. It had been said of Dr. Cunningham that "the school was his life". He was known as an excellent administrator, and progress under his guidance was steady.

Dr. Robert Frazer next came to Farmville, from the presidency of the Industrial Institute and College at Columbus, Mississippi. A write-up of Dr. Frazer says that his four-years' work was characterized by the same earnestness and zeal, the same conscientious devotion to his convictions of duty that he has displayed elsewhere and the result as before, was growth and expansion of a steady, stable kind. Each administration was adding something of its own to the steadily progressing college.

So much has been written of our fourth president, Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, that any introduction here would be superfluous frosting. Dr. Jarman's contributions to the college during the forty-four years of his administration are too numerous and too far reaching to be listed.

The history of State Teachers' College, then, is one of steady change and progress. It looks to the past for the foundation upon which to base further growth, but it will not be satisfied to rest on past laurels.

Brall to Present Concert At STC

Ruth Brall, contralto, will present a concert in the S. T. C. auditorium, Thursday, November 7. The concert will be sponsored by Pi Gamma Mu and the college choir.

Miss Brall has made appearances in the east at Amherst College, Colgate University, and on radio broadcasts.

Miss Brall is rapidly achieving a place of unusual distinction by the beauty of her voice, her superb and always musicianly use of it. She has the high qualities of a musician and interpreter.

Miss Brall has appeared in many notable concert events, oratorio's and broadcasts, and is increasingly accepted as among the most outstandingly gifted of the younger singers.

Freshmen To Lead In Circus Parade

"Gay Nineties" Circus parade will begin at 3:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, November 2, from behind the college post office.

Barbara Watkins and Robbie Cromar will lead the parade, and Nancy Lee Maddox and Claudia Smith carrying the United States flag, will follow. Each year four members of the freshman class are selected to lead the parade.

Betty Minetree who is in charge of the afternoon function has announced that the parade will include clowns, bicycles, class floats, horses, band, and circus animals.

The parade will leave from behind the college post office and go down Pine Street and on down St. George Street to Third street, up to Main street, then to High street up as far as Butcher's Store and back to the college.

Practices are well underway for the class stunts to be presented as a part of the circus on Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the gym. Nomeka Bryant, freshman and Helen Jackson, sophomore, are in charge of their class stunts. Bebe Geyer is heading the junior skit while Anne Nichols and Lucile Upshur are serving as co-chairmen of the senior stunt.

Anna Headlee is chairman of the affair which is sponsored each year by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national society for leadership.

At the 8 o'clock performance the ringmaster will be revealed. The ringmaster will then introduce the queen of circus and her court. Each year the senior class elects a member of their class to reign over the event, and the other classes elect one member from their class to serve on the court.

The admission price for STC students is 15c and 30c for outsiders.

Spanish Club Holds Monthly Meeting

Tuesday, October 15, the Spanish Club held its first meeting of the year, with Mary Wyatt, the new president, presiding. Ann Motley was elected the new treasurer since the former one did not return. The president appointed Catherine Bickle reporter for the year.

After the business meeting, there was a program by Julia Perez, consisting of a skit in which Loida Lahoz, Dalila Agostini, Dinorah Colon, Nelly Cordero, Pat Sanchuz, and Dorothy Ann Freeman took part. Members of the club then joined in group singing of Spanish songs.

Newspaper Rated Excellent by ACP

Associate Collegiate Press scorebook, which was received this week, rated spring issues of the Rotunda "First Class, Excellent" with a total score of 1060, which is higher than any previous one received by the Rotunda.

The paper lacked only 40 points of being rated "All American" which is the highest possible rating that any college or university newspaper can receive. The Rotunda has received the "First Class" rating before.

High scores were given the Rotunda in every department. Headlines, typography, makeup, and printing were rated superior; and coverage, content and organization of news stories; features, editing, sports, and editorials were commented on as being excellent. Suggestions were made for improving the leads of news stories.

News values and sources were rated 250; news writing and editing, 245; headlines, typography, and makeup, 315; and department pages and special features, 220.

Papers judged were published in February and March under the staff headed by Virginia Treakle, and in April and May under the present staff headed by Shirley Slaughter.

The purpose of the Associated Collegiate Press serves not to create rivalry, but to give an agency through which staffs may be aided in giving their schools a better publication, and to help the staff with their problems.

We Honor Dr. Lancaster

Tomorrow, Dr. Dabney Lancaster will be inaugurated as the fifth president of Farmville State Teachers College. In the excitement of the big affair we stop for a few minutes to think just how fortunate we are in having such a capital man to fill the head position in our school.

Alumnae and friends throughout the country share our joy as Dr. Lancaster officially becomes the president of Virginia's oldest teachers college. In Dr. Lancaster we find an educator, an executive, a statesman, and a friend. He has already proved himself worthy of the high position that he now holds. Just in the few months that he has been with us, we have grown to love him and to respect his every word. We are willing to follow him for we know he will lead us along the path that leads to higher and better things of life.

Our new president has had much experience with students. He was formerly executive secretary of the board of trustees at Sweet Briar College and served as dean of men at the University of Alabama. Dr. Lancaster came to us from Richmond when he was Virginia Superintendent of Public Instruction. He was with the State Board of Education from 1923 until he came to Farmville in July of this year.

Dr. Edgar Gammon, president of Hampden-Sydney, who was chairman of the state board's committee said at the time our president accepted the position, "We are delighted that Dr. Lancaster decided to accept the Farmville post. We feel we have made an exceedingly wise choice and that he will be an excellent president at the college". Indeed the committee did make a wise choice. We are grateful to them for their selection.

Dr. Lancaster has become a part of Farmville. He has joined in with the Farmville spirit from the word go. He certainly showed his spirit when he accepted the rat cap from the freshman class last week in assembly and wore it. Yes, in a sense he was a S. T. C. rat, a rat we are proud to call our own, but he didn't remain one. He has stepped right into our college standards that kept him from being classed as a rat for very long.

S. T. C.'s president has a difficult task, but we are all willing to stand behind him in every way. He can not do the job alone; we must do our part. He has shown us that he is doing his part; we will do ours.

Follow College Sports

Play is what makes life interesting. And what could be more fun and exciting than play when it involves competitive team work, relaxation, and just good, all-round enjoyment!

As students of S. T. C., we are given every opportunity to take part in every form of sports and recreation. We have excellent facilities for swimming the entire year, a large athletic field, tennis courts, and a spacious gymnasium as well as the necessary equipment for archery, hockey, basketball, softball, and other games too numerous to mention. For those of us unfamiliar with these games, classes are offered in the fundamentals and techniques of each.

The Color Cup, which has long been a tradition at Farmville is based on class athletic participation. Many girls with spare time on their hands have found the relaxation and companionship they desired in working with their class team.

A strong healthy body is essential to the well-being and happiness of everyone. Participation in class sports as well as in individual or dual athletic events help to keep a person healthy and happy at all times.

By taking part in class games and working with a team, a person learns to get along with other people and to do his share of work in a group. The developing of a person's sportsmanship qualities is another advantage of sports.

To develop special skills, we have for our use the pool, tennis courts, archery equipment, golf course at Longwood, and horseback riding. These all afford pleasure not only for leisure hours during school time but one can make use of these skills after college days, too.

As students of S. T. C., we should make use of the opportunities surrounding us for a well-balanced program of sports.

Successful Rat Day Ends

Rat day is over. We want to congratulate the freshmen on their being such good sports. Truly you have caught the spirit of the college. You have shown that you can take whatever is asked of you graciously and without hard feelings.

The object of ratting is not to make you unhappy. In fact, rat day should have been fun. It proved to be an opportunity for you to meet people that you might never have known otherwise. Many of the people you met that day will become some of your closest friends.

Rat week has been a part of this institution. Through the years, however, rat week has been cut down, and this year the freshmen participated in only one day of ratting. Surely one day of dressing yourselves in ridiculous clothes, wearing your hair in braids, and doing silly things is not too much. After all, others have been through the same experience before, and they are well-adjusted citizens.

The sophomores are to be commended, too, on the way they conducted rat day. You realized that the freshmen were new here, and most of you took them to your hearts and proved to them that you wanted to be friends. You showed understanding and tact.

To all the people that participated in rat day, we say that you made a success of it. We take special pride in welcoming you as full fledged freshmen who have won a place in the hearts of all of us through your good sportsmanship.

A H-S Grad Makes Gala Visit To Scene of Water Battles

By JOHN A. OWEN

Feeling about as much at ease as the Angel in the lingerie shop, your correspondent was this week bludgeoned (by a wide variety of feminine wiles) to the task of composing a feature for the Rotunda. A feature for the Rotunda! Further loss of prestige at S. T. C. would be difficult indeed, but a consistently hyper-active gaucherie has at last found the way.

This, then, is the story of how a never-was became a has-been. To each and every Hampden-Sydney graduate, no doubt, there eventually comes the time when freshmen fail to hang avidly on his every syllable; when his waterbags fail to score even war misses; when every other alumnus turns out to be a class manager. The story is therefore in no way unique. This one, however, strives toward a thought which is at once flattering and sincere.

Any reader with a modicum of sympathy may well imagine the heartbreak of the following scenes. Picture Old Grad gaily arriving at the game. Envision his eager inspection of each passing face how he rushes from group to group glad-handing frantically. Faces light up as he approaches. "Of course I remember you, Wittiegit! You borrowed five dollars from me in '43"! Or, "Well, how are you, old boy? Haven't you passed Qual and Quan yet?" Or simply, "Well, look who's here!" You know the tone—"Well, look what the garbageman neglected!"

Old Grad wends way to fraternity house. Brotherhood! Strong, hearty hand-clasps! Comrades reunited after years of grim, bitter conflict! "Oh, by the way—we were looking over the books the other day—checking up on unpaid back dues, you know—." Or "Place is looking a lot better since you were here, etc. We've got a pretty good bunch of boys here NOW". The tragedy was that all things were incontroversibly so—as any check book will plainly show.

Dear old Cushing! Hallowed halls of Second Passage! Mine eyes have seen the drippings of a hundred water-fights! Adroitly fashioning a double-barrelled water-bag with his left hand, Old Grad forged upward to the fourth-floor faucets. A rush down the hall—a long, soaring swing—an exploding fog of paper and water—SWASH! Old Grad recoiled dripping. A bored sophomore regarded him with tolerant amusement; "Can't you see the screens, buddy? You're the fourth that's done that today."

At last, battered in soma and psyche, Old Grad retired to Shannon's to brood. He noted with pleased surprise that his date was still there—composed, undismayed, slightly quizzical. Old Grad began to meditate. How did his date manage to soothe the discomfort so competently? Why was S. T. C. so appealing when Homecoming was at H. S. C.? Why did the boys change and the girls remain the same?

Old Grad felt dimly that while H. S. C. was a definite, segmented part of his cycle, S. T. C. was part of his cycle, S. T. C. was part of his orbit—a school of charming, manflattering individual girls. That was it. That was the difference. And as the old Roman poet, Omar Khaylam, so gracefully put it, "Vive le difference!"

Cotillion Club Dance

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

This week end looked as much like a S. T. C. home-coming as it did a Hampden-Sydney homecoming. It was good to see all of the old girls back. Peggy T., Philhower, Orange, Dody, Poddy, Glen Anne Patterson, Anne Summers, Cab, Beanie, Kitty Maddox, and Margie Vaughn were a few that decked our halls this week-end.

Mary Helmer tried to be different this week-end. Instead of going to the dance on both feet, we think she wanted to be different and just use one. Anyway, the story goes like this. About five minutes before time for her date to arrive she slid across the floor on a cake of soap. While her date paced the floor in junior parlor, her roommate and suitemates got out the rubbing alcohol and went to work on her ankle. For goodness sake, Mary, please be more careful People get hurt doing things like that. You'll never make it to Chicago, if that happens again.

Do you know who the most popular person in this column is? None other than Mrs. McCoy. She not only had one invitation to the dance, but three. Mrs. McCoy, that's just not fair. Here we struggle for one date and you have three. Maybe that's the reason she was practicing up on the Charleston after bedcheck the other night in the Rotunda.

Sue went to Charlottesville again this week-end. Ask her what she went for and if she accomplished her mission. 'Tis a riot.

Farmville was well represented at the various male colleges this past week-end. George Anne and Martha can tell you all about V. M. I. and Bobbie and Bettie can tell you about V. P. I.

Ray Baby was here this week-end. Ray and B. Lee have now become one of the sights that we point out to visitors, we see them around so much. Now, don't get us wrong—we like to see them around. They add to the place.

K. T. Rainey, displayed a beautiful gardenia corsage for the dance, but gosh, what a time she did have getting them. Somewhere in the episode the dean at Hampden-Sydney, a cow, and no hair pins were involved. What a time.

Have you heard about Nancy Lee Maddox's man? His name is Van. We leave the rest to your imagination. Why, she even named her gold fish after him. Looks serious.

Woody finally landed. Thank goodness, for that. Martha when do we get to see that tall dream man?

Lee Ewing came by Sunday to show us the man of the hour. It's going to be wedding bells for that two-some before many months. The best of luck to you cute people.

There will be a gay time in Farmville when S. T. C. dresses up for fall Cotillion Club dance next Saturday night. We'll be looking for you then.

By SUE DAVIS

The topic for prayers this week is "Along Life's Highway". As we travel along life's highway of vast importance is the set of the soul. It makes a big difference whether we are striving toward Christ or headed for sinful satisfaction. As we travel on this highway we are also building our eternal homes. God gives us the materials and leaves us free to use them as we will. Most of us are called to serve in inconspicuous places as we journey on. Whether it be a humble or a prominent place matters not—it is our faithfulness that matters.

We should have a motto as we travel along life's highway. What better one could we have than that of the Boy Scouts? "Be Prepared" is their motto. We must be prepared mentally, physically, and spiritually to live well each day.

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul".

Betty Burchett beat Nancy Parrish 6-2, 6-1; Betty Parrish won over Jane Burchett 7-5, 6-4; and Nellie Smith defeated Jeane Bently 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. Mary Harrison and Martha Bryant will play their match at a later date.

There has been no date set for semi-finals but finals will be played November 1. The winner will gain five points toward the Color Cup.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

These may be cloudy days we're seeing now, but tomorrow the sun may shine. If you have been out for sports these past few days you have probably enjoyed the invigorating autumn sunshine. One sure fact after a practice in hockey you are ready for a shower, and some good food. Try dashing down the hockey field and making long runs with the forward line and you won't be able to find a better way to spend an eventful afternoon.

TENNIS

Have you followed any of the matches in the tournament this past week? If you are not participating in the game, won't you come down and support your class? A good audience behind a player stimulates a player to play a better game.

Next spring another tournament will be played off here on campus. Try to practice your strokes—though it doesn't take an expert to be able to play in the tourneys here on campus, and enter the doubles tournament. Skill only comes through correction of bad foot work, and the strokes you use, so get in some additional practice with the roommate, or a friend who enjoys the game.

ARCHERY

Bang! A bull's eye! Who knows with a few more hours on the archery range, you rould probably show Robin Hood up—a likely story, but these are strong possibilities that you can and will master the art with a little confidence in yourself and your straight forward shots. If you have not acquired a skill in archery you may need a few more hours of practice, so pick out a good bow, and half a dozen arrows, and a score card and head for the range. Try your luck once, and you will go back again and again, until you put six out of six arrows into the target.

SWIMMING

Splash! Overboard? No, just practicing a dive. Have you put in your presence at the pool lately? There are recreational hours for those who enjoy the water, and can't get enough swimming during class. Monday and Wednesday and Saturday are the nights when the pool is all yours, why not take advantage of this opportunity that is given to you and perfect your strokes? Come on down gang, the water's swell. Your day isn't complete without a dip! Until next week—get in the game!

The simplest western movie costs $50,000 to produce. The super westerns cost as much as $3000-000 to produce.

Ellett Announces Hockey Captains

Margaret Ellett, manager of hockey, has announced the captains of the class teams. Those chosen to lead their teams are Ducky Anderson, seniors; Jerry Colgin, juniors; Anne Barksdale, sophomores; and Ray Phillips, freshmen.

On Monday, October 28, at 4:00 p. m., the varsity hockey team will meet Richmond Professional Institute here. The Farmville team will journey to Sweet Briar on November 9 to enter the hockey tournament.

Athletic Recreation Offered on Sundays

According to Miss Olive Iler, physical education instructor, there will be various forms of recreation offered on Sunday afternoons for student participation sponsored by the Athletic Association.

Students may play tennis at this time, provided they are properly attired, or archery. The archery equipment may be found in the Field House.

Announcements will be made concerning the availibility of the pool at this time also for recreational swimming.

Gay Specks, Belts Lead STC Fashions

By ADDIE DODD

Specks and wide belts are playing prominent parts in S. T. C.'s fashion parade.

Just look around the campus and you see loads of "Specks appeal". It's easy to acquire, too, by choosing carefully the style glasses which best suit you. Time was when specks were thought to make one less attractive, but that day has gone forever! Glasses are so flattering now that there's actual enjoyment in wearing them. They come in every color imaginable from clear or pale-colored lucite to red or black hand-lacquered jobs. Horn rims are popular, too, and achieve that feminine, yet serious, intellectual look. Harelquins are becoming to nearly everyone. Most people with round faces choose the modified "deb shape." Wooden frames are new and inexpensive, if you want variety.

It is good to have an "eye wardrobe" in itself, for glasses are just as important as other accessories. At least one pair of boldly colored spectacles belong in every wardrobe. Match them with your best suit or accessories. They can really be sensational!

As for belts, there seems to be no limit to styles and colors. We see them everywhere—wide, studded, or jeweled ones are most handsome and can be worn with skirts and sweaters, jeans, and dress-up dresses, too. Some styles buckle or fasten in the back with wideness up to six inches extending in front. Others place emphasis on massive buckles or fine saddle leather. But whether they're leather, plastic, or fabric—you're in style with several of these belts to match every outfit or accessory.

H-S Choir To Sing At Intermission

Ruth Brall, contralto, will present a concert in the S. T. C. auditorium Thursday night, November 7, at 8:15. This concert is under the auspices of Pi Gamma Mu and the College Choir.

The Hampden-Sydney Glee Club under the direction of Professor New Crawley, will sing several selections on the program. Mr. Crawley has been directing the S. T. C. choir also during Mr. Strick's absence.

Tickets for the occasion will go on sale next week for 65c.

Miss Brall will present a concert at Hampden-Sydney on Friday evening, November 8.

Upon the request of Miss Brall, the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will sing Ye Watchful and Ye Holy Ones, 17th century German melody; May Now Thy Spirit, Schuetky; Recessional, DeKoven; and There Is No Death, O'Hara.

On November 8, the Farmville State Teachers College Choral Club will join Miss Brall in her concert to be given in the College Church at Hampden-Sydney. They will sing a group of four numbers, Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, Bach; Night Song, Ciakey; I Heard A Forest Praying, Peter De Rose; and A Spirit Flower, Campbell-Tipton. Immediately following the concert in the College Church, there will be a reception in the Old Gym for Miss Brall and the two choral groups.

Miss Brall is returning to STC for the second time. Her success in New York is evidenced by her recent concerts in Carnegie Hall. Miss Brall possesses a contralto voice of rare beauty and warmth.

In addition to these concerts, the choral groups of STC and Hampden-Sydney are planning a joint Christmas concert to be given prior to the beginning of the holiday season. The final plans for this concert have not been completed, however.

Super, Colossal AKG Circus To Arrive at S.T.C. Saturday

Hurrah for the monkeys! Hurrah for the clown!

Hurrah for the circus that's coming to town!

"That's right folks, the one and only, the super, colossal AKG circus is on its way. 'Twill be here Saturday night so don't miss your chance to see the gala affair.

"Come one, come all! See who the mystery queen and her court are, see who the unknown ringmaster is. Everybody loves a surprise. Don't you like surprises, lady? Sure you do! Yes, yes everybody likes a surprise and there will be loads of them here for you. So step right up ladies and gentlemen —get your tickets to the circus."

Yep, that's right, take it from the barker, there's a "super colossal" circus on its way. The circus is always a high spot on our entertainment calendar, enjoyable from the afternoon parade to the closing of the last booth that night, and this year it promises to be as big and as grand as ever.

With the actual day of production almost upon us every effort seems to be going into stunt practices and plans for the booths. Eager speculations are going on as to who the mysterious reigning beauty and her court will be and also the ringmaster. All up and down the halls snatches of songs and tickled whispers are doing much to kindle curiosity and heighten our anticipation. Now our friend the barker has mounted his stand again, let's see what he has to say:

"This way folks, this way! Don't miss it, the greatest show on earth, the most marvelous menagerie in these United States; (Don't laugh at the monkey lady, she may be your roommate!)

Garrett Elected French Secretary

The French Circle held its first meeting of the year last Wednesday afternoon in the audio-visual room. At this meeting Mlle. Mary Neal Garrett was elected secretary for this year. It was announced that Mlles. Annette Grainger and Gwendolyn Smith were the winners of a contest held last spring and the group decided to hold the contest, which is designed to stimulate interest in the improvement and perfection of pronunciation, again this winter.

The program, under the direction of Mlle. Ellen McMullen, consisted of the presentation of skits and dialogues in French, a game taught and conducted by the advanced class, and finally the customary singing of favorite French songs. The meeting closed as is also the custom, with the singing of "La Marsailles".

That a French girl is on her way here to help in the French department was announced by Mlle. Draper. She is expected to arrive within the next few days, and will room on second floor senior annex. Plans are being made for a French table in the dining hall.

Students Reminded Of Contest Deadline

Once again the students are reminded by Margaret Wilson, Colonnade editor, of November 1, as the deadline for all entries in the short story contest which is being sponsored by the Colonnade.

There are no limitations as to the entries a student may wish to submit and all students and veterans are urged to enter the contest.

The first, second, and third prize winners will be published in the fall edition of the Colonnade. Honorable mention will be published during the year.

The Colonnade is a literary magazine to which students, members of the faculty, alumnae, and others contribute. It publishes in literary form some of the results of the thinking and writing done in the college and among its friends. It is published quarterly.

The Colonnade is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press and, although the scorebook has not been received as yet, the rating achieved by the magazine will be published at an early date.

Seniors Capped By College Head

Senior capping took place in the auditorium Monday night immediately after dinner. Both seniors and their little sisters marched into the auditorium to their class song, "Green and White".

After the invocation by the Reverend Mr. Philip A. Roberts, the seniors were capped by Dr. Lancaster. Virginia Tindall played "Pomp and Circumstance" through out the capping ceremonies.

After capping the seniors, Dr Lancaster made a brief address in which he stated that he was proud of the seniors, and he was sure that they would justify his faith in them.

The seniors marched out while the Alma Mater was being played immediately followed by their little sisters walking to the strains of "Green and White."

AKG To Sponsor Annual Event

Gay Nineties Theme Will Be Followed

"Big Top" over the annual circus will be raised by Alpha Kappa Gamma at 8 o'clock on Saturday night, November 2 in the college gym.

The theme for the circus this year will be "The Gay Nineties". The identity of the queen, her court, and the ringmaster will not be revealed until Saturday night. Anna Headlee, senior from Norfolk is serving as general chairman.

The main events of the circus will begin with a parade through Farmville on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Barbara Watkins and Robbie Cromar will lead the parade and Nancy Lee Maddox and Claudia Smith will carry the flag. Each year the circus and parade is lead and the flags are carried by members of the freshman class.

Queen to be Revealed

The circus queen has been selected from candidates in the senior class and in her court there will be one member from each of the other classes. The ringmaster who is the master of ceremonies will preside over the events Saturday night. Following the usual procedure the identity of the queen will be revealed by the ringmaster after the animal show. Class stunts will be presented after this

Committees Named

Margaret Ellett, president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, is assisting on all committees with Anna Headlee who is in charge of the affair. Kitty Parham and Virginia Tindall are in charge of the committee for the queen and court, while Patsy Dale and Jeane Bentley will take charge of the booths and decorations. Sue Hundley and Shirley Slaughter will take care of the tickets and publicity, and Margaret Lohr will supervise the stunts. Martha Russell East will manage costumes and Betty Minetree will head parade plans.

Tickets went on sale this morning at the table in the hall. Admission price for S. T. C. students is

Coveted Caps With Tassels Placed On Heads of Seniors

At last the great day which the seniors have anticipated for four long years has arrived. Yes, senior capping is one of those red letter days of latter cherished memories.

Little sisters were chosen from the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes to accompany the proud seniors up the aisle. After days of practice with their little sisters, the seniors braced themselves for the grand entrance on the stage.

To the tune of "Green and White" the dignified seniors with knees knocking pranced up the aisle holding on to their little sisters hands for support. After what seemed like eternity, the last senior came down the aisle and the ceremony was on. The Rev. Mr. Roberts of the Presbyterian Church of Farmville, Virginia gave a very inspiring talk—a challenge to the seniors.

Eager to get those little black hats with the tassels on them placed upon their very very intelligent heads, they marched individually with their little sisters up on the stage. With the seniors garbed in black robes and the sisters dressed in white, a lovely picture indeed was presented to the audience. One by one the seniors were capped. The brave little sisters handed the cap to Dr. Lancaster, and with the nervous seniors each knelling before the president they were capped. Of course somctimes the hat slipped and almost fell off, but that was a trivial matter to them after it had once been put on.

At last every senior had her hat and was again in the audience. Dr. Lancaster gave an inspiring talk to the seniors—the leaders of our school. Then, to the strains of "All Hail Alma Mater", the very proud and now full-fledged seniors marched out of the auditorium.

Congratulations seniors, you've done a grand job and deserve all the praise you're getting.

Do Your Part In Making Annual Circus A Success

Saturday night Alpha Kappa Gamma will again raise the Big Top in the gymnasium. Just like the Color Cup, Hanging of the Green, coke'n nab parties, and bull sessions, the annual STC Circus has become a Farmville tradition. The noise of those weird animals in their excitement over the coming event and the hush-hush over class stunts hangs heavy in the air this week, and both entertainers and spectators anxiously await the opening of the show and the revealing of the ringmaster, queen, and court.

Each year there is no end to the work which goes into preparation for the circus. Each class tries its best to present a winning stunt, and each organization puts its best foot forward in preparing their own little concessions, the booths. Many new and original ideas are brought out in these each year.

Perhaps the last week before the circus is the busiest and the most work. Girls work hard to iron out the rough spots in their stunts, fix the animal costumes, organize the parade, decorate the gymnasium, and then to publicize the affair, sell tickets, and to handle the huge crowd which always turns out. The many signs seen on doors throughout school reading "Circus Lights" show that despite the work on Circus, class work must be kept up, too.

There's nothing to promote school spirit like a group of girls working together. To present a bigger and better circus is certainly something that requires group cooperation and much hard work. Student presentations, such as the circus, are what help to keep the excellent school spirit that Farmville is noted for.

It is impossible for everyone to take an actual part in the circus. We can help by cooperating in every way possible with those in charge, by talking it up, and by supporting the members of the cast when they present their stunt. Let's all do our best to make this the biggest and best circus yet.

Prepare For Future Life By Studying Diligently

One of our main objectives in life is the preparation of ourselves for the task or tasks we expect to undertake. We should devote most of our time, energy, and effort toward this end. life is much more interesting when we prepare ourselves for it, and have the satisfaction of knowing that we are well trained.

Here at State Teachers College, many opportunities are offered. We strive not only for knowledge, but for the practical application of it. Knowledge alone is not enough. It is helpful only when we can apply it to our everyday living. Personality, social graces, and spirit are among other things the college offers us.

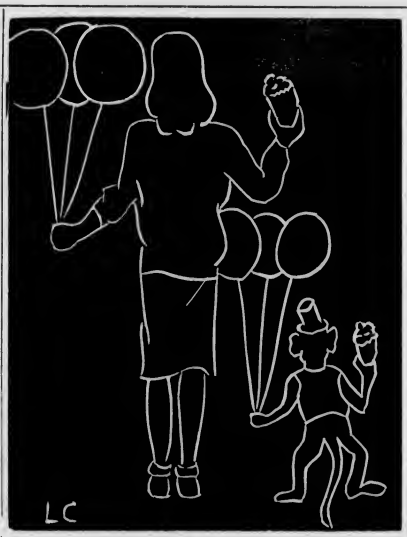
We have been taught all of our life to make the most of our opportunities. Are we doing just that? Do we stop to consider how much benefit we can derive from our opportunities? If we want to go forward continually and not remain at a standstill, we will challenge our abilities by taking an active part in classwork and in the organizations on campus.

Perhaps, at this time, it would be most fitting to concentrate our thoughts on work done in the classroom. Grade estimates will come out soon, and they will prove whether or not we are doing our best to accomplish our purpose in fitting ourselves for life. Many tests are being given this week, and we want to encourage everyone to do her best. After all, the tests which are given here are comparatively easy to the many tests we shall approach in life. Tests should not be considered as drudges, but as means of judging ourselves.

We are not asking that everyone be a "bookworm", but only that study and preparation be a part of your life while at college. There are too many people in life who are ill-fitted for the task they have set out to do. Let's be among the people who are well equipped to meet life!

Students Look Forward To Forensic Revival

"With the fall, a student's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of projects". Those interested in a forensic program for Farmville have asked what has been done in the past.



In 1927 a group of interested students organized a debate team which grew into a club taking a leading part in college activities. A member of the faculty who had some experience in coaching took a team to the biennial convention of Pi Kappa Delta held in northern Ohio and Farmville was granted a charter as the Virginia Alpha chapter.

In the years following, Farmville won first place in the Southeastern province in debating, in oratory, and in extempore speaking. One of its members served as governor of the province, one of its teams made a tour of the Southern colleges and universities, coming home with a record of seven victories and no defeats. Another year the Farmville varsity won all of its debates for the year, and another year, out of 32 debates in five states, the teams from here won 27 debates.

Plans are now maturing here, as in other colleges, to revive the activities shelved during the war. The new Debate Club is to function as a project of Pi Gamma Mu. Faculty members who have taught debating will coach the speeches. Senior members of Pi Gamma Mu will accompany the teams on debate trips, and there is no reason why Farmville should not take again her high place in forensics.

Outstanding Educators Visit Farmville For Inauguration

Knock, knock! And who entered? Why the most important and charming people in the field of education in the state of Virginia!

Farmville was certainly in a flutter last Thursday, and rightfully, too. The governor, the State Board of Education, countless presidents, deans, superintendents, and many other important people were present to honor Dr. Lancaster and the college. The inauguration of our president was an occasion that brought visitors from all over the state.

We put on our best bib and tucker to greet them. Our girls were at their best as hostesses. Everywhere college girls were seen chatting with a president, a dean, or an old friend returning for the event.

As the hour of ten-thirty neared, more and more people crowded the campus in front of the auditorium. The impressive processional from Student Building to the auditorium attracted many spectators. There were appreciative "oh's and ah's" for the gorgeous gowns and hoods. Cameramen darted here and there, snapping first one dignitary, then another.

The inauguration, in which many of them took part, was followed by a luncheon in the "rec" for the visiting guests.

On Wednesday night, many more guests visited the school. The student lounge was simply overflowing with people who attended the reception held in honor of Dr. Lancaster.

"We hope our guests don't feel that they must wait for another presidential inauguration before again returning to Farmville. We enjoyed entertaining them and want them to feel that they are welcome at any time.

Voice of the Students

Dear Editor,

I'd like to submit this little piece of poetry which I sketched and thought maybe you could use in this week's Rotunda to boost circus.

"The circus is coming . . . Hurray! Hurray!"
Ladieees and gentlemen
Buy your tickets right away
To that fun 'n frolic campus event
That's soon to come your way.
Yes sir! the annual circus is headed straight for S.T.C.
And because I'm sure you're interested—
Here's a tip of what's to be:
A big parade with animals of every size and shape
And clowns looking just as silly as the antics of baby apes;
And drums and horns all going rootie toot de beat de beat
And hot dogs with all the trimmings; everybody likes to eat!

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Back from Chicago all the girls' black circles tell the story of the most wonderful few days ever experienced. The College Inn must have been the center of interest or maybe it was the companions. Yah! Companions!

None of us can tell whether the excited expression on Kitty's face is from the Circus last Monday, or the big man she met Saturday night.

And speaking of Saturday, the two cutest on the dance floor were B. Lee and Ray Baby! He's just the sweetest one, isn't he, B. Lee?

"Hoot" picked up A-1 new name at the dance. For full particulars see her. It's wonderful!

Janie had one big fine time at the dear ole U. Va. Kilroy seemed to have enjoyed it too—must be the architect that's so fascinating up there!

Sure was good to see the faces of all the old girls who came back. Summers, Betty Harville, Mary Ellen, and "Poglee".

Some people get excited over letters, others over phone calls and still others over telegrams, but we've never seen anyone get quite as excited as Eloise did over a post-card. Well, after a two year interval, who wouldn't?

Sara Rawles seems to be all aglow over the week end. It couldn't have been that man who was here, or could it?

Sue is haunting the P. O. again these days waiting for that long-er uh! lengthy letter.

And will someone tell us who this person is that has gotten Anne's S. interest up so much? Could it be—but no—We will just wait and see.

Well, that's about all of this and that for this week. Bye for now and we'll be seeing you again next week.

Writer Warns STC "Beware November 6"

By MELBALE BOOTH

The soothsayer who said to Caesar, "Beware of the Ides of March," might well say to the STC girls, "Beware of the sixth of November." For on that day, dear students, our mid-term grades estimates are made known to us and to our faculty adviser. Lights on until 11 in the main building (and later if you are on good terms with the hall president) and until all hours in Cunningham; a certain girl visiting the library for the first time this term; freshmen with bags under their eyes; worried seniors talking longingly about their diplomas; English notes and psychology questions scared all over the campus; each professor assigning the date for his test (we always wonder just how they all happen to pick the same date)—these are but a few of the signs that the day for mid-term estimates is drawing nigh. Some one has said that all these tests remind her of pills—one or two each day, and if that is not enough, one each hour until all nervous symptoms disappear. And professors, like worried mothers, give their students an over dose.

Now just how does one study for English and health ed., the same night, see "To Each His Own," wash her hair, get her biology notes in order, to go to a meeting, all between 4 and 11 o'clock? How does the poor underclassman get permission to have her lights on after 11? How does one find lost notes or study notes she never took? If some one has found the answers, will she please make the fact known. It will surely be appreciated.

One bright student wrote her parents of a new grading system at STC. Seems as though "A" means Awful, "B" means Bad, "C" means Commendable, "D" means Delightful, "E" means Excellent, and "F" means Fair. So be sure your parents know that, when they see that you are doing "delightful" and "excellent" work.

Now, we don't object to these tests—but we do have a few suggestions to make. Could it be arranged that only one test will be given a week? Could a time limit on each test be set maybe about 15 minutes? Could tests be limited to certain subjects? (For the bene-

Varsity Hockey Team Elects Smith Captain; Ellett Names Squad

Nellie Smith, senior from Norfolk, was elected captain of the varsity hockey team Friday, October 25.

Thirty girls were named by Margaret Ellett, manager of hockey, to compose the varsity team. They are Alice Ann Abernathy, Virginia Anderson, Ann Barksdale, Jeane Bentley, Betty Bondurant, Julia Booher, Peepsie Brooks, Betty Burchett, Jane Burchett, Peggy Cabaniss, Jerry Colgin, Margaret Ellett, Bebe Geyer, and Sue Hundley.

NELLIE SMITH

Also George Anne Lewis, Margaret Lohr, Grace Loyd, Mary Evelyn Miles, Betty Minton, Mary Anne Morris, Ann Orgain, Dot Owen, Nancy Parrish, Jesse Pickett, Lenora Simons, Nellie Smith, Joanne Sterling, Joyce Webb, Mary Lou Woodward, Mary Wright.

The R. P. I. game scheduled for Monday was not played on account of rain.

Potatoes boiled in their skins can be made to taste like baked potatoes if you put a large amount of salt in the cooking water.

Left Lead

Great Day A-Coming

The horse lovers and admirers of our fair school will be delighted to know of the plans Miss Shields has made for the whiling away of our Sunday afternoons. For the interest of all concerned she will hold what she simply calls "Little Sunday Afternoon Shows". There would be Beginners Jumping class, Advanced Jumping, etc. etc. Afternoon strollers should enjoy this diversion immensely, as well as the riding students.

Of course this rosy little scheme hinges entirely on the fact that the stables at Longwood materialize soon. An encouraging note comes forth here in that the logs for the stables are at the saw mill now. It's wonderful to know the wheels have started grinding. Perhaps we will get in one show before winter sets in.

We All Have 'Em

Everybody has their ups and downs, they say, but Sunday before last Barbara A. and Ducky A. had more than their share when you're up, you're up and when you're down—it hurts! Just ask them.

The rain Saturday afternoon caught a few unfortunates in the saddle and a mile from home. Result, they all appreciate the sun so much. The sunny clear week end was surely enticing to the riders of the range. The capers in the ring brought an audience who looked away only when a model airplane flew by.

Welcome Butch

Before this "horsy" chatter comes to an end we must serve notice for the membership of "Butch" into Pegasus. Perhaps you have noticed him jug-trotting along side the horses on every trip—A big white St. Bernard who delights in chasing every chicken within a half-mile radius. He is as faithful as the most eager of us, so we must insist that he become a honorary member of Pegasus, our Riding Club.

And now we must go take our exercises for relieving muscular soreness so 'till next time, stay on the bit!

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Old "Sol" is not doing so well showing his face these days, but be patient it will shine in time for those hockey games yet. The past few days have been too damp for work out on the field, but there will be fun in store for all once the sun does come out again.

Tennis . . .

The final matches are being played off this week, so won't you come out and watch the fun? It will prove to be exciting for you tennis lovers, so come on down and be on hand for the event. Support your class and help the cheering section in some yells. The courts are for your use, and if you are not in a class you may use them after class hours, but remember the rules of the court and bring your tennis shoes—a small hole in the court can throw the whole court off.

Hockey . . .

The game Farmville was scheduled to play with R. P. I. was rained out, but there will be other games for you to see. If you are not on the team, come on out and watch your team go down the field for a goal—we hope. The varsity team has already been selected, and they will journey soon to Sweet Briar college for a game.

If you still lack some afternoon practices for your class team, come on down and try your skill in the game of games.

Keeping Fit . . .

The idea of "keeping fit" has been introduced to you many times but no one really seems to fully realize the importance of this phrase until she loses her resistance to colds and other common diseases and has to spend a week in the infirmary resulting in a loss of classes and fun. Take the doctors advice and get plenty of rest, fresh air, and a well-balanced diet. Even one day lost, if you are not in circulation, proves to be a great loss in many respects.

Until next week, keep up with the sports offered to you here on your own campus and get in the game. Be a good sport in all sports.

First tannery in America was built in Virginia in 1830, but the industry developed most widely in Massachusetts, perhaps because oak bark was more readily available there.

15c and for outsiders it is 30c.

A committee of faculty judges will decide the winner of the class stunts. The ringmaster will announce the first and second place winners at the end of the performance. After this the booths, sponsored by the various organizations will be opened, and there will be dancing in one part of the gym. The usual circus foods, peanuts, popcorn, and cracker-jacks will be sold at the various booths which will be elaborately decorated for the occasion.

It is predicted that many scarcities will fade out in from three to six months. The prediction does not apply to sugar and automobiles. Anything like a normal supply of sugar will not be available until the middle of next year and a longer time may be required in the case of automobiles.

Sunday Sports Sponsored by A.A.

Swimming pool will be open Sunday afternoon for recreational swimming. Definite hours will be announced later.

Archery will also be held Sunday afternoon on the Athletic field. The equipment can be obtained in the field house.

These two sports are part of a Sunday afternoon recreational program which has just recently been established at S. T. C. under the auspices of the Athletic Association.

Costume Ensemble Comes Back Again

The costume ensemble is back again this fall. A coat of plaid or monotone over a jersey or wool dress is a wardrobe in itself. The dressy dress of this fall is an ultra-feminine affair that flatters the figure; it has a longer torso line, a fuller skirt, and a tucked-in waist. Shoulders are wide with huge balloon and bishop sleeves that start almost at the close-fitting waist.

Hems make headlines! With skirts having taken on a new ease and fullness, hems are important. They may be uneven, petal-like, jagged, scalloped or longer on one side or in the back. The skirt may be draped to the side and caught with a pretty ornament. To set off a woolen dress and make it significant looking, wear a band of fur around the hem.

Colors and fabrics are the most exciting features. Wool seems to be more plentiful this season than other textiles. Also in deep, rich colors are very lush satins and stiff brocades.

Gray is the leading color, closely followed by the brown family. Pastels are slowly fading out of the picture while lively reds, deep russets, and bright greens take their place.

Suits are slimmer, jackets longer. Jackets are of many types—the popular peplum jacket which may be pulled back from the cut-away front, bolero suits, or suits with toppers that can be worn separately. Collars either are small or not at all, with high necklines. Skirts are flatteringly slit on each side.

Yes, fashion has been given the "go" sign, and she has turned out the most striking styles women have seen in years.

The first rural free delivery was started 50 years ago in October 1896. The first test consisted of five routes. Three of the routes started at Charles Town, West Virginia, home of Postmaster General William L. Wilson, one route originated at Halltown, West Virginia, and one from Uvilla, West Virginia. The routes were 18 to 20 miles in length and a carrier received $200 a year. Today the average rural route is 45 miles and the average annual wage is $2500. Rural route mileage totals 1,500,000 miles.

fit of those who simply can't get chemistry?)

Now if you want some suggestions on how to study (Study? What's that?), we will discuss some. The first step is to get comfortably settled in your room right after supper. With a coke, your roommate's full box of chocolate candy, a new comic book (Yes, STC still reads those), and an easy chair, this shouldn't be too hard. Very well, now get the book from the girl across the hall and your notes left in the pool, the pool of course being locked by this time, then borrow the list of references from someone all the way across campus, and you are all fixed to begin. By this time it is 8 o'clock. That leaves you three hours. But say, how about that letter you had planned to write? That takes until 8:30. By this time Janet comes over and says that she's just received a box of food from home. You need energy to study, don't you? Your health ed. teacher said so. So down the hall you follow Janet. At 9 o'clock you come back. Two hours to go. But now dear roommates come back from the library, and after hours of hard study are ready for a jam session, so their friends come in. You can't be anti-social, can you? Besides, maybe you can introduce the subject of United States geography, your next day's test, and someone who has studied can teach you something. Finally one precious hour is left, and you stretch out on your bed ready to cram. But you know what always happens—you go to sleep. Hence, 1 hour of gruelling study for those mid-term tests has gone by!

Dear students, do not fear these mid-term grade estimates, or the tests which accompany them. Remember, that you have several weeks between them and the end of the term, so then you can really study.(?)

Library Exhibit

It has been said that collage (pronounced with accent on the last syllable) is artistic monkey business which is quietly threatening to become a fad. Pure collage is made by pasting together bits of material in nonsense patterns. Seriously considered, it is a study in texteures, shapes and space. These values are disernable in the library of original compositions by S.T.C. art students. The exhibit is accompanied by books and magazines which contain related material.

Tri-Sigma Delegates Attend Regional Meet

Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority will hold a regional meet in Richmond at the Hotel Jefferson, November 1, 2 and 3. This meeting is being held in Richmond for the first time since 1911, and it extends over the eastern seaboard area.

College chapters to be represented are Alpha Chapter, Farmville State Teachers College; Psi of Marshall College; Alpha Alpha of Concord College; Alpha Theta of Radford College; Alpha Upsilon of Madison; and Beta Delta of Shepherd College.

The program will include a luncheon on November 2 with the Alpha Chapter in charge. There will also be a banquet on November 2 at which a model initiation will be presented.

STC-ers Question Truth In Statement 'Saturday Is Lonliest Day In Week'

By JANICE SLAVIN

Saturday is the loneliest day in the week—or is it? If you have absolutely nothing to do on Saturday you are "out of this world", and may stop reading this article right now since it concerns only the "busy-bodies" (and that's the majority) "sailing" up and down the halls with irons, dirty clothes, and other miscellaneous work items. Now these people have one day in which to do their work since Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday are filled with studying for hours at a time.

If a visitor should watch the halls on Saturday, this visitor would find them closely related to bee hives.

With the possible exception of a few morning classes, the activities concern mainly washing, ironing, and house cleaning. Studies are forgotten temporarily. Temporarily, that is.

As the morning lengthens into late afternoons, you find many "sleeping" signs on doors, or dozens of gals basking on a roof in the sun. The main idea of this is to let the people at home find out how wonderful S. T. C. climate is, and how closely related it is to the weather of Florida. (Well, you can dream, can't you?) There is nothing more mournful than the cry of a girl when she discovers little drops of moisture falling from the sky by the buckets on a Saturday afternoon.

After supper the fun really starts in the form of a jam session. Recipe: A gang of girls, food, phonograph, and cards for Bridge. Scramble these ingredients carefully, and they make for a very enjoyable evening.

After a few hours of fun in which you discover that a deck of cards would be more interesting in a bridge game if they would put a few more aces in for good measure, you decide to call it a day (or rather the hall president does,) as you fully realize that Saturday at S. T. C. isn't bad at all.

French Student Arrives To Begin Work at STC

Vincent-Viry Born In Lorraine, France

Annette Vincent-Viry arrived here Monday, November 4th to begin her work in the French Department and continue her study of America. She came to S.T.C. through the Institute of International Education in New York, which made it possible with the office of Universities in Paris to send her.

Annette, who was born in Luneville in the province of Lorraine, has spent most of her life in Beirut, Lebanon, Syria where her father, an officer, was stationed. She attended a French private school in Beirut where she took a "Baccalaureat" (the first part A in Latin and French, and the second part in Philosophy.) This brought her education to the approximate level of a college freshman in United States standards. She continued her studies at the University of Lyon where she majored in English. She has also studied at Cambridge University

Randolph Singers To Present Lyceum At STC December 14

On December 14 the second lyceum of the season will be presented in the S. T. C. auditorium. The Randolph Singers will be the guest artists for the occasion.

The Randolph Singers are a group of talented musicians who have devoted themselves to the study and concert presentation of a somewhat neglected phase of vocal chamber music—the madrigal.

The singers include Georgiane Peters, soprano; Anna Louis Kauty, soprano; Saki Snaith, tenor; and Bert Spero, bass. The singers are under the direction of Mr. David Randolph.

Exchange Papers Filed In Library

College exchange newspapers are now being kept in the college library. For the present time they will be filed in the newspaper room in the lobby.

Dr. Beverly Ruffin has asked that students let her know where they would prefer for them to be kept. Papers from nearly all of the colleges in the state of Virginia and many from out of the state are on display.

Slaughter Names Staff Additions To Newspaper

Girls Try Out For Positions

Thirty-two students have been added to the Rotunda staff, according to an announcement made this week by Shirley Slaughter, editor-in-chief of the college weekly.

New typists for the Rotunda are Katherine Acree, Martha Bryant, Joyce Fleet, Jane Fox, Mary Kennedy, Marjorie Love, Laura Orndorff, Barbara Saunders, and Betty Jo Vale. They are working under Mary Davis.

These additions to the staff have been made from those girls who have been trying out over a period of the last five weeks.

STC Dramatic Club Renews Charge Plan

It has been announced by Eloise Stancell, President of the Dramatic Club, that the policy of the club to charge for lights make-up, etc., which are used by other organizations in their productions, will be enforced again.

The charges for these things will be $3 for aid in class production with staging, etc.; $2 for lights; and the make-up will be according to the number make-up and the peculiar aspects of the job. This has been a policy of the club for a long time, but has not been enforced for the past several years; however, the losses which has suffered from the demands made by other organizations has necessitated the renewal.

STC Eagerly Awaits Arrival Here of Philadelphia Artist

There have been few artists who have entertained and charmed us more than Miss Brall. It is with larger anticipation that we await her return performance.

In talking to her last year she told us many interesting things about herself and her career. A native of Philadelphia, she began her study of music there and later moved to New York where she studied under Conrod Bros. Unlike Miss Gnevek, who was here several weeks ago, Miss Brall did not enter into her career by accident; her father is a violinist and her mother a pianist so that music has been her chief interest as long as she could remember. She has spent eleven years in studying and developing her lovely contralto voice.

We like to believe that her warm and sincere friendliness, which delighted all of us who met her last year so much, has been an important factor in her rapid ascent to success. She won acclaim in her first big concert so that we are sure that she has continued upward since she was with us last year.

On her first visit here Miss Brall sang, among other things: "My Heart Ever Faithful", Bach: "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair", Hadyn; "Silent Strings", Maginski; and "The Star" by Pledger. It was a wonderful program and we can hardily recommend the coming concert on the merits of it. If you haven't already procured your tickets then do so at the first opportunity. Miss Brall is always worth hearing!

Edith Brooks was a member of the Glee Club, and a member of the Dramatic Club. Nancy Lee Maddox was president of the Tri-Hi-Y, and a member of the high school newspaper staff. Carolyn Reick was president of the senior class, and vice-president of the Beta Club.

Class Song Contest Will Be Held Soon

Traditional color song contest will be held in chapel Monday, November 18.

Those songs should be strictly original color songs made up by the individual classes. Those songs will be presented in chapel and judged by members of the faculty, but no points will be awarded toward the color cup.

The following Friday, November 22, color rush will be held at five o'clock on the athletic field. The winners will hang the banners on the various halls.

On Saturday afternoon, November 23, the final games in the hockey tournament will be played. These games will be played between the freshmen and sophomores, and the juniors and seniors. If the freshmen beat the sophomores, they will remove their rat caps for the entire year.

Ten points will be given the winning colors toward the color cup for hockey.

Hundley Announces Deadline In Annual

"The deadline is November 13th and we hope to have a great many subscriptions by that time," announced Sue Hundley, who is in charge of the annual.

By paying one dollar down for a plain cover or the full price for a leather cover, you may place your order at the table in the hall.

All pictures have been returned and the retakes have been taken.

Yonce Presides Over STC Circus

About 800 spectators crowded into the STC stadium Saturday night to witness the annual circus, sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma. The circus theme was "The Gay Nineties".

At the conclusion of the animal show the ring-master, Gee-Gee Yonce introduced the queen, Heidi Lacy, who is a senior, and the members of her court, Julia Booher, Dolly Freeman, and Annette Jones, who are junior, sophomore, and freshman respectively. Court escorts were Joyce Townsend and Carolyn Rieck.

Each class presented a ten minute stunt, of which the juniors took top honors with their "Good Ship Lolly-pop." The senior class came in second with their "South American Fruit Bowl." The sophomores presented a gay nineties revue, and the freshmen gave a minstral type stunt.

The stunts were judged for originality, presentation, and appropriateness by Miss Moran of the geography department, Dr. Ruffin, librarian, and Miss Fink of the training school.

After the grand finale, the crowd milled around on the "midway" and danced in the space allotted at the end of the gym.

Groups to Sponsor Musical Program

Artists to Perform At H-S C Friday

Ruth Brall, contralto, will present a concert in the State Teachers College auditorium tomorrow night, November 7, at 8:15. This concert is under the auspices of Pi Gamma Mu and the College Choir.

The Hampden-Sydney Glee Club under the direction of Ned Crawley, will sing several selections during intermission. Upon the request of Miss Brall, they will sing Ye Watchful and Ye Holy Ones, seventeenth century German melody; May Now Thy Spirit, Schuetky; Recessional, DeKoven; and There Is No Death, O'Hara.

Tickets for this performance are now on sale for 65c.

Friday night, November 8, the State Teachers College Choir will join Miss Brall in her concert to be given in the College Church at Hampden-Sydney. They will also sing a group of four numbers, Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring, Bach Night Song, Clokey; I Heard A Forest Praying, Peter De Rose; and A Spirit Flower, Campbell-Tipton. This choral group has also been under the direction of Mr. Crawley during the absence of Mr. Strick.

Immediately following the concert at Hampden-Sydney Friday night, a reception will be given in the Old Gym for Miss Brall and the two choral groups.

Miss Brall is returning to STC for the second time, having appeared here on January 24 in a joint concert with Miss Dorothy Danzig, pianist. Miss Brall is a recent comer to the concert field. When she was introduced to a large audience in Washington, D. C., she won such praise that is rarely given the most seasoned artist. Since then Miss Brall has appeared in concerts in the east, oratorio performances, and broadcasts. She possesses a contralto voice of rare beauty and warmth and her success in New York is evidenced by her recent concerts in Carnegie Hall.

Numerous Spectators Marvel At Talent, Beauty In Circus

By "TEENY" BOOTH

'Twas an hour before the circus and all through the school not a student was studying, not even a freshman, for they were all in the Colonnade waiting to get in the gym to see the 1946 STC circus, the "best circus this side of Southsides." Finally the doors opened and everybody filed in to see the Alpha Kappa Gamma, "Gay Nineties". Every seat was taken within the bat of an eye, the aisles were filled and the windows were occupied. Eight o'clock, then began the show. The monkey went around begging money from innocent bystanders, the horse danced —and did ever another circus have a real dancing horse? The giraffe stretched his neck and the skunk tried unsuccessfully to scare everyone away. (It takes more than that to keep people away from the STC circus) Then came the court. Did ever other classes equal the beauty of the three representatives from the freshman, sophomore and junior classes? If they were true samples of the nineties, then we are willing to go backwards a few years. Then every breath was held while the Circus Queen was announced. At last we found who it was, and all through the audience were oh's and ah's of approval.

The freshmen came into new prominence during the "Old Black Magic". Their dance routine line was worth going to the circus for. Then came the sophomore and the "Gay Ninties", when a teacher gave a reminisnce of her youth The juniors took the audience for a trip on the "USS Lollipop." They took us to the candy makers, the bon-bons, the peppermint beach and lemonade stand and then to first place in the stunt contest. To help the Pan-American Good Neighbor Policy was the aim of the seniors in the contest. They all agreed that each side of the Rio Grande has something to give to the other, and the judges had the second place to give to the senior class.

Many people found out what the future had in store for them, in one of the booths; and if their fate was unsatisfactory they had their personalities analysed from their handwriting, in hopes they could change it. Hot dogs and cokes, cider, and doughnuts were a must at the circus. (Say, how

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1946

Hear Miss Brall

We shall have the opportunity of attending a concert on Thursday night which is being sponsored by Pi Gamma Mu and the College Choir. At this time, our guest artist will be Miss Ruth Brall, who is no stranger to the college campus. This is her second appearance here, and the last time she was here she thoroughly delighted the audience. As an added attraction we will have the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club to sing for us during the intermission.

Miss Brall has selected a program which is sure to be pleasing to us all. We are indeed fortunate in having her with us. We want to show our appreciation to those who have done so much to assure us of a well spent evening by having a large attendance. After all, these concerts are put on for our benefit, and we should derive a lot from them.

If you have a lot of studying to do, arrange your schedule so as to allow sufficient time for attending this program. Most of the students who heard Miss Brall before will agree that there is no better way to spend an evening than listening to good music with an able artist performing. We feel sure that you will share this opinion with us after attending the concert.

We would like to see a full house in the auditorium on Thursday night. Here is a chance for all of us to prove that we like this type of program, and want more of them.

Check Your Manners

By the time students reach college age, they should know how to act in a dining room, but it seems that the girls here at school have forgotten what their parents tried for so long to instill in them.

A person is often judged by manners at meal time. If this is so, a visitor in our dining room would call a large part of the student body crude. It is embarrassing to those students who do know how to behave and to the faculty members and administration who eat with us for such conditions to exist.

There is no excuse for students to beat on glassware with their silver. Meal time is supposed to be a quiet time, not a play period. If we are to digest our food properly, we should go calmly not like a wild cat just let out of cage. We have plenty time during the day to visit with our friends so there is no reason why we should go screaming across the room to tell Jane that we just got a ten page letter from the man of the hour. You certainly won't forget to tell her after the meal. If over 800 girls all went screaming to tell their best friend that their long lost lover had returned, it would result in a riot. Those girls who are guilty of this running around during meal time should think how horrible it would be if we all did this. When we jump up then somebody else thinks they should go too. We would hardly jump up at meal time at home and go tearing out in the street to tell a friend some bit of gossip that you had just picked up.

Nor would we begin to eat in our own homes before the blessing had been said or before any one else had begun to eat. This is our home while we are here, and we should take as much pride in it as we do in our own home. We should want to make our dining room at school as charming and attractive as the one in our own home.

We have been asked not to come into the dining room with our hair rolled up and with blue jeans on. This is a simple thing that we can carry out and make our meal table a better place. It is no fun for the girls that sit at our table to have to look at us with our hair all rolled up on bobby pins or on old socks. We don't want to have monitors standing over us while we eat or we really would suffer from a bad case of indigestion. However, if the behavior in the dining room does not improve right away we will have to be treated like a bunch of kindergarten children and our every actions watched.

If each girl will remember that this is our home, then we will have a more delightful dining room.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Greetings and Salutations! It is indeed a pleasure to address you in this manner. This week the chef has prepared a date and nut roll for us—dates on account of that's what we had for the circus and nuts on account of that's what we are.

If the puddin's scorched this week it's due to those hot numbers in the circus. S. T. C. hasn't seen anything like it since—well, since last year's circus. Chrysanthemums to Chris Shiflett for that crack about having the largest manageric this side of Southsides—but we've just got to add that we bet that we had THE one and only dancing ostrich.

There were several alumnae on hand for the big show. (For the benefit of the Freshmen, alumnae are those unfortunate people who accumulated so many credits that they got a diploma and had to leave us to make their way in the big cold world.) We were more than delighted to see our former Ed. in Chief, Virginia Treakle among them.

Have you met our newest student yet? She is Mademoiselle Annette Vincent-Viry (pronounced Vanson-Veeree if you don't know French). She is from Lyons, and she came to America on the Isl de France last week to take up her study of English with us.

In true connaiseur fashion we've saved the prize raisin until last: Did you know that the juniors who took the top honors Saturday night were almost in dispair over the performance? What did they see that we didn't? Looked pretty good to us—congratulations! Finally Orchids to AKG and all concerned for a great show!!

In Memoriam

Lula O. Andrews—A Master Teacher

at State Teachers College, 1898-1912

The message of the death of Miss Lula Andrews on October 31 has saddened the hearts of thousands of her former students throughout the South. But with one voice, they will say she is still alive, living radiantly in the memories of her many friends and disciples. She was a master teacher. She helped her students find their best selves; she brought to her classes a rich background of culture and wisdom that enhanced the value of everything she taught; a deeply spiritual and reverent teacher, she gave to her students a broad vision and a sound philosophy of life.

Miss Andrews was a teacher in the college here for 14 years, an honorary member of the Alumnae Association, and the first honorary member of Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma. Her portrait, placed in the library by Alumnae and other friends, will be a perpetual reminder of a master teacher who was one of the builders of our college.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

On her way back from Chicago, Sue got the airplane to stop by Camp Pickett, but finding nothing there, she journeyed on to Camp Butner.

Even though Bo Wall couldn't be at circus Saturday night to escort Julia, he was well represented. Joyce Townsend did her best in Bo's suit. She did a good job, too.

Betty Spindler had it rugged this week end. After asking her patient date to wait one hour for her, she was only three hours late. To top it all, the only time he got to see her was from the outside looking into the booths. He was sweet about it though; he must have known that the "Gay Nineties" circus had to be a success.

Bill Sydnor came all the way from Lynchburg to see Jean sing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart". 'Twas worth it, wasn't it Bill? Yes, sir, we'll all agree with you there and on several other choices.

Circus wasn't the only exciting thing that happened this past weekend. Jeraldine Joyner, Lizzie Rush, and Jean Howell all came to classes Monday with starry eyes and big sparklers on their third finger, left hand. Best wishes, girls, we think it's great.

Margo is really knocked over the thoughts of that trip to Alabama that she is going to make in less than two weeks. Margo, just how many days, hours, minutes, and seconds is it before you'll see that man? She can give you a correct report just any time. We don't blame you though. There's just one thing we'd like to know, what's going to happen when that group of boys seceed from the Union.

Orchids this week go to Anna Headlee for doing such a great job on the circus. Bouquets also go to Queen Heidi Lacy, and representatives; Julia Booher, Dolly Ann Freeman, and Annette Jones. You girls made up a court that we were justly proud. Fifteen rahs for the ringmaster, none other that gal from South Carolina, Gee Gee Yonce. You were all great! And last but certainly not least goes a big candy cane to Bebe Geyer and her junior stunt, You juniors have really got it.

Betty Curlee took her cuts and went to the dances at the University of Richmond last weekend. You lucky girl. Tell us more about that date with personality plus.

Augusta Hargan surely was excited when she got that card from Chicago. Could Bob be responsible, Gussie?

June Cregar has been bubbling over with excitement since she heard that David will be coming home soon.

Hope Duke is getting excited about her trip to Annapolis. Can't say we blame you, Hope.

That's about all for this week. See you after Bedcheck.

Question of the Week

What do you think of the Hampden-Sydney choir singing at S. T. C.?

Alice Moore: Anything for a change!

Mary Jane Dunlap: Music is music to me no matter where it comes from.

Sue McCorkle: I'll love it if they sound as good as they did outside our window!

Bobbie Graham: Hampden-Sydney—Sidney—Sidney!!

Bernice Nichols: Fine idea!

Jane Mantiply: Since it's H-S—anything goes.

Cile Sarver: I love the male—voices!

Dr. Walmsley: More men, by all means.

Martha Webb: Wonderful!

Louise Dalton: There are times when music rendered by male voices is more beautiful to the female ear.

Dot Turley: 'Twould be fine.

Catherine Bickie: Hubba-hubba! I'll take another one of those!

Edna Earle Waters: More men! It ought to be good, too.

Charlie Hop: Will be mighty glad to hear them and bet the girls will too!

Dean Smith: Fine idea.

Pat Carter: Real nice!

Hilda Bennett: Fine, if they sing like they do when they serenade at night.

Anne Galloway: I hope they'll have time to sing.

Jane Fox: I love to hear a group sing, specially boys in a girls' school.

Judy Rieck: It shouldn't be too hard to listen to!

Mary Morton Fontaine: They've gotta sing the Whiffen-poo!

Night Crowded With Fire Drills Follows Long, Hard, Weary Day

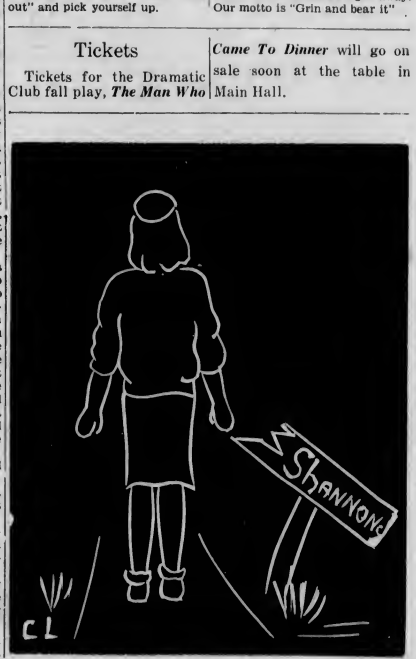
"What a day! Oh, my aching back, feet, head, and etc.!" groans a typical STC-er at the end of a long, hard, and weary day. "Now, for a nice long night of sleep."

The time is eleven o'clock and all is quiet (Ha!) along the corridors as the hall president commandingly makes her rounds. Yes, it seemed to be just another night. A few people had heard rumors of a fire drill, but they were easily ignored since the rumors had circulated before.

As the hall president entered one particular room, she was confronted by the rumor. She told the people concerned in no uncertain terms to get to bed and forget the whole matter. As she banged the door, a siren blew. To the "green" freshmen, this was all very exciting. "Remember your presence of mind, girls," someone shouted, as she nonchalantly took out her handbook to read up on what to do in case of a fire drill.

With this in mind, a slide was made to the closet door for a coat. If you are well up on sliding, you make it in a non-stop flight. If you aren't, you have to call "time out" and pick yourself up.

After the banging of windows, the picking up of a very important book, (How to Play Poker in Three Easy Lessons) and the slinging of a towel over the shoulders, everybody was off.



The arrival on the front sidewalk caused a sensation to the passers- by as some bright young thing yells out at the girls with their hair rolled up, "Just look at all the people that told me that they had naturally curly hair."

Finally the "all-clear" sounded and everyone filed back up the stairs remembering that the fire-chief had told them that everyone could go to sleep now.

Once again everyone settled down for the night, and once again the siren blew. "Oh, no! This is too much!" groaned one STC-er as she dragged down the steps again. The fire-chief stood grinning as each individual glared at her. What was so funny was the sixty-four dollar question on everyone's mind. Oh well, if you haven't got coffee nerves, you can take it; or, if you have, you had better switch to Sanka right away. Our motto is "Grin and bear it".

Orchesis to Present Christmas Program

Orchesis members and apprentices have been nard at work both Monday and Wednesday of this week on the Christmas Sing program for December which promises two different and diverse compositions.

"Behind the Mask" depicts a cross section of church goers whose thoughts are not on the service. "St. Nicholas Visits" is at the other extreme which is a humorous yet delightfully serious tale of the Saint as the children know him in the Slavic countries.

A complete resume' of the program and the participants will be made in the next issue according to Nancy Whitehead, president of Orchesis.

Left Lead

At last we see the end of our waiting on the Longwood stables, and it is pleasurable feeling. Miss Shields says we'll probably be out there in a little over a week. The completion of the stables leads to the beginning of the shows on Sunday afternoon. This, in turn, leads to hours of joy to riders and spectators alike. All in all, we're awfully glad the stable are nearly finished. Let's hope no cyclone, hurricane, snow storm or any catastrophe hinders the workmen in any way for I know the horses are already filled with visions of clean roomy stables with lots of fresh straw to play around in. It all sounds good to everyone concerned.

Have you noticed any unfortunates creeping around the halls as if every step will be their last An aching back and indescribable stiffness in every joint are the usual symptoms of the day after a rider's first jump! A week of pain is worth that brief thrill when you're up and over, but woe is the time you find yourself tangling with the wing instead of going over the jump. Nearly everyone has had their first trial jump by now and are eager for more.

The biggest thrill of the week is to listen to Jeanne Sauerwein tell of the Hunts in Maryland. A big time seems to be had by both horses and humans.

A cheerful note might be tacked on before ceasing this horsy column. Everyone who has been

On the Ball

Hello again sports fans. Think this will take the place of fall weather, just so the weather holds out until those hockey games are over.

AKG CIRCUS

This week's bouquet of orchids goes to Anna Headlee, general circus chairman for such efficient management of the annual circus. This event is one which will not be forgotten soon by many people. Can't forget to give the heads of the various class stunts all the credit which they rightly deserve for the four outstanding class performances. They again brought their class talent to light in the face of many excited spectators.

HOCKEY

How are those last minute practices for the class team coming along? The big day isn't too far away, and you will need to get all the practice you can. Remember the winning team walks off with ten points for the color cup, and what a treat that will be. Listen for announcements in the dining room for the scheduled hockey games, and come on down to the field and support your team and colors, so Red and Whites and Green and Whites get on the ball.

COLOR RUSH

This is quite an event on campus for all of you who have never been on hand for the race. It will be held the Saturday before Thanksgiving. Don't forget the rules of the game, you don't want your player disqualified. Get out of the buildings when the first bell rings, and don't come back for anything until the banner is placed in front of the building. Give your runner a fair chance to do her best running for her class. Be a good sport if your runner should lose. There will be sufficient officials to judge all runners, and their decision is final.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Have you taken part in the activities offered on Sunday afternoons, you should if you have not. Let us all try to make this a go on campus, since the idea is new, and there will be fun for all if you want to have something to do on those Sunday afternoons, say on the archery field, or in the pool plus tennis. Take a break from the books, and get some exercise, you will feel a lot better in the sunshine than taking a whole afternoon to sleep. The success of this depends on how many of you come out to participate in these new activities that are offered for your benefit, so get the gang and come on out, you won't regret that you made the effort, and fun is in store for all.

Until next week watch the hockey games, and be a good sport in all sports.

Hats Can Be Both Fun, Flattering

Judging by the number of bare heads seen on the streets, you wouldn't believe that girls ever wear hats, but notice them again Sunday morning or when they are leaving campus.

Hats are styled every way that you can think of, therefore, one has to be careful in selection. If your face is long and narrow you wouldn't want a high, closely fitted hat, but rather a well balanced round style. Leave the tall close fitting one for the round faced person. Select your hat in front of a full length mirror as it should be becoming to more than just the face.

Harmony between lines of hat and garment is a very important point to remember. Balance the whole effect by the selection of the hat which is suitable to the rest of the outfit whether dressy or sporty.

Fine feathers may not make fine birds, but they play an outstanding role this season in making a fine hat. A fluff of feathers in front, on one side or both sides, in the back, or one-sided sweep curling with the lines of the head. Also grosgrain or taffeta ribbon looped and placed in the center front is used. A narrow band of ribbon with sequin trim dresses of any style.

The tailored hat still holds its own and appears with many full outfits. A creation borrowed from little sister is the "roller hat", crown fits the head and has a brim that rolls up all way round. Many are open crowned for convertible coiffures, others are half hats that frame the face like a halo. The bonnet brim, beloved by all, is featured too, and is especially appealing when trimmed with ribbon or feathers.

There is no limit to colors but black and brown are in the lead. Match up your outfit and let the color of the hat top your outfit. If a neutral color is used, it can easily be brightened with a feather or two of a color which can be removed.

Hats are flattering and fun to wear and they are doing more to give you a well groomed look. Now that the boys are back, every girl knows that she must look her best if she's to be popular. And if you plan to follow a career, remember that a becoming hat will ease the way to that first job.

Semester Plan Will Be Carried Out Next Year

Catalogue Will List Various Changes

According to Dr. Dabney Lancaster, president of the college beginning with the opening of school in September of next year, the school will be organized on a semester basis rather than the three quarter system that it has been using in the past.

The new semester system will not affect the 1947 session of summer school. The committee appointed to work on the change and Dr. Lancaster have been meeting once or twice a week to translate the quarter courses into semester courses. The committee is composed of the heads of the various departments.

The 1947-1948 catalogue which will come out in the spring will list the various changes in the courses of study. The committee is now working out the final plans of the system and the catalogue will go to the printers around the first of December. More definite changes in the system will appear in the Rotunda at a later date.

A poster will be put on the bulletin board this week for girls to sign up who will volunteer to stay in the Red Cross office to answer the telephone. Girls are asked to sign their name and the time that they can come.

The campus Red Cross unit donated five dollars towards X rays to be taken of students in Europe. They have also wrapped 50 packages for the United States boys serving overseas. The Farmville Chapter furnished the money for these packages, and included were razor blades, playing cards, stationery, cigarette cases, combs, and wash cloths.

Education Week Begins On Campus

Noted People Speak In Chapel Exercises

American Education Week began Sunday, November 10 and will end Saturday, November 16. The general theme for the year is "Education for the Atomic Age."

The daily topics that will be considered in most of the public schools are Practicing Brotherhood, Building World Security, Facing New Tasks, Developing Better Communities, Strengthening Home Life, Investing in Education, and Promoting Health and Safety.

Here in the college in times past, a general program has been followed from day to day. At other times attention has been directed to certain of S. T. C.'s problems. At still other times invited guests from outside the college have spoken to the faculty and the student body and have left the questions to be considered entirely to them. This year this last policy has been adopted.

Assistant superintendent of public instruction, Mr. Howard, spoke in chapel Monday, November 11. This morning in chapel Dr. Ruth Coyner Little, assistant editor of the Journal of the National Education spoke on the work of National Education Association and the Virginia Education Association and the work the Future Teachers of America can do in connection with these organizations. Simkins' Book Nears Completion

Dr. Francis Butler Simkins, associate professor of history and social sciences here at S. T. C., is to have his book, The South, Old and New, published by Alfred A. Knapf of New York City in 1947.

This book, containing over 900 manuscript pages, is a history of the south, one third describing that section of our country before the Civil War, and two-thirds of it dealing with the south from 1865 until the present time. Started over three years ago, The South Old and New, is to be published in both text book and trade-book form. A representative of the publisher has promised that "Dr. Simkins' book will be different." The first chapter which bears the title, "The South Everlasting", gives the author's ideas about the south, and he believes that the south is just as distinct from the north today as it ever has been.

Dr. Simkins has done most of the work on his book during his spare time, in the S. T. C. library. The book is nearing completion with only small details on the last chapter remaining to be done. Revealing his plan for writing the book, Dr. Simkins tells how he first wrote down the facts which he already knew, then did the small amount of research required, and finally revised his notes into their final form.

Miss Brall, H-S Glee Club Present A Bill-of-Fare

S. T. C. really outdid itself in the way of lyceums last Thursday evening. The return of Miss Ruth Brall would have been attraction enough in itself, but the addition of Hampden-Sydney to the bill-of-fare rounded out the evening in great style. Masculine pulchritude all over the place! and don't think we don't mean all over! From Senior building through the Rotunda, here and there from Jeanne to the auditorium, were black ties, tux, and crew cuts. They looked just beautiful! This, however departs from the subject. Well—it does. Miss Brall began her concert with an old Irish air-Eileen Aroon—continuing with selections from Schubert, Schumann, Franz, Tchaikowsky, Rachmaninoff, Medtner, and several others. The most popular, however, concerned the prevarications of that "Lying Little Daisy". He did too love her! The idea!

The Hampden-Sydney choir, singing at intermission, sounded too good to be true in S .T. C.'s auditorium, accustomed to the not so melodious renditions of some nine hundred feminine voices. They will certainly be welcomed back—and especially underneath Cunningham's back windows. Bring the Whiffen-poo! "Recessional", of course, is the all-time all-time favorite, but "There is No Death" was very close competition. Watching Mr. Crawley's vibrations was not the least interesting activity of the evening. The ways of a director are fascinating ways, and, undoubtedly, they got results! We mustn't neglect to mention the two H-S'ers whose job it was to adjust the piano top. They did a very smooth job—see B. Bibb for comments as to just how smooth.

Congratulations and thanks to the College Choir and Choral Club and Pi Gamma Mu for their sponsorship of the concert. Both Miss Brall and H-S will be welcomed back just any old time!

S.T.C. choir members journeyed to Hampden-Sydney Thursday night to sing with Miss Brall.

Librarian Announces National Book Week

November 11-16 marks National Book Week in American schools as announced by the librarian, Dr. Beverly Ruffin.

There will be an exhibit to elaborate on this celebration in the library during the week. Throughout the fall quarter there have been many attractive exhibits in conjunction with outstanding events which have taken place.

In connection with Miss Grace Moran's talk November 6 and Miss Ruth Brall's concert November 8, there were displays on Russia containing interesting pictures of Russian folk life, and on music centered around an article written by President Harry S. Truman entitled, Music's Important Place in Modern Life.

College Alumna Speaks In Chapel

Miss Henrietta Dunlap was the speaker in chapel Friday, November 8. Her talk was on the adventures and rewards of teaching.

Miss Dunlap, who is the supervisor of the grammar school at Lexington, Virginia is an alumna of Farmville.

Backstage Laughter Enlivens Drudge of Daily Rehearsals

It's 7:30—time for play practice. We'll go down to the large auditorium and find out just what's going on . . . !From the front the play looks grand, but we've just got to get in on this laughter backstage. It's really too bad that all this genius can't be seen by the director. Maybe if she could see it she would appreciate the sound effects 'stead of shoutin' "Quiet! You children are making entirely too much noise." This outrageous statement is accompanied by a very emphatic stamp of her foot.

We now join the subdued backstage group and hear the latest news from the H-S and STC fronts. For at least five minutes peace reigns. Then in response to a shriek from a prompter one of our group departs on the run only to be met by, "Please don't talk behind the stage and then miss your cues." A prop girl runs by with a suitcase and some letters, and our ears are filled with the sounds of ringing bells.

Looking around again we see many interesting things. Perched in the window two aspiring young actors are doing a scene from "The Big Sleep," ahhh romance! Over on the piano bench we see another romantic thing—a young actress busily doing her shorthand. Behind us we see an excellent imitation of Jimmy Durante.

Mercy! What's happening out in front? Sounds as if we might have some horses in the play, but no, all we see is six small boys with leaves stuck behind their ears—Indian blood, no doubt. After further enlightment we learn that these budding braves are in reality angelic choir boys.

Once more we are attracted by a sudden burst of noise from the "front," the director is now clapping her hands and stamping her foot as she alternately pleads with and storms at the bewildered actors. "Put yourself into it." "You aren't talking, darling" or merely a shouted "Quick." Watching her more closely we see that she is following the play word by word

Thanks for Concert

We were certainly delighted with the performance of Miss Brall and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club at the concert Thursday night in our auditorium. They presented a program of such beauty, that the entire audience was enchanted.

Miss Brall has such warmth in her voice that she made everyone feel as if she were singing especially for them. Her rendition of "Lying Little Daisy" won much applause. Her program was well-rounded, and included many favorites such as "Ave Maria" along with other songs such as "At the Cloister Gate" and "Into The Night."

Miss Brall has appeared here before, and drew much prasie. We want to express our thanks and appreciation to those who had a hand in bringing her to our stage again. Miss Brall is such a favorite among both students, faculty and administration that we would like to have her back anytime.

The Hampden-Sydney Glee Club sang beautifully during intermission under the direction of Professor Ned Crawley. Their whole program drew loud praise, but their rendition of "The Recessional," and "There Is No Death" was so skillfully done that it brought tears to the eyes of many people.

Not to be forgotten is the reception and dance that the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club sponsored for the members of S. T. C.'s choir after our performance out there on Friday night. To everyone who had a part in the planning of it, we want to say a hearty "thank you."

All of these things together contributed toward the making of two perfect evenings. We certainly want Miss Brall and the Glee Club to come back soon. We enjoyed their performance, and they are welcome at anytime.

Continue Patriotism

Last week our country held an election. We wonder just how many of the students knew what the election was all about. It is not our policy to support any political party in this school paper, but we would like to arouse enough enthusiasm in the students so that they would become vitally interested in the affairs of our country.

There are some students that have already reached the voting age in our college and there are many more who will soon be able to cast their vote. There are few however, that know enough about our nation's affairs to vote intelligently. We are the future voters and leaders of this country. How long are we going to sit back and leave this up to the other man? It is our duty to begin now to take an interest in what is going on.

We heard a lot during the war about our patriotic duty, but have we ever seriously thought that it is our patriotic duty now to to be wide awake on national and world happenings? During the war we did everything within our power to help our country and to put an end to the atrocities of other nations. We must keep that feeling still that we want to do everything within our power to make our country a better place in which to live.

Thousands of fine young men gave their lives that we might have a decent world. Are we going to forget these boys and what they gave their lives for? Yes, it is our patriotic duty to keep up with what is going on in our nation. We are the future lawmakers of this country; we must be prepared for our job. We must start now to find out what is the best for not only ourselves but for our nation and for the world. It is hard not to want to take a stand for what will help us individually, but to help make a better world we must have our nation and the entire world at heart.

So often we get smattering bits of world news from the dinner table at home. We then take a stand as to what Dad says about the situation, but we should get all of the information and then draw our own conclusions. It's hard to admit but Dad might have the wrong opinion. It is up to the individual to find out about present day happenings and then take a stand for what we find is best.

We urge you to take a keener interest in the world around you. Remember the boys that gave so much for us that we might have a better world. Would those boys have wanted you to have your own interest at heart? They didn't consider themselves when they laid down their life for us on some foreign battle field

Just pokin around we discovered that names which are just names by themselves sometime come out in the most striking combinations. Don't look now but there's Long and Short; Low no high (but we have a Peake); East and West—no North or South, Sours—no sweets (we're all sweet!) Wright—no wrong (?) And look at all the royalty—King, Duke, Pope, Knight, and Elder—hot-shots, et what? Slaughter—no butcher—(no wonder there's a meat shortage.) Drage out a canvas you dabblers—here's Black, Gray, White and Redd to work with! Guess we can set up house keeping with Homes, Kitchen, and Brugh, to say nothing of a Butler and a Cooke which lots of folks can't get now a-days. We can live on a farm too with a Farmer to Grow a Beane and a Chick! If you're bored with this article you can go to—Spain, Parris, or Richmond!

This is the joke of the week—and it really happened. A freshman who was passing through the Biology department spied a stuffed owl in one of the cases. She exclaimed to her companion—"Look at that old bird in there" at which one of the biology professors poked his head out of his office door. We'll leave the rest to your imagination.

From what we understand Dr. Johnson's education classes are quite the thing—but Dr. Wynne really caused an uproar when substituting the other day. He found a counter for Muriel's question "why?" with "Ladies shouldn't ask questions!"

What They're Doing

By Martha Frances Morrison

Members of the S. T. C. choir sang at the concert at Hampden-Sydney, Friday night. After the concert the Glee Club boys gave a reception and dance for the choir girls.

Pi Gamma Mu initiated three new members at its regular meeting Wednesday night. Those who were initiated are Tucker Winn, Barbara Graham, and Dorothy Turley.

Wesley Foundation had a supper meeting Sunday night. A number of Hampden-Sydney boys were invited.

The B. S. U. group had a hamburger fry Sunday night.

Members of the Westminister Fellowship council attended the Westminister Fellowship Rally in Richmond last week-end.

The topic for Prayers this week is "Do We Dare?"

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

The glow on Evelyn's face this week is a reflection of that diamond she received this past week-end, but then whose face wouldn't be glowing?

We are all wondering why the sleepy expression is still on Wells and Corinne's faces these past few days. It couldn't be from the Princeton-Virginia Deal, or could it?

Lynchburg held the interest of quite a few of the girls this week-end. Must have been the PiKA Party. For further particulars ask "Peanut" or George Anne or just about any junior you want to.

Sue Mac is one happy girl these days. We guess she is though 'cause her man who has been gone for over a year is home. We think it's just wonderful, Sue.

Margo seems to be all a dither these days. Everytime we see her she's singing "My Bill" or "I'm Alabamie Bound". Sounds like somethings in the wind to us.

All of us wish to extend our sincerest congratulations to Hampden-Sydney for the game they won this past week-end. Rah! Rah! H.-S. Rah!

The Juke Box dance must have been a howling success because some of the girls are still complaining over sore feet. We can't figure out whether they're bragging or complaining.

Pat Carter missed all the steps from second floor Senior down to Mrs. Eastham's office when that call came from Blacksburg Sunday night. All we can see now is one big smile. Lucky girl.

Sue is our hockey hero. She came back from Sweet Briar with crutches and made quite the impression. Seriously though, we are all hoping that it's not too serious.

There were roses, roses everywhere and we do mean everywhere. We just happened to glance in on Shirley's room the other day and that's all we could see. Roses, that is.

Shuffle went up to the High School last Monday with a new lease on life . . . . the week-end must have done it.

Charlotte seemed to have had quite the mix-up this week-end—We're all wondering how it came out. The last we heard of it, she was calling here to find her man!

Nancy and Heidi tripped in from Halifax Sunday night with a couple of boys, only to find three waiting on Senior Building steps. Now we know the man shortage is over.

Pat Davis had a wonderful time with Billy Saturday night, yet she claims Emerson is the one. We wonder.

Eleanor Withrow's Johnny was home this week end. That accounts for her beaming face.

Wedding bells will ring soon for Doris Brooks and Ross Oglesby. We wish you both lots of luck and happiness.

Mert Davidson's man David recently received his discharge and came a calling. Lucky girl.

Well, that's about all for this week, but for the sake of those few, and we do mean few, that were here in school this week-end—We bid seven spades, and we suppose you're gonna double. Bye—See you next week.

Song Contest

Question of the Week

"What do you like about "The Rotunda" and what changes would you like to see made?"

Hope Duke: They oughta' run a picture of Gregory Peck.

Hilda Bennett: They oughta' have more pictures of the current events on the campus!

Jackie Watson: I like it fine jus' the way it is!

Jane Fox: I want less editorials and more news about students.

Anne East: No room for improvement!

Eleanor Partlow: I like Bedcheck.

Martha Gilliam: I love Carmen Low's drawings.

Ann Galloway: Think it oughta' have "nice" jokes.

Ginnie Walsh: More jokes and "personalities".

Jean Statton: I think it's a swell paper all the way 'round.

Rennie Hendricks: I want more news about the kids.

Gwen Smith: I think the features are clever.

Nancy Jessee: I like Bedcheck. Like to keep up on the latest dirt.

"Mert" Davidson: I like Bedcheck.

"Links" Krebbs: I think there should be jokes in it.

Jean Watts: I like the gossip when it's about Bill.

Martha Showalter: I like Bedcheck and I think short, humorous articles would improve it.

"Chub" Barksdale: I like it just the way it is.

Betty Tilson: It suits me fine without any changes.

Betty Jones: I think it's swell! Leave it alone.

Muriel McBride: It's a good school paper—Rah, rah!

Sue Ann Ward: It's the best thing we have for supper on Wednesday nights.

Mary Frances Hundley: I like it like it is.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

We think that the small attendance at the concert last Thursday night was a reflection on the students. Approximately 300 people attended the concert which was sponsored by Pi Gamma Mu and the Choir and Choral Club.

It was quite embarrassing to those who did attend to see so many vacant seats. Miss Brall and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club sang beautifully, and those who did attend had a pleasant evening.

It is seldom that we have a chance to hear an artist who has such warmth and beauty in her voice as Miss Brall.

Can't we have a larger attendance at our lyceums?

Left Lead

Mark Twain, Take Note

If it were possible, Samuel Clemens, none other, should have witnessed the jumping contest last Friday afternoon. It would have put his famed jumping frog of Calavaras County to shame. First Jeanne jumped the highest, then Zeke did her one better. This contest went on and on into the afternoon until the horses yelled "Uncle" and dashed off to the stables. Now all that's left to do is for some eager literary genius to top Mark Twain's story with something like "The Jumping Fools of S. T. C. and H.-S., Inc." Is anyone inspired?

Seriously, all of the riders welcomed the sight of Miss Shield's filly, "Flag Day". Here is a horse after anyone's heart. Not only does she look beautiful, but she follows up her looks with a smooth jumping ability. Her previous owner was here this week-end to welcome her, too, so it was a little like old home week around the stables.

It's On The Lose

Even little horses get it, and I do mean pink eye! Nicote was the first victim of the tear-jerker and he generously gave it to Pokey. Let's hope she keeps it to herself because it must be very uncomfortable for the horses. At least we may rest assured that they'll have the best of care, even if the trusty stable worker did take a little vacation last Saturday night.

Humans had their day, too. Miss Shields journeyed to New York to see the National Horse Show. Her report sounds most interesting.

Mary Young has big plans for the Thanksgiving holidays. She'll have the rare pleasure of hunting in Charlottesville with a grand crowd of "horse people". Right here and now we wish her the best of luck and success.

Before Pegasus wings his way into next week, something must be said about Butch. These week-ends at Hampden-Sydney will have to stop. The constitution can stand only so much! With that touch of sagacity, we're off.

Stay on the bit

Suspense Cheers Describe Freshman Election of Heads

By JANICE SLAVIN

At last the great day had arrived—the electing of the freshman class officers. At ten o'clock at night the freshman flocked into the "rec" with great anticipation and furrows in the brows of their intelligent heads. Who will lead this class of all classes through the trials and tribulations of the coming year? The suspense was great.

A few minutes later the election was in full swing. Nominations came thick and fast. After thirteen (unlucky for twelve) people had been nominated for president, they were asked to adjourn to the Rotunda, and the batile was on! Vote after vote was counted and recounted. At last the thirteen had dwindled down to two—Peggy or Frankie? Then came the final vote, and a cheer went up for Peggy West. Yes, Peggy had won.

Thrilled? Well, yes. She dashed upstairs to call her "pop". Proud "papa" then preceded to give Peggy some fatherly advice. Peggy hails from Richmond, but very readily admits that she has really gotten around since she attended several different high schools, the last being Jefferson High School in Roanoke from which she graduated. Upon interviewing Peggy she made the following statement, "It is the greatest thrill and honor I have ever received."

Frances Dodson was chosen vice-president of the class. She attended Maury High School in Norfolk. "I thought I had been hit by an atomic bomb," was "Frankie's" statement when she was asked how she felt about being elected.

Next came the secretary. Who was going to be the one to carry on this difficult job? (Has she had shorthand? The sixty-four

On the Ball

Sports fans, gather around the dug-out for some last minute S. T. C. sport flashes for the week. The weather man is about to suggest that we pull our sports back under the roof, but there will be a few more days to play down on the field, so get in all the out door fun you can before the snow falls no time soon however.

Archery:

Have you improved your aim lately? Why don't you try to collect a few extra periods by going down to the range and getting in some good practice shots? Archery is a game that takes skill, and this only comes with practice and more of the same. You may miss the target completely the first few trys but keep trying and there will be a bull's eye in store for you. Rome wasn't built in a day, so give yourself a little time and earnest effort, and you'll be glad you made archery a favorite sport on your list.

Riding:

Hitch up your favorite horse, and head for the dusty road. If you aren't in a special class for this purpose, find a vacant period. If you are one of the fortunate ones, then try your luck at sticking to the saddle. This is not only a glamorous sport, it's fun, so we're told, and just takes a bit of energy, effort, plus vim, vigor, and vitality.

Rlding is an excellent way to spend your lonely Sunday afternoons with the gang, or maybe you are one of the lucky ones who can go with your friend George or Bill.

Hiking:

All out doors lovers should take advantage of the country lanes and unexplored paths here in Farmville. Many an afternoon you will want to "Get away from it all". Take some advice from those who have tried this and round up the gang plus a few items in the food category and give hiking a try, won't you? Once you have gotten used to walking in a direction outside of town, rather than down the trodden path to Shannon's, you will be glad you looked around your college town.

Until next week, get on the ball in the sports way, and be a good sport.

Sunday Recreations

Miss Mary Dabney has announced that the swimming pool will be open Sunday afternoons. Miss Dabney will be there to take charge of the pool.

There will be archery Sunday afternoon. The equipment can be obtained from the field house.

dollar question to all Business Ed. majors.) After much debating and voting Annette Jones was elected. Annette could not find words to express her feeling — she was speechless. Annette hails from Suffolk where she attended Suffolk High School.

Then last but by no means least came the treasurer. The triumphant girl was none other than Farmville, Virginia's own Edith Brooks. Edith tells that it was the greatest surprise of her life.

Since Dr. Lancaster has always referred to himself as a freshman a suggestion that he be made an honorary member of the freshman class was voted on. It was unanimous. Well, the suspense is over now, freshman. Congratulations to the new officers, and may they have a very successful year.

Commissions To Meet At Longwood House November 16-17

Sophomore Commission will entertain the Freshman Commission at Longwood, November 16-17.

The Commission girls will spend the night in the Big House at Longwood. Jane Taylor is in charge of making the arrangements concerning the use of the house and Margie Miller is responsible for the food.

Versatility of Jeans Appeals to Girls On Local Campus

Blue jeans, commonly known as overall pants, are still life-savers for the college girl. Everyone has at least one pair in her wardrobe because they're as good for work as for play. They may be rolled up to any length, but usually the roll is at the knee. Attractive belts add variation to your jeans, and there is another way to brighten this type of work and play approval. Some people paint odd designs in various colors on the legs of the jeans, as well as initials, college letters, club names, and what not. If you don't like the artistic touch, you will prefer the plain because both are popular.

Besides being attractive for wear in the dormitory, outside sports, and work in various college activities, jeans are practical. They are not easily soiled and can take rough treatment. And most important, they keep you warm. Plaid and white shirts are the most popular combinations for blue jeans and they don't have to be borrowed from dad or brother. These, as well as jeans, have become established as girls' wear also, and are styled as such. However, those patterned in boyish fashion rate high in popularity.

STC Seniors Win Prize In Color Song Contest

Freshman Class Places Second

Senior class won first place in the annual song contest for Green and White. This contest, sponsored by the athletic association, was held in chapel Monday, November 18.

Placing second was the freshman class with their Red and White song to the tune of "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet."

The songs were presented by each class and were based on the class colors. They were judged on pep, originality of tune, and originality of lyrics. Contest judges were Miss Emily Clark, Miss Jessie Patterson, and Miss Ruth Cleaves.

Mararet Eliett, president of the senior class, was awarded a prize of two dollars by Kitty Sue Bridgforth, president of the Athletic Association, at the end of the program.

The winning song was both original in tune and words. The lyrics to the song are:

Stand up and cheer for Farmville's green and white.
You know we're in the right.
We're going to win this fight.
And with the sophs and seniors
on the field,
The Green and White will never yield.
We'll put the colors on the cup
this time,
Just watch the score climb.
As we go down the line.
We've got the spirit, sponsors,
team, and song.
With these we can't go wrong.
So fight!

Librarian Announces 2 Poetry Contests

Appearing on the bulletin board in the library this week will be two notices concerning two prize contests of poetry.

The Poetry Society of Virginia is offering six different prizes for sonnets, lyrics, and ballads.

The spring issue of Voices issues a first prize of one hundred dollars and a second prize of fifty dolars for the best groups of poems published in that issue.

Many books are on hand in the library for reference among which are James Harry Smith's book on The Reading of Poetry, Louis Untermeyer's Doorway to Poetry, and John Erskine's The Kinds of Poetry. In these books are examples of various verse forms and the techniques and mechanics involving them.

Students are urged by Dr. Ruffin, librarian, to enter their selections and further information may be obtained in the library.

Notices

The Rotunda will be published on Tuesday, November 26, instead of Wednesday, November 27 since students will leave college at 11 o'clock Wednesday for the Thanksgiving holiday. Because of this change in the regular schedule of the paper every member of the staff, both editorial and business, must be present at the meeting tonight in the publication office immediately after prayers. After the issue of the paper on November 26, there will be no more issues of the paper until December 11.

According to an announcement from the president's office this week, the Thanksgiving holidays will begin at 11 o'clock on Wednesday, November 27. There will be no more classes after the 10:05 class on Wednesday morning.

Students are expected to return to school Sunday, December 1, and classes will be resumed on Monday morning, December 2

Lyceum Date Set For December 15

Program To Feature Randolph Singers

Although plans have not yet been completed, the second lyceum program of the year will be presented on Sunday, December 15, rather than on December 14 as previously announced. The Randolph Singers will be the guest artists for the occasion

The Randolph Singers are a group of talented musicians who have devoted themselves to the study and concert presentation of a somewhat neglected phase of vocal chamber music—the madrigal.

The singers include Georgiane Peters, soprano; Anna Louise Kauty, soprano; Saki Snath, tenor; and Bert Spero, bass. The singers are under the direction of David Randolph.

Also included on the program are Christmas selections by the Choir, Choral Club, and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club.

On December 17 the concert will be presented at Hampden-Sydney.

Morris to Replace Headlee As Member Of Y.W.C.A. Cabinet

Mary Ann Morris, junior from Richmond, has been appointed by the YWCA cabinet to replace Anna Headlee as freshman counselor.

Anna Headlee, who was appointed to this office last spring, has been forced to resign because of her health.

The freshman counselor is a member of the executive board of the Y cabinet and serves as advisor to the Freshman and Sophomore Commissions.

Tuck Speaks To Club At Regular Meeting

Dorothy Tuck, junior, was the speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Commercial Club which was held last Wednesday, November 13, in the small auditorium.

Dorothy, an ex-Wave, told of her experiences in the mail division. Her talk included some of the things that private secretaries would have to do in offices.

The next meeting of the club will be held on December 11. Officers who were elected last spring are Barbara Kellam, president; Virginia Marshall, vice president; Jackie Bobbitt, secretary, and Barbara Lee Myers, treasurer.

Sale of Tickets For Senior Dance Held This Week

Southern Colonels To Provide Music

Tickets went on sale Monday of this week for the annual Senior Dance which will be held in the gymnasium Saturday, December 7.

According to Gwen Ackiss, general chairman of the dance, the Southern Colonels of Virginia Tech will provide the music for the occasion. This is a 15 piece orchestra with vocalist which has played for many school dances in Virginia and at Virginia Beach last summer.

Carlotta Norfleet, who was chosen an honorary member of the senior class by popular vote last spring, will return to lead the figure with Margaret Eliett, president of the senior class, and to be in the receiving line.

Also in the receiving line will be Miss Olive T. Iler, senior class sponsor; Raymond H. French, sophomore class sponsor; and the officers of the senior class. They are Margaret Eliett, president; Grace Loyd, vice president; Betty Bibb, secretary, and Anna Headlee, treasurer.

Miss Elizabeth Burger, Mrs. Eva Warren, Mrs. Katherine Tabb, Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Jeffers, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Brumfield will chaperone the dance. Dr. Moss and Dr. Brumfield will be at the door.

Committee chairman for the dance appointed several weeks ago by Gwen Ackiss are figure, Barbara Lee Myers; decorations, Carmen Law; floor, Dot May; tickets, Barbara Kellam; and program, Cile Sarver.

Foster Elected Head Of STC Choral Club

Julia Foster was elected president of the Choral Club at a recent meeting. Elected to work with her were Mary Agnes Millner, vice-president and secretary; Betty Jordan, librarian; and Puckett Asher, Rotunda reporter.

Mr. Strick was back with the girls, and in a talk during the meeting he outlined the course of work for the coming year.

Mrs. Ben Moomaw, who has been directing the group in her father's absence, entertained the club at her home last week.

PGM Will Sponsor Mardi Gras Dance

The Mardi Gras dance, which is to be held on February 15, is sponsored annually by Pi Gamma Mu, a national social science honor society.

The theme of the dance and various committee chairmen are to be announced later by the dance chairman, Ann Pullen. Costumes will be in keeping with the theme, and prizes will be given for the most outstanding.

Shrieks From Play Rehearsal Arouse Students' Curiosity

One night last week sudden shrieks were heard from the auditorium. Sounded more like the laughing "at" rather than the laughing "with" type of glee, but we decided to bolster our morale by laughing "at" with 'em.

Bill Smithers had just been "stuffed" for the first time in preparation for his part as "The Man Who Came To Dinner" and stayed. Whiteside of the play was in reality the portly Alexander Woolcott, so to portray the part in every aspect of character and appearance it is necessary to supply many "pounds" to Bill Smithers usual "circumstance". Both Woolcott, who played the role occasionally, and Monty Wooley who made it famous were naturally supplied with that factor which Gwen has to apply to Bill superficially. It's hilarious!

Towels and pillows added not only rotundity but obescity to Bill's usual slim girth! We laughed and laughed when he stood up for his few jitterbug steps. His legs looked spindly and a mile long in contrast to his "something new has been added" waistline.

Once the finishing ornaments have been added Mr. Sheridan Whiteside will be a creature we'll all have to see and laugh both with and at.

H-SC, STC To Present Here Friday Night at 8 O'clock 'The Man Who Came To Dinner'

Tickets Go On Sale Soon For Concert

Patterson Gives Lists of Programs

Tickets for the Philadelphia Symphony to be conducted on the November 25 have been sold-out as announced by Miss Patterson, music professor, and before Thanksgiving tickets will go on sale for Chrysler's appearance on December 5.

The concert schedule, sponsored by the Student's Standards Committee, has proven to contain many talented artists and for the remaining season the following are expected to appear. The Jooss Ballet, a French organization appearing for the first time since the war, will be presented on January 4 and Lily Pons, whose appearance date is indefinite.

Horolitz, a pianist second only to Rubinstien, will appear March 20 with the world's greatest orchestra, the Philharmonic, following on April 16. This orchestra has been in existence for 120 years and will play for the first time below the Mason-Dixon line.

Notices will be posted concerning the tickets for the concerts to be attended after the Christmas holidays.

Baptist Secretary Returns to Work On Local Campus

Miss Olivia Stephenson, Baptist Student Secretary, has returned to her work here. Miss Stephenson has been sick at her home in Ivor and was not able to return to her work in September.

Miss Stephenson received her degree from Farmville State Teachers College with a major in Home Economics. She taught for a while in the public schools of Virginia, after which she entered the W. M. U. Training School in Louisville, Kentucky. She received her Masters degree from Louisville in 1946.

She will be at the Baptist Student Center, 204 High Street, and will be glad to help the college students.

During chapel period Wednesday, December 4, students will be allowed to sign up for YWCA committees, according to an announcement by Martha Russel East, president of the YWCA.

At this time all freshmen as well as upperclassmen who desire active participation in the YWCA through committee work will sign up for the committee of their choice. The committee chairman will be present to explain the work and objectives of their committees.

Smithers to Take Leading Role Of Whiteside In Annual Play

ELOISE STANCELL, president of the STC Dramatic Club.

Wheeler Directs Fall Production

The curtain will go up on "The Man Who Came To Dinner" at 8 p. m. Friday night in the large auditorium. This production under the direction of Miss Leola Wheeler brings together the talent of H-S and S. T. C.

This play, which has been one of Broadway's most popular hits, was written about the one and only Alexander Woolcott by Moss Hart and George Kaufman. It has been said that the riotous comedy was written on the spot at a party at which Woollott was a guest. The play takes place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley in Ohio. Sterling Whiteside, on a lecture tour, is prevailed upon to take dinner with the local family of distinction. By a stroke of fate he slips on the ice as he is leaving and is confined to a wheel chair by what the local physician pronounces to be a fractured hip. With this incident to get the background, the play moves forward to show the trials and tribulations of the Stanley family while Whiteside "rules the roost" with his brilliant wit and caustic tongue, the love affairs of Maggie Cutler and Lorraine Sheldon, and the enormous effect Whiteside has upon everyone with whom he comes in contact.

There has been an untold amount of work put on this play by the backstage views, which are most important but receive much less recognition than their due. This play is a difficult one from every standpoint; staging is made easier by the fact that there are no scene shifts but it required good engineering to secure the ceiling. Costuming has had to cope with the difficulty of securing finery for our elegant millionaire characters, while properties has been called on to provide everything from cockroaches to an Egyptian mummy case.

Vital statistics on the Hampden-Sydney actors show that William Smithers, who plays Whiteside, has had four years of experience in high school dramatics, where he took part in "Stage Door." He says of the play: "We've all had a fine time getting the play together, and we're looking forward to the spring play." Red Hanbury, playing the part of Bert Jefferson, is from Portsmouth, and he has had no previous experience; neither has Edward A. Parry of "Alma Mater."

Students Celebrate With Dr. Jarman

Frosh Give Program In Chapel Today

Singing to Dr. Jarman at chapel time Tuesday is a memory that every student will always cherish. Singing "Happy Birthday" the student body presented Dr. Jarman with a box of cigars and a red rose. Then the student body sang, "What's the Matter With Jarman" and Dr. Jarman's favorite hymns, "God of Our Father" and "Follow the Gleam." The scripture for the morning was the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians.

The chapel program today was presented by the freshman class, with Peggy West, class president, presiding. The program opened with the entire student body singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Peggy then read the nineteenth Psalm and Jean Bush sang "The Lord's Prayer.' The freshmen announced to the student body that Dr. Lancaster has been made an honorary member of their class, and then their song to Dr. Lancaster was sung. A tribute was given to the junior class, sister-class of the freshman, and the song to the juniors was sung by all the freshmen. The program closed with the singing of the "Alma Mater."

Writer Gets Ideas For Gifts After Seeing Play Practices

Editor's note: The feature writer of this article makes the following suggestions for Christmas presents after seeing one of the rehearsals of the "The Man Who Came To Dinner" which is being presented Friday night by the dramatic groups of S. T. C. and H.-S. C.

Did you know that cockroaches do everything that people do? In a cockroach colony they even have a maternity ward. Don't know whether they use a double or a single ring ceremony, but if you ask Metz the great bug-ologist he can tell you. They make ideal sick room or Christmas gifts too, according to this eminent gentleman.

Don't forget your friends, give them a cockroach colony plus earphones so they may hear the mating calls of these charming pets.

Or if you are a revenge seeker nothing will do for that unneighborly neighbor but an octopus. William Beebe sends them to all of his friends (????). They will trip people in the cellar and probably choke them as they enter the front door, if you give them the proper guidance and care. These animals are novel and interesting gifts and your friend will love you more 'n more for your ingenuity and resourcefulness!

People have been giving the same old things year in and year out—they just don't seem to have any individuality. One can usually count on a scarf or two to keep you from catching cold and a host

Give Your Support To Fall Production

This Friday night we shall have the opportunity of attending the fall play which is sponsored by the College Dramatic Club with the aid of the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs. The plays here at the college are something of which we have always been proud.

Much hard work, time, and effort has been put into the making of this play. Countless hours of rehearsal have taken place. Besides the actors themselves, the behind-the-scene people have contributed so much. Without them, the show could not have gone on.

This year the play that has been selected is "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Most of us are familiar with this play. It has appeared on the stage and screen many times, and has been a huge success.

We have always had a large attendance at our plays, and we hope to have a large attendance Friday night. We are certain that it would be worth your time to see the play, so come on out and give it your support.

The success of the play depends to some extent on the actors, but a lot will depend on the audience. A responsive audience is one thing that is important. If everyone will remain as quiet as possible then everyone will be able to hear quite easily.

Come see the play, and you will be glad you did.

Help Your House Council By Maintaining Quiet

The House Council is an organization set-up on our campus for the benefit of the students. It is made up of members selected from the student body who act as hall presidents on every hall. Their duties include certain activities such as keeping the halls quiet during study hour and after bed-check.

Study hour should definitely play an important role in the day of every student. The time has been set aside from 7:30 until 10 o'clock every night of the week with the exception of Saturday. Perhaps some selfish and thoughtless indiviuals are inclined to pick this period for their play hour. In order to curb this desire the House Council has allowed one whole hour from 10 until 11 o'clock to be used for partying, visiting, and other seemingly important activities.

Some halls which act as main thoroughfares have been denied the opportunity to use study hour to their advantage. In this respect, some students should take into consideration that other students want and require this time to prepare their college work. Do you allow them this privilege? Or must you be seen and heard by everyone during study hour to prove your presence?

The House Council needs your cooperation and yours alone to carry out its purpose.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Student teachers have the BEST time—to hear them tell it. Some of the stories they bring back from school really make us wonder if we did such amusing things so innocently when we were in school. Just get a bunch of these "School-M'ams" going and you're likely to hear something like this—

It hits you hardest when you can't laugh, so "Shuffle" saved this till she got back in the afternoon. In a class of family relations one little girl wanted to know how to get out of milking the cows at night. Shuffle asked, "Don't you have a sister or brother who would take turns with you?" To which she got the mournful reply, "I have a sister, but she can't do it—she can't hit the bucket."

Kitty Parham is suffering from her vigilante duties here; it is hardening her heart we fear. When grading some history test papers she found so many mis-spelled words that she gave a spelling test hoping that some of the low grades would come up. One boy who made 60 on the test turned in an equally low spelling paper but on the bottom he poured forth his youthful heart with "Iay ovelay ouyay ustjay hetay amesay". He still got 60—Kitty how could you?

We understand that in spite of careful admonition and instruction Dot May has a student who prefers to sew on the machine standing up. No reflection on Dot—the world is full of rugged individualists.

Grammar or no grammar we're inclined to agree with the H. S. freshman who ended her book report with "It was a grand friction." She should get credit for originality which is often sadly lacking.

Teaching school certainly proves the saying "Never a dull moment". These few instances and many others certainly make a good sauce for our daily puddin'.

Fall Play

Ray, Ray, Rah—Three Cheers Hockey Clashes Draw Near

Ray! Rah! Green and White! three cheers for Red and White! Come on team, let's go! Yeh man! That's the spirit at an S. T. C. intramural hockey game. Come on out on a bright sunny afternoon, and you'll see the steps and the bank on the athletic field enlivened with the brightly colored sweaters and jackets of the spectators. They respond lustily to the cheerleaders' efforts to support the team. It is impossible to predict what novel and clever verses and antics the cheerleaders will produce next to boost their team.

If you've never seen a hockey game before, you have a real thrill in store. Certainly all you old girls have sat in the cheering section or played on the field at one time or another. Hockey seems to be popular with the freshmen too, as told by the number who show up for practices and to watch the games.

The game of hockey affords many exciting moments as one team skillfully advances toward its goal only to be stopped by the opponent. Now the group charges toward the other goal, and thus the play continues up and down the field until a well-aimed shot sends the ball into the goal. The crowd cheers and the centers cross their sticks as the teams line up for another play.

The sophomore and senior game and the freshman and junior game, although exciting, were just friendly games between sisters to warm up. The real clash will come when the colors compete. The outcome will tell a lot in the story of who takes the cup. We want to see a big, BIG crowd at the next game. Come out, support your colors, and your team will have a good chance to win.

Question of the Week

What do you think of the plan to put STC on semester basis?

Evelyn Hair: I think two exams periods a year is much better than three.

Anne Pullen: I think it's going to put the juniors to work getting all their subjects in.

"B.J." Snapp: I don't like it. There will be too much change in the curriculum.

Susie Bowie: I think it would be lots better and a lot less confusing.

Hilda Kauffman: Less exams!!!
Audrey Hudson: I'm glad I'm finishing this year.

Barbara Lee Myers: I'm partial to the quarter basis, but if it helps the school I'm ready to see the semester system used.

Heidi Lacy: It will be rather confusing, I imagine, but I think it's a good idea.

Shirley Irving: I like it but it looks like everyone will be sort of mixed up for a while.

Martha Ashby: I like it because we won't have but two exam periods.

Betty Bennett: I like the idea. Wish we had it this year.

Muriel McBride: It's fine as long as I can get my credits straight. Best wishes to Dr. Lancaster and the members of the faculty who are faced with the difficult task of rearranging the schedules.

Anne St. John: I like the idea of semesters because we won't have so many exams.

Ella Stone Smith: I suppose it is best to get all the schools on the same system, but I dread thinking of facing exams in January.

Trudy Walker: Well, anyway, we won't have but two sections to fill out on our schedules.

Louise Sydnor: Frankly, I think the idea is swell.

Bobby Robertson: I had much rather have it continued as it is with three quarters because you cover too much material before examinations.

Polly Richardson: I do not like the idea of putting STC on a semester basis because you cover too much material before examinations.

Elizabeth Harris: I don't like it! There will be too much stuff on exams just having them twice a quarter.

Lelia Mae Ferratt: It'll be much harder!!

Jane Williams: I don't think I'll like it. Make it much harder.

Nancy Lee Maddox: I really don't know since I haven't been here long enough to try it out on the quarter basis.

Nancy Henderson: Too much to cram in my head the night before exams.

Margaret Hylton: I think it will improve the school to put it on a semester basis.

Betty Jordon: It will make the term awfully long.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

We are all back again in full swing after all the big week-ends. A few of us came in a little late, but we're here nevertheless.

Margo came back a day later than she expected because her plane was grounded. Or at least that's what she said. We hear that there were bets on it.

Randolph-Macon was the scene of a lot of big doings over the week-end—For the latest just see Kitty Sue and ask her where she was. Note the chin . . . please!

Wells, Jean Babb, and Lizzie Bragg could tell you of the wonderful time they had too. And to make things better H.-S. won again. Boy! Things are really getting better.

Peggy Moore slipped off to Florida. You know Florida in the winter! It must be wonderful. Just think, tripping down to the University for the dances . . . and some of us think it's wonderful, if we go to Charlottesville.

Tindall's back with Charlie these days, or at least we figured that out by the expression on her face. We just love it.

Wedding bells rang out for a couple of old girls this week-end. In fact there were about three. Poguey, Anne Jeanette, and Claire all three took the fatal step. Best wishes to you all.

Frances Dodson seems to still be way up in a cloud. We all wonder just why, but we kind of figured out that the big North Carolina deal must have something to do with it.

Taking in the big night spots of Roanoke this week were none other than Jackie Watson, Galloway, Lee and Phyllis Alley. Must have been fun 'cause they haven't stopped talking about it yet.

Lawless was seen with Cooper again this week end at R. M. That big ring she's wearing really attracts the attention.

Gillie is all smiles these days. Must have been that telephone call she got from Harry. No wonder the latest on her hit parade is "I'm Just Wild about Harry."

Frances Livsey and John are still going strong. It must have been the events of the week-end that kept things running smoothly. Tell us all about it Frances.

Anne Mundy is heard singing The Spirit of V. M. I. these days. It must be that good picture of "Otey" that adorns her room that causes it. What else?

Jean Watts is still trying to convince herself that she should have stayed at home longer than she did. Must have been some magnetic force drawing her there. Let's call the force Bill.

Well, that's about all for this week, except we think that we had all better start hitting the books real, real hard. Just think—we have only four more week-ends to go until Christmas and you know what that means. Hmmm! Bye and watch what's said after bed check cause it may appear in print.

What They're Doing

By Martha Frances Morrison

Kappa Delta Pi held initiation services for its new members at its regulgar meeting. After the business meeting, refreshments were served.

The Spanish Club met yesterday afternooon at 4 o'clock. Each Spanish class sang a song. Plans were made for the Christmas party.

Mrs. Jeanne Strick Moomaw gave a party for members of Choral Club.. Mr. Strick attended choral club rehearsals last week. Welcome back, Mr. Strick.

A number of Methodist girls attended a regional young people's conference at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg last week end.

According to Kitty Parham, president of the Panhellenic Association, the annual Panhellenic dinner will be given to sorority members on Tuesday, December 10.

Seniors who have passed the exam for two previous years will not be required to take the examination. All other girls who are members of sororities must take the exam on that date.

Say Frosh--What About Those Rat Caps? Saturday Will Tell

Annual Color Rush Fill Begin Friday Afternoon at 5 P. M.

Final clashes in class hockey games are slated for Saturday, November 23, with freshmen playing sophomores, and juniors playing their rival class, the seniors.

The first game will begin at 2:15 o'clock. The sophs will play the frosh in the first half then the juniors will play their first half against the seniors. The teams in the above order will play the second half. This marks the end of the hockey season for this year. If the freshmen win they will be allowed to remove their rat caps. If the sophomore team triumphs over the freshman class, the rats will have to wear their caps until the Christmas holidays begin.

Class games are being played through the entire week in the round-robin tournament. Yesterday the junior class played the freshman class. This afternoon the freshman hockey team played the senior team. Tomorrow, November 21, the sophomores will play the juniors. The sophomore class bowed to the senior class last Thursday afternoon, November 14, with a score of 2 to 1.

Each class winning a hockey game will get two points and the team with the greatest number of points will gain ten points for their colors towards the color cup.

Annual color rush will be held Friday, November 22, at 5 o'clock on the Athletic Field. This is the first time that the girls have run on the A. A. field. Color rush is usually held on Saturday afternoon prior to the hockey games on the various halls. As usual the girl winning the race for her class will put the banner out in front of the building. Kitty Sue Bridgforth, president of the Athletic Association has said that by having color rush on the field, the student body will be able to watch the runners and it will eliminate any danger of the runners getting hurt in the buildings.

Banners will be put out in front of Student, White House, Rotunda, Library, junior and senior buildings. Officials for timing, judging, etc. will be chosen from members of the Student Council and upperclassmen.

The winner of color rush will gain no points towards the color cup.

The Freshman Y Club is the organization to which all freshmen belong before they become active committee members of the YWCA.

Orchesis Presents Christmas Program

Whitehead Names Leads For Sing

Nancy Whitehead, president of Orchesis is announcing this week that all leads for the club's traditional Christmas sing program have been chosen. This will be Orchesis' first contribution for the school year. The program will be given immediately after dinner in the large auditorium on the night of Senior Dance, December 7.

All members and apprentices will be in the processional which is a candlelight ceremony down the center aisle of the auditorium as the A'Cappella and Madrigal groups sing "Adeste Fideles."

Two numbers from last year's repertoire will be repeated. They are "Is There Freedom from Want?" and "Is There Freedom of Worship?" with apprentices taking the place of old members who have not returned.

Julia Booher, Nancy Dickinson, Margaret Ellett, Bebe Geyer, Doris Ramsey, Mary Virginia Walsh, and Nancy Whitehead are in "Is There Freedom from Want?"

Many changes have had to be made in "Is There Freedom of Worship?" This is a comparative symbolical study of our three major faiths through combined use of movement and voice. Jean Babb, Betty Bibb, Margaret Ellett, Heidi Lacey, Virginia Marshall, Ann Motley, Nancy Parrish, Evelyn Patterson, and Betsy Scott make up the group with Helen Owins as the Jewish figure and Corrine Baker as the Catholic one.

"Behind the Mask," a new departure from the Christmas theme, has three characters in it. They are Heidi Lacey as the child, Nancy Whitehead as the adolescent girl, and Betty Minetree as the old woman.

"Pavanne," a study in pre-classic dance form of a processional, is made up of Corrine Baker, Julia Booher, Betty Burchett, Margaret Ellett, Janie Hanks, Heidi Lacey, Ann Motley, and Nancy Parrish.

"St. Nicholas Visits," the humorous yet serious tale of the perennial old fellow, consists of St. Nick, his Blackamoor servant, two etheral angels, and the roguish imp, the devil. Betty Minetree is St. Nicholas; Nancy Whitehead, the Blackamoor; Corrine Baker and Doris Ramsey as angels, and Nancy Dickinson as the Devil. The recipients of the good and bad gifts will be chosen from the audience.

The whole group, members and apprentices with the A'Cappella and Madrigal voices will lead a winding, a caroling chorus at the end of the program

On the Ball

There will be all types of thrills and spills this week on your campus, in the line of sports. Take time to see your class hockey games that will be played off on the field during this week, listen for announcements in the dining room and be on hand when the umpire blows the whistle for the start of the game. Be on time for the games and support your class, and dont forget your yells, and bring along some of that well known Farmville spirit; your team will appreciate all you can give out, and each team member will be depending on you to help them make that goal that tells the tale.

SWIMMING . . .

Have you taken advantage of those recreational swimming periods this past week, and week-end? If not you have missed out on a lot of the fun. The pool is an excellent place to spend a cool hour, and you won't regret that you did take a dip. It is definitely refreshing, and you will feel a hundred percent better after practicing or brushing up on your strokes. Take care of your health and watch out for colds so you can keep up with your daily swim. Be sure to take a shower before you go into the pool, and the water will be more fun for you.

ATHLETIC IDEALS . . .

So you want to be an athlete? Not everyone is built for that, but there are many who have tried and succeeded in doing some sport well, because they did try. Practice, practice, practice keeps running through your mind, but that is exactly what you have to do, if you expect to get anywhere in any sport.

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will speak to the Freshman Y Club at their regular meeting tonight at 8:30 in the Student Lounge.

Red Cross Campaign Closes Tomorrow Shiflett Announces

Students are reminded that the Red Cross campaign for clothes for European students closes Thursday, November 21. All sweaters, skirts, coats, dresses, or shoes that are to be contributed should be in the boxes, which have been placed in the halls, before that time.

Christine Shiflett, head of the campus Red Cross Unit, wishes to remind those willing to volunteer for telephone duty at the Red Cross office to sign their names and the time they wish to serve on the board.

The Pi Kappa Sigma sorority celebrated their Founder's Day Monday, November 18, with a special exercise in the chapter room and breakfast downtown.

Farmville, who is John. Dan Bray from Richmond had two years of dramatics in high school. He commented: "Who's gonna pay me for the sleep I've lost?" William W. Hamilton III of New Orleans, La., has taken parts in plays for two summers. He says: "Enough of S. T. C." He is taking the part of Westcott. Hugh Warren from Abingdon is Richard Stanley, he has had one year with the H-S dramatic club. "I'm a nervous wreck," he admitted. In the role of Sandy is Tom Vail from Wilmington, N. C. He had two years of dramatics in high school. "It's all very nice but I've had enough" he said. He plays Beverly Carlton. Larry Scott of Haverford, Pa., has two years of dramatics to his credit. Of his part as Dr. Metz he says: "It's a pain in the neck." Mickey Trenner who comes from Philadelphia, Pa., has had dramatic experience in the army. Mickey takes the part of Banjo; he says of the play: "I think it's very good." Carter Coghill of Charleston, West Virginia, had four years of dramatics in high school, he says: "I like it a lot." He is cast as Mr. Stanley. Harry Bridges from Norfolk has not had any previous experience in dramatics. He exclaimed: "Never again!" He is the Radio Operator. Bobby Cundiff, Chatham, has never had stage experience either but he said dramatically: "Two lines to say—it's not much but it's mine, mine, all mine!" He is both a cop and the Expressman.

Now if you'll just take a tip from Whitesides' many illustrious friends and send something useful and amusing you can be sure that next year instead of the usual candy and perfume you will be lovingly supplied with bounties of arsenic bonbons and hydrogen sulphide.

Both the groups from H. S. C. and S. T. C. will be under the direction of Professor Ned Crawley of Hampden-Sydney, who is directing the Choir in the absence of Professor Afred H. Strick. Buses will leave from in front of the Rotunda at 11 o'clock on December 2.

Message to Students

November 25, 1946

The college has now just enough coal to last until December 4. Unfortunately our last shipment was "frozen" in transit and consequently did not reach us. The Federal Fuel Administration only allows an institution to keep on hand 15 days supply.

We are making every effort to secure enough coal to last until the Christmas holidays.

If we are unable to secure additional coal, notices will appear in next Sunday's edition of all state papers stating that the college will not open on Monday, December 2. In addition all students will be notified by telegram or telephone.

If you hear nothing further, you will be expected to return to college on or before 11 P. M. Sunday, December 1.

Randolph Singers Will Appear Here

Second Lyceum Set For December 15

On Sunday, December 15, the Randolph Singers will be the guest artists at the second lyceum of the year. The Randolph Singers will present a charming phase of vocal chamber music—the Madrigal.

This type of music for unaccompanied voices, based upon texts dealing with love, philosophy and nature, became popular in Elizabethan England. The pieces range in spirit from gaiety and lightness to stately dignity.

The singers, under the direction of David Randolph, are Mimi Laurence, soprano; Anna Louise Kantz, soprano; Mildred Greenberg, contralto; Saki Snaith, tenor; and Bert Spero, bass.

The STC Madrigals will sing three numbers with the Randolph Singers. The numbers they will sing are "Though Philomela Lost Her Love", Morley; "Pavane", Dellibes—Aslanoff, and "How Merrily We Live", Este.

Christmas selections by the S. T. C. Choir and Choral Club will also be included on the program.

On December 17, the concert will be given at Hampden-Sydney.

Panhellenic Council To Sponsor Dance

Annual Panhellenic Dance will be held in the gymnasium Saturday, March 1. This announcement was made last week by Kitty Parham, president of the Panhelenic Association.

This dance will be a closed dance for sorority members and their guests. Committees and the name of the orchestra for the occasion will be announced at a later date.

Guest Who Stayed for Dinner Delights Audience of Play

"The Man Who Came To Dinner" last Friday night stayed—much to the delight of the audience, but to the chagrin of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley. The delightful and distinguished guest not only announced that he was suing them for a fabulous sum but he then and there proceeded to make himself master of the house. Phone calls from G. B. Shaw in London, others from New York, Hollywood, Bombay—everywhere poured in. Telegrams from everyone worth knowing, and such presents—an octopus from William Beebe in the cellar, four penquins (until one ate another) from Admiral Byrd, a colony of cockroaches which do everything humans do, an Egyptian mummy case which came in handy, and a photograph of Mr. Stanley's sister, Harriet, which came in VERY handy. Ah, the life of the great.

Mr. Whiteside had a wonderful capacity for meddling in other peoples affairs—just a friendly interest, you understand. He wasn't content with encouraging Mr. Stanley's daughter to run away with a labor agitator and his son to sail off on a tramp steamer. Oh, no he had to tie up his secretary Maggie Cutler's love affair in knots.

Well, anyway it ended well—for everyone except Mr. Stanley who got sued again. Maggie got her man Bert Jefferson, Lorraine Sheldon got the bums rush in a mummy case with Banjo as bouncer, the Stanley youngsters got permission to follow their own bent, and Sheridan Whiteside got six more weeks in a wheel chair with a real broken hip. The moral of this story is not to invite illustrious dinner guests—they may stay!

Dreams of Turkey, Trimmings Near Reality For STC Girls

Suitcases in the middle of the floor, clothes nicely pressed, and lying on the bed, crys of "What time are you leaving?" mouths watering in anticipation of that turkey, bus tickets flying about in the air, worried student studying for a test she has at 10:05 Wednesday morning, last minute efforts to complete that paper due the first thing next Monday morning, and cries concerning whether or not the girl across the hall will get out in time to get on the 11 o'clock bus. What's all of this? Why, Thanksgiving holidays, of course! Joyous shouts ring up and down the hall as the word is passed that Thanksgiving holidays will start 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. So STC is busy getting ready to leave. And what time are you leaving Wednesday? "As soon after 11 as I can."

Tales about that Thanksgiving dinner that is being planned at home would make Gandhi break one of his fasts. For weeks some of the wiser students have declared a hunger diet, so as to save plenty of room for that illustrious, collossus, super-deiux, ever-fattening turkey that will be done by Thursday noon. And if they can stop eating turkey, dressing, gravy, and oh yes, potatoes, long enough, they will eat one half of the mince meat pie. (They are very unselfish taking only half of it.) One girl is reported to have packed some Bromo Seltzer in her suitcase. That is what we call smart! Maybe wishes aren't horses, but next Thursday they will resemble turkey!

But of course, between now and then we must attend classes. What happens to that test you have from 10:05 to 11 Wednesday? Well it will make you acquainted with the sixth letter of ABC's. To the poor girl who has a term paper due the Monday morning we return, we offer but one consolation —you won't have to study during the Christmas holidays.

But midst the test, and getting your tickets comes the problem of how to pack. One should take physics to learn how to pack more in a given space than is ordinarily allowed, and not wrinkle it. And if you think that's not possible you

We Give Thanks

"Come ye, thankful people, come." We pause at this time of the year to give thanks to our Father in heaven for the many blessings that He has bestowed on us. Are we truly thankful?

We in America have much to thank Him for. We are living in a country that has not been torn down by war. Yes, there are a few things that still are classified as scarcities, but what are they in comparison with not having a roof over your head or not having enough to eat? We can be thankful, too that we are again enjoying a peaceful holiday. We should thank Him for this and ask Him to help us to do our part to keep peace. We have a part in the peace of this world. We can help by living peaceably among ourselves. That is where peace begins.

We as college students have a great deal to be thankful for. Many students in the war torn countries have no schools to attend. Their schools were torn down, they don't have sufficient clothing to keep them warm, nor are they able to sit down to three well balanced meals each day. It will take years to rebuild the properly equipped schools. For all of these things that we have, we want to thank Him. He has blessed us.

We should not only bow our heads in thanks at this time of the year, but also fold our hands in reverent thanks each day. Not a day goes by for which we don't have something new to be thankful. Perhaps at times it is hard to see this when everything looks wrong with us and with the world around us. If we would only open our eyes wide enough, we wouldn't have to look far to count our many blessings. We gratefully thank him for that element in mankind that lifts us out of mere existence into real living—love, love of Christ, love of parents, love of relatives, and love of friends. We thank Him because "He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

When we sit down to a turkey dinner that Mom has worked so hard to prepare for us, when we stand up and cheer at the big football game, and when we go to bed for for a nice long rest that night, let us be truly thankful for all of our many blessings. Let us thank Him for that group of brave men and women who many years ago stood on a bit of New England ground in what was then a strange land and gave thanks to God for the blessings that He had bestowed on them. In all of the excitement of the holiday let us not forget for what this holiday is set aside and then we shall be truly thankful.

Congratulations

Congratulations go this week to the entire student body for their fine sportsmanship displayed in the color rush, round-robin hockey tournament, and in the color song contest. Congratulations to the winners. You played a great game. Congratulations to the losers, too; you took your loss like all good losers do.

Competition has been keen this past week, but it has been the kind of competition that strengthens the school. While we played or rooted hard for our colors, we never once forgot that blue and white is the one color that really counts. We are behind our class, but we are behind our school one hundred per cent.

Hockey is one of the main sports in the college, and to all of those who did come out to play the game we say—you've learned a fine sport. It takes a combination of brains, speed, and daringness to play the game well.

If we won we were happy, oh, so happy; if we lost, we congratulated the winner on a fine job. At the hockey games, we screamed for our class until we were blue in the face. Then after the game, we hoarsely offered our praises to the winning players.

S. T. C.'ers have again proved that they are good sports. We'll go on fighting to put the colors on the cup in the same way, the way that's a great phase of the life of the Farmville girls.

Puddin' n' Sauce

We certainly did enjoy celebrating Dr. Jarman's birthday with him last week. To the upperclassmen, it was like old times, singing his favorite hymns, "Follow the Gleam" and "God of Our Fathers", reading his favorite chapter 13th Corinthians, pinning the red rose in his lapel, then making the wealkin ring with "What's the Matter With Jarman". It really looked grand to see every seat filled at chapel. It should be that way more often. Don't forget that the success of the present plan is depending on us and that we're falling down on it. The committee is working hard to give us interesting programs, but we're not doing our part in attending. So come on everybody, let's start going to chapel just as soon as we get back. In that way we can prove that we are enjoying them—and we don't want to show by our lack of cooperation that we have to be made to go.

Check off that last "Days till Thanksgiving" and start packing your doll rags—we go home tomorrow! Now don't get the idea that we don't love it here, but who doesn't want to go home to the O. A. O. and get satiated with Mother's cooking? Speaking of home cooking, one thing brings up another. Did you hear about the girl who went to the infirmary with a-cute indigestion? "What sort of trash have you been eating downtown?" asked Mrs. Packer. "Oh, I haven't been downtown," she answered. "I always eat in the dining hall!"

First Modern Dance Program Has Surprise In Store For All

You're going to see your first modern dance program? Prepare yourself for surprises. You don't know what's in store for you. But that's all right, the dancers don't either. They can't justify every movement they make. They try to leave something to your imagination. They suggest.

If you don't understand it you probably need to see it over again. Unfortunately, that isn't possible. But that is one of the reasons a group repeats certain compositions again. Try to enjoy it. That is the first prerequisite to an understanding of and appreciation for dance as an art form.

All dance is not beautiful, nor need it be ugly. Modern dance is often distorted, primitive, and archaic in feeling. It is not pretty! But every composition tries to say something in movement. Each opening movement is the theme or statement of the dance. It is most often repeated so you can identify that as the opening statement of the dance. This theme is manipulated so that a form akin to music forms evolves with the body making a design in space or on the floor. Every movement can not be meaningful to you as an observer. Nor can the dancer always explain it.

For instance the lighted candles and voices set the mood or tempo for the greater part of the program. They give it a reverent air.

"Is There Freedom from Want", is realistic. It is meant to leave you tense. It is distorted but true in its movement content.

"Is There Freedom of Worship" is symbolical. You sense, feel, and hear what each faith—Jewish, Catholic and Protestant say not only in movement, but through voice and song too. Often times in dance, movement alone is not enough.

"Behind the Mask" is a psychological study. It shows what goes on in the minds of individuals as they are outwardly intent in the service.

"Medieval Study" is picture of distortion but so evident in all religious medival art forms. Note the parellelism of arms and legs and the turned head. The whole is a study in attenuation. The tortured, warped mind is evident from movement which is a negation of everything.

A-caroling is intended to have everyone join in the singing-winding chorus as it moves up the mid-aisle of the auditorium and through the foyer as the singers and dancers take their places on the stairs.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Congratulations to all of the winners of color rush and the hockey tournament this week. You are all great sports. This was quite an exciting week end at dear ole' S. T. C.

Who should honor our campus this week-end but Cari, Emmett, Bill, and Bob? Nellie, Heidi, Pete, and Nancy were an excited group of girls. Can't say that we blame them.

Another Bill popped up this weekend. Kakie wasn't the only one that was glad to see that cute Bill Greer. Come back again real soon, Bill. You're always welcome on this campus.

Who is this Easter Bunny that we keep hearing so much about? Eickie seems to meet some such one bearing the name of Bunny every afternoon in Shannon's. Maybe we're wrong, but isn't it kinda early for that fellow to be starting out?

Martha, you'd better watch that man of yours. Some of the seniors had their eyes on him the other night. Perhaps you'd better watch the seniors. Some of them are a desperate crew you know.

The managing editor of this paper is having a terrible time keeping her mind on her work this week. Wonder why? Time will tell. Right, Mary?

Minnie came back from Virginia knocked this week-end. Said she had A-1 big time. O. K., girl, what is the report as to who's who after this week-end? Minnie has such a time with her men, Poor girl—wait a minute what are we saying—one in the morning and another one that night. What could be nicer? We can't think of it, if there is anything.

Martha Frances is all excited over the weekend of December 7. We think that Lynchburg man has something to do with it.

"The Man Who Came to Dinner" was wonderful. Orchids to the entire cast. Miss Wheeler, Eloise, and all of the people who had a hand in making it such a big success.

Martha Wells has a time with her men named Tom. Can be very confusing at times, eh Martha? You never know to which one she is referring.

Our own Pat McClear is going to take that fatal step sometime soon. Best wishes to you Pat, and also to that lucky man.

Barbara went home to see Ray again this week-end. My, my—? Things are getting more serious as the week-ends go by.

Barbara Kellam took off to Virginia this week end. These cute people!

Gwen is all excited about Dickie coming for Senior Dance. Can hardly wait to see that man!

Annette is going to Richmond and then on to the big Army vs Navy football game during the holiday. Didn't take her long to get

Green-Whites Win Battle In Annual Hockey Tourney; Classes Tie In Color Rush

Winners Receive Color Cup Points

Green and White defeated Red and White in the annual round robin hockey tournament. The colors tied in the annual color rush which was held November 22 at 5 o'clock on the Athletic Field.

On Saturday, November 23, the seniors defeated the juniors by a score of 1 to 0 and the sophomores defeated the freshmen 3 to 0. The frosh will now have to wear their rat caps until the Christmas holidays begin. Up until Saturday classes were tied 4 to 4 in the tournament.

Green and White gained 10 points toward the color cup by winning their hard-fought hockey battles on the Athletic Field. The winner of each game received two points and the colors with the most points in turn gained the 10 points for the cup. Points towards the color cup now stand Green and White, 15; and Red and White, 0. Mary Harrison gained five points for winning the singles tennis tournament earlier in the season.

Dancers, Singers Will Give Program

Sing Will Be Held In Auditorium

Orchesis' Christmas Sing program is identified with Senior Dance. Immedately after dinner on Saturday night of December 7 a large audience drawn from the student body, their guests, the faculty, and town's people followers of the group at S. T. C. will fill the large auditorium to overflowing.

Each year the group, whose members are chosen after they have exhibited or professed an ability and interest in dance, sponsor an event during each calendar quarter. The first program with its Chistmas theme is not a flexible one. It must present the traditional spirit of Christmas. As much of the social scene as is possible is brought in to augment the true spirit. Voices in song accompany the dancers at times while the rhythm of the spoken words by the performers themselves afford another means of accompaniment.

The religious theme undoubtedly prevails again this year. That is evident in the "Processional,"

On the Ball

Victory for the Green and Whites ended the hockey season this past Saturday. The seniors defeated the juniors 1-0, and the sophomores defeated the freshmen 3-0. The games were exciting and all the teams were well matched. Good sportsmanship was dispiayed by both sides. The Red and Whites who took their defeat with a smile, cheerfuily warned, "Just wait until next year".

Bouncing Balls . . .

After that eventful holiday stuffing ourselves with turkey and sweets, we will return to school to start the basketball season. Being a member of a team teaches good sportsmanship, cooperation, and standing back to give the other girls a chance. All these can be found in playing basketball. The Green and Whites are well on their way toward the color cup, so Red and Whites here is a chance to catch up with them. We want to find girls from all the classes out on the court practicing. You might make sub-varsity so come on out and try, because you may be just the one who can help your class win those fought after color cup points.

Holiday Fun . . . .

We will put away our hockey sticks and tennis ball, and golf clubs this Wednesday to take a short but deserved holiday away from the wear and tear of school books for Thanksgiving. But don't forget that sports can be just as much fun on a holiday as they can be in school, so for example there will be dancing, bowling, bridge games, and any other number of games to entertain yourself in the fun with the home town gang.

You may even talk Dad or Brother into taking you along on the hunting trip, but don't forget to duck in case somebody in the group isn't too good at aiming. Get out of doors when you're home, for this is the type of weather that makes you feel good to be alive.

Until after the holiday, get in the game and be a good sport in all sports.

Seniors In White Celebrate Dance

All Others Asked To Dress in Colors

On Saturday night following Thanksgiving, the high and mighty seniors will celebrate their senior dance. The traditional white will be worn by all the seniors, and the underclassmen are reminded not to wear white. Even if you have a lovely white dress that you just must wear, pack it away for some other dance and bring out your plaid taffeta, blue net, pink brocaded taffeta, black crepe, or any color that you choose. Just be extra sure that you don't create any black looks from the seniors by wearing white. Remember, this is their dance.

As the dance draws nearer, seniors start thinking of what they're going to wear. Some will swirl over the dance floor in a tight bodice white net with a full skirt and dropped shoulders. Others may prefer to wear lovely white brocaded taffeta with a sweetheart neckline and three quarter length sleeves.

Some seniors will go floating across the floor in a white crepe with diagonal neckline and peplum edged with gold nailheads and cap sleeves. While others will wear a white tulle evening dress with a low cut neckline and full skirt and bustle.

As the senior figure is formed you will see all the seniors attired in many different styles and kinds of white evening gowns. Some will look like angels in clouds of net or in bouffant taffetta while others will look sophisticated in satin or draped crepe.

"Is There Freedom from Want?", "Is There Freedom of Worship?", "Behind the Mask," and "Medieval Study." Yet each of these touch upon the social scene, too. One is reminded of the doubt of the freedom in the two compositions based on that theme. "Behind the Mask" could be any child, adolescent or aged woman attending church. "Medieval Study" is a modern form of dance composition going back to the early days of Christendom for movement conent. But, We have saints and martyrs today, too, only they are not clothed in red and agonized lines are not so self evident.

"Pavanne" and "St. Nicholas Visits" are the two new departures from the traditional theme. "Pavonne" is a study in pre-classic dance form (when music was written expressly for dance in the days of the kings — Louis' and Henrys'. It is highly stylized yet shares the semblance of a processional.

"St. Nicholas Visits" is truly just that. The grand old saint with his entourage of Blackmoor (servant), Angels and the Devil are on a jolly lark to combine spoken words, snatches of music, and properties wherein the participants have as much fun as the audience.

Hall Presidents Sell Doughnuts in Rooms

In order to raise money for the House Council, doughnuts are being sold by the hall presidents.

So far, according to Kitty Parham who is president of the House Council, only hall presidents in the main building are selling doughnuts, but those in Cunningham will probably sell them after Thanksgiving.

Hall presidents have both plain and sugared doughnuts and they sell two for five cents.

Then the following students gave paragraphs entitled "Quien se yo?" Those presenting paragraphs were Sue Ellis, Helen Kaknis, Griswold Boxley, Ann Nock, and Harriet Ratchford, Dorothy Dodd, Alma Clay, Ruth Hathaway, Betty Spindler, and June Banks.

Second Lyceum Planned For Sunday, December 15

Randolph Singers To Appear Here

The Randolph Singers will be presented in the second lyceum of the year in the S. T. C. auditorium on Sunday, December 15. The Randolph Singers are probably the most unique singing group in this country today, in that complete emphasis is placed on that charming, though somewhat neglected phase of vocal music—the Madrigal.

Each singer has been carefully chosen, not only for his musicianship and quality of voice, but for his ability to blend his voice with those of the other members of the group.

The madrigal is a composition for unaccompanied voices, usually four or more, which reached the height of its popularity in Elizabethan, England. The texts have to do with life, nature, or philosophy. In keeping with the texts, the music ranges in spirit from extreme lightness and gaiety to the greatest solemnity.

David Randolph, director of the group, is a music consultant to the U. S. Government, Department of State, International Broadcasting Division. Other members of the group are Anna Louise Kautz, soprano; Georgiane Petters, Soprano; Mildred Greenberg, contralto; Saki Sneith, tenor; and Bert Spero, bass.

According to Miss Mary Barlow, head of the physical education department, a course in first aid and accident prevention will be offered next quarter.

Miss Barlow will teach the class at 11:40 on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday and three credits will be given. The class will be taught under the heading of Health Education 307.

Red Cross certificates will be issued at the completion of the course and students will be eligible for instructor's courses in first aid and accident prevention which will be given by a Red Cross representative next spring at the college.

Students interested in this class should see Miss Barlow or Christine Shiflet, student head of the Red Cross Chapter on Campus. Miss Barlow has urged that students investigate the course because she says there is a possibility of making great use of this material as these subjects are required more and more in the public schools.

Joyous Visions of Christmas 'Dance Through Our Heads'

The old tang is in the air again; it's a certain indescribable feeling that comes along every first of December, fades a little in deference to four days of exams, and then bounces back bigger and better than ever. It's tinsel and mistletoe and red and white candy; it's visions of sugar plums and eight tiny reindeer; it's green and silver and red and WHITE. It's most definitely Christmas.

Bus and train schedules suddenly become the world's greatest literature. Wouldn't it be nice, now, if exam ingredients could be as easily memorized? Everybody realizes of course that said exams stand between her and home, but after all, there are more things to worry about than dates of wars and tribulations of kings and such. Things, for instance, like what size, what not, would Aunt Isabel wear, and would she resent getting the right size, and did the family take that subtly worded hint about the various advantages of beaver coats over camelshair, and what was contained in that spare bed-room closet that necessitated a lock and key the last time you were home.

Ah, mystery, mystery—parents could put Perry Mason under the table when it comes to the complicated art of intrigu. Bue we love it—it's one of the things that makes Christmas so interesting. Speaking of guest room closets—try behind the extra tire in the garage. Here are unlimited possibilities for the clever concealment of "hot" odds. Much sad experience has made experts of many parents. They resort to every crack in the wall paper—every chink in the plaster. Even the back of an old radio has been known to yield interesting harvests. It's elementary—elementary. The psychological studies, who are our parents should be as an open book after all these years. Where would YOU put that bulgy box from Cousin Cassie if YOU were your mother? She used to hide the jam jar in the double boiler. Well? A direct line of reasoning leads to the double boiler for a bulky package of approximately the same size. There's practically nothing to it—much. Anyway, it's more fun to be surprised, if you can stand the strain, that is.

We Need To Remember True Christmas Spirit

"Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."

Yes, Christmas is a time for great joy, for Christmas is the never-fading candle shining in the world's darkness. The spirit of the Yuletide is one of tender sentiment. Chirstmas lights and color and music meet a response in every heart. There is something universal about it.

Christmas means that God works through that which is human. He is no arbitrary or distant God, working through remote control, for he gave us the most precious present of all. His son, Jesus Christ. He sent His son down to earth clothed in human flesh to be our Savior, Lord, and Friend.

Peace on earth and good will among men was the angels' message at Christ's birth. We have not learned that truth well as yet. We are far from universal peace and good will this Christmastime. Many lights are still out all over the world. In some parts of the world, hatred still rides the winds. Unbelievable cruelties still have rein. All men have not heeded the tidings of great joy that Christmas brings.

Christmas time is the time for giving and receiving. However, it is the giving and not the receiving that brings the greatest joy. Give, and you shall receive. We should give because we want to give, and not because we feel that we have to.

We have much to be thankful for this Christmas. Our country has not been ravaged by war, and it is simple for us to get the extra things that make this season of the year much brighter and gayer. Yet, we should not forget that there is more to Christmas than just the extras. Let's offer our most humble thanks to God for Jesus who died to save us of our sins. Jesus is the real spirit of Christmas.

Christmas is the time to be gay and merry, and it also is the time to forgive and forget all grudges. Soon after the Yuletide, the New Year is ushered in. We don't want to carry over into the new year of 1947 any hard feelings. We want instead to make new resolutions, and keep them. Resolve to improve yourself both mentally and spiritually. No one is perfect, we each have our faults. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Benefit of Examinations Again Comes To Mind

Once more the time for exams is rolling around, once more midnight oil is being readied for use, and once more we are anticipating a happy Christmas vacation.

Chattering along the corridors of the various halls reveals this question. "Why are we required to take examinations?" On further listening one hears such things as they are unconstitutional, they are not fair, etc.

Seriously though, we should realize that exams are for our benefit, not the professors. We are the ones that will profit from this quarterly review. Throughout the quarter, we have been learning many new facts about English, history, philosophy, education and many other subjects too numerous to mention. Much of this is recent knowledge in a confused state in our minds. This is our chance to clasify all material and to organize it in our minds so that it will serve us now and later on.

"Knowledge comes but wisdom lingers" is a quotation full of rich meaning. Even so, we frequently paraphrase it thus," Isolated facts come but related material lingers". This is one of the truths of the world today. We must relate what we know to our everyday living, and in order to do that, we must make our learnings a part of us.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Holidays were made for us, or we were made for holidays, (even if exams do have to clutter up the interval between.) Thanksgiving just gave us a glimpse of holiday gaiety so in between our frenzied rush to get that term paper written, that stack of parallel done, and all the digging this week, every one is dreaming of Christmas. Now that there's no more worry over freezing to death or transportation problems, just sit back and let those wonderful visions of fun, food, family and mistletoe and a ma dance through your head.

The Orchesis "Sig" Saturday night was wonderful. From the very first carol to the last it was both entertaining and inspiring. Just one comment above the rest—why don't they do it more often?

Senior Dance still has us in a whirl. One could comment on the Seniors in their lovely white, the figure or the music, but it would just be a repetition of all the nice things that have been said.

No quips today for there is the serious business of studying to attend to. Just one feeble bit of very bad doggrel is submitted—

I tried in vain to cram in tight
The necessary information;
It all leaked out in sleep that night—
What a hopeless situation.

The moral of this little ditty is—don't wait till the night before exams to study cause it won't do any good—study now. Good luck and happy hunting, amigos. May the teachers be lenient. Oh yes, Merry Christmas and Happy New Year everybody.

Merry Christmas

Proud Seniors, Dates Form '47 At Annual Dance On Saturday

Weeks in advance, the seniors had their own reserved tickets, and the underclassmen dashed madly to get one of the hundred remaining date tickets. Some did, some didn't, of course, but there was a lovely crowd of girls—and men that danced in the gym on December 7, 1946.

Dates began to arrive on Friday, and by Saturday afternoon, Farmville was beaming with coy little girls and their handsome dates.

By eight-thirty, the couples were splendid in their evening attire, the boys in tuxedoes and the girls in lovely gowns. Our seniors were the stars of the ball in dazzling white. On entering Student Lounge, a wee bit of Christmas spirit was aroused by the holly and pine decorations. After passing down the receiving line, we descended into the gym. The green and white decorations had transformed it into a "party" room, and the music of the Southern Colonels just begged us to have a good time. We danced and laughed with old friends and new.

About ten o'clock everyone assembled in the balcony for the highlight of the evening—the figure. The honorary class member, the officers, and the dance chairman, with their arms full of red roses, formed the hub of a huge wheel. The long procession of couples, one by one walked slowly under the arch and took their place in the spoke of the wheel. The arms of the impressive black and white formation revolved slowly before the admiring spectators. Then, as if by magic, the figure changed to form a mammoth '47. The senior waltz followed, a moment long awaited by the class of '47, for that night was really a big night for our seniors.

After intermission, the last half of the dance was amazingly short. The last number found the seniors in the arms of their dates, a night to remember; and the underclassmen dreaming of their own Senior Dance.

It wouldn't be necessary to remind you that the moon was full that night. The couples strolled slowly along the Colonade back to the Rotunda or Cunningham, wishing the walk was miles and miles long.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

S. T. C. was all aglow over senior dance this week end. Men, men, and more men was all one could see. Orchids to Gwen and her committee for such a lovely dance.

Pete and Carlotta were lovely leading the figure for the class of '47 Not to mention how luscious their dates were. It was great to have Carlotta back again.

Phyllis Fulcher has been beaming as much as the seniors this week. In fact the seniors have nothing on her—she has a bright new diamond. Best Wishes, Phyl.

Since we last chatted with you, Pat Carter has announced her marriage to Vernon Daniels. Congratulations, you cute people Why did you keep us in the dark for so long? That news was just to good to keep from us for two long months.

Ginny Hollifield has acquired a Theta Chi pin from Hampden-Sydney. Ducky knows how to pick 'em.

Margaret Lohr had not one orchid for the dance, but two. Man alive. And Minetree's was big enough for two people.

Kitty Parham made quite an impression on her date this week end. Atta girl, Parham.

Congratulations to the Mardi Gras queen and court. We had quite a hard selection to make with so many pretty girls.

It was good to see so many old girls back. Jackie, Alice Hannah, Virginia Shackleford, Little Harvey, Carolyn and Jane, and Millie and Claire decked our campus this week end.

Martha Frances and Mary were sporting cute dates.

Betty Ferguson and Sonny Kauffman made a cute couple at the Saturday night affair.

Tucker Winn made quite the big impression with all the dates at the dance. For full particulars, just ask Shirley.

Old Wells as usual was quite all aglow because of her date. These med students really are the best aren't they, Wells?

Barbara Lee is seen these days running around hunting for a gold frame for that White Orchid Ray Baby sent her. If we ever see anyone as excited as that then we'll just hide.

Bo and Julia are being seen quite a lot together. It really must be something big or else they're just playing a little game.

Merry Christmas to all and to all goodnight. See ya next year!

Basketball Practice Begins; Varsity Team Will Be Chosen

8 Practices Required For Class Teams

Basketball practices are now being held four afternoons a week in the gymnasium.

Practices for this quarter are scheduled on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 3:50 and 4:50 o'clock. A new schedule will be made for next quarter. Girls must get in eight practices before they will be allowed to play on the class teams.

A varsity team will be selected after Christmas. Try-outs will be held before the selections are made and the date for this will be announced later.

Class games will start around March 5. The schedule for the games to be played between classes has not been completed at this time. Class basketball captains will also be announced in a later issue of the Rotunda. The class gaining the most points in the annual round-robin basketball tournament will gain 10 points for their colors towards the color cup.

Plans are now underway for several games to be played by the varsity team with teams from other schools.

The boys enrolled here will also have a basketball team this year and will be coached by Mr. Roberts, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Farmville.

Students Eagerly Awaited Program

With eager anticipation everyone awaited the Christmas Sing program that is presented annually by the Orchesis, a modern dance group on campus.

Immediately after supper Saturday night, students and guests filed into the auditorium to witness the program. While waiting for the curtain to go up, the excitement was tense when suddenly through the "hub-bub" came the strains of "Green and White." In an effort to outdo the sophomores and seniors, the "Red and Whites" really brought the building down with their song. In between the munching of pears other songs were sung.

Ah, at last the curtain had gone up. The religious theme prevailed which was shown by the "Processional".

"Is There Freedom from Want?" was very realistic however unpleasant the subject may be.

"Is There Freedom of Worship?" represented three faiths—Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish. One could sense the feeling not only in dance, but in song also.

"Behind the Mask" is a psychological study of what really goes on in the minds of the child, the old lady, and adolescent while they are attending church service.

"Medieval Study" represents the early days of Christendom when saints and martyrs were prevalent. The torture could be felt in every movement of this performance.

"Pavanne" is a pre-classic dance. Music during this time was written chiefly for kings.

The gay "St. Nicholas Visits" was enjoyed by all since it was in keeping with the mood of everyone.

The music and words not to mention the participants really a host of enjoyment. Two girls from the audience were called up on the stage to take part in the scene to the delight of the onlookers.

When the performance ended, the audience was asked to take part in the singing of Christmas carols as the singers and dancers marched down the aisle.

Congratulations, Orchesis, it was grand.

Jeffers Talks Today At Chapel Program

Dr. G. W. Jeffers, faculty head of the chapel committee, was in charge of the program in chapel this morning. Dr. Jeffers spoke on "Why Have Chapel?"

After Dr. Jeffers' talk a representative from each of the classes spoke on some phase of the chapel problem. Barbara Kellam, senior, talked on "Why We Want Voluntary Chapel". Betsy Scott, junior, talked about how many times chapel should meet and at what hour. Betty Spindler representing the sophomore class spoke on what type of program students want. Representative from the freshman class was Peggy West who spoke on who should be exempt if compulsory chapel was put into effect again.

Town Crier Makes Mysterious Plea For Old Costumes

Hear Ye!

Sounds like the town crier, huh? Santa Claus, maybe? Both wrong It's just the unannounced Choirman asking for donations from one and all of Ye— Your great grandmother, your grandmother, particularly, your mother too, but not your own. Why?

WE NEED DRESSES!!! and so do you but remember the clothing shortage hasn't affected us like it has our G.I. Students. For what?

It's a long tale just like the night before Xmas and all thru the house you will go scurrying not for a mouse—just something old, nothing new, well—maybe blue, although any other color will do. But it has to be of vintage of the past. It must conjure memories for the donor who will be reminded of a long forgotten beau who admired her train (not thoughts). It may even provoke a tear—when she first wore black. Who knows? It may have been worn in a gym class.

Are you curious? Or don't you want to read the rest?

To make the planned historical pageant of the school a success the ghost of the choirman is appealing to your Christmas spirit to give now so (the choirman in the flesh) won't be up against shortages come March. And to make it authentic among such existing conditions she needs the help of everyone of you who will rummage thru the attic trunks for a period costume. Bring it back with you and listen for another message as it is called. And, if you don't—your Xmas nylons may all have holes in them. I'll haunt ye! Hear?

E. K.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

This quarter is all but over, and that means the sports calendar will take up after Christmas. When you come back, and the worry of exams is over, step up your sports life. There will be new sports for the winter quarter. Have you been down to the gym for those basketball practices? Check your bulletin board by the post office for the days of practice and the hour.

If you have not tried your skill in basketball, after Christmas don't fail to not only put in your appearance, but try hard enough and you may be good team material. Afternoon practices will prove to be lots of fun for all of us, and to become skilled in the art of passing, guarding, and goal-shooting takes more than a few hours on the court. The next time someone asks you to go down for an hour of basketball practice, don't back away and say you don't know how you will know how if you give yourself a chance to learn.

During the Christmas vacation you will probably have a chance to do any number of sports; maybe the old gang will want to take over the high school gym for a volley ball or basketball rally or you may play ping pong with the kid brother. There is a possibility that you may go ice-skating or roller skate, gang up at the town bowling alley, or throw darts at the church party. Whatever sport you participate in, do it to the best of your ability and you'll have fun doing any activity.

Until after Christmas, get in the game, and be a good sport.

Suits Rate High For Dress, Work

By Jean Tolley

A costume of many moods is the suit, not declining, it can mean a present and future perfect.

Suit yourself from daylight 'til dark. Mornings present the working skirt with a sweater afternoons replace the sweater with a dressy blouse and jacket, a three-quarter length coat, if need be. What could be more practical and yet so smart?

The career girl and business woman love a tailored suit with the new longer jacket, the trim, slim skirt, made of hard finished wool or soft, supple, long wearing gabardine, this long, lean job-hunter is destined for a lengthy and brilliant career.

On every college campus from coast to coast suits are holding their own. A favorite for casual wear and football games is the short, boxy jacket in cheering plaid, collar in velveteen, accompanied by a pleated solid-colored skirt. Checks and double checks describe these loose, shirtwaist-sleeved suits.

If it's something a trifle more dressy that you want, wear a suit with a tunic jacket and new push-up sleeves. A rippling peplum may appear to your flirtatious nature. A cut-away jacket in front with a dipping, flared back is another of the new silhouettes that you will find flattering. Boleros are in the spotlight of dress-up suits. Along with the rounded hipline and snug waistline created by small discreet tucks or patch pockets of considerable size, a bolero presents an effective outfit.

Many suits are belted with a narrow black, brown or colored lizard or other leather to match accessories or one of the same material as suit. Some have deep shoulder yokes accenting their soft look, while other have built up square shoulders. Both styles, equally popular, give that trim, well tailored. American appearance.

Besides the ever-popular black, colors feature warm browns, rich greens and reds, and blues to bring out the blue of your eyes. Checks are still in front of the close race with a copy of brother's "men's-wear" tailored plaids and stripes.

Students Volunteer To Christmas Carol

S.T.C. Will House Brodie Collection In New Building

Museum To Contain Minerals, Fossils

Farmville State Teachers College was selected by David Arthur Brodie to house the Elizabeth M. Brodie collection of minerals and fossils. These minerals and fossils will be the nuclei of the museum that will be housed in the new science laboratory. According to Dr. George W. Jeffers, head of the biology department, some of those minerals and fossils are very old and valuable.

Mr. Brodie is interested in geology and has traveled extensively. He was born in Peterboro, Ontario. At the age of 15, he moved to Oregon where he spent eight or ten years pioneering.

Mr. Brodie went to Oregon State Normal School. After graduating from there and teaching for one year, he went to Washington State College. He was the first student to graduate from this college in the field of agriculture. Then he was made assistant agriculturist at the Experiment Station at Pullman, Washington. In less than a year he transferred to Western State Experiment Station where he served as superintendent.

After serving there for four years, he took charge of the outdoor exhibit Botany Plant Industry around 1903. His next employment was with the Bureau of Plant Industry as Division of Farm Management head. He was then called to the Interior Department. Later he was put in charge of the Insane Farm of St. Elizabeth's Hospital where he remained until retirement 14 years later. His retirement occurred on August 1, 1939.

BSU to Sponsor Vocational Week Beginning January 12

Vocational Emphasis Week will be sponsored by the Baptist Student Union for a week beginning Sunday, January 12. Sunday School and B. T. U. programs on both Sundays will center around the main theme, and discussions on the choice of various vocations will be held each afternoon from Monday through Friday at the Baptist Student Center. These programs will be held from 5 until 5:45 o'clock and will feature various outside speakers.

All members of the student body and faculty are invited to attend any or all of these meetings. If anyone desires to confer with her about a vocation, Miss Olivia Stephenson will be at the Student Center all week.

Library Displays Work of Smith In Exhibit Room

Charles Smith's woodcuts and abstractions are on display in the college library in the exhibition room. These are originals and will only be on display for the remainder of the week.

Mr. Smith began his art career in the medium of woodcut; his work in that medium has been widely exhibited and purchased by museums and collectors here and abroad. He has had one man shows of his woodcuts in New York at the Art Center and Ferargil Galleries. The first exhibition of his abstractions was held at the Willard Gallery in 1941. Since then a large group of his abstractions have been shown at Princeton, Smith and Bard Colleges.

He has had broad experience in the field of book designs and publishing. Two of his books have been included in the American Institute of Graphic Arts Fifty-

Turner Appointed Chief Engineer

Roscoe J. Turner assumed the job of operating engineer of S. T. C., January 1, of this year. This job includes the supervision of steam production and all steam units.

Mr. Turner who comes to S. T. C. from Camp Pickett, where he served for four years as senior operating engineer, is taking the place of J. M. Hurt who will retire February 1. Mr. Hurt has been with the college since 1928.

Barter Theater Due Here Soon

In cooperation with the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Farmville, S. T. C. is bringing the Barter Theatre to our campus this quarter for three productions. Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" will be presented on February 20, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" will be given on March 13, and the modern drama, "State of the Union" will be given on March 22.

Robert Porterfield, who attended Hampden-Sydney, where he was active in the "Jongulers", H.-S. dramatic group, began this unique stage institution some years ago in New York. During the war the group was inactive, but was revived last summer at Abingdon, Virginia. It was in this small group of actors where Gregory Peck famous movie star, first received recognition for his dramatic abilities.

Tickets for the plays will go on sale sometime this week at the table in the hall. The price is $1.20 for each production, or $3.60 for the entire group.

French Students Organize Table

This quarter there has been a French table set up in the dining hall at which the students of French have the opportunity of conversing and practicing. Annette Vincent-Viry is the hostess and majors and minors in French have signed up to sit there in order to acquire more proficiency in using the language orally.

The plans have been made ever since Annette arrived in October but it was not possible to put them into effect until the beginning of

Dramatic Club Holds Try-outs For Play, Wheeler Anounnces

Try outs for the spring play are being held this week, acording to an announcement made by Miss Leola Wheeler. The spring play is customarily presented on Founders Day and this year will be given on both Friday and Saturday nights.

The play will be another joint production of the Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, and tickets will be available to students as a Lyceum feature. "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was the fall production of the two clubs and proved how successfully the two could work together. It is customary for the Dramatic Club to present two plays a year, one in November and one in the spring on Founders Day. During the war the girls took the mens parts, but with the reorganization of the Jongleurs we have now their talent for our male roles.

As yet the play has not been chosen but will be during the week in order that rehearsals may begin promptly next week.

Noted Violinist Studied In Europe; Performed With Cleveland Symphony

FRANCES MAGNES, violinist, who will give a concert here Tuesday night in the college auditorium.

Program Features Classical Selections

Frances Magnes, violinist, will appear here January 14 in the college auditorium. This is a regular lyceum performance.

She has appeared as solist with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, and made several appearances at Town Hall. Other appearances include several at the Educational Alliance in France, at the David Mannes School, with the Naumburg Orchestra, Petrides Orchestrette and the National Orchestral Association, not to mention extensive college tours.

At the outbreak of World War II, Miss Magnes was combining extensive study in Fontainbleau, France, with concertizing—but all plans were by necessity, cut short, and with the help of our government she was able to reach the United States. Back in New York she won acclaim through twenty half hour solo recitals over station WYR and, with two other National Music League artists, a substitution for Lotte Lehman on the Columbia University Concert Series when Miss Lehman became ill.

Jerome D. Bohm said in the New York Herald Tribune, "Exceptional talent for her instrument was disclosed by Frances Magnes who gave her first violin recital in Carnegie Hall last night." Noel Strauss said in The New York Times "Her performances were invariably comprehending and imaginative. And to boot, she had an unusually attractive stage presence in her favor."

The program here will include Preludio, Corrente, Capriccio, Adagio, and Giga from the Suite in A Major by Vivaldi Busch. Also Allegro molto, Andante, and Allegro vivace, from Sonatine in D. Major, Opus 137 number one by Schubert. Andantino, Schergo and Modcrato from the Concerto in D Major, Opus 19 by Prokofieff will compicte the program before intermission.

After intermission, Miss Magnes will play Allegro Amaballe Andante tranquillo and allegro grazerso from the Sonato in A Major, Opus 100 by Brahms. Also Slavonic Dance, number one by Dvarak-Kreisler, Vidui, by Bloch, Romanza Andaluza by Sarasate, and Bulgarian Rhapsody by Uiadigeroff.

Pullen Names Committee Heads

Committees for Mardi Gras were announced this week by Ann Pullen, senior chairman of Mardi Gras. They were appointed from Pi Gamma Mu members.

Business co-chairmen are Tucker Winn and Barbara Graham, while Mary Stuart Buford will handle the advertising. Margaret Eilett will arrange the floor show, and Margaret Wilson will take charge of decorations.

Connie Young will arrange for the orchestra and Anna Headlee will take charge of costumes. Head of the floor committee is Martha Frances Morrison and chairman of tickets is Betty Bennett.

The theme for the dance will be announced in next week's paper after the regular meeting of Pi Gamma Mu.

Biology Professors Attend Meeting

College Life Holds No Mysteries For Hurt; S. T. C. Bids An Ever-Faithful "Sad Adieu"

By MARGARET WILSON

The college is losing an old and faithful employee with the resignation of Mr. James M. Hurt, chief carpenter and engine man since 1928. Asked for some comments on his years in the carpenter shop, Mr. Hurt pushed his hat farther back on his head, chuckled reminiscently, and the interview was on.

Mr. Hurt had almost missed the job. A gentlemen's agreement with his former employer specified the giving of thirty days notice before a resignation was effective. Dr. Jarman was looking around for a general handy man, but needed him sooner than Mr. Hurt could accept and still compiy with the thirty day notice. He was, however, persuaded to apply. Dr. Jarman explained the duties involved was convinced that Mr. Hurt was the man for the job, and set out to explain the situation to the former employer. This arranged satisfactorily, Mr. Hurt came to the college in the capacity of general handy man. Two years later he had become Chief Engineer, head of the carpenter shop, in charge of all carpentry work, inside and out, with authority to hire and fire his own assistants, and was given responsibility for the boiler works, cold storage system, furniture making and repairs. There have been few idle moments in Mr. Hurt's career. When not occupied with any of these responsibilities, he gave his spare time to helping the girls who came down to his shop to use the tools—especially the Dramatic Club's staging group. "Yessir", Mr. Hurt grins, "Miss Wheeler really works 'em". He remembers particularly one art student who spent hours working in his shop. He helped her with the various machines, while she taught him about the artistic aspects of the business.

JAMES M. HURT

Before coming to Farmville Mr. Hurt had several trades. He started apprenticeship at the age of eight, learning to read and write during his free hours, without ever attending school a day. House painting was his first trade, from which he went on to coach building. He was a master at the trade at the age of sixteen. In his own words "I've built everything from wheel barrels to box cars." The complicated engines and machines involved in the operation of a college hold no mystery for Mr. Hurt. He has been ordering parts and keeping them in good working order for some nineteen years.

His plans for the future are simple—"Just a few piddling jobs around home", and enjoying the company of his family, the "baby" of which is principal of a high school near here.

It was said of Mr. Hurt when he first came to Farmville—"The job will suit Hurt and Hurt will suit the job." Neither Mr. Hurt nor the college have had any reason to question the truth of that statement.

Prepare Yourselves For Future Life

We're back at school again after a nice long vacation with supposedly fresh rested minds. We're back with clean slates ready to start a new quarter of work.

Although our work wasn't what we would like for it to have been last quarter, we must not let that get us down. Don't say, "I did the best I could. I give up." There are few of us that did the best we could have. With a few less movies we could have put more time on our history or math and at the end of the quarter rated a B grade rather than a C grade. There's an economical way to look at that also. We could have saved more money. Bull sessions are great and they have their place, but they can't take up all of our time.

A coke at our favorite hangout is nice and relaxing, but by this time we don't mean sitting all afternoon and chewing the rag. By this time we should all know how much time we have to spend on our lessons and should be able to budget our time. We have all had at least one quarter at college work and we're not new at this game. A daily schedule including a time for work and a time for play is a wonderful thing, if we will just stick to it. Don't make out a schedule at the beginning of this year, stick it in your notebook, and then forget that it is there. May our new year's resolution be to follow that schedule. It's a good one, if we'll live up to it. ,

We shouldn't need any incentive to make us study, but there are several. The cut system is now based on our grades. Who doesn't want an extra week-end to spend with Johnny, Jim, Jack or whoever it may be? Of course we are not compelled to take every cut that we have coming to us, but it's nice to know that we have this privilege. Often we find that the students who rate the most cuts are those who cut the least less. We can learn something from them. Instead of trying to get as little as possible out of college, let's try to get the most. So often we spend more time trying to get out of work than we do on our actual work. All of this time that we use beating around the bush we could spend on our studies and in the long run come out way ahead.

We are attending a teachers' college. If we are to go out to instruct the youth of our land, it is our duty to prepare ourselves in the best possible way.

New Year Offers Vast Opportunities

Happy New Year! Yes, this year should certainly be a happy one. We are not troubled by war, shortages, and many other things. 1947 is a brand new year; a year in which all our fondest dreams, hopes, and aspirations can come true with some cooperation on our part. That saying "Never put off till tomorrow that which can be done today" might well read "Never put off till next year that which can be done this year". Make this year one of the most successful of your lives.

Ours is a challenge and a responsibility to prepare ourselves to meet the challenges that are ours in this college of learning and even beyond these halls to the greater life that each of us shall face as citizens in the communities in which we live.

After evaluating our accomplishments of last year, let us resolve to set even higher goals for this year. Of course, many times our aims may be beyond our reach, and indeed they should be. At times, we shall not attain that for which we strive, but we shall be better persons for having tried.

A new year has dawned; a new challenge is ours. Will we meet this challenge as level-headed college students so that the year 1947 will go down in history of mankind?

Puddin' n' Sauce

With all the first names in the world, and there are quite a number of them, there just don't seem to be enough to go around on second floor annex. This hall can boast of three Anns, two Jeans, two Ginnies, and four Bettys, to say nothing of all those which sound alike such as Millie and Billie, and Peggy which sounds incredibly like Betty when announced at the top of ones voice. In short, who's calling who anyway?

Santa Claus certainly was good to us this time and from the looks of Bed Check one might be so bold as to assume that "a good time was had by all".

Everything from a new quarter to a lot of new loves has come in with the new year and that must indicate that a stack of Resolutions has been made. How many have you made—and broken?

You'll never guess who told this one, but to quote Uncle Remus "I gin it to you as t'was gun to me." - - - - A certain professor who had to be several minutes late to class left a note saying, "Professor . . . . will meet his classes today." The boys happened to arrive earlier than the girls so they carefully erased the c and slipped out. The girls, like obedient lasses, remained to wait for the late professor. On arriving he noted first the changed message then the absent masculine element; without a word he went to the board, erased the message, and excused the girls.

New Year's Resolutions Cause Hub--Bub Among STC-ers

What's new for 1947? Why New Year's Resolutions, of course! You know, those "things" that are quickly broken. Upon taking a poll, it was discovered that everyone around had made at least one resolution which she firmly intended to abide by.

One girl resolved to always be on time to class on returning to college. However, her first class was an 8:05 - - - well, you know the rest. 'Tis a sad story, but a true one. Oh well, it all goes to show the weaknesses of the human race.

Anyway we're all looking forward to 1947 with great anticipation. Great things have been promised us, fewer strikes, lower prices, less shortages—Yes, kleenex, soap and nylons. Yum! whoever thought that these things would ever be considered luxuries?

Some people insist that they have absolutely nothing to look forward to in 1947, but one girl said that she had the spring vacation and June to look forward to. Fine spirit and right after the Christmas holidays at that!

A few people made a resolution not to make New Year's resolutions; however, by making that resolution, they are breaking it—if you get what I mean. It's all very involved. Others resolved to make "A's" by doing a little studying whereas others resolved to not make all "F's" by doing a little studying.

After running into a few late resolution makers scratching their heads (eek! dandruff!) in thought, it seems as if the majority of them had made new year's resolutions too personal to be talked about. HUMMMMM! This is all very nice except nobody can razz them if they break them.

It's a great mystery to some people as to why resolutions cause so much "hub-bub" anyway. We needn't worry, however, 'cause by the time this paper comes out Wednesday, they all will be broken, but in the immortal words of wise ole Benjamin Franklin "Tis better to keep one resolution out of five than to keep none out of five." Unquote.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I would like to remind all the students to watch their behavior in the dining hall. Each one should remember to be as quiet as possible during the meal in order to lessen the noise and confusion in the dining hall. While you are waiting, you should remain quietly in your seat. Don't go to talk to a friend. That can wait until after the meal.

Then too, students should be more considerate while Prayers are being held. There is too much noise created by those people on second floor Whitehouse returning to their rooms. Wait until after Prayers before screaming and running in the halls above and outside the auditorium.

Also everyone should be quiet during study hour. If you don't have any studying to do, please remember that others around you may be trying to do some work. When returning from a meeting during study hour, everyone should be as quiet as possible. Usually there is quite a bit of confusion when returning from meetings. Do your part in lessening this.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Well, now that the wonderful holidays are all over—it sho' is good to see all the gals back with smiling faces—yah! and bags under their eyes—But anyhow that's a sign of a good time.

Heidi and Nancy have come back with sweaters just alike from their Romeo's—Don't know what happened but it seems as if the exchange was the same—both ways.

Santa was good to all the engaged girls. They all seemed to have gotten silver. Nice investment for future use, isn't it B. Lee, Lohr and Shuffle?

Corinne was seen saddly shuffling to class, singing "South America Take It Away" with a funeral narch accent. Couldn't be cause 'Ernie" is on his way or could it? Buck up ole' gal—he'll be back.

Ellen seems to be all aglow these days. None of us can figure out whether it's Santa or Bobby. How about it Ellen? Give us the low down.

Seems as though "Patty" spent most of her holidays in West Point, Virginia, that is. What was the big attraction—or is it a deep dark secret? Come on gal, enlighten us.

Polly seemed to have had a wonderful vacation in fact all we see her room-mooning over George Lee—must be nice.

"Tootsie" decided her Christmas was the best yet;—but who wouldn't with that cute man from Wm. and Mary. Hubba, Hubba!

From all reports—Kitty Sue's journey from the living room to the back door was a lu, lu! All we are trying to figure out is what's wrong with the front one? Huh?

"Bobbie" still hasn't come back down to earth after her holiday She is seen going around singing "I'm A Tar Heel Born, etc." Must be that man Orrin that's keeping her up there.

Well that's all for this week. Now for a bit of advice. Let's all start catching up on that lost sleep and try to get down to real work and all the time we can think of those mid-winter dances at V. P. I. and Va. That should keep us going. Bye for now. See ya' soon.

Weekends Cause Many Headaches

"No, Mom, it doesn't cost so much to 'phone you long-distance; there's no reason to reverse the charges. I just thought I had better call to tell you that I couldn't make it home this weekend. My assignments have piled up this week and I will have a busy time . . . . "

That's the way it starts, but oh how it ends! Friday night right after the 'phone call you settle down beside a large mound of books and dig in. Ten minutes pass—"Hey, Joe, lets run down to Friends for a sandwich." "I can't." "Why?" "Gotta study." "Why," . . . . Well, the sandwich was pretty good anyway, and maybe I can study . . yawn . . in the morning.

Bright and early Saturday morning: "Joe, let's go over to the gym and work out a bit." "Can't." "Why?" "Gotta study." "Why?" "Why?" . . . Oh, well, they say that exercise like that is good for you.

Saturday afternoon immediately after lunch: "Come on down and listen to the games." "Can't." "Why?" "Gotta study." "Why?" . . . . That radio sure had a nice tone.

"This is Saturday night and the basketball game should be a good one. Let's go." "Can't." "Why?" "Gotta study." "Why?"—To think we even lost the game.

Monotonous, isn't it?

Sunday morning those blankets fel mighty good, don't they? A few more minutes sleep won't hurt. Then I'll finish that book report. 12:30 P. M. . . . "Get up or you will miss chow." "I don't want any breakfast." "Breakfast, stupid, was four hours ago!" Oh, well, Sleep is good for the body.

"Now listen, you bird-brains, I am going to improve my mind and not my body this afternoon. The first one of you to even suggest anything else gets a size eleven shoe where it will do the most good." "Yakity, Yaklity, yak," replies my roommate. What can I say? We are supposed to get along, aren't we? Besides, he's bigger than I am.

"No, Hank, I can't play football this afternoon. I have some crammin' to do. I can't . . . I can't . . . I can't . . . go get the ball." I hope Mrs. Horton has my old bed ready in the infirmary. If I'm lucky I'll end up there; that will be better than facing those hard-hearted instructors, tomorrow.

Six o'clock, Monday morning: "Rinnnnggg" sounds the alarm clock . . . . no response. How could I be expected to hear it? The darn thing went off while I was asleep, didn't it?

The first bell . . . . the second bell . . . . the last bell . . and me only half way through the three hundred words that started out to be nine. I know, I'll tell him I went home over the weekend and didn't get a chance to recopy my report. I couldn't hand in a sloppy paper, could I? But, no, I used that excuse last week. Let's see. What did I tell him the week before? Worry, worry, worry . . . .

31 Students Attend Ballet In Richmond

Thirty one girls chaperoned by Miss Emily Kauzalrich, modern dance instructor and Miss Alpha Lee Garnett, secretary to the dean, attended Jooss Ballet in Richmond on Saturday night, January 4.

The girls saw a concert of demi-ballet, combining Modern ballet and the older ballet techniques with emphasis on the turned out foot. The program consisted of four numbers. They were The Big City, Ball in Old Vienna, Company at the Manor, and The Green Table.

The Big City and Company at the Manor are both period ballets. The latter representing that of the eighteenth century. Ball in Old Vienna was in classical style, and The Green Table is one of the outstanding ballets in their whole repertoire.

Left Lead

Editor's Note: We are reprinting here some horse sense written by Betty Deuel Cock of the class of '46. This article was printed in the Rotunda on the November 21, of last year.

HOSS TALK

Mr. Anderson says that a horseman never speaks of "front-legs" or "back legs", but of forelegs and hind legs, although he may say a horse is lame "in front" or "behind". The "near side" of a horse is the left side, from which you mount and from which he should always be handled. Although you may speak of the "left front leg" or the "right hind" without making a faux pas, the "near fore" and "off hind" is the horseman's way of describing them. Although these are not vital, there is a certain satisfaction in calling things by their correct names; and horse terminology has as much color and atmosphere as that of the sea. "Below deck" certainly sounds more interesting than downstairs", and "a rangy bay with a blaze" gives more the feeling of the horse than does "a brownish horse with a white nose."

People may laugh when you speak of a horse with a "giraffe-neck" or "ewe neck", but Mr. Anderson uses these terms and says the condition is a sign of weakness. Another term equally amusing to those unfamiliar with it in connection with horses is that of the Roman nose. This, too, is an authentic bit of horse phraseology and indicates stubborness on the part of that animal, yet oftentimes courage as well, and even Man o' War had a trace of Roman nose.

COLOR AND MARKINGS

In horses, the most common color is bay, which ranges from a deep reddish mahogany to a light tannish brown. A bay will have a black mane and tail. A brown horse is almost black to the average eye, but he has brown hairs at flank and muzzle. To be black, officially a horse must be black throughout, and the hair on the muzzle, which never changes, is the deciding factor. Chestnut has a wide range, the most common

Library Features Exhibit on UNO

United Nations Organizations is the theme of an exhibit in the library this week. The exhibit includes informative books, posters, and pamphlets which present an interesting view of the organization as it now exists.

There are a number of books which explain the relation of atomic energy to the U.N.O. Also included are such books as Sigrid Arnes's United Nations Primer which explains each conference with great economy of words, Sumner Welles' Where Are We Heading and Stuart Chevalier's The World Charter and Road to Peace which was published in September, 1946.

According to Miss Irving Armstrong the exhibit will help students to be less confused and more sympathetic in this vital international organization.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Greetings sports fans! How does it feel to be looking forward to all of the winter sports on the calendar? Put away the hockey sticks and tennis racquets and come on down to the gym for some real activity.

Does basketball sound appealing enough for you—if not, how about trying your hand at volleyball? It won't be too long before you will be attached to at least one winter sport. Try to find time in your daily schedule to drop in on one of the afternoon practice periods. Your classmates will all be down in the gym brushing up on their fundamentals and game techniques, they need you, won't you join the game?

If you enjoyed the team games in hockey, you will thrill to the excitement of watching your class make goals in basketball. Here will be strong class competition, and school spirit to put everything in balance. The balcony will be crowded with you who failed to get in eight practices, but it takes support of a class to win a game—so bring along your cheers and yells and be prepared to see some action between the fighting teams.

Don't forget the swimming meet—why not drop by the pool, once it's open, and do some dives—who knows you may walk off with honors for your class? This event is really something for all of us to look forward to.

This seems to be all for now—be a good sport and get into the game.

Variety of Coats Seem Elegant Yet Very Casual

Colorful Coats Added Individuality

With colder weather ahead of us, we turn our thoughts to the various types of coats that are in the spotlight this year. Most of these coats are elegant, but fairly casual in character so that they can be worn for almost any occasion from day time through the afternoon. Woolens are soft, but the coats, though definitely dressmaker in feeling, are as practical as a classic tailored coat.

Some coats have rather full swinging lines; fullness beneath shoulder yokes; wide sleeves; pleats in the skirt section and some are worn either swinging free or belted.

Closings make much of the news in these coats. Diagonal lines are important, from the wide-swept double-breasted coat that closes on a slant to the coat that wraps far over and slants the other way. Buttoned closings are singled or double-breasted with many buttons or few. Some coats tie, others have no buttons, but are held in a wrapped position by a belt.

Collars are equally varied. The little boyish turndown is a favorite and the dandy collar, flared out in two points under the chin is very new.

As a final note of individuality coats are colorful. Though gray is first choice, many are in black and the cocoa shades of brown are popular. Such bright shades as a clear red, wine, royal blue, green, purple, and others. Winter of brilliance as far as our coats go.

Chapel Attendance Will Be Decided

According to an announcement made by Barbara Kellam, chairman of the chapel committee, whether voluntary chapel attendance will continue through this quarter will probably be decided next week.

Frances Fears had charge of devotional exercises this morning at Student Day Chapel.

Dr. Lancaster is scheduled to make a talk at chapel hour on Friday, January 10.

Writer Makes Suggestions For Procrastinating Students

"Nowher so bisy a man as he ther nas,
And yet he seemed bisier than he was."

To begin with, it might be well to say that the rightful place for this would be the editorial columns. The editorial columns of the Rotunda, however, are possibly the most worthwhile and the least read spot contained in these four pages. The features on the other hand are easy to read, requiring no great degree of thought, stepping on nobody's toes, and inspiring no renewed efforts at self or community rejuvenation. All very well—very good—very proper. That's the stuff of which features are made—fluff. We feel, however, no great qualms at—let us say—tricking—our unsuspecting readers just this once, and taking this opportunity to raise the lowly feature to something of the status of editorial dignity.

With which confusing explanation, the story begins. Way back there at the beginning there stand the immortal words of a most observing man—one Geoffrey Chaucer. The gentleman of which he spoke passed on some seven hundred years ago, but, lo, his progeny still people the earth—spreading even unto the ivied walls of S. T. C.

There are two types of busy people—those who really are and those who, in all good faith, just think they really are. What head of what organization has not heard the old, old story—"I'm too busy. I just don't have time!"; hasn't asked a week or two in advance, that something be done, only to find at the last minute that she must do it herself in addition to her other work? And it isn't that the person didn't want to do it, and intend to get it done on time—the problem is simply that she "didn't have time." The solution is simple, and made to order for anybody who wants it. Use what time you DO have. Observe Miss Wheeler for ardent champion and shining example of this principle. Take that loose half hour before the movie to write your letters; study during that free period instead of putting it all off till tonight—tomorrow; use the time that you take to worry about all that you have to do to DO it. You can agitate yourself into a nervous collapse just thinking about what you haven't done that you should have done. It's surprisingly easier to get it out of the day. Make a list—it's dull but it pays off. Scratch each item as you udo it. Watch the list dwindle and your conscience brighten up. A little serious work at something in which you are really interested can be even more fun than a coke at Shannon's or a bridge game down the hall. Not that we advocate all work and no whoopee. One is just about as important as the other. But there IS time enough for a reasonable amount of—IF you look for it.

color being golden; but it also includes a coat that is almost red as well as one of deep liver color. Grays include everything from horses that are generally called white to those that are deeply dapple-gray—so deep as to be almost black. The roans, red and blue, are gray with a mixture of either chestnut or blue-gray hairs in their coats. Duns are either mouse-colored or the color known as buckskin in the West.

The white markings that some horses have are quite simple in name, and once learned make it much easier to describe a horse. A wide band of white extending down the front of the face is called a "blaze". A patch of white on the horse's forehead is called a "star", and a narrow, irregular bit of white is a "stripe". If there is a patch of white at the horse's nostril it is a "snip". A white leg is called a "stocking". Certainly a chestnut horse with a blaze and two stockings "behind" would be the simplest way of describing a horse with these two markings. Anyone who has tried to play tennis learns quickly what base line, service, and fault mean, yet many persons who have been riding for some time are content to speak of a chestnut horse as "sort of tan color," and of the martingale as "that thing-amajig." They are really only a step above the little girl, who, her first time in the saddle stated, "I can't reach the pedals."

For several weeks now, papers from other colleges and schools have been placed in the library in order that the students may look over them and keep up with other students and schools. From time to time, excerpts from these papers will be reprinted in the Rotunda.

According to the College Topics, student paper from the University of Virginia, an organization of Northern Virginia citizens is preparing to circulate a petition asking for a highway linking Thomas Jefferson's home Monticello with the Jefferson Memorial on the banks of the Potomac constructed to be designated the Monticello Highway. This proposed highway would follow existing routes for much of its length, but apparently would call for new construction between Manassas and Annandale.

Among outstanding speakers at the University of Virginia recently were Syed Wahajuddin Ahmad, director of information on the Indian government, and Henri Bonnet, French ambassador to the United States. In Ambassador Bonnet's talk, he said that he found hope for international understanding and world peace in the results of the New York meetings of the United Nations assembly and Foreign Ministers' council.

1. Emotional warmth—97%

3. Money—77%
4. Intelligence—59%
5. Beauty—52%
6. Ability to cook—51%

Some interesting and amusing items were noted in "An Eye for An Eye," column in the Alabama College paper, The Alabamian. According to an ACP item from Commerce, Texas, Billy Bob Griffitts, staff writer for the East Texas, remarked that things were awfully dull around East Texas State Teachers College. "I wish something would happen to give us some news," he declared. It happened 48 hours later. A twister hit Griffitts' airport two miles west of the campus, blowing away two hangers and two planes.

National President Visits Tri Sigma

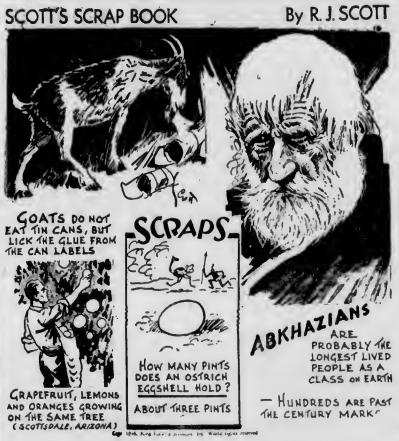
STC Settles Down To Regular Routine



Once again STC is settling down to the regular routine of books, classes, 8 o'clocks, library work, and grind. But throughout the halls, in the dreamy eyes of some of the students, in the luster of a few diamonds, in the tones of new radios, in the shine of new clothes and in the excited tones of two girls as they discuss it, there remains the remembrance of the Christmas holidays just passed, a reminiscent of the wonderful two weeks—two weeks full of lights, Christmas trees, dates, turkey, ribbons, exciting packages, and that New Year's party which climaxed the holidays.

Exactly one week before Christmas day, STC departed amid suitcases, boxes, packages, hurried taxis, and last minute "have a good time's". Home again with two weeks of anticipated bliss ahead! The first few days were filled with last minute shopping, wrapping, mailing, addressing cards, and the usual resolve never to wait to the last minute again. Then came Christmas day, with the long waited for radio, the surprise packages, and the turkey. No longer will STC halls be without the name bands, the favorite programs, Bob Hope, and Saturday night Hit Parade. So many new skirts and sweaters made extra bags necessary. Glistening bracelets, earrings, and chokers adorned the costumes. And one or two girls have become left hand, third finger conscious. (Must be the atmosphere of Christmas,) Then parties, dates, reunions, and trips claimed prominence on the social calendar. As one girl put it, "I'll have to go back to school to rest up from the holidays." But the climax of the whole week was the party on New Year's Eve. Never was another year ushered in amid such gaity and excitement. Surely a year thus arriving will be full of wonderful and great things. Time will tell!

The calendar and the clock revealed that it was time to come back to school. Great was the thrill of seeing the girls once more; and, hearing about their good time and fun, we came to the remarkable conclusion that they had almost as good time as we had.

With the New Year Resolutions made (and probably broken) STC is settling down to another quarter. But we will not soon forget the holidays just past, and the memories of them will illumine many an hour of grind and study.

Trials, Tribulations Confront Inexperienced Student Teacher

By EVELYN HAIR

A dissertation on the Trial and Tribulations of that innocent and untried person, the Student Teacher.

Of course, if all the girls who sign up for an education course when they matriculate for the first time ever thought about it, they would realize that Education 400 has to be endured someday. (far in the future, I hope.) Unfortunately, it is the way of all girls, especially those at STC, to procastinate. When the junior year of a college girl's life rolls around, however, the grim spectre of Education 400 looms ever closer in the hearts of these people—future teachers. In the junior year one begins to ask questions—fearful anxious, ones—of all the seniors they know who have taken the course. Oh, by the way, you do know what course I mean, don't you? It's Directed Teaching, more commonly known as practice teaching, although I think (after having passed through the firey furnace with a few scars) that the word "practice" is slightly misused in this connection.

In the senior year, one really gets down to brass tacks; one gets up every morning, remembers to put on hose (our faculty at STC wishes to know who is teaching and who is being taught when they prowl around the training school) and then wearily trudge up to the high school via the back streets. Why the back streets? It takes 6 minutes instead of 10 to go that way.

"It just comes natural", as they say for the student teacher to walk in the door of the school with her heart in her mouth and her knees shaking. There are so many things to be afraid of. First that incomprehensible creature, the supervisor. Will she take me apart before the students? Will she criticize the way I dress? And, most horrible thought, will she try to find out how much I know, or don't know, about the subject matter? Then there are the pupils. After all, I'm only a student teacher, so they'll probably try to run over me. Hope there are no brainy ones in the class—I'm only a per-

Eleven girls received straight "A's" this past quarter, according to Miss Virgilia I. Bugg, registrar.

Seven seniors came through with top honors, while the junior and sophomore classes claimed one apiece, and the freshmen claimed two.

Theme Announced For Mardi Gras

"United Nations" is the theme of Mardi Gras this year, according to an announcement by Ann Pullen, general chairman.

Business co-chairmen are Tucker Winn and Barbara Graham. Mary Stewart Buford is in charge of advertising. In charge of the floor show is Margaret Ellett while Margaret Wilson will supervise decorations.

Connie Young will arrange for the orchestra. Anna Headlee will serve as costume head. Chairman of the floor committee is Martha Frances Morrison and Betty Bennett is the ticket chairman.

The name of orchestra will be announced at a later date.

Science Building Will Be Erected Graham Announces

Although plans are not yet complete, there is a new science building in the future for S. T. C.

"It is being built primarily to take care of the needs of the science department," announced Mr. Graham, business manager.

The new building will be located in the empty field between the library and Cunningham Hall. It will be a modern, brick building with three floors and no basement.

The new building will contain classrooms, laboratories, a museum, lobby and offices, movie room, dark room, storage rooms, and a reading room.

Headquarters for the departments of biology, physics, chemistry, and general science, the new building will be another step in the progress of S. T. C.

Orchesis Recital Omitted This Year

In place of the regular recital, Orchesis members and apprentices will sponsor a chapel program on dance sometime late in February.

This program will show composition and work to be presented at the Arts Conference which the Orchesis group will attend March 20 through 22 at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Another reason for omitting the annual recital this year according to Miss Emily Kauziarich, Orchesis director, is that May Day which is to be based on the history of the school, necessitates more dancing than in previous years.

Margaret Lohr, president of the Student Council is general chairman of student body dance.

Coliege Begins Drive For Dimes

Funds Will Aid Polio Victims

March of Dimes campaign started on campus Monday, January 13. Contributions will go towards the aiding of the polio victims.

A container has been placed on the table in the hall, and girls will canvass the halls for contributions. Last year, the college and elementary school raised approximately $200.

According to Raymond H. French, chairman of the drive on the S. T. C. campus, "Prince Edward county is in need of funds because of the three college students helped last year when they were stricken with polio." He further stated, "We hope to do as well this year as last. We hope everyone will cooperate to the utmost."

New Class To Teach Slide-Rule Uses

Friday afternoon will mark the opening of a new class in S. T. C. This class is one in the use of the slide rule, and will carry one quarter-hour credit. Meeting only once a week, on Fridays at 2:50 P. M., the class will be taught by Miss Taliaferro. Students who are interested in taking the course are asked to register with her before Friday.

Lohr Announces Receiving Line

S. T. C.'s gym will be the scene of one of the biggest dances of the year on January 18. This dance, sponsored by the Student Government Association, will be held from 8:30 until 12, and will feature the music of Angelo Parry and his Vagabonds, with Mary Cline as vocalist.

The receiving line will include Margaret Lohr, president of Student Government; Betty Minetree, vice-president; Jeanne Bentley, secretary; Alice Abernathy, treasurer; Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Moss; and Dean Martha Smith.

Kitty Sue Bridgforth and Jane Fox are serving as chairmen of the decorations committee, and Alice Ann Abernathy and Jacqueline Bobbitt are handling ticket. Tucker Winn is in charge of the floor committee and Margaret Skelton is chairman of the music.

Stag tickets are 80c and date tickets are $1.60

Vocational Week Held By Students

Vocational Emphasis Week which is being sponsored by the Baptist Student Union began this past Sunday and will end on January 19.

Programs are being presented each afternoon this week at the Baptist Student Center in which discussions on the choice of various vocations are being led by several outside speakers. Monday Dr. James Elliott Walmsley of S T C., spoke on "Choosing Teaching as a Vocation", and Tuesday, Mr. Morris Smith spoke on "Opportunities In The Fields of Business". Today Miss Charlotte Pittard, a registered nurse discussed "Opportunities for Christian Ministry in the Fields of Nursing". Thursday Mrs. Ben R. Bruner will speak about "Love, Courtship,

"En Francais," Crys Hostess As Students Try to Converse

Parlez-vous francais? Well if you don't, what we speak at Annette's table, would be all French to you. These first few days have proved hilarious even though they tax the brain when asking for something.

After five minutes of solid concentration one says brightly with her very best pronunciation: "Passez-moi du pain", at which the person addressed solemnly passes the cauliflower—"Oh well, I only wanted a piece of bread" one thinks, (It's permissable to think in English 'though the rule is "en Francais" aloud).

So far the table has proved that if concentrating on the conversation one can eat anything—even spinach disappears with the same ease as banana pudding. Of course there is no place for excitement, because then one might break out in forbidden English and anyway —well have you ever tried to describe a picture like "Strange Woman" in French?

Don't get the idea that we spend the time asking for a clock instead of some beans or that we describe how we gave our aunt's hat to the man in the courtyard with the donkey; far from it, we manage quite well by a system of signs and punching our neighbor to have things passed yet at the same time we slowly absorb the necessary words for what we want.

If the serious side of the plan works out, which we are sure it will, we should be able to converse fairly well in French and to understand with ease, what is said by the end of the year. And while learning, Annette's perfect knowledge of English is an ever present help in time of trouble, therefore, no one is either in danger of starving to death or becoming an introvert.

With "Passez moi ceci" and "passez-moi cela" the meal progresses with more than one peal

What Can We Do?

"What can we do? Where can we go?" Those are frequent questions that pop up in connection with Saturday night dating. This problem deserves serious consideration. There are several things one can do.

Most people enjoy singing, and there are several places in the college that a piano is available. So, why not get your gang together and give out with song? Then too, one could bring a vic, and what better way is there to have fun than to dance.?

If you don't care for singing or dancing, there is another alternative. Why not play cards? There are few people who don't know how to play bridge or rummy.

Then there is the movie, whether one goes for the hoss opera or the dramatic picture. Movies are fun and needn't get monotonous if you sandwich in other activities on alternate Saturday nights.

Some people have said that they preferred just talking. Well, conversation can lag pretty easily as many people have no doubt found out. Why not find some controversial subject and include a whole group of people. Someone has said "Two heads are better than one." We'd like to change that around a bit and say "Conversation is more lively when more than two people take an active part."

We certainly have some original students among us who can pep up the dating monotony. What's your idea's on the subject?

On the whole the situation is not as bad as it is frequently painted. But there is still room for improvement. Don't feel that the dating problem is your problem exclusively. It isn't. It's a problem that concerns us all and one that can only be solved to satisfaction by all of us cooperating. Do your part!

Attend Government Dance

Each year heretofore, along with various other forms of entertainment, classes and organizations on campus have offered approximately six dances. Only three of these, usually Senior dance, Mardi Gras, and May Day dance, are open events, and space and tickets are limited so that not everyone who would like to attend is able to do so. In view of these facts, the Student Government Association has realized the need for another open dance. Saturday night they are sponsoring for the first time, a student body dance.

Margaret Lohr, president of Student Government and general dance chairman, and other class representatives on Government who head the various committees as well as other students who have been asked to assist them, have given liberally of their time in preparing for this dance. They have been fortunate in securing the Vagabonds of Lynchburg, whose music has always been popular with S. T. C. students, to play for the dance. And although the planning and work that precede a dance and the music all contribute to the success of the event, it is up to the student body to support it and thus to show their appreciation to Student Government for sponsoring this special affair.

Since this year is the first time this event has ever taken place on campus, it is necessary that everyone go all-out to make it a big success. Saturday night will prove just how much we need this extra open dance, and its success will determine whether or not it will occupy a permanent place on our calendar of annual evets.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Friends, do you suffer from extreme drowsiness during the first three periods of the morning? Do you find it impossible to go to bed quietly at eleven o'clock at night? Do you feel that your daily fare is not suiting you? Is it impossible for you to keep your mind on what you're studying? Are you listless, tired, overworked? If so, your doctor would probably prescribe a change for you; but ladies there is no reason for you to leave this delightful place—all you need do is take Dr. Quacks Cure-all. This miraculous prescription will cure anything from Sleeping Sickness to Insomnia, including a busted love affair, homesickness, ennui, or St. Louis blues. All you do is buy a ticket to the Student Government Dance and if you don't have such a good time that you forget all your woes then turn in your date and if he's cuter than mine then—"What, you want your money back?" Not on a hayride—all you're getting is the ole beat up crow that mamma made me ask. Anyhow all your worries are over so what'er you beefin about?

This week the chef has come up with tipsey pudding; therefore if you expect more than you're getting then you can just make it up yourselves. Last week the "sass" was too sassy so the spice had to be deleted—the burden of the flat pun has left the poor hack who writes this in such a state that the mighty Editor is likely to confront her at any time with a paraphrase on the Chinaman. It might go something like this—"Pretty doggone seldom you write good. Paper no can fly. You no more fit write column than godsake. That's all I hope." Well, if she doesn't perhaps something will come up before next week that will tickle your funny place." That's all I hope."

Question of the Week

What New Year's Resolutions Have You Kept?

Evelyn Hair: Not to grade any more papers.

Betty Bennett: I've made a resolution not to make any resolutions.

"Sweetpea": Not to study

Edith Apperson: I didn't make any.

Dorothy Lipscomb: Not to fight with my roommate when she comes blundering in the door!

Imogen Moore: I could say some thing about my love life!

Julia Agnes Foster: Not to be a hard-boiled student teacher.

"Pat" Davis: I have studied more, but that isn't much!

Lou Alyce Shelor: Not to worry when I don't hear from "Bill".

Lorraine Sommardahl: To have a good time, as usual.

Doi Doutt: Not to mix pleasure with business or vice versa.

Carolyn Tuck: To keep going steady with Johnny.

"Rennie" Hendrickson: To visit someone here in town, whom I was supposed to look up.

Lou Ann Mears: To go to the movies every time the picture changes.

Helen J. Harrison: Not to make any such unresolved statements.

Martha Hicks: None!

Louise Harrell: What you mean is, how many have I broken?

"Wenie" Dawson: Getting up for breakfast.

....Nancy Kibler: Bought an alarm clock.

Margie Caskie: Lose wart, by Jimmy!

Audrey Lee Davis: Not to fight with my roommate.

Grace Anderson: To get A plus on music.

Charlotte Thorp: To mix my books with men.

Gertrude Driver: Resolved: not to make many.

June Pool: That would be telling.

Mary Agnes Millner: To write to a certain man 3 times a week.

Augusta Hargan: To find out a certain joke.

Martha Frances Morrison: To date more.

June Cregar: To mix work and play and not come out on the short end.

'Y' Delegates Bring Inspirational Reports From National Meet

Have you ever attended a national assembly of twelve hundred college boys and girls? Have you ever spent four hours a day for six days in worship and Bible study under renowned ministers and Christian leaders? Have you ever filled the remaining hours of those six days in association meetings and social gatherings with students, leaders, advisers, and fraternal delegates from many other countries? Then, you can appreciate the inspiration, the personal growth, the broadening conceptions of your Christian heritage, and your personal opportunities and responsibilities.

The theme of the National Intercollegiate Christian Council (N. I. C. C.) was Ut Omnes Unum Sint—that all might be one Christian World; that is the chal-

Dimes Spent On Cokes, Nabs Needed For March of Dimes

It appears to be fitting at this time for the philosopher to address his remarks to the philanthropist. The subject being namely: "What To Do With Ten Cents?"

In the first place just what is ten cents? It is a small denomination of money made up of ten copper pennies, or two five cent pieces called nickles, but in its most common form it is the smallest silver piece known as the dime. Now having firmly established the external features of it as well as the value in everyone's mind it is time to consider the uses of this many-formed little piece. This is expedient because in modern society there is already too much money of no practical value (such as the thousand dollar bill which are avoided by most people as being unsafe to carry around in one's wallet.) Thus a discussion of the dime is one of importance to every individual.

Now if you will pardon the digression, for all philosophers must digress, we will be on with the subject. To what uses may the dime be put? Some people as a superstitution wear them for protection; however, the proper use is as a piece of exchange. Buy what?—You may ask. Well, ten cents will purchase two packs of chewing gum (horrid stuff) or it will buy candy, or a coke, or a telephone call to Hampden-Sydney. If you save it 'till you have other coins to add, you might purchase a pack of cigarettes, a milk shake, a hamburger, or a ticket to the show. These, my friends, are the common uses of the dime—there is one exigency, however, which may be alleviated by it today if you will be so kind as to forego the above pleasures to contribute that dime. That is the March of Dimes, which is being held here. Think seriously, then contribute as many dimes as possible to such a worthy cause as the relief of suffering children.

March of Dimes

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Well I think all are back now from the holidays and settled down?—Well everybody is back anyway.

We are glad to see Hope Frank back wandering about the halls. I hear big parties are a perfectly legitimate excuse for being late so don't worry, Hope.

Sue McCorkle was walking around on clouds this week end as the one and only Mel came up.

We hear Bickie thinks a certain Bill from Hampden-Sydney is quite cute.

Nancy Whitehead reports a good time at Virginia this week end.

Lately Kitty Parham has been walking around with a big grin and a blue V-neck sweater on. Some Bills' can really make one a changed person.

We hear that B. Lee's Ray Baby was on campus this week end. We also understand that he is very fond of brown jackets.

Well Hill, you've started all over again, haven't you? Gallalee is seen around the campus once again. Good luck, Hill.

Excitement reigned over Junior building Saturday night, when Jim called Nancy Squire.

We are certainly glad to hear that Mary Lawless and George have gotten back together again.

Betty Brockway is the cute one these days. She has been seen with that handsome Pete Squire.

Although Pete was minus a tooth, it didn't keep her from having a big time with Ben this week end.

Instead of the usual thing—the hall was cluttered with girls to get a glimpse of Bo Wall as he paraded down second floor Junior with all of Carol's paraphernalia.

What's this about Elinor Lawless and Bill? We really couldn't overlook that sparkler on the third finger left hand. Could we?

We hear that Shirley had quite a time pacing around the bus station until Turner arrived.

Don't forget March of Dimes. "Charlie Hop needs your dime".

Verser and Collier were having a big time together. Watch those red heads, gal.

Winnie Beard was so-o excited over her date on Saturday night. We hear that she's going to H-S mid-winters soon, too. Nice going, kid.

Ellen McMullan seemed to be having a wonderful time at the game on Saturday night.

Nancy Foscue looked out of this world over the week end. Maybe that cute man accounts for it all.

Well, Brankley and Blanton, give us the low-down on those men you were with. Hubba, Hubba.

Mantiply has got that certain gleam in her eye whenever Johnnie Greene's around. Just how tall is he?

Ann Joyner and Bill have up quite a case. They certainly look cute together.

Hold everything, girls. The one and only Emerson is arriving this week end, and Pat's fit to be tied. He didn't receive but two football awards, did he, Davis?

We guess the choice bits of gossip will be plentiful after the dance Saturday night, so until then, bye.

If You're Missing Reminiseing

Gather round, my chillun, and we'll make a bit of horse talk. Do you remember the show we had just before exams? From all sides have come congratulations about the whole thing, and we agree that congratulations are due. Everything went off smoothly except when irascible Port had to get rambunctious and throw her youthful rider. That was quite rough, but we'll forgive her this time.

Quite a crowd was there to witness the riders put on their form and prance their studs around the ring. They thrilled to the jumpers as they sailed over the jumps. It was a pretty sight to watch Jeanne, Eleanor, Anna, and all the rest soar over the brush and the fence jumps. Of course things came to a screeching halt when freshman Mary Wright got Port right up to the jump and—wham! she refused it! Patience and fortitude finally won, however; and both horse and rider went over. Ask Jean Babb how it feels for just the rider to go over, before your mount does!

All the classes had a special flavor—we found rising talent in the town children's class. Some of them showed us up for shame! All in all, we'd venture to say the show was a grand lot of fun and entertainment and our thanks go to those who made it possible. Miss Shields, Mr. Andrews, Jeanne, Zeke, and all the rest.

Before we tear ourselves away, let us remind you that these cold, clear days are superb to go riding on! The horses are spirited, the air crisp and the ride delightful—so come on out with us and—Stay on the bit.

of laughter to add to the general confusion. English words pop up in the most unexpected places so that the popular song "Darling je vous aime beaucoup" has nothing on us we blithly and undauntedly go our merry way, vocabulary or no—In short we might sum up the whole situation with the lusty cheer "Vive la France!" (Will somebody please pass the pickles?)

Practices Listed For Volleyball

Class team practices in volleyball will be held on Monday and Wednesday afternoons and at 3:50 on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. A separate practice for the benefit of those who cannot come in the afternoons will be held at 7:00 on Tuesday nights.

Betty Minton, manager of volleyball, announces practice dates

Class games will be played off the last week in February and the first week in March. The winning color will receive ten points towards the color cup.

Betty Minton, manager of volleyball urges everybody to come out now for volleyball practices.

Swimming Classes Resumed Thursday Dabney Announces

The swimming pool opened last week, and classes were resumed on Thursday afternoon. Recreational swimming will be held as usual from 9 to 10 on Monday and Wednesday nights.

The Senior and Instructors course in Life Saving will be held from 4 to 5:30 on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons this quarter. This course is open to any student in school, and will be the only one given this year; therefore anyone interested in camp jobs for the summer should take the course now.

The class swimming meet will be held the last part of this quarter. Any girls interested in taking part must get in eight practices. A student wishing to participate must see Miss Dabney soon.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Do you think this will ever take the place of winter time? The winter sports are on the slate, so you can be assured it is still winter, even though you have a desire to play tennis.

How have you made out in your basketball practices? Keep up with your times out, and try hard to make a class team. Your ability to handle the ole ball will come in handy during the fast games. You will enjoy the inter-class games if you're on the team, or a spectator who cheers her team along to the victory.

Some afternoon take time out for some good exercise, and put in your appearance in the gym around 3:50; you won't regret it if you do. It is a sure way to keep in form, and lose some excess weight, plus improve your game a hundred per cent. Give basketball a try, won't you?

There will be the event in water for you to see soon. Have you thought much about trying out? The meet is a beautiful one to see; you will see some of the best swimmers out to win and you won't want to miss the thrills. If you practice your best strokes, who can tell, you may qualify for the H2O club, so keep up your practices during recreational swimming periods.

Until next week, keep up with your sports and get into the game.

Be a good sport in all sports.

Styles Highlight Small Waistline

Today's fashion centers on small waists and rounded hips. Peg pockets, inverted peplums, draperey, and modified bustles take us back to the days of Lillian Russell when women had hips and were proud of them.

Sleeves are also in the limelight, but you can take your type as to their style. Bell sleeves are gaining in popularity, while dolman and cap sleeves are holding their own. And then there's the new sling sleeve (just cousin to the dolman but definitely short, and tantern sleeves.

Skirts are longer since governmental restrictions on material have been removed. Fifteen inches from floor to hem seems to be a nice length—for short girls—fourteen inches.

Shoulders have lost their masculine look and are becoming more rounded and feminine.

At anytime a small waistline is to be prized—but even more so these days. Show off your Scarlett O'Hara dimensions with a wide belt—be it leather, gold or silver mesh or the new striped Roman braid.

As for fabrics, they're also optional. Linen and silk are on their way back to head the list, while crepe, faille, flannel and jersey are also popuar favorites. Speaking of jersey which comes without seams, all you have to do to it is hem it, cut sleeves, and sew up the neck, add a belt and prosto—a dream of a dress in less than half an hour's time.

Any color will do. Black is perenially good as are brown, and neutral. But for something new and appealing. try any color—just so it"s green!

New Staff Members Honored By Library

The luncheon was given for the new members of the staff who are Irving Armstrong, Craig Cumby, Helen Dortch, Lillian Seiberg, and Annette Vincent-Viry.

Somehow, her feet carry her to the classroom and she starts to introduce herself to the lady in the room. She looks nice, but you never can tell! Then she takes a seat in the back of the room and watches the children (did I say children?) come in. Heavens, can I menage this gang of ruffians? Suddenly, a long whistle is heard. She jumps, surprise and turns around to see a half dozen pair of eyes looking admiringly. She almost laughs, but remembers just in time to look stern and grim. While the roll is being called, one of the boys passes a pack of chewing gum, which she almost takes, but again remembers her exalted position. While watching the supervisor handle the class as if it were so many lumps of clay, she wonders how in the world she'll ever be able to do it.

Finally, the first day and night before is over. It is the worst day of the whole quarter, although the first teaching day runs a close second.

It feels very strange indeed to bring home a stack of papers a foot high. It is a distinct shock to see telephone numbers and home addresses in conspicuous places on these papers. It is only after you are halfway to the phone that you remember you are a student teacher and must maintain your dignity. With lagging steps, you return to the remainder of the papers.

Of course, one is asked every conceivable question by the pupils. They have an insatiable curiosity about you and your affairs. You end up telling most everything asked, except the name of your date at the movies the night before.

After a few days, after you've learned to know the children better, you find that you like your supervisor (if she's like mine) and you spend all your time talking about the pupils with her and your suitemates.

The quarter draws to a close—the quarter you thought would be the longest one of the year—and you discover, to your great surprise, that you've really enjoyed most of it, even the many, many conferences. And as for the children, it is terrible to see another girl take them over. It's amazing how one misses them, even if they do hand in poems like this:

"Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
If I had a brick
I'd throw it at you."

And with that masterpiece, I'll be leaving you—to ask my successor what her kids are doing.

Flood Will Appear At College Soon

Most artists have known the embarrassment of falling stage props, bursting seams, or other mishaps which arise to plague stage folk. But Farmville women have been intrigued by the story told by Leona Flood, the talented young violinist who is being presented in recital February 3 by the Junior Woman's Club here at State Teachers College.

At the age of eight, Leona was playing at a public recital being given by her mother, who is a composer and pianist. An extremely shy child, Leona found it trying to face the large audience.

From worship services, Bible study groups, platform programs on Our Christian Heritage hearing sessions on world and college programs, plenary sessions of floor debates and discussions with voting on association policies and proposed actions, with pageants, panels of foreign student discussions, concerts, and New Year's eve Communion midnight service for nearly fourteen hundred participants, the three Farmville delegates return from this Y. W. C. A.-Y. M. C. A. national assembly held at the University of Illinois from December 26 through January 2. Your delegates return inspired, rededicated to Christian service, and challenged "not to be ministered unto, but to minister" to you in Christian association service.

The delegates, Virginia Tindall, Laura Jean Comerford, and Miss Mary Nichols (advisor) sincerely hope not to report the meeting but to give evidence in association service in all its phases throughout their periods of service in the Y. W. C. A.

STC's Founder Day Will Be Observed By College Soon

Activities for Founders Day week-end, to be held on our campus March 8 and 9, are being planned by a faculty committee with Miss Virginia Bedford as chairman.

Serving with Miss Bedford are Mrs. Coyner, alumnae secretary, Dr. Edgar Johnson, and Miss Carolyn Eason. The general plans have been laid and detailed announcements will be given at a later date. A basketball game with Madison College from Harrisonburg will be played in the afternoon, and the spring production of the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and Hampden-Sydney Jonguleres will feature Saturday evening.

Special stress is being placed on the Jarman Organ Fund this year, and the faculty, administration, and students are all asked to cooperate and contribute to this cause. Dr. Jeffers is chairman of the faculty organ fund, and Mrs. Florence Richardson is heading the administration fund. A student chairman will be appointed soon.

This year marks the reunion of all of the "7" classes, 1897 through 1937.

Flood Will Present Concert February 3

Leona Flood, violinist, will present a concert in the S. T. C. auditorium Monday, February 3, at 8 o'clock. This concert is being presented under the auspices of the Farmville Woman's Club.

Miss Flood is on a tour of the leading cities in Virginia and North Carolina where she will give concerts before school groups.

College Continues Drive For Dimes

Raymond H. French, chairman of the S. T. C. "March of Dimes" drive, has announced that contributions at S. T. C. have been somewhat below expectations.

Although no quota has been set for this school, the quota for Prince Edward county has been raised considerably. In order to help meet this amount, it will be necessary for S. T. C. contributions to improve.

Mr. French has said that if each student would contribute 25c to the "March of Dimes" campaign, S. T. C. could exceed the two hundred dollar mark attained last year.

Contributions may be taken to the hall presidents of each dormitory or to the container on the table in the hall. The proceeds of this drive will go towards aiding polio vicitims.

Cedarbrook Declared On Campus Limit For Underclassmen

That Cedarbrook will be considered "on campus" for underclassmen was an announcement made this week in a meeting of the student body.

Only seniors are allowed to go out of town for dinner after 6:00 P. M. They may go to Cedarbrook or Burkeville, but they must return by 10:00 P. M.

Underclassmen may go to these places anytime in the afternoon provided they have riding permission and return by 6:00 P. M.

Students may also stop at Cedarbrook long enough to get something to eat if they have been away for the day or week end.

Chapel Features Fashion Show Today

The Granddaughters' Club and the Home Economics department presented in chapel today a show of earlier fashions worn at S. T. C.

Sue Davis, president of the Granddaughters' Club, gave a history of that organization. Charlotte Grizzard was fashion commentator.

Predominant in this collection were graduation dresses worn before the days of the cap and gown.

Through this program, the Grandaughters' Club expressed a plea for donations of dresses worn in earlier period of S. T. C.'s history. These dresses will be added to the permanent collection of the Grandaughters' Club.

'Y' Delegates Report Will Be Given Soon

In Chapel, Friday, January 24, Virginia Tindall and Laura Jean Comerford will report on the recent national YWCA convention which was held at Urbana, Illinois December 26 through January 4.

Virginia, the secretary of the local Y, and Laura Jean, chairman of the prayers committee, were the delegates from the Farmville YW CA. They were accompanied by Miss Mary Nichols, who is a member of the local advisory board.

Laura Jean will conduct the worship service and Virginia will speak on the convention, which was the legislative and program planning body for student Christian association all over the nation.

Whitehead, Lacy Chosen to Serve As May Day Committee Heads

Cabinet Sets Date Of YWCA Drives

At a Y. W. C. A. meeting on January 15, it was decided that the World Student Service Fund and the Red Cross Drives will be held during the second week in March rather than the last week in January in previous years.

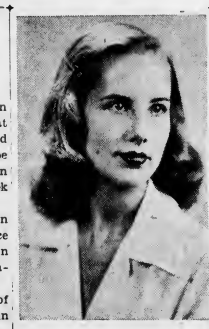
These drives are in corporation with the World Student Service Fund whose headquarters are in Atlanta, Georgia and with the National Red Cross Organization.

Jane Mantiply, chairman of Public Affairs committee will be in charge of this combination drive.

During the week of this event, a program, an outside speaker, and movies will be sponsored.

This is the one big drive sponsored by the campus during the entire year, and therefore, students are urged by the Y to whole heartedly support these two worthy causes.

The Red Cross speaks for itself and the foreign students are badly in need of any possible assistance.



Chairmen Chosen Production Head's Start Rehearsals

Committee chairman for the three class productions have been appointed and rehearsals have begun.

The junior class will present its entertainment on February 12 in the auditorium. "BeBe" Geyer is chairman and she will announce the theme soon.

Jean Cake is in charge of the sophomore production, with Helen Jackson as her assistant. In charge of staging is Barbara Boyle, while Dorothy Ramage is managing the lighting. The music committee is headed by Phyllis Alley; costumes, Martha Hatcher; tickets, Anne East; and food, Anne Verser. Rehearsals have started and the program will be given on February 27 in the Rec.

The freshmen have chosen "Stardust" as the theme of their presentation, and Lizzie Bragg is their chairman. Jo Ann Brittingham is in charge of scenery; Koiner Baker, food; Annette Jones, properties; Juan Williamson, costuming; Betty House, make-up; Edith Brooks, finances; Mary Miller and Ray Phillips, dance; Janice Slavin, publicity; and Jackie Eagle, staging. The freshman production will be given early in March.

Girls May Attend Sunday Movies

That S. T. C. students would be allowed to attend Sunday afternoon movies was the announcement of Margaret Lohr, president of the student government, at a meeting held last Wednesday night.

Students may leave at 2 o'clock and must be back on campus at 4:30. They are asked to dress in hose or as they would to go to church.

Unlike week days, they must sign out in their respective buildings for the afternoon movie. This plan which has been approved by Dr. Lancaster and Dean Smith, will go into effect immediately.

Students are asked to remember the words of Dr. Jarman, asking us to act as ladies always, and the words of Dr. Lancaster, "We are college students and we should behave as college students."

Home Economics Club Hears Talk by Moss

The Home Economics Club held its regular meeting last Tuesday January 14, 1947. Dr. Gordon Moss spoke to the club on the subject, "The Accomplishments of the United Nations Council."

Some of the achievements prior to the assembly meeting were charter stands, decisive price for peace by the Security Council, and the Economic and Social Council gained strength, failed in relief and displaced people.

The assembly procedure, as Dr. Moss pointed out, was of 35 plenory semons, 357 meetings of committees and sub-committees, and action of 73 subjects.

Slate Selected By Student Body

Nancy Whitehead, senior from Richmond, was selected chairman of the 1947 May Day program at a meeting of the student body last Wednesday night. Assisting her as business manager will be Heidi Lacy, senior from Richmond.

Nancy was dance chairman of the May Day committee last year. She is president of Orchesis, a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, chairman of Student Standards committee, former editor of the Colonnade, a member of the May Court her freshman, sophomore, and junior years, and will be one of the senior representatives on the Mardi Gras Court this year

Heidi Lacy was circus queen and is active in both school and class activities.

Margaret Ellett, senior from Jennings Ordinary, and Beatrice Geyer, junior from Chatham, were elected dance chairmen. Margaret is president of the senior class, president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, and a member of Orchesis. "Bebe" has been chairman of many class programs and is chairman of the junior production this year.

Eloise Stancell, senior from Emporia, will serve as transportation chairman. Betty Jordan, sophomore from Portsmouth, will be in charge of the music committee. Serving as costume chairmen will be Cathryne Mosteller, sophomore from Lynchburg; and Hope Frank, junior from Roanoke. In charge of staging and properties will be Pat Carter Daniels senior from Bluefield, who was staging chairman for the May Day program last year also.

STC Cold Sufferers Sniffle, Sneeze With Winter Miseries

Sniff, sniff. No, no one's crying. It's just those frequent occurances called colds. Grab the pill bottle everybobdy and prepare for the worst. (Then you can't be disappointed.)

The other day a morbid looking character was encountered in the hall. Upon questioning her about her "hangover" appearance, she merely replied, "Ka-choo!" She then continued on her way down the hall red eyes, nose, and all. Well, that certainly was a horrorfying experience to say the least. What one needs at a time like that is a man-to-man talk with Vitaman Flintheart. Probably Vitamin could stand a little such talk himself after being under Influence's influence, if you get what is meant. Oh, well, such is life.

Are you one of those people who go about in freezing weather without a coat thinking you are Superman at heart only to have your nose tell you differently within a few hours? If so, this article was written especially for you and to stress the lack of beds in the infirmary for such people as are concerned. This was also written, not for the express purpose of filling up space, but for the users of Kleenex which is sometimes hard to find. Consequently, take it easy everyone, and dress warmly. Colds are so much bother in every conceivable way.

Oh, sniff, see ya in the infirmary as soon as there is a vacancy!

Library Will House S. T. C. Publications

The west cloak room on the basement floor of the library is being cleaned out and will hereafter be used to house the school's publications as well as Alumnae publications, or other historical matter pertaining to the college.

When the work on the new quarters is completed, the library plans to put on a drive in an attempt to obtain two complete copies of all past publications.

Items especially desired will be advertised in the Rotunda and other papers.

Donations from former students or faculty members will be appreciated according to Dr. Beverly Ruffin, librarian.

Contribute Generously To March of Dimes

The March of Dimes is again underway on our campus. The proceeds of this campaign will be used in the treatment of the dread disease, infantile paralysis.

According to Raymond H. French, chairman of the campus drive, contributions have not come up to expectation so far. If we could all realize the costliness of treating polio, we would contribute every dime we could spare.

The March of Dimes, which has now become a national annual drive to raise funds to finance the necessary treatments and equipment needed to fight polio was started by our late president, Franklin D. Roosevelt. President Roosevelt was himself a victim of the disease.

Half of the money received goes to the national infantile paralysis fund, and the other half is kept by the local chapter to be used in treating this disease. The national fund stands ever ready to back up the local fund in case of an emergency. And we, with our nickels, dimes and quarters, help provide the national fund.

If you have not already contributed to this worthy cause, do so at once. Containers are on the table in the hall in which you may put your money. If you have given and find that you can give more, please do. It is not too late. Unfortunately there will probably be people for too many years to come who need your help in this way. Maybe they will not be your personal friends or loved ones next time, but they will be someone's.

In the words of the great humanist who began the fight against this dread disease, "The well-being of our youth is our foremost concern. Their health and happiness our enduring responsibility — The good cause must go on!"

May Day Court Chosen For Grace, Beauty

Time is drawing near for S. T. C. to elect its May queen and court for 1947. When we make our nominations we should give it our utmost consideration. We shouldn't nominate Susie because she is cute or Jane because she has more dates than most any girl we know. This election is to be based on beauty.

Just what goes into making a beautiful court? Gracefulness, posture, and ability to move as well as a pretty face constitute a lovely court. This year's May Day is to be one of the biggest in the history of the college. We want to do all within our power to make it a success. Yearly, many outsiders attend our May Day celebration which is held on the first Saturday in May. They judge our festival to a great extent by gracefulness, dignity, poise, and attractiveness of the girls who make up the court.

Here at S. T. C. there are honors for those who excel in scholarship, in athletics, and in other activities. These achievements however should not enter into the selection of the May queen and court. We repeat again for emphasis, our May court girls should be elected for beauty and for their ability to handle themselves gracefully. In keeping with the theme for this year the court and queen will take an even more important part than in previous years. It is our duty to give to those who so faithfully work on May Day a group of girls with which they can work.

As we cast our votes, let us lay aside all likes and dislikes, all prejudices and elect the girls who will make us proud to be a part of this college and of our May Day festival.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Hi-ho the merry-o, hasn't this week been fun? Any week high-lighted with a dance is full of fun and excitement, but this past week-end seemed to be an extra-special one. Even the fact that many of the dates had exams staring them in the face didn't dampen any spirits there; in fact they seemed to feel that they should eat, dance (pardon the paraphrase, but it is ever so more appropriate), and be merry for tomorrow is another day.

There comes a time in everyone's life when the crusading spirit fills him with ardor; sometimes he does something about it, but mostly he just takes a dose of patent medicine and goes to bed until he feels like his normal, complacent self again. That's about all that ever happens to those big ideas we get concerning "reforms" or things we'd like to have fixed around here, such as asking for something else instead of spinach and eggs, which most of us don't like; having a system of taking turns answering the telephone; getting the plumbing fixed on Annex so that the hot runs hot and cold runs cold, instead of both running hot in the day and both cold at night; or maybe someday someone will find a solution to the "dating problem", then we shall heap laurels on her head. Is there no one who wants to be the lady on a white charger to liberate us from the dragon, Laziness?

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

As delegates from the Y at S. T. C. to the National Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. Assembly held at the University of Illinois, Urbanna, Illinois, December 26 through January 4, we wish we had the time and space to tell you all about it. However, we do feel that we can pass on to each of you some interesting points and quotations taken from various speeches we heard. The following are from a speech by Mr. Charles Boite, chairman of the American Veterans Committee.

"We live in a political Ice-Age which is characterized by violence, tensions, inabilities to understand one another, and divisions among people."

"The machine gun is the language understood from the west coast to the east coast of Japan."

"Educational tools are needed to grapple with the outside world."

"The United States may be divided into Democrats and Republicans, Capital and Labor, Protestant and Jew, but it is also divided into the thoughtless-cheerful people and the thoughtful-gloomy people. Which are you?"

"The world can't be saved by educational devices. Mechanical devices help, but even they are not the whole."

"Law is peace."

Some of the heipful thoughts given us by Dr. Albert Outler, associate professor of Theology, Yale University, were

"Reading the Bible is like looking at a group of pictures in an art gallery. You get out of them exactly what you desire to. That's the way it is with your reading of the Bible."

"The Bible isn't a book of etiquette or a receipe book, or a "How To Do Book", but it is a demand as to what our life ought to be and is in the process of becoming."

"Christians put love, service, and worship ahead of self-interest."

"People in power need to have their philosophies changed."

"Peace is not so much the absence of fighting as it is the presence of justice."

Each morning, Dr. Howard Thurman from San Francisco, California, led us in an hour of beautiful worship. The scripture he used for the entire seven days was Psalm 139. All of his thoughts and poems centered around it.

By the way, have you read these books recently added to the Y. W. C. A. library in the browsing room?

Marriage Class Conducts Survey For Ideal, Non-existant Husband

Why do people marry? Is it biological, spiritual, psychological, social? What qualities does the average college girl desire in a husband? What is this thing called love anyway? Good questions? They are good enough to have a class devoted to them, and good enough to inspire a rather exhaustive "marriage survey" conducted last quarter by the marriage class. The survey was carefully planned and carried out to ascertain the general opinion of a representative group of S.T.C. girls. Approximately one hundred and fifty girls were interviewed, selected equally from the freshman, sophomore, junior and senior classes, and the results were very revealing. (We're not sure of what).

Anyway, there doesn't seem to be much argument about the first question. "Love, sliiy!" they murmured practically unanimously as dewey eyes dropped and soft music drifted in from the background. Other factors were mentioned less than half as often, but they were mentioned, indicating that most of us do see beyond the moonlight and roses. Companionship, security, and children were among the most often named. Two superpractical souls named convenience.

Since, whatever love is, it's obviously here to stay, the survey next attempted to formulate some sort of general definition. (Not at all ambitious, that marriage class). Twenty-seven freshmen and sophomores stuck exclusively by the good old physical attraction, supported by only thirteen juniors and seniors. Such factors as common interests, mutual respect, understanding, and congenial personalities found their backers largely among the juniors and seniors, where they were mentioned more than three times as often as physical attraction. Well, whatever it is, it's still a nice item to have around.

As to what S. T. C. girls want most in a husband, our surveyors bit off a mouthful that time. Reminds us of the man who was looking for a beautiful woman and a perfect housekeeper, but found that that would be bigamy. Anyway, what we'd really like would be a smooth mixture of Gable, Johnson, Einstein, Astaire, Rockefeller and Charlie Hop. Since we have to settle for a man, here are the results. The ten most desir-

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Our first student body dance has come and gone in a flash of one little week end all done up in lovely flowing formals and flowers, plus (sigh) those tux! Our heartiest congrats to Lohr and all of Government for one wonderful dance.

How 'bout that jeep from Emporia? Seems that Liz, Carol, Mary Ann and George Anne had quite the time, huh?

We hear by hearsay that Ellen McMullen has just received her third bushel of apples in two weeks. What gives, Ellen? Don't tell me apples for the teacher.

Did you notice that air of ecstasy about Aileen and Reide? Keep an eye on those two 'cause Rumors Are Flying'. Big plans seem to be in store for this summer.

What about the Lost Weekend in Lexington? That must have been some party. Seems there was a sudden gust of both boys and a spur of the moment party. How 'bout it, gals? N. Parrish, Katie, Kellam, Homes, and Hanks created a brand new one down at the PiKA house at W. & L. Love it!

Hutter and Bill Eddy seem "that way" about each other. Can't you detect that certain glimmer?

What about that Galilee—Hill combination? We were all powerfully glad to see that gay couple at the dance.

Bibb took off to Lynchburg for the week end. How is "the Baby", Bibb? We hope he got there, too.

What Anonymous wants to know is if week ends are our strong point, why not forget and just don't have weak days.

But, alas, another week is here. But look out! Here comes another week end and who can tell what will happen next at S. T. C. after bedcheck!

On the Ball

Greetings from this corner of the dug out. How have you made out on those sports and general practices for the coming events? Try to keep in practice so you will be an asset to your class team when the games really start, and you won't want to sit on the bench when the excitement starts, because you will want to be the one responsible for the extra point. Winter sports are most exciting and you will want to be present for every game and cheer your team on to victory. But remember this thought—being a good loser is just as important as being a good player. The two factors are essential and both will be needed whether you are in the game or on the sideline looking on.

VOLLEYBALL

There are exciting times going on in the gym during class and you should come down and get in the game. If you don't think you know too much about the game itself, why not come down and give yourself a try? The game is fast and you can easily learn, and there isn't any better way to get an hour of exercise. So won't you try to find a spare period on your crowded schedule, and hit the ball around with the rest of us?

Mother: Who laid the table for breakfast this morning?

Daughter: I did, all but the eggs.

7 Rules Given As Health Hints

It is no secret that this year's glamor girl is going to be a well-scrubbed and shining beauty. So in making New Years' resolutions, keep in mind that you are going to discard artifical charm for Mother Nature's gifts which are at hand for the taking. Here are seven golden rules for 1947, some of which, if observed to the letter, will bring you day-to-day beauty from within that will need less and less artifice from without.

1. Your hair should be fed by proper diet. If you keep your body supplied with the minerals, carbohydrates, and proteins needed to maintain the health of your skin and hair, you can't help but have beautiful, lustrous hair. Cleanse it thoroughly once a week and when you can't arrange a soap and water shampoo, try one of the dry cleansers. Brush with a clean hair brush every day.

2. If your skin is oily, you'll need more soap and water than your dry-skinned roommates and friends. And if your skin is dry, you will have to use light applicants of dry skin cream after your soap and water scrubbing. Drink more water, large quantities of milk, and eat green vegetables and watch your skin and eyes sparkle.

3. Eight hours sleep every night is one of the few real eye beautifiers. Those tiny lines and creases underneath and at the corners of the eyes are usually the results of strained, tired eyes. If you get your proper rest, you shouldn't have circles or other tell-tale eyelines to mar your face, and remember, when you are sleeping, there should be fresh air circulating freely in your room. Leave the window open at least an inch or two. Make sure your bed covers are warm enough. And if you want to keep that chin firm and smooth, skip the pillow which can often be counted on to throw your head into a position that will encourage a double chin.

4. Exercise frequently and not just to the 1-2-3-4 stretch variety. Walking is a good sensible way to exercise without too much effort. If you like sports, play tennis, golf and badminton to help whip up circulation to bring the roses to your cheeks.

5. Make up should be subtle, used only when it is deemed necessary. You don't have to make up to sit home and listen to the radio. Take these opportunities to relax and to give your skin a good rest. When you do makeup, however use the lighter shades of rouge and lipstick for daytime wear. Save the dark lipstick, rouge, and eye makeup for special glamor dates.

6. Wear clothes that emphasize the beauty of your figure, colors which are flattering to your complexion, and styles which are timeless. Perk up your basic black dresses with glittering accessories. Leave the bright colors to the slender girls if you are plump. You will look well in the darker shades, particularly if the lines are simple.

7. Be gay and interesting. Develop a sense of humor. If you can learn to smile, you will never really look old. Be happy and interested in the good fortune of others and you will be loved for your disposition and kindliness and bask in the reflected glow of your charity.

STC Alumna Given ASA Annual Award

Mrs. Thomas D. Eason was chosen the outstanding alumna of Alpha Sigma Alpha for 1946. She received the national award at a luncheon in her honor given by the Richmond Alumnae chapter, January 18, at the Oak Leaf Inn.

Mrs. Eason attended Farmville State Teachers College. At the time of her marriage, her husband, Dr. Thomas D. Eason, was professor of science at S. T. C. Mrs. Eason did postgraduate work at the Richmond Professional Institute in Richmond.

able qualities, in order of importance, are economic adequacy, good disposition, equal education, congenial religious views, comparable social status, ambition, sense of humor, appearance, high morals, and congeniality. Other qualities listed include sincerity, understanding, probability of his being a good father, and satisfactory relations with in-laws. Good health and non-alcoholism were listed only twenty-nine times in all.

In compiling this data the class found that, first, most girls will marry for love, but most have a broader definition of love than mere physical attraction. Second, S. T. C. girls desire those qualities in their husbands which have been shown by experience to be most closely correlated with marital happiness. Third, that the juniors and seniors have, in general, a more mature outlook on marriage than the freshmen and sophomores. Funny though, nobody raised the obvious question. Are husbands really necessary?

STC's Many Budding Poets Carry Paper 'n Pencil Always

"Roses are red
Violets are blue
If I were a poet
I'd write one too."

One what? A poem for the Colonnade contest. Have you noticed the would be poets going around with paper in their hand and a pencil behind their ear thinking an inspiration would come any time? Have you seen the worried looking students of English 205, or almost any other English, trying to write a poem for their assignment? Have you seen a girl gazing at the sunset one minute and then look dispairingly at the blank paper in her lap? Yes, STC is full of budding or would be poets. Maybe they will beat the stronger sex by writing about the things to which the young man's fancy is supposed to turn to in spring time.

Just how does one go about writing a poem? First of all you must have an inspiration. That's what everybody says, that you must be inspired. Webster defines inspiration as "a supernatural influence which qualifies men to receive and communicate divine truth." Humm. That seems to let us out. Just how this "supernatural influence" comes, we do not know. But maybe we can communicate "divine truth" if we try real real hard to write a poem.

Shall we try to write one? First of all pencil and paper is necessary. That necessity being fulfilled we sit a minute trying to think of the first line of our masterpiece-to-be. We think of line after line, but every line we think of seems to be one we read somewhere before. (Could it be that we are inspired just like some other poets were?)

Minute after minute, hour after hour, day after day, we try and try to write. A word changed here, a phrase left out here, a line added here, and another verse written all mark the progress of our poem. But has anyone found anything to rhyme with silver? The meter may be off in a few places, but the reader will just think we changed meter in the middle of a line. Didn't Browning do that?

Someone wisely said, "When some people go mad they bite others, some foam at the mouth, and all the rest try to write poetry."

But we'll try and try again. By jove, we'll have a good poem written to hand into the Colonnade by February 15.

Local Club Brings Violin Artist Here

Farmville's Junior Woman's Club will sponsor Leona Flood, the brilliant young violinist, at the State Teachers College Auditorium, on February 3 at 8 o'clock.

Miss Flood a native of Spokane, Washington, began singing before she could walk. She made her first appearance as a singer when she was two and a half. Since the best known musician in her neighborhood was a violinist she took lessons from him. This was the beginning of her career although it was unintentional.

Almost without realizing it she devoted more time to her violin than to singing.

At the age of sixteen she made her debut recital. For two seasons she toured Europe and when rumblings of war began she returned to New York City.

Eugene Stinson of the Chicago Daily News recently said, "Leona Flood's playing was of excellent quality. Her tone is strikingly beautiful and her outlook innately beautiful." A Viencse critic said, "One must associate her with the great masters of her art."

The proceeds from this concert which begins promptly at 8:00, will go for the maintenance of the Junior Recreation Center. The admission is $1.50.

The activities of the organization are designed not only to benefit its membership but also to further interest in scholarship in the whole institution.

Program of Music Given At Meeting Of French Circle

After a short business meeting of the French circle at which payment of dues was urged and a contribution to the Jarman organ fund was discussed, the program was turned over to the program chairman.

The first year class gave a skit introducing the concert. Those taking part were Mary Virginia Goff, Florence Willis, Jackie Eagle and Laverne Tuck from the advanced class.

The concert consisted of "Clare de Lune," "Licbestraum" "Pavanne pour L' Enfante dipunte", and "L' Ombre Legere".

The Intermediate class followed with a discussion of the program. Elaine Owens, Jean Anderson, Gwen Smith, and Lela Bouldin from the advanced class took part in this.

Students Must Cooperate In Observing Study Hour

A number of students have not been observing study hour on the campus. We should remember to keep quiet from 7:30 until 10 o'clock every night. We can do our visiting before or after study hour.

Sometimes we seem to forget that others may have studying to do even if we don't. We should keep quiet and not disturb those who are trying to study.

If you have a meeting during study hour be very quiet when passing through the halls to and from the meeting.

It won't be long until grade estimates will be coming out. Naturally everyone wants to get good grade estimates. In order to do this one must do some conscientious studying. After all we are up here to learn. And how are we to learn much if we neglect studying and keep others from studying too?

We should remember to keep our radios turned down low during study hour. No one can study when the radio down the hall is playing loudly.

This also applies to vic's. Keep them toned down until the end of study hour anyway. After that you can increase the volume without disturbing one's power of concentration too much.

Save your dancing until gym classes. People below you don't enjoy the nightly stomping.

Cooperate with your hall president in maintaining quiet on your hall. Let's do our part and really observe study hour for the remainder of the quarter. Your help is needed!

Barter Theatre Plays Deserve Our Support

We are very fortunate in having the Barter Theater present three plays here in the near future. "Much Ado About Nothing" will be presented in our college auditorium on February 20. "Blithe Spirit" will be given on March 13, and "State of the Union" on March 20.

Virginia, sometimes referred to as the Old Dominion, is the first state in the union to set aside money from its treasury to help establish a state theater. We think that it would be well worth our while to have a record attendance at each performance in our auditorium.

The Barter Theater, founded in 1932, is the peoples' theater. Today it serves as a place where all classes, creeds, and denominations can gather under one roof to share an experience, besides enjoying a social mingling with their frieds. Robert Porterfield, founder and director, is a native Virginian.

During the war, the theater disbanded, because most of its personnel were in the service. It is only recently that the theater has begun activities again. The theater is now busy touring the state and thrilling the population from seacoast to the mountains with their vivid presentations.

When the Virginia season is finished late in the spring of 1947, the Barter Theater of Virginia will present its splendid Drama Festival Company in a Broadway theater playing its repertory exactly as played throughout its native state.

Puddin' n' Sauce

When we were very, very young we learned what the animals say. Our proud parents coaxed us to tell their guests that the cow says moo, and the sheep says baa, and the dog bow-wow, and that the duck says quack. Now that we have grown a little older we have observed what people say. Can you identify these?

Who says, "Hi, ev'body", and who says, "What were we talking about"? Bet you can't guess who it is that says "I'll lay my cards on the table." And do you know who says, "Well, what is the lesson for today?" or this, "Why didn't you come down sooner?"? Come on, baby, tell mama who says—"You must make a C average." and tell the nice lady who says "Girls, you must NOT take silver and linen from the dining room. Also please remember that we do not come to breakfast in our pajamas here." But finally the saying of sayings—who has the power to make any prankster feel like a criminal by saying simply "Well???"? If you can't guess these then "You don't get around much do you?"

With all this wonderful warm weather that's being forced upon us it is quite a temptation to develop an early attack of spring fever, but with grade estimates tearing at us from just around the corner there just doesn't seem to be any rest for the weary.

(Author's note: Granted that this column is crummy, so please won't you take pity on a poor struggling hack and supply her with anything which you'd like to see in Puddin N Sauce? Any funny experience in class, a teacher's pet joke, gripe about no hot water or even a Betty Bly note to your man would be of help and would be infinitely appreciated. Thanks a jug-full!)

"Rain, Rain-Go Away," Chant Girls; Daily Deluges Dampen S. T. C. Spirit

"I don't know why there's no sun up in the sky-stormy weather." Rain! Rain! "Why must it rain all the time in Farmville?" Wails a Typical S.T.C.'ers—especially on week ends. Weather is something that everyone always discusses but does little about. However, the situation can be quite disgusting at times, and the times have been quite frequent lately.

Some people seem to think that since there are so many geniuses in the world that are always inventing "things" that someone should devise a plan by which the weather can be controlled. A great machine based on atomic power could really do the trick and probably blow up the whole universe which would certainly solve the weather problem if nothing else.

If this machine did come into being, the world would face another grave problem. No one would agree on the type of weather for the day. Take the 4th of July for instance: The picnics would want a nice sunny day while the farmers would be praying for rain for his crops. It all goes to show that you can't win. Someone has just got to be different! As long as there are two people left in the world there is going to be discord—one will be called a fool; the other a "kill joy".

Now for the weather forecast: you say you're going on a weiner roast Saturday, huh? Well, the forecast is cloudy and damp. You say you're going home for the week-end, huh? The forecast is rain and rain followed by more rain; The thing to do is put on a kerchief, raincoat, hip boots, and swim to town for awhile greeting each other with a gloomy "nice weather for ducks". The only other alternative is to curl up by a radiator with a good book, and reassure yourself that the age old weather problem will continue to be age-old.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Here we are again after a week's "gab" gathering with more news from thither and yon.

What's this we hear about a "certain guy from R. P. I." (poem)? It seems that he doesn't like singing particularly by S. T. C. lassies. (He ain't human!) All right "Pusie", give us a reason and it better be good. Of course, if the screeching becomes too unbearable, try using earmuffs.

One of our old gals, Claire Wales Webb (Mrs. Thomas Webb, that is) was visiting on campus this week end. Grand to see you back again, Claire.

Charlotte and Imogene were very excited over the basketball game Friday night and no wonder because Stuart and Jack really played a good game.

Those big fat letters Margie Williams has been getting from Gene really make the rest of us envious.

And talking about letters, David wrote June that he was the founder of a new fraternity known as Damma Phi Kno.

Weren't all the Newport News girls in a flutter when a certain Marine named Billy came up last week end? Eh, what Jane?

Could Roger be the reason Betty Jane Brockway has stardust in her eyes? But who wouldn't if they had an invitation to the Midwinters at Tech?

Also looking forward to an exciting time at that wonderful place are Laura Jean Comerford, "Gin" Tindall, Judy Dailey, Betty Ree Pairet, and Peggy Moore.

The twosome seen quite frequently around campus are Julia Foster and Pat Striplin.

By the way, why does "Be Be" Geyer get annoyed when anyone sings "Oh Johnny"?

Have you all seen the glistening new diamond which now adorns Claudia Smith's third finger left hand? It's a beauty!

What is this thing called love? Maybe Barbara Montgomery and Wirt could give us the answer.

Louise Blackman and Buddy are "that way" about each other.

Oh, to have one of the many phone calls that Frances Blanton receives. (Wishful thinking!)

Ducky stayed over during the H.-S. holiday just to be with Ginnie. Sounds like true love.

It seems that even though Betty Miles has quite a number of men on the string, her heart wavers between Cal and Jack.

Who is the tall senior that's carrying the torch for a certain S. T. C. co-ed?

Hilda Abernathy's favorite tune up to date is "Tuxedo Junction". For full details see Hilda.

Did that good-looking date account for the big sparkle in Joyce Fleet's eyes?

The lights were out
And all was still
She grabed - - - a pencil
And wrote her last will.
Why? Because her name was in Bedcheck.

We'll be seeing you "Sooner or Later".

BETTY REE PAIRET

Many organizations on campus issued bids to new members this week. Seventeen girls joined Pi Gamma Mu; 30 became choir members; and 44 were initiated into the Commercial Club.

The Commercial Club entertained in honor of the new members with a banquet Friday night.

Plans are underway for a week of religious concentration. Dr. J. P. Allen of Bristol, Tennessee, will the guest for Religious Emphasis Week.

Mr. French, chairman of the March of Dimes Campaign, which began January 13, reports that although contributions are picking up, the collection so far is still below the $200 mark attained last year.

Pi Gamma Mu has secured Russ Carlton and his fifteen-piece orchestra to play for the Mardi Gras costume ball February 15. This orchestra played for Senior Dance in December, 1945.

Rehearsals are now being held for the three class productions which will take place in February and March.

Left Lead

Well, Hello and Goodbye.

It was "Hello, Zeke", this sunny Fall, but now the rain and gloom have descended upon us as we sadly say "Good bye" to this unpredictable character. Yes, Zeke was practically a landmark at the stables and ring causing everyone to look for his capers and caprices on every ride. We enjoyed his wit, what there was of it, but now we send him off to Richmond with four roses in his buttonhole as a farewell trinket. We know he'll get by, one way or another, yet leave us not let him leave without saying—"Good luck, good hunting, and hurry back to see us again!" When Will It Stop??

Stop raining, that is! The regular riding classes have been doomed a week of sitting inside, looking out at mud, mud, mud. One of these days we'll walk in the sun once more, and then just watch our dust! (Joke dated 1812) Some of the hardy type braved the puddles and quagmires Saturday. Patsy and Mary struck out in one direction while Jeanne and Ducky headed another. Jeanne found a handy branch to give the Filly a little jumping experience on the back way from Dowdy's Corner. Nothing else eventful seems to have happened as they splashed merrily along. Come on sun-shine! Dry up the mud so we can get in some trail rides and a little practice for the next horse show. Pretty please!

To The Administration.

True, Miss Shields is the business manager and Royal Head of the stables but the sole administrator in her absence seems to be Botts. Now those that haven't watched Botts plait the filly's tail are truly uneducated. There are lots of ways to take care of a horse. If you model your ways after Botts you're sure to win. There are many, many little tricks to know before you can make 'em behave. It's taken Botts many a year to learn 'em all but the results have justified the efforts.

Let's hope we can soon get transportation to Longwood, because hallelujah! the stables are standing to receive horses, Botts, Butch and all. It seems a shame to have all this waiting for us and not to make use of it. Maybe we can contract someone to build a subway from here to there!

Port and Red are frisking around the country side on their vacation. We certainly miss 'em.

And even though 'tis raining, don't forget to Stay on the bit.

Mardi Gras Belles Get Costume Ideas

The time has come to get a "thinking cap" on and come out with some really clever and original ideas for that Mardi-Gras Costume. February 15 isn't far away, you know! What to wear? Well, that isn't such a problem, for the theme, United Nations is suggestive enough. In a short time you can get some old clothes and accessories together and have an attractive outfit that may win you first prize. Two prizes are being awarded for the prettiest costumes and the same for the most original ones. So get busy everybody! Just select a Nation you'd like to represent and "rig up" a costume reasonably similar to the native costume of that country. No costume need be fussy or elaborate to rate attention. By all means make yours comfortable and "danceable". Remember—no jeans or shorts. Regulations say below the knee for any costume. Whatever you choose to wear, try to make your outfit different. Southern belles and gypsie costumes are always popular, but there are others equally as simple to do up. Be a Dutch or Hungarian lassie in a bright pinafore or a blouse and dirndl skirt with a laced-up bodice. You may appear as anything from a Russian dancer to a Spanish senorita, or even a pig-tailed Chinaman The latter costume might consist of a pair of oriental pajamas in case that appeals to anyone!

The sky is the limit—well, practically, so let's get O.T.B. and make the costume ball a perfect success! Don't forget your mask!

Forty per cent of our rice crop goes to Cuba to feed the sugar plantation workers. The rest is shipped to Canada, the Philippines and to UNRRA. The bulk of the rice produced in this country is grown in Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and California.

Theatre Will Give 3 Plays At S.T.C. In Coming Months

Robert Porterfield, native of Southwest Virginia, is founder and director of the Barter Theatre. For 11 years, from 1932 to 1942, when he and 135 of his actors went away to help win the war, Abingdon's Barter Theatre was famous as the only playhouse in the world accepting commodities at the box office instead of cash.

"Barter alumni include Gregory Peck, Jeffry Lynn, Katherine Raht (Mrs. Aldrich, of the Aldrich family on the radio), William Prince, Hume Cronyn, Charles Korvin, Margaret Wycherly and Conrad Nagel."

The Barter repertory includes everything from pre-Shakespearean comedies to pre-Broadway tryouts of important and new plays.

The plays, such as those coming to Farmville, will be sponsored by civic groups, high schools and colleges, and as a consequence people in the town as well as in the cities will get a chance to see plays performed by top-notch actors.

During the war thousands of servicemen came in contact with the Barter Theatre and professional "live" entertainment for the first time. Shows were taken to camps and bases in this country by U.S.O. and other organizations.

On February 20 "Much Ado About Nothing" will be the first of the three plays which will be presented at the State Teachers College Auditorium. "Blithe Spirit" will be presented on March 13, and "State of the Union" on March 20.

Farmville Alumnae Plan Bridge Party

The proceeds from the party will be presented to the general alumnae fund which in turn will be used to install an organ honoring Dr. J. L. Jarman, president emeritus of the college.

There will be some special features during the evening; including a Spring style show, and the awarding of prizes.

Reservations will be two dollars a table. Mrs. R. W. Catlin will be chairman of reservations. She will be assisted by Miss Alice Carter, Mrs. T. D. Smith, Mrs. W. J. Sydnor, Miss Ottie Craddock, Mrs. John Lancaster, Mrs. Gordon Moss, Miss Carrie Spencer, Miss Lillian Minkle, Mrs. Boyd Coyner, Mrs. Henry Newbill and Mrs. Marshall Watkins. All reservations must be made by Wednesday evening, January 29.

Miss Katherine Watkins and Mrs. Leland Sanford will have charge of refreshments and Mrs. Kyle Baldwin of the committee for prizes.

Missionary Teaches YWA Study Course In Student Lounge

Mrs. Elton Johnson, missionary to Brazil who is now on furlough will be guest speaker for the Y. W. A. study course to be held in Student Lounge February 4-7 at 8 o'clock.

The book for the course will be Forty Years in the Land of Tomorrow.

Mrs. Johnson will be available for conferences every afternoon from 3 o'clock until 6 o'clock in the Student Center.

Writing Proves Fun Says Feature Writer

It's easier to do anything when you know what you're doing! Me, I just don't know what I'm doing or for that matter what I'm supposed to be doing. I do know that there's a good picture that's on at the State, a bridge game going on down the hall, some good records just begging to be played and here I sit. I could always read that novel for English, study for my history test or polish my finger nails, but no, I hafta' sit here doing something and jumping up to answer the phone. Why am I sitting here? Don't you know? I hafta' write a FEATURE, on what? Who knows? I don't, nor did the person who requested (?) that I write one. Whats' happened around here?? Nothin' at all! Haven't even had a fire drill, a date or a good nights' sleep.

Mardi Gras Tickets Will Go On Sale Saturday At Noon

United Nations Made Dance Theme

Tickets for the annual Mardi Gras costume ball which will be held on Saturday night, February 15, from 8:30 to 12 in the gymnasium, will go on sale Saturday after lunch according to Betty Bennett, ticket chairman. Date tickets will sell for $1.80 and stag tickets, $1.00.

The theme for Mardi Gras this year according to Ann Pullen, general chairman, will be "United Nations". The costumes of the queen and court and the floor show will follow this theme.

Russ Carlton and his fifteen piece orchestra will provide the music for the affair. Prizes will be offered for the two prettiest costumes and for the two most original costumes. These prizes will go on display in Martin's window in the near future.

Girls To Take Part In 1947 Arts Forum At UNC On March 22

Dance students will participate in the student choreography program of the 1947 Arts Forum to be held at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina on March 22.

"Boogie at the Philharmonic" to a recording by Mende Lux Lewis will be presented by the S. T. C. dance group. The dance has been choreographed by members of Orchesis. The program will also be presented in chapel sometime before the Greensboro trip.

For the past three years W. C. U. N. C., has held a three day Arts Forum in the early spring. The meetings are concerned with the creative activity of students in music, painting, writing, and dance. The purpose of the forum is to bring together teachers and students of the arts in the colleges and universities of the Southeast, for greater understanding and appreciation of the arts and to stimulate creative and experimental activity.

Girls from here who will present the program are Gris Boxley, Doris Funck, Bobby Mitchell, Ann Orgain, Lee Palmer, Joy Wilson, Mary Wright, from the dance classes. Members of Orchesis who will attend are Bebe Geyer, Doris Ramsey, Corrine Baker, Nancy Whitehead, Betty Jordon, Helen Owins, and Peggy Moore. Dr. Jeffers Gives Papers To Library

Dr. Jeffers has turned over to the Library his complete set of Claytonia, a magazine published by the Virginia Academy of Science from June, 1934, to April 1939. With his help, the Library is completing its set of the proceedings of this Academy.

Dr. Jeffers also gave the Library his set of The Raven, a series of papers issued by the Virginia Society of Ornithology.

Students are reminded to watch for the musical exhibit sponsored by Miss Armstrong of the library staff, with the help of Miss Clark of the music department. A real piano is expected to appear in this exhibit.

Dr. Allen To Speak In YW Program

"Will Christianity Work?" is the theme for Religious Emphasis Week this year.

Dr. J. P. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Bristol will be on STC campus February 17 through 20 as the special speaker. The Y. W. C. A. sponsors a week devoted to religious emphasis each year, the purpose of which is to help girls become more conscious of the need and place of religion in their life. Through sponsoring a special speaker, the Y gives each student an opportunity to hear and know a well-known leader in the field of religion.

Monday, February 17, marks the beginning of Religious Emphasis Week. On Monday night, there will be a reception in honor of Dr. Allen to which the faculty, administration, and heads of all organizations are invited

On Tuesday, Dr. Allen will speak for the first time to the student body. He will speak at 11 o'clock, the regular chapel hour. He will speak in chapel on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at this time. This will take the place of regular Monday, Wednesday, and Friday chapel.

On Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, Dr. Allen will conduct a fire-side chat in Student Lounge. This will be an informal talk, and each student is urged by the Y cabinet to attend.

Unusual Creature Delights In Humdrum Existence at STC

Ah! It is happy I am today. Happy indeed. The sun is shining, the alarm clock just went off, and I bounce quickly out of bed. I can hardly wait to dress and run down to the dining room for breakfast. Thoughts of sleep are far from my mind as I glance scornfully at my slumbering roommate. Today I am determined to be happy all day long. I shall be mature and overlook all the petty inconveniences of the everyday world. I go tripping to the bathroom to splash my face with cold water. What care I if boiling hot water runs from both faucets? I love to brush my pearly teeth in hot water. Hark! The breakfast bell. I shall not be late for breakfast. Ummm, the delicious aroma that meets my nostrils! I smile grimly as I taste the eggs and chew contentedly on the crust of a biscuit.

Satisfied with my morning meal, I beam intelligently through an 8:05, 9:05, and 10:05 class. Chapel is next on my schedule. I never miss that delightful half hour. I love it. I am the first one in the classroom at the 11:40 period. I don't want to miss a minute of it, although I'm anxious for it to be over so that I can have lunch in the dining room. I seldom go to Butcher's and have never wasted money by eating down town. I thoroughly enjoyed my nourishing lunch of greens and hard boiled eggs and tasty corn bread. After lunch I amuse myself by watching the painters at work on our hall. They are such nice men and I just love the smell of wet paint. I don't mind at all having my clothes cleaned every time I lean up against the wall. What I like about the painters is that they can work steadily for hours without so much as glancing at a pretty girl walking down the hall.

My 1:50 class is a pleasure. I don't know what I'd do if I had a vacant period. After this class I stroll to the P. O. I can hardly expect to get more than two or three letters this afternoon after receiving five this morning.

Having promptly answered all my letters, I decide to do my laundry. The few suds in the icy water disturbed me not as I scrub briskly. Not satisfied to be idle for a moment, I sweep my room and dust, being careful not to sweep the dust into the hall. My roommate does not like me for she is trying to sleep but I console her by reminding her that cleanliness is next to godliness.

Dinner is an hour of rest and relaxation. The floating biscuits and turnips give me just the inspiration I need for a long evening of study. Immediately after supper I run my bath water—good old ice cold water. Of course I could have a hot one in the basin, but I'm never one to complain.

I shut my ears to the noise on the hall, hang up my "busy" sign,

Whitehead To Reign Over May Festival; Ackiss Selected As Honor Attendant By Students In Meeting on January 28

2 Classes Excused On Founders Day

All girls who are planning to leave school over Founder's Day week end must leave on Friday, March 7.

Dr. Lancaster has announced that only 8:05 and 9:05 classes will meet on Saturday morning, March 8. All classes will be dismissed at 10 o'clock.

Going away slips will be given out next week to girls in Cunningham Hall so that Dean Martha Smith will know how many rooms will be available for Founders' Day guests.

Student groups that are requested to be on campus for Founders' Day are Grandaughters Club, student government officers, Dramatic Club members necessary for presentation of "Taming of the Shrew", and choir members.

Production Head Announces Change In Program Date

The date of the presentation of junior production has been changed from February 12 to February 25, according to an announcement made by Bebe Geyer, general chairman of the production.

It will be held, as planned, in the auditorium at 8 P. M. The theme of the junior production will not be announced until a week before the date of presentation.

The postponement of this production was necessitated by a delay in shipment of costume material and by the difficulty caused by mid-term tests.

Tickets are to go on sale soon at the table in the hall, where they will be sold by members of the junior class. Admission will be 25 cents.

NANCY WHITEHEAD, May Day Queen

'Open the Door, Richard' Inspires Feature Writer

If there's a story in popular songs, leave it to the frantic feature writer to dig it up. And so—

"OPEN THE DOOR, RICHARD," said CINDERELLA SUE, as the two were standing in the hall A HUGGING AND A CHALKING "THE SMOKE GETS INTO YOUR EYES, and THERE IS NO BREEZE in here."

Quickly, wanting to please his date, Richard opened the door. Noticing the STAR DUST in the BLUE SKIES he could not help but ask, "WHY DOES IT GET SO LATE SO EARLY?"

"FOR SENTIMENTAL REASONS, darling. It reminds me of THE THINGS WE DID LAST SUMMER. Remember?"

"OH, BUT I DO."

From SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT, probably from SHANTY TOWN, came Cinderella's little sister, A GAL IN CALICO. She paused long enough to see the young couple at the door.

"I WANT TO THANK YOU FOLKS for shutting the door. I always have to do that, AS IF I DIDN'T HAVE ENOUGH ON MY MIND already. It really is a tiresome task"

"Well," said Richard, "I'll never leave it open any more, IF IT'S A CRIME, for now I SEE IT YOUR WAY, BABY."

The little girl went out.

"SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS,' waved Richard, and turning to Cinderella, he cooed, "AIN'T NOBODY HERE BUT US CHICKENS."

"IT COULDN'T BE TRUE. I know it couldn't."

"But it is, at least for the time being. I'm just IN THE MOOD for DANCING IN THE DARK."

"Do you love me, darling?"

"Sweetheart, IF YOU WERE THE ONLY GIRL IN THE WORLD and I WAS THE BEST MAN, if you were an UGLY DUCKLING as well, I would love you ALL THROUGH THE DAY.

STC's Goal Exceeded In March of Dimes

The entire student body is to be congratulated on the splendid cooperation given during the March of Dimes drive that ended on our campus recently. This was a worthy cause and certainly deserved the support it received. Perhaps, after having it strike on this campus last year, we became more aware of this disease. We are proud to say that we exceeded our goal.

Infantile Paralysis is no respector of age, but it does seem to strike at our youth. We need to keep our youth safe and strong at all costs. One can never tell when she may be stricken, so it is doubly reassuring to know that the funds are there to care for you or those close to you if they are needed.

We cannot begin to realize the suffering that accompanies polio. Could you bear to be spending your money when some child somewhere is crying in agony? Evidently not, because you gave, and gave generously.

This drive is held every year and in honor of our late President, who was also stricken with polio. President Roosevelt believed in this drive intensely, and so must we if the good work is to continue.

Mr. Raymond H. French, who was in charge of the drive on campus, expressed his thanks to administration, faculty, and student body. We'd like to add our congratulations too, for a job well done. Remember, for all you who gave the greatest praise is—"the children thank you."

When a campaign such as this one is conducted, one expects and gets many different reactions. Some say that they would be delighted to give, but—and others just delve deep into their pockets. We think that our students belong to the latter type, and well we might think so, because of the complete success of the drive.

Basketball Teams Need Students Full Support

Once again the basketball season has rolled around and even if you're not a member of the team, you can give your team support by attending the games and by cheering the team to victory.

By much hard work on the part of the Athletic Association, we have many games planned. It is your responsibility to make these a great success, so come on out to the games and give your loyal support.

The S. T. C. boys have formed a basketball squad and have won the only game that has been played. They will be playing other schools in the near future so let's show them that we really are sports by attending the games and by giving them, as well as our girls team, the full cooperation of the school.

The success of basketball season depends upon the spectators as well as the players. The opinion visiting teams get of our school is based largely on the way, we as an audience behave at basketball games. No one enjoys a game if the crowd is unnecessarily rowdy but cheering at the proper time peps up the team. We should applaud good plays when they are made by the visitors as well as when our team makes them.

We should show both teams courteous consideration when they are attempting free shots. Loud shouting at this time is definitely rude.

Let's all cooperate and make this basketball season an unusually huge success.

Puddin' n' Sauce

"The time has come . . . to talk of many things: of shoes and ships and sealing wax and cabbages and kings." There really are so many things to talk about, but the irony of it is, there's nothing to say. For instance one might talk intelligently about music, but how can the Bach worshippers and the "boogie" fiends be reconciled? (Every newspaperman knows that the public must be pleased!) Still that leaves a great number of topics that might be discussed with a minimum of mental effort—and on and on it goes till the inevitable topic comes up. Three guesses, and of course you'll miss it. Naturally it's PEOPLE: what else is the greater part of the human race interested in?

Let's start with you. Have you contributed anything to the drive for May Day yet? Please do! Miss "Kay" has done such a splendid job so far and the rest of the plan (much of which depends on you) is equally splendid. But if you don't, and this is a dire threat, Susie Snoops will get you. She'll rummage through your trunk, she'll ransack your closet, she'll ever goad your guilty conscience till you give up and do something. So write home tonight, then when the halls are canvassed you won't have to say no.

Then there's the girl who—well you know there's one in every class. The story went about like this:

Dr. Higginbotham—"Now that is the path which the hamburger and the bun take in the digestive track. Are there any questions?"

Miss Bright—"Yes, Sir. What became of the mustard and onions?"

We Teach To Teach

Question of the Week

"What characteristics do you lack that you would like most to possess, and why?"

Lanie Gill Matthews: Beauty brains, charm, and personality so I can get all the men.

Jean Watts: Beauty, because I wasn't born with it.

Martha Bryant: A good-looking figure so Jack will fall for me.

Elinor Lawless: Being patient. I guess I want to have my cake and eat it too.

Millie O. Spain: Intelligence so I can make A's without studying.

Mary Rudi Carver: Sense, because it comes in handy once in awhile.

Martha Kitchen: Joe.

Mary Davis: Ability to read music so I can play "Prisoner of Love".

Margery Beane: O my gosh, beauty, so I can go places faster.

Wilda Hunt: Patience and fortitude so things will go my way.

Judy Hughes: Personality for future reference.

Betty House: Originality so I can be original.

Catherine Snell: I can think of only one thing and that's not a characteristic.

Margaret Beasley: Punctuality so I can get to class before it ends.

Nelwyn O'Brien: Kilroy was here and I haven't been able to think.

Ruth Eggleston: The ability to think of quick answers to questions such as this one.

Pat Hall: Beauty and brains so I wouldn't have to worry about Eddie.

Joan Wilson: Some sense so I wouldn't have to study.

Helen Wilson: Lots of book knowledge so I won't have to struggle hard at S.T.C.

Jessie White: Ability to refrain from getting "call downs" 'cause it looks as if "campus" is just around the corner.

Colanthia Rippon: To be dignified, sophisticated, and noiseless like the rest of the girls on third floor Main. Who am I trying to kid?

Renee Horton: Find more time for studying so I won't have to get up at 4 A. M.

Shirley Hillstead: More sleep 'cause I get tired.

Virginia Reed: Fingernails so they'll stop calling me "Stubby".

Corky Corvin: Ability to think for things like the "Question of the Week."

Martha Ann Robertson: Some sense 'cause it might come in handy around here.

Virginia Clay: Ability to make A on English—'twould be nice you know.

Betty Webb: Nerve enough to roll a coke bottle down the hall after bed-check and not laugh when asked if I did it.

Norma Roady: Be quiet after 11:00 and get off "campus".

Irene White: Nerve—thought I would!!

Barbara Smith: Outstanding personality 'cause it would come in handy.

Evelyne Rippon: Be a good little girl so I won't be "campused" again. Ha.

Margaret Tate: Ability to understand college rules and regulations 'cause I would like to know what I'm doing.

June Beck: Feeble minded so I could understand everyone else around here.

Rec Lacks Only Props to Complete Western Air Square Dancing Creates

"Swing that purty gal
To your right!
Hug and squeeze her,
Hold her tight!
Dosy-dos and climb the tree—
Then come on home,
Like the Infantry!

Well, it's the age of the dance, and the dance of the age would seem to be Dosy-Dos! Miss Kay calls the figures and the jig is on—western folk dance, that is.

All the old rec needs now is a grain of saw-dust, a mess of corn likker, and a razor-back or two, for a genuine, off-the fiddle, way-back-in-the-hills, left-alamandin' 'shin-kickin'."

Given a passel of our rough and rugged co-eds—the Martins and the Coys just wouldn't have a prayer—and a demure line-up of gingham and calico—busy dodging tobacco juice—and they'll just naturally promenade. Of course, you have to remember that this isn't a ball-room, for goodness sakes. The formalities are definitely out. "Come here, gal, and lemme swing ya" is the accepted form. Accompanied by a masterful jerk in the right direction, this is very effective. My, Grandma must have had a rough time. Bet she loved it too.

Well, anyway, "Eve--rybody swing his OWN! Swing 'er twice, and BRING 'er home!" Usually, they get there. A little dizzy maybe—but they get there. Of course this younger generation hasn't quite the touch with a left-alamand that its fathers had. A certain twist, put there no doubt by the influence of the Big Apple, seems to appear now and again, which is more than faintly suggestive of the modern jitter-bug. The spirit, however, is definitely there, and undampened by the fortunes of the grand-right-and-left, which occasionally leave two

Bed-Check

STC was gaily bedecked in flowers this past week-end. The occasion? Mid-winters at Hampden-Sydney. Cute girls that attended were too numerous to mention, so we'll just say that from all accounts a good, good time was had by all.

What's this about men invading Junior Building again? Seems as though they can't resist the place. We can't imagine why.

Jane Mantiply isn't talking whenever anyone mentions Johnie's haircut. Don't you think it's cute, Jane?

Certainly was good to see Muriel Crostic and Carolyn Grimes back again. Just like old times.

Who is Anne Motley's good looking man? We would like to hear more about him.

Tolley was too, too excited over her date on Saturday night. Must be big-time.

Nancy Jessee had a wonderful time this week-end. Just ask her about it.

Gussie came back radiant from Roanoke. What we want to know is what is the big attraction there.

What's this we hear about Spindler? Seems as though she dyed her hair momentarily just to get the current man to have his hair cut. Tricky, ain't she?

Mary Agnes took a flying trip to Richmond last Sunday, and we are still wondering about what the occasion was. Give us the info, Mary Agnes.

Ruthellen Mears is the popular one on annex. All those phone calls call for an explanation.

We hear that Gwen Smith had a knocked out time at Radford this past week-end.

Wasn't Martha Frances surprised to see Harvey after that long separation? Does he still talk in circles?

Nancy Parrish, Jane Johnson, and Katie Lawerence had A-1 big time this week-end. Let's have all particulars, girls.

Ann Fulgham certainly did have a good time with John. Isn't she the cute one, though?

We hear that Nancye Litz is planning a reunion with Richard soon. Don't let those West Virginia boys get you down, gal.

What about Babb's, Yonce's, and Baker's experience with a policeman, Man Alive.

Jane Fox is slowly recuperating from that big time she had recently.

Who is the cute man that Margaret Jones is dating? We'd like to hear more about him.

Time to close shop, so long for now. See ya next week with more juicy morsels of . . . . well anyway, we'll see ya.

Yes, 'Such Is Life' As Lights Go Out, Water Runs Cold

It really is surprising the number of things that can go wrong here at STC. For instance, one grand and glorious night, when there isn't a good movie showing, when "the regular meeting" that night is cancelled and no one decides to call a class meeting, when no one is giving a party, when roommate visits the library, you resolve to study. You simply have to catch up on all the work you missed this week-end, and tonight is the ideal time to do it. So at 7 o'clock, when the bell rings, when the clock strikes, when the factory whistle blows, you go steadfastly to your room. After hanging

STC's Varsity Team to Play Lynchburg College on Friday

Farmville Defeats Panzer College

S.T.C.'s varsity basketball team will meet the varsity team of Lynchburg College in the S. T. C. gym Friday afternoon, February 7, at 4:30.

S. T. C. played Lynchburg last year and won by a score of 31-27.

This is the second game of the season, but many more have been scheduled both at home and away.

Farmville State Teachers College varsity basketball team defeated Panzer College for Physical Education and Hygiene of East Orange, New Jersey, Friday night on the Farmville court by a score of 35-13. This was Farmville's first varsity game of the season, and the team's first real chance of working together to know the outcome of the season's hard practice.

The Farmville squad kept a lead in points during the entire game, and the final whistle blew with S. T. C. leading by twenty-two points.

After the game, Farmville entertained for the Panzer girls with a tea in the Senior Rec.

'Our Boys' Compose Basketball Squad

Did you ever see an S. T. C. basketball player dribble all the way down the court? Sounds like a foul, doesn't it? Not when those S. T. C. boys play though. "Our boys" put their heads together to find something to do after classes and they came out of the huddle with a basketball team, complete with a coach. They asked Mr. Philip A. Roberts, pastor of the Presbyterian church to be their coach. He is willingly and ably helping them to materialize their idea. The twelve or fourteen boys practice every Monday, Thursday, and Friday nights in the S. T. C. gym. So far they have had only several practices, but they are progressing splendidly. The team expects to play several games, both on the S. T. C. court and on other courts.

With this brand new team, only one thing is lacking—uniforms. Don't you think, girls, that we could do something about that? It would be a fine gesture on the part of the girls to buy them for the team, or possibly we could get them through the Athletic Association.

This year's basketball season promises to be even more exciting than usual. Everybody come down and support the teams. Yell for the girls, but don't forget the boys. But then, it wouldn't be necessary to remind you of that, for I'm sure the co-eds already have our wholehearted support.

BITTERNESS—a human quality everyone condemns publicly yet uses privately.

BEAUTY—the ability to leave the impression of something desirable.

Lohr Designated Captain of Team In Basketball

Margaret Lohr, senior from Brightwood, was elected captain of the varsity basketball team.

Twenty-eight girls were named by Miss Olive T. Iler, physical education instructor who is in charge of basketball, earlier this quarter to compose the varsity team. The captain was elected by these girls.

Those girls named on the team are Alice Ann Abernathy, Lou Baker, Marjorie Beane, Winifred Beard, Jeanne Bentley, Griswold Boxley, Kitty Sue Bridgforth, Betty Burchett, Jane Burchett, Jerry Colgin, Hilda Edwards, Margaret Ellett, and Judy Griffith.

Also, Ann Hauser, Sue Hundley, Pat Ritter, Margaret Lohr, Helen Londeree, Edna Longworth, Bettie Parrish, Nancy Parrish, Jessie Pickett, Norma Roady, Nellie Smith, Joanne Sterling, June Walsh, and Mary Young.

out the "Studying" sign you open your psychology book. But what happens? The light goes off. Someone has blown the fuse. Some girl has chosen the night you want to study to use a bad ironing cord. And, as you well know, it takes an hour at the very least to have the fuse fixed. Such is life!

Another thing that always goes wrong at STC is the hot water system. Seems to us that the water can't read well enough to know its suppose to be hot at night. But why, oh why, does it have to be cold the very night you want to wash some sweaters? Oh well, such is life!

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

Greetings from the section of the dug out. You sports lovers are no doubt having to restrain yourself from going out from under the roof to play. Be patient, spring will be a little late this year. Several have already taken advantage of those blue skies and brought out their skates, for a turn around the back on down to the corner. Nevertheless skating is excellent exercise; fact that you may skate in your sleep has nothing to do with the idea.

Green and White needs more representation on the volleyball, and basketball courts for general practice—so get on the ball and bring along a friend for an hour of practice. Your class needs your support for the coming events, but it is essential for you to have eight practices in your favor—a few extra hours in the gym will be good for you and you won't regret having the practice.

How about those late after class hikes? You really should try to get used to keeping in good health by getting away from the high walls and people for a bit of peace and quiet thinking—there is no better way to acquaint yourself with the surrounding neighborhood, and lanes away from school. Take a hike soon along with your friends—absolutely nothing like stretching out before you have to go back to your lessons, and you will have a clear mind.

This is all for this week, until next issue be sports minded, and get into the game.

Cinderella was right, for at that moment THE GIRL IN CALICO walked up again.

"YOU KEEP COMING BACK LIKE A SONG," Richard commented.

"UNCLE REMUS SAID that it is about time for your bus to leave, Richard," was the young girl's retort.

"Cinderella, will you come with me? Then we can LOVE ON A GREYHOUND BUS. There may be STOMPING ROOM ONLY, but IF I'M LUCKY we'll get a seat."

So Cinderella and Richard, STEPPING OUT AT MIDNIGHT under BUTTERMILK SKY went on a SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY.

An open association meeting of the Y will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 4:30. Each student on campus is a member of the Y. W. C. A. and is invited to this meeting. Wednesday night, Dr. Allen will lead a discussion group answering any questions that the students may have. This meeting will be at 9 o'clock in the Senior Rec.

The chapel talk on Thursday will be Dr. Allen's last scheduled talk. He will be on our campus for three days, and the students are asked to take advantage of every opportunity to hear and talk with Dr. Allen. He is very interested in young people, and he has had much experience in working with college students.

The Prayers Committee of the Y, headed by Laura Jean Comerford, is preparing a series of devotional messages to be distributed to each room. These devotionals are centered around the theme "Will Christianity Work?" They are to be distributed the week prior to Religious Emphasis Week in order that the students may use these in preparation for the week of religious concentration.

Patience, Fortitude Make Joan of Arc Outstanding Person

By Mary Beane

You, who sit in the Rotunda, perhaps glad to rest after your wars, give us the impression of sadness. Yet, there is look of complacency in your eyes, and your mouth is drawn in a stern line. Could you be sad, complacent, and stern at the same time?

Perhaps you are sad because you go unnoticed by the host of youths that crowd past you many times a day without so much as a glance in your direction. We stand looking at you; a hint of sadness darkens our hearts while we think of the thoughtless people that ignore you daily. Then we begin to recall your past, and our hearts become light. For were you not one of the greatest women in history? Did you not lead men to perform Herculean feats and to gain victory? You fought and gave your life for your country and your fellowman and for the things you believed to be right. If it had not been for you, England and France might this very day be under the same rule. What do you care for the moderns? Let them ignore you; you see them not; you are thinking only of the past and are sad because of your reminiscence.

Complacency is certainly a definite factor in your facial expression. You have much right to look complacent. That was a task well done, our heroine. It took courage, ability, and a strong faith in God to lead your troops to victory.

But why are you stern? Maybe you are thinking of the differences in the world today and in your world of the fifteenth century. How much time youth wastes on trivialities, when there is much work to be done. At sixteen years of age you were the leader of an army. How right you are in thinking that youth wastes time in matters of little importance.

You are the symbol of purity, honor, and faith.

And we also heard Miss Kay promise that, if they were good boys, they would have a dance in which the girls hang on their necks. Well, watch out for the revenooers, and happy Sadie Hawkin's Day!

Savage Appointed College Dean, Lancaster States

Richmonder Comes Here On April 1

William W. Savage, assistant head of the Richmond Consultation Service and Supervisor of Consultation Services throughout Virginia, has been apponted dean of State Teachers College, according to Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president. Mr. Savage who will begin his new work April 1, is the first dean of the college that Farmville has ever had.

The new dean is a graduate of the College of William and Mary and holds the Master of Arts degree from the University of Chicago. He is pursuing further graduate work at Chicago. He was one of the organizers of the Richmond Consultation Service which is a division of the State Department of Education. During the war, he was acting head of the organization.

In commenting upon the appointment, Dr. Lancaster stated that Mr. Savage is eminently fitted for his new position and that he will make a notable contribution to State Teachers College and the state of Virginia by individual work and counselling with the students.

Philosophy Club Bids 13 Students

Bids were extended to 13 girls to become members of the Philosophy Club, according to an announcement by Dr. J. P. Wynne.

Those girls receiving bids were Grace Anderson, Clarkton; Elizabeth Bennett, Keeling; Lee Carter, Concord Depot; Jean Conroy, Norfolk; Louise Dalton, Pulaski; Audrey Lee Davis, Farmville;Mary Lou Feamster, Beckley, W. Va.; Mary Virginia Goff, Kenbridge; Evelyn Hair, Danville; Virginia Jones, Concord Depot; Betty Lewis, Hickory; Mary Agnes Millner, Danville, and Mary Louse Thompson, Blacksburg.

The Philosophy Club has been organized and developed by the students themselves. It was organized in 1936 by Jenney Wilson, Blanche Doswell, Mabel Barrett, Loulie Shose; all of Richmond and Louise Hendricks of Long Island, Virginia. The aims of the Club have been modified somewhat in response to the growth and expansion of the College. But in general the organization serves two purposes. First, it gives some recognition to that very limited number of students who demonstrate unusual capacity, interest, and effort in the critical study of the conceptions, beliefs, and values that control the lives of us all. The organization thus rewards in some small measure certain unique intellectual qualities that are too often overlooked by our schools and colleges. Second, the Philosophy Club provides a means by which students, who are interested in those issues of human life that have aways challenged the attention of intellectual leaders, may share their experiences with one another and with members of the faculty and other invited guests who are interested in the same problems.

New members of the Philosophy Club will be honored at a banquet to be held in the college tea room on Thursday night. This club has recently been reorganized on campus, and new members taken in.

Holton Announces Estimate Deadline

Grade estimates will be sent in to the Director of Personnell's office on Wednesday, February 12, according to Mr. S. M. Holton, Jr.

Freshmen and sophomores may obtain their grades from their advisors, and juniors and seniors may obtain theirs from the head of the department in which they are majoring. Students are asked to confer with their advisors as to when they may obtain their grades. The grades will be in the advisor's office on February 13.

Estimates are not a final grade. The purpose of the estimates is to let the students know what type of work they are doing.

Library Features Exhibit on Music

The music exhibit in the library commemorates the February birthdays of Fritz Kreisler, Jascha Heifetz, and Felix Mendelssohn. A violin, miniature piano, and recorder and records are featured. Books from the library's music collection used in the exhibit may be charged out to anyone who would like to use them. The Piano, Its History, Makers, and Music by Weir will be of interst to professional and amateur pianists. This volume was written not only to include every important subject connected with the piano, but also to condense the information with clarity. If you want to know what is good piano playing and why it is good, read The Challenge of Listening by Howard McKinney and W. R. Anderson. You will find the answers in this book. Our New Music by Aaron Copeland, discusses contemporary composers and their styles. The author attempts to make these differences more understandable to the lay listener. In Like Softest Music, Rose Heylbut brings together a collection of stories which emphasizes the human side of our great musicians. These stories are based on fact but presented as fiction. A History of Music In Pictures edited by George Kinsky, traces the course of music through the centuries in a way that makes for pleasure. Several biographies are featured, including a collection of letters. Also samples of the library's holdings in musical magazines.

Dr. Allen Selected As Guest Speaker For Religious Week

Dr. J. P. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Bristol will be guest speaker for Religious Emphasis Week, February 17 through 20.

The theme for Religious Emphasis Week will be "Will Christianity Work?"

Monday night, February 17, there will be a reception in honor of Dr. Allen. The faculty, administration and heads of organizations are invited to attend.

Tuesday morning Dr. Allen will speak to the student body during the chapel period. He will also speak in chapel Wednesday and Thursday.

Dr. Allen will conduct a fireside chat in Student Lounge at 7 o'clock. Each student is urged to attend.

An open association of the Y will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Wednesday night Dr. Allen will discuss all questions that have been put in the question box. This meeting will be held in Senior Rec at 9 o'clock.

The Prayers Committee under the direction of Laura Jean Comerford is preparing a series of devotional messages to be distributed to each room. These devotionals will be centered around the general theme "Will Christianity Work?"

Sarver Named Election Official

Clle Sarver, senior, was elected chairman of the publications committee at a student body meeting Tuesday night.

The publications committee is composed of the retiring editors and business managers of the three publications, one faculty advisor from each publication, and one representative from the student body who serves as chairman of the group.

Following the appointment of the publication heads, the nominating committee will meet to nominate for major and minor officers.

Red Hearts, Red Bows Decorate Many Valentines

Entwined hearts and sophisticated little cupids in big red bows are hanging around again, the aromatics spirits of amour are in the air, and aw, gosh, will you be my valentine? Well, if it's kissing you've been missing, the stage is set, the music is soft, and now's the time to do something about it. After all, who could resist the perfume and dew-drops of the real old-fashioned lace and bleeding-heart valentine? You must, of course, use great care in the selection thereof. There are expressions of the passion in many moods, and the wrong selection—either too fast or too slow—can be disastrous.

If you're pretty certain that the object of your affections is as far gone along the path of star-dust and moonbeams as yourself, then you are safe in those super-glamorous big and red hearts, dripping lace and deathless affection. For example, this one is really potent—It can't, that is to say, go wrong:

"Wherever I go,
Wherever I be,
You're the only one
In the world for me!"

You see? Oh this:

"My love for you
Will ever flow,
Like 'lasses down

Then there are those more or less in the experimental line, for the bashful, backward characters who have done nothing more than duck their heads and blush sweetly as you passed by. A little push in the right direction may be all they need—like this:

"Dearest William, sweetest Billy,
Don't stand there and look so silly,
Show your heart, as I do mine,
When you receive this valentine."

For those who are not so particular WHO—just throwing out a line, as it were, we have such as this:

"I want to be somebody's darling,
Somebody's turtle dove.
Pray don't buy me diamonds,
All that I want is love."

If it's the point you want to get across, without messing around with the frills, you might follow the example of the high school student, who minced no words with his student teacher. He presented her with a large creation bearing a Tarzan-like hero, simply

Y Again Sponsors Week Of Religious Emphasis

Every year the Y. W. C. A. sponsors a religious emphasis week on our campus. Next week is devoted, in chapel programs and other programs, to religion. It seems that every week should be a week of emphasis on religion, but we are grateful for the one week that is devoted to this purpose.

This year the 'Y' has been fortunate in securing Dr. J. P. Allen as guest speaker. Dr. Allen is well known and we are delighted to have him speak on our campus. He will speak to us during chapel hour period, and at many other programs. One that should particularly appeal to students is the fireside chat that is planned. This will be an informal discussion.

We, as students, should never lose faith in God. He is a personal friend and companion in time of need and at other times, also. Besides being all this, he is our Savior. The presence of God should be ever near us.

One can never learn all there is to know about God. Some come closer to doing this than others. We need to read, listen to others, and study diligently, and even then we don't know it all. A closer understanding of God is something to be valued, and how else can we obtain this without studying him?

"Be Ye, therefore, followers of God."

Success of Mardi Gras Depends on Students

Saturday night brings a colorful event to our campus; a time for reveling and lighthearted abandonment, a time for laughter and playful deception. Mardi Gras brings us all the gaiety of the famed New Orleans fete as we don the traditional masks and costumes, for it reproduces in miniature all the frolics of the original. It is also the only costume ball of the year which serves to make it even more outstanding among the year's events.

Mardi Gras was first held on this campus in 1932 under the auspices of Pi Gamma Mu; which still sponsors it. The selection of a queen and her court are traditional features which never fail to cause excitement and eager anticipation. In the past there have been editorials urging girls not to forego the event because costuming is a problem; that seems to be entirely out of date now. Anyone who has had any experience with productions knows that with a little ingenuity and almost a minimum of effort a most original creation can be produced. (Remember the atomic-age pupils in Circus?) This year with United Nations as the theme there is even more scope for invention besides the wealth of national costumes.

Don't let Saturday night find you reading the latest novel. Be sure to let the spirit of the festival sweep you away into the riot of fun so that in being someone else for just one night you find new joys to replace old cares.

True Valentine Spirit Needs to Prevail

Long, long ago there was an old monk who spent the best days of his life giving to the poor, caring for the sick, and making the little childrren, who clustered around him, happier by some word and or deed. For many years this monk continued his services of kindness until the day came when he was no longer able to render his thoughtful deeds because he was taken very ill,

It was then that the people of the neighboring village had an opportunity to show their gratefulness to one who had so enlightened their lives. The men, women, and children were continually sending him fruit, messages, of love, ad caring for him in the best manner possible.

When this man, whose name was Valentine, died, he was named a saint because of his goodness and thoughtfulness to others. To think of him, is to think of love, but sometimes we wonder about how much love is involved in one of those comic valentines.

Times do change, don't they? Fifteen years ago, we would have been satisfied with a pretty lace valentine, but now it has to be no less than a box of candy. In this respect, one can hardly blame us for liking the modern conception better.

Puddin' n' Sauce

So far the principle endeavor of this column has been to present incidents that stand for the "other side" of life on the campus; a middle course, so to speak, between the worthy-but-neglected editorials and the much-perused Bed-Check. Thus knowing that our intentions are good and that to be didactic is the least of our desires will you be lenient and let us "preach" just once?

No doubt that every student on this campus is appreciative of Beauty and feels a certain amount of pride in the beauty of our campus. If this were not so there might be an excuse for the careless way in which we behave toward it. All of which leads up to the fact that we are destructive. Haven't we all blithly carved our names on the Rotunda and made paths across the campus, poured water on the hard-wood floors, and smudged the freshly painted walls? Of course it wasn't intentional, but even that isn't a good excuse. Let's all try to do our part from now on to make S. T. C. a better place for our having been here instead of leaving it looking like a battle-scarred batiment.

Before you finish reading the Rotunda be sure to notice the schedule of concert trips; there are a lot of worthwhile concerts you won't want to miss.

Mardi Gras Ball

Voice of Our Readers

At the beginning of the current session in September a new plan for Chapel was inaugurated. Chapel attendance was made voluntary and the number of meetings reduced to three a week, on Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The Chapel Committe with Dr. George W. Jeffers as chairman, has presented uniformly good programs. The attendance has been disappointingly small, embarrassingly small at times when outside speakers have been with us.

It is good for us to meet together as a college community. It has been my hope that mature college students would absent themselves from Chapel only when there was some valid reason for being absent. I was entirely willing to leave this decision to the judgment of each student.

Frankly I am distressed that in this attempt to place our assemblies on a sounder basis I have met with so little cooperation. It is impossible to believe that important business is keeping two-thirds or three-fourths of the student body away from Chapel at a period when there are few other college duties scheduled.

We shall continue voluntary Chapel for the rest of this session. Attendance at each meeting will be estimated and a decision will be made for or against voluntary Chapel for 1947-48.

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president

Dear Editor:

Write your grandmother, call your mother, get access to your next door neighbors closet right away. If thoughts of all those dreamy lookin' men in their handsome tux isn't enough to give you that Mardi Gras urge then just go look in Martin's window at the four lovely prizes.

There are two prizes for the prettiest costumes; the first is a rhinestone bracelet and the second a gold filgreed bracelet set with rhinestones also. For the most original "get-up" (dare we say costume?) there is a pair of bronze book-ends, and red alligator wallet for the runner-up.

You get men, music, soft lights, masked magic, and maybe a prize all for the nominal sum of a ticket. It's a bargain in these days of high livin' for anybody's two cents; and 'sides that it solves the problem and makes sure that this Saturday night won't be the lonellest night of the week after all. Therefore, see you all at the dance!

Sincerely,
RICKIE KING

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

It looks as if Tech got a bunch of our girls last weekend. K. Parham seemed pretty excited over the trip. For details of the glorious weekend, just see her and the rest of the girls who were with her. It might prove interesting.

We didn't know Ginny Walsh got embarassed but, ... seems to do it.

Just who is that tall, dark, handsome lad we've been seeing Dolly Ann Freeman with?

Sometimes we wonder who's girl "Rusty" is. Is it "Pappy" or Neale?

We hear that our little Jackie Watson is still pretty peeved over the H. S. C. dance and "Guts."

The S. T. C. co-eds seem to be doing all right for themselves. Better ask B. J. Cecil about that.

Lohr, when is that wonderful Turner coming back again? We do want to see him.

We're mighty glad to hear that Hill is happy again.

There was a great commotion at Cactus Inn one night when Nelson Snyder walked in with lipstick on —his forehead, of all places!

It seems as though Erla and Dick have their in's and out's nowadays.

Bobbie Jean, here's hoping David wasn't mad about that cute blond date you had.

For news of some really big times, just talk to Gene Farmer and get her to tell you all about Carter and the fun they had in Richmond.

The Bronx cheer goes to the bright little soul who turned the lights off in the "rec" Sunday night.

Stars have appeared in Marjorie Boswick's eyes again. She's gotten that big invite to the V. M. I. Ring Figure.

The University of Richmond was also graced with the presence of our girls last week-end. Ask Gris Boxley and Polly Reaves about their big time.

For instructions as to the playing of that game called Bridge by the light of a cigarette lighter we suggest that you see Mary Lou Graham.

Next time you get an orchid don't think you're cute. Laura Jean and "Gin" Tindall are really the ones—you can believe it or not, but those two got THIRTY SIX baby orchids apiece for the dance at "Tech" last week-end. You think that's all, but thats just what you think. Their two Romeos also bestowed another corsage on each.

THE COLD WIND DOTH BLOW

AND WE SHALL HAVE SNOW? The wishful hunters at Charlottesville last weekend will vouch for the fact that snow lay all about so deep they couldn't even set a hoof outside the stables for the hunt. Miss Shields, May Wright and friends journeyed all the way up to the University Town only to have Ole' Man Winter clamp his icy hand over the countryside and shake his hoary locks everytime anyone even whispered "Foxhunt". Charlottesville hath other charms than horses, however, so time was not wasted.

The bitter winds have prevented much "horsing around" to corn a phrase. The stables are having a hard time confining the unexercised horses. They, as well as us, will welcome a warm spell when they can stretch those stiff muscles and fill their lungs with "aire pura". Here's to the spring!

A RUMOR TO NOTE

Indeed we'd all be pleased if the rumor would materialize that Miss Shields is going to get three more good horses. We could really use them in the Spring Show, aside from everyday rides. Don't be surprised if you soon see three newcomers prancing the trails.

Next week will have more news. 'Til then,

MARY HARRISON'S

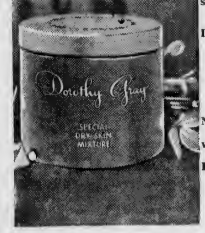
On the Ball

So you want to find a warm place, never let it be said that you can't get warmed up on the volley ball court or racing up and down the basketball court in a dignified scramble for the ball. If you are not keeping up with your eight practices, you should come down to the gym and catch up with your extra or additional practices. Don't forget to get in those last minute practices, because there will be strong competition during the inter-class games.

A varsity basketball player is not eligible to play on class teams, and so plenty of people are needed for the teams. The points for basketball and volleyball are ten points, and will be given to the class winning the games. This will help to bring up the total of points for the color cup, and every one is urged to work hard for the team. If you aren't playing on a class team, don't forget that you can still support your team by cheering for them at the games. Listen to the annoucements for the date and time of these games and come down to support your players.

In all of these class games good sportsmanship is the greatest asset to your team, and so let's show our cooperation in every phase of the game. Here's wishing luck to the green and whites and red and whites. Dont forget the way to the gym, and let's stay in the game.

Ping-Pong



If you see someone running around the hall holding her head at an angle, she has without a doubt been watching a little white ball flip across the net. Ping-pong is a game of skill and endurance, and it is fast becoming one of the favorite American sports. If you have not given yourself a real chance to become a follower of this sport, get a friend and a couple of paddles and a ball, plus a net and a bit of enrgy and get into a fast game, and I promise you that you will want to make Ping-Pong a habit.

Rhinestones Add Costume Sparkle

SPARKLE, SPARKLE, SPARKLE! That's you wearing your new rhinestone bracelet or clip. Yes, rhinestones have gone to the head of the class in popularity. A sparkling choker or pin worn on black gives just enough glitter to be smart.

Conversation jewelry has a starring role in the form of unique lapel pins, pendants and chatelaines. Key chains have come up in the world, too. They've taken a success course, have emerged sufficiently well-groomed to appear clipped to a belt or pocket, chatelaine fashion or suspended vertically. No need for Richard to bother with the door when you (you sharpie) have your key with you!

Season's news in earrings are affectionate little hearts inspired by St. Valentine; as one large heart pierced with an arrow on which a frisky Cupid is perced will capture his heart. For that well-tailored look wear good-looking monogrammed jobs with graceful initials that give that possessive look.

Handmade jewelry is a novelty making headlines these days. All kinds of materials have been roped in from silver to plastics, pebbles to hardware and even safety pins There are earrings and necklaces made out of not-so-precious metals which have a close resemblance to their swank store cousins. Wide, Egyptian collar and bracelet made from safety pins, multicolored jacks strung on a bathtub stopper chain, and a score of other originals are adorning sports clothes from coast to coast. There's no limit; just let your imagination go!

Dr. Negus, Chemist, Will Speak Friday On Atomic Energy

Dr. Sidney Stevens Negus, head of the department of chemistry at the Medical College of Virginia, will speak in the college auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday, February 14th. Dr. Negus comes through the courtesy of the Farmville Woman's Club, and his topic for discussion will be "Control of Atomic Energy."

He is well known in Farmville though not to S. T. C. students because his lectures are usually given at Hampden-Sydney.

Dr. Negus was born in Dudley, Massachusetts. He holds an A. B. degree from Clark, an M. A. from Harvard, and a Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins. His intersts and versatality are reflected in the long list of organizations to whch he belongs. He is well known for his textbook "Fundamentals of Biochemistry" and for the articles he has contributed to scientific journals.

All students are cordially invited to hear Dr. Negus when he appears here. His remarkable personality and sense of humor, plus his sincerity and graciousness, always attract a large group of interested hearers.

Valentines Exhibited In College Library

Valentine's Day, which is February 14, is being commemorated by an exhibit of valentines of the century in the college library.

The valentines were contributed by a member of the faculty. They include many types; some original and some of them commercial type. Among them are to be found big ones and little ones, some lacy and some plain. Each one has its particular sentiment of which there are both the printed professional type and the simple originals.

These valentines of the past which continue to the present should be of special interest to many on the campus who will learn that most of the ways for saying that same old thing have already been thought of.

The purpose of this exhibit is to reate more interest on the part of the students for the splendid collection of unused music books to be found in the library. Students are urged to make use of these and other informative books which are lying idle on the shelves.

Observing Typical STC Audience Proves Better Than Picture

Speaking of the movies, and somebody must have been, did you ever take any particular notice of the S. T. C. audiences? My goodness, if you haven't—what you've missed! Just take an afternoon when you don't especially want to see the picture anyway, and spend it noting audience foibles. The general conversation upon entering the theater is most revealing of why people are there. For instance, the gal is limp and bedraggled and very uninformed about the name of the story which she is about to see unfolded, the name of the cast—she doesnt' even know whether its Van Johnson or Peter Lorre— and is in general, not at all in the spirit of things. She slinks furtively into an inconspicuous seat on the back row, slides down onto the base of her skull and sits thus glumly throughout the picture. This girl has two tests tomorrow, has worried herself into a state of nervous exhaustion, and has finally come to the movies for rest and relaxation, and another darn good excuse for not studying. She is positively certain that both of her test-professors are sitting one on either side.

Following her is her roommate. Bright and cheery and full of high good humor, she chews contentedly on her popcorn. SHE knows whats going on—SHE just loves the Bugs Bunny cartoon—SHE had HER two tests this morning. She is free as the winds that blow, and she fears the presence of no professor.

Close upon the heels of these two there comes the girl with the date. Her hair is combed, her nose is powdered, and she smugly tows her catch straight on down the aisle to the fourth of fifth row. She has nothing on her mind even vaguely resembling tests—past or future. Happy, oh Happy, is she.

Then, of course, we have the fan. "Ooo," she gurgles, "Errol Esquitch!" There is no room for doubt as to her motives for being there. It's the good old Esquitch rough and rugged appeal, and you couldn't have kept her away with a bull-dozer. She sits blissfully on her spine, and wonders why the heck her own dear Johnny couldn't have been gifted with the brawn and brain and so on that are Errol's.

Well, it can be more fun than the movie, but don't try it with "The Razor's Edge."

Barter Theater Gives Shakespearean Play

Actors Present Play Here Tomorrow

Thursday night Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" will be given in the S. T. C. auditorium at 8 o'clock, the first in a presentation of three dramas being given here by the Barter Theater.

Written in 1699, "Much Ado About Nothing" is a skillful blending of comedy and tragedy. The scene is Messina, scene of campaigns by the Allied forces two years ago during the invasion of Italy, and familiar to many war veterans in Bob Porterfield's company. With a cast of 27, and 70 costumes, "Much Ado About Nothing" is the elaborate production of the Barter Theater repertory schedule. It uses every actor of the three regular companies under the direction of Owen Phillips.

The Barter Theater originated during the depression years in Abingdon, Virginia. The Theater toured Virginia until the end of 1946, and then journeyed out of the state to 12 other southern states. The troupe is returning to Virginia now and will resume its course in the home state until the middle of May. Then Bob Porterfield, founder and director of the group, plans a two-week run in New York, where he will reorganize for the return to Abingdon June 1. The present company of 35 actors, directors, and technicians was carefully selected from among 100 who tried out in Abingdon this past summer.

An appropriation of $10,000 from the Virginia Conservation Commission, plus other donations, has made it possible for Porterfield's dream of many years to come true —to convert his summer stock company into a year-round repertory operation, and to pay his players standard Equity salaries.

Panhellenic Dance Set for March 1

Panhellenic dance will be held in the gymnasium Saturday night, March 1, from 8 until 12. This is the quarterly open meeting of the Panhellenic Association.

The Southern Serenaders, an 8 piece orchestra with a male vocalist from Petersburg, will furnish the music for the occasion. This will be the first appearance of this orchestra at S. T. C.

Margaret Lohr, representing Pi Kappa Sigma on the Panhellenic council, is program chairman for the Association and general chairman of the dance. Barbara Montgomery, Sigma Sigma Sigma, is in charge of music; Betty Bibb, Alpha Sigma Tau, and Gwen Cress, Mu Omega, will head the decorations committee; Mary Frances Vaughan, Theta Sigma Upsilon, will handle tickets; Charlotte Grizzard, Phi Zeta Sigma, and Lee Staples, Gamma Theta, are co-chairmen of the floor committee; and Katie Lawrence, Alpha Sigma Alpha, is in charge of invitations.

The receiving line, chaperones, and no-break numbers will be announced at a later date according to Kitty Parham, president of the Panhellenic Association.

Panhellenic Dance is an annual closed dance for sorority members and invited guests.

Goff Elected Head Of Philosophy Club

Mary Virginia Goff, Kenbridge, was elected president of the Philosophy Club at a meeting held last Thursday night. Mary Lou Feamster was elected vice-president. Serving as secretary will be Louise Dalton, while Mary Agnes Milliner will be treasurer of the organization.

Girls who accepted bids recently were initiated into the club last week, at which time donkey ears were pinned on them as a sign of their recent acceptance. The Philosophy Club has been re-organized on campus just this year.

The Philosophy Club has been organized and developed by the students themselves. It was organized in 1936 by Jenney Wilson, Blanche Doswell, Mabel Barrett, Loulie Shose, all of Richmond and Louise Hendricks of Long Island, Virginia.

The aims of the club have been modified somewhat in response to the growth and expansion of the college, but in general the organi-

Spanish Club Meeting Features Music, Skit

The monthly meeting of the Spanish Club was held in the audio-visual room of the library, Tuesday afternoon, February 17.

A skit was presented by Evelyn Goodman, Iraida Ramerez, and Betty Davy. The greater part of the meeting was spent in the practice of Spanish songs and rounds.

The club also made preparations for the chapel program which they plan to give in April. Julia Perez was in charge of the program of the meeting.

Officers of the Spanish Club are Mary Wyatt, president; Hilda Abernathy, vice-president; Martha Anderson, secretary; and Ann Motley, treasurer.

'Pon My Soul! Elizabethan Guest Returns for "Much Ado"

"Heigh-ho the merry-o, what have we here? Why me thinks old Will is a-making of his plays again; be this a comedy or tragedy? I like the comedies far better, though Hamlet was passing fair. Ah, the knave who watches the door is not of sufficient wit to perceive my intents, I'll just slip into the gallery when his back is turned. What ho? There is none, and all sit in long rows: how the customs have changed since my last Sabbatical leave from above. Can it be that these are all gentry? —they certainly look it. Lud, the pretty maids, would that I were not dead these three hundred and forty-seven years!"

Thus saying, our friend of Shakespeare's time slips into the audience to see one of the plays so popular in his day. Let us carefully observe him to see how he likes it. Shh, the curtain is going up.

"Well my man, don't be so slow about it. Speak up, say your prologue and let us be on with the business. 'Pon my soul, there is none! What manner of play is this? I wish to know what is going to happen in this two-hour's traffic and the stupid scribbler neglected to write one. Well, on with it; I be ready.

"Ah ha, by the rood, 'tis Much Ado! Well do I remember the first time I saw it played, 'twas at the Globe I do believe. Ah, yes, well indeed."

Here he seems to sink into a reverie, rousing now and then to shout his approval or his displeasure at the actors who pay no attention whatsoever to him. As the play draws to a close he becomes more and more excited, shouting to Claudio that he is being tricked; urging Beatrice and Benedict on to further sallies of wit. Finally the curtain drops, and he makes his departure. The last we see of our

Graham Presents Dance Program In Lynchburg

Martha Graham the outstanding modern dancer of today will appear in Lynchburg at the R. E. Lee Junior High Auditorium, Saturday, February 22 under the sponsorship of the Fine Arts Committee of Lynchburg College. It is the first time in three years that Miss Graham has been close enough to Farmville for dance enthusiasts to see her.

Appalachian Spring, Deaths and Entrands, and Punch and the Judy will make up the program.

Appalachian Spring is setting a precedent in the Modern dance concert field. This is the first time since modern dance emerged from the ballet that a musical score of a dance composition could stand alone and people be content to listen to a recording of the music alone. The complete working, really a ballet, itself is a beautiful one—a pioneer study of a man and woman building their house "with joy and love and prayer." It is a touching picture of human relationships, timeless yet very real of the basic experiences, people living together, of love, of religious belief, marriage, children, work and human society in the pioneer days of early Pennsylvania. Aaron Capland has caught the freshness and homely beauty of American pioneer life without a trace of affection in the musical score. Miss Graham catches the spirit of "the old American dances" in her charlography. In both cases there is no attempt to be "folksy" but a feat of creative imagination.

Deaths and entrances termed a "legend of the heart's life" concerning three sisters who were "doom eager" as were the Bronte sisters is really a fantasia of the subconscious, touching upon reality at times, but never bound by the conventions or ordinary thought and existence. Hunter Johnson's music for this mystical work is a fine achievement of an enormously difficult task. The wonder of deaths and entrances is that in its relentless realism, it dares to disregard all narrative

Committee Plans Founders DaySlate

Founders Day will be observed on S. T. C. campus the week end of March 7, 8. This will be the reunion of the classes of 1887, 1897, 1907, 1917, 1922, 1927, and 1937.

Special emphasis will be given the Jarman Organ Fund this year. This fund was inaugurated last year in order to raise funds for a pipe organ as a tribute to Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, president emeritus of the college.

A full program for the week end has been planned beginning with a basketball game between Madison College and Farmville, Friday night at 7 o'clock in the gymnasium. At 8:30 o'clock, "The Taming of the Shrew" will be presented by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs in the auditorium. This play is under the direction of Miss Leola Wheeler.

Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock, the Farmville chapter of the Alumnae Association will serve coffee for the alumnae and faculty in the Student Lounge. Mrs. Marshall Watkins of Farmville is president of the local chapter.

Dr. Allen Comes As Guest Speaker

Discussions Feature Religious Program

Dr. J. P. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Bristol and graduate of Louisiana College, and the Southern Baptist Seminary, is guest speaker for Religious Emphasis week.

Dr. Allen has worked a great deal with young people and college students; and his Fireside Chat, conducted February 18, at 7 o'clock and the three chapel programs coming on February 18, 19, and 20 should prove of great value to the students.

Wednesday night Dr. Allen will discuss all questions placed in the question box at 9 o'clock in the Senior Rec.

The theme for Religious Emphasis week is, "Will Christianity Work?",and under the direction of Laura Jean Comerford, the prayers committee composed a series of devotional messages which were distributed daily to the rooms.

Monday night a reception for Dr. Allen was held in the student lounge. Members of the administration, faculty, and heads of organizations were invited to attend. Dr. Allen spoke in chapel yesterday morning and again this morning.

Red Cross Chapter Receives Scrapbook From Czechoslovakia

Red Cross scrapbook has been received from Teachers College in Bruno, Czechoslavakia. It was presented to Jean Edgerton at a conference at Alexandria.

The book contains a number of letters written in Czechoslavakia with the English translation. It also contains pictures. Our Red Cross chapter is planning to send one to Teachers College in Bruno. The first installment will be sent March 1.

Volume I will contain information concerning the location of the school, history of the school and statement of objectives, and descriptions of the school. Volume II will contain mostly material from the elementary school, and will be sent May 1.

STC Shutter-bugs Aim Cameras, Snap Pictures at All Poses, Angles

"Hey, hold that pose! Now smile —oh golly, not so big. You're not posing for a tooth paste ad, you know." These are typical remarks when an STC-er aims her camera in one's direction. Honestly, every day finds at least one shutter-bug taking pictures of her roommate or of her one and only.

There are numerous favorite spots for picture taking, and the site selected seems to depend upon the result wanted. For the comic effect, have you ever seen a better picture than that of a girl embracing our confederate soldier? Sometime she may send the snap-shot to her current flame with the following notation, "He seems to be giving me the cold shoulder." Well no wonder, he is a statue, you know.

For a close to nature effect, the fish pond seems to rate high. It is a beautiful place, but heed this warning and don't go too close because drowned rats never take a good picture. And never let the camera fiend talk you into letting her take an unusual picture like one poor soul did. She wasn't the same for days afterwards. Never thought the time would come when STC would harbor human flies.

And then there's that cute person who takes pictures from an usual angle so that when the pictures finally return Susie is standing on her head. One smart person even managed to get a pic of her friend's arm while artfully leaving the rest to the imagination.

So-o if this wonderful job of picture making continues, who knows, maybe someone will land a position with Mac Dougals' Bugle or some other well known publication.

Variety of Talent Seen In Class Productions

We have a lot of talent in our school. All one has to do to be sure of this fact is to look about them. Every year there are class productions put on. These productions usually feature talent from the class itself. Much hard work is put into these productions and they certainly merit a large attendance.

The first production to be put on this year will be presented by the junior class. The sophomores and freshman will give their's shortly afterward. Each presentation is given for the whole student body. Of course, it's nice to support your own class, but why not give the other classes a boost, too? The admission for each production is a very small sum, and can well be afforded by the majority of the student body. Where else can one receive such entertainment for so small a price?

Perhaps the finished product from the numerous rehearsals isn't professional, but we think it comes mighty close to being just that. We elect a girl to be in charge of our class presentation, and by so doing, we pledge her our utmost support and cooperation. Are we doing our best to make our program a success? We are the ones who can make or break it. The time is drawing near, so get behind your class and back it up by lending a helping hand.

Chapel Programs Merit Everyone's Attendance

The subject of chapel attendance has been brought up time and again in the Rotunda and in Student Body meetings. Perhaps you turn a disinterested ear when you are urged to attend chapel. Perhaps, though, if you would stop and listen one time to the description of the programs and the worthwhileness of them, you would find that they were speaking directly to you. It is you they are asking to come to chapel, not your neighbors who are already interested. Don't put off your obligations on someone else.

In olden times, the people held town meetings for fun and for business. It was a bond among them to assemble together and enjoy each other's company. Our chapel is held for the same reason. It is a time of fellowship when we have the privilege of enjoying good entertainment whether it be a speaker, an installation, a class stunt, or just plain singing for the joy of it.

Frankly, we are ashamed that we have to beg you to come to chapel. You should feel it a pleasure, but if not that at least your duty. Can any of you honestly say that you don't enjoy chapel once you are there? It is only a question of exerting enough energy to walk into the auditorium. That coke at Shannon's or box from home will still be there after chapel. Last minute lessons quickly thrown in that time might as well have been left undone. Listening to an inspiring talk, laughing or singing will put you in much better shape for class.

At the first of the year, a large chapel attendance could hardly be expected. The system was so new that the students weren't fully accustomed to going to chapel of their own accord. It's high time now, though, that you realized that if we are going to have chapel at all, it must be well supported. We should be happy that our president has given us the chance to prove this plan successful. We must approach the situation maturely with a sense of responsibility to see that this plan does not fail. We are sure that you all agree that voluntary chapel attendance can and must be made a part of S. T. C. Our president believes that we are adults and can be treated as such by allowing us the freedom of coming to chapel at will. We must not destroy his faith.

Puddin' n' Sauce

When it rains around here it really pours. A week never goes by without a lot of excitement but ones as full as this one (and don't forget that the Rotunda week runs from Wednesday to Wednesday) are not common. Everything from ball games at Hampden-Sydney to Mardi Gras dance have kept us in a whirl, not to mention those who sought entertainment elsewhere than on our delightful campus. Naturally each one of us feels that she is the one which everything befalls at the same time.

There is a great deal on the calendar this week so there is no time for musing over past pleasures right now. In the first place we are in the midst of Religious Emphasis Week which should serve as inspiration to us and help us find an answer to many of our questions. Then we are having the wonderful opportunity of seeing a Shakesperian play performed by professional actors tomorrow night when the Barter Theater brings Much Ado About Nothing to us. It will prove extremely helpful, if you are planning to go, to look over the play ahead of time so you'll not miss one bit of the humor in it. "Much Ado" is one of the wittiest of all Shakespeare's comedies; in fact, he almost lets Beatrice and Benedick "steal the show," so don't miss the fun by not knowing what's going on.

One can't help wondering what the coeds of the basketball team thought the night they couldn't get out of the Gym except through the dorm and ran into the abashed freshman with her visage neatly concealed beneath a mud pack. Gal from Mars, maybe?

As a rule 'tis better to let the Tiger handle the H.-S. situation and let us stick to the S. T. C. news, but this one is amusing enough to be shared. Shall we classify it under the heading of furthering friendly relations?

"Hampden-Sydney's beloved German professor, Mr. Firfnz speaking of the way everyone starts talking when there is a pause in class discussion said; "My goodness. I pause for station identification and the whole darn network tunes in'."

This is a week of surprises, so don't be too amazed next week to have your puddin from a new chef. How'd you like to know how the good neighbor mentioned above feels about it? Well, wait and see!

Girls Yell, Cheer Encouragingly As Co-ed Basketeers Perform

S. T. C.'s co-eds meet Pamplin's five, the balcony cheers encouragingly. Coach Roberts gesticulates madly toward the basket, the team nods solemnly, the whistle blows, and the game is on! There is, however, a slight impediment—everybody looks like everybody else. Tan and white uniforms would seem to be the mode, and who are we to say that they aren't lovely? A little confusing maybe, but real pretty. The referee, however, foresees confusion, and S. T. C. sheds shirts in the interests of identification. We must mention the one rugged individualist who blossomed out in what looked from the balcony to be red rose buds on his shorts. Possibly they were airplanes or some such, but they DID give the definite impression of red rose buds!

Anyway, a re-vitalized team, minus shirts, reappeared on the court, the whistle blew, and once again, the game was on. With the stirring strains of "Onward Farmville" ringing in their ears, how could they loose? A. R. Southall started the ball rolling, to coin a phrase, with the first basket of the evening, and from there on, it was anybodys dribble.

Remembering that a feature is a feature and not a news article, no attempt will be made here to gift our readers with the technical points or angles of the game. We interest ourselves solely in the abstract impressions. They're more fun anyway. And so we settled down happily to counting broken bones—and there was promise of not a few. Either the floor was unaccountably slick or the boys had one vitamin pill too many for lunch. The acrobatics were just beautiful. We had cartwheels, several graceful double-side - ways backward somersaults and one honey of a collision. The results, however, were not catastrophic, and Mr. Robert's grin gained momentum with the score. It was at about this point that Miss Barlow drifted down to give a practiced eye and professional opinion of the proceedings, and she stayed to pronounce them satisfactory. The balcony was by this time loaded, and very close to going over the edge at crucial moments Well, that would be one way of making a basket. Anyway, as we said, we represent the un-technical so you'll have to look on the sports page for the score.

Food, Fun Highlight Junior Production

Wham! Bang! No, it couldn't be, but that is a terrific drummer and who's that at the piano? Duchin? No! Why it's Virginia Tindall! All this we found by sneaking into Senior "Rec". Might have been Barnum and Bailey, T. Dorsey or Cugat but these sounds were all by-products of the juniors and their Wonderland.

Gay, colorful, melodious, humorous and above all delightful. In reality, a wonderland in which you will be taken far, far from S. T. C. and your present problems to Holland, Hawaii, and Mexico, all in one thrill-packed evening.

You must come at 8:00 on February 25 to gaze, and see with your own eyes what can happen here when the juniors try! You won't be jus' sitting in the auditorium for long. You'll be transported right out of this world when Jeanne Bentley starts to sing. It's a magic wonderland and a wonderful way to spend the evening and 25 cents.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

It seems that dance week-end is a wonderful time to acquire interesting reading material for this column.

Certainly do want to congratulate Ginnie Hollifield—jus' love the way Phineas Muncel Randall—(Ducky)—beamed, too.

Nomeka, you still deserve a prize for originality, but y' date was so cute that you really didn't need a morale booster.

Did you see Gussie Hargan's white orchid? Her V. M. I. keydet must really have it!

Martha Morehead found someone she liked "right much" at the dance. He'll be back—she hopes.

Dolly Anne and Anne Ford are being threatened by one brunette senior who wants to help them keep Graham a satisfied co-ed. (She's a Phys. Ed. major, too, so we're just warning you!)

Lee Staples was just about the "cutest one" of the week-end with three H-S boys waiting for her in the Rotunda Sunday.

Valentine's Day!! Did you ever find out who sent you all those gardenias, Anne Verser?

Jackie Watson departed from her long kept diet on this memorable occasion in honor of Guts' candy. Jack'd better hurry home!

Mary Lawless got two boxes of candy from Cooper — pounds! pounds!

'N' Jessie Pickett had roses from one and a mos' sentimental telegram from the other.

We were all glad to see Glenn Ann and "Mush" this week-end. Come back again soon, Glenn Ann!

Have you heard about Grace Mallory being the "only girl in Lawrenceville when all the Virginia boys were there?" Or have you seen Jane Fox's picture of Gordon?

B. Spindler, why for have you become so music conscious? These "long hairs"!

Elinor, you looked most nice Saturday night, and we think Bill is even better looking than you "sculped" him!

Carmen and Martha let "Tiger" and "Peck" supply the masquerade touches for Mardi Gras. Lazy girls??

Speaking of H-S boys, we wonder what happened to Galilee. There they were — then they weren't!

Ask Ricky who's PIKA pin she acquired Saturday night. By the way, Doug was here for the dance.

Nomination for "the" couple—Margaret Wall and Broun Dameron.

Barbara Graham and Orren and Clie Sarver and Joe were in Charlottesville and Harrisonburg this week-end.

Peggy Stephenson went traveling too 'n' got a ring.

Wash the stardust out of your eyes gals and give us something to write about next week. See ya'--

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Monday marked the beginning of what is known as "Religious Emphasis Week" on our campus. This period is set aside for the focusing of our thoughts upon the spiritual phase of our lives.

In our perplexing world of today, we are faced with the problem of finding a way to world peace and brotherhood. Every imaginable scheme has been suggested, but thus far, none has proved adequate for the task. "Will Christianity Work" for our World?

Not only in the world as a whole do we find a need for true senses of value, but also we have this need here on our campus. "Will Christianity Work" for our college?

In our personal lives we need a guide for our spiritual, as well as our social and mental growth. Daily we make important choices which affect our entire personalities. These choices are significant with regard to our present and future lives. "Will Christianity Work" as a basis for these everyday actions of a personal nature?

Dr. J. P. Allen is on our campus to guide us in finding the answer to these and other questions. You are cordially invited to each of the meetings during Religious Emphasis Week.

Sincerely,
PATSY DALE

THUS LIES THE TALE

Remember the lady with snakes for hair? Well, even if you remember Medusa, the hideous Gorgon, we'll bet you don't know that she's connected with the Riding Club at S. T. C. (like Don Ameche is kin to Alexander Graham Bell). It seems that back when Jupeter and June were hitting it off fairly well and the gods were dining on ambrosia and nectar every night, the famous flying steed Pegasus materialized from a thin, red trickle of blood. Someone finally put the pressure on Medusa, and we do mean pressure. As her head rolled off ignominiously into a ditch, her blood mingled with the earth and produced Pegusus. Yessir, he sprang right up wild as a March hare, not even Mercury could keep apace with him. This one day that wondrous horse met a woman, and you can just guess what happened. She tamed him right away. Yes, Minerva placed a golden bridle on him, and mighty Pegasus became docile to the ways of man.

Thereafter the actions of Pegasus became legendary to the gods. He bore his master Bellerophon to his successful battle with Chimaera, a fiery dragon. When Mount Helicon was so enchanted by the songs of the Muses that it just took off, a stamp from the hoof of Pegasus brought it back to earth again! To top it all off, where his hoof struck the earth, there gushed forth the fountain Hippocrene, sacred to the Muses. Quite an animal!

As usual, though, they don't stay tame long. One day Bellerophon got a little too eager and tried to fly to the sky. Pegasus just tossed

On the Ball

This week proves most eventful in the athletic calendar for winter sports. The volleyball and basketball tournaments will begin soon: so go on with your interest and support your class teams by practicing on your spare afternoons if you are the fortunate type and have any to be among those present in the gym.

Don't forget that you are a vital part of your class team and they will always need your strong support in the games. There will be great thrills in store for you at the games between the classes; try to be on hand either in the cheering section or a participator in the game. Be sure you have eight practices in your favor, or you will not be eligible to play, and you still have some time left to make up the practices you have missed. Ten points will be given to the winning team for the sought after color cup. That should bring you out as a supporter.

This is excellent weather for skating down the main street or shall we say sidewalk, but be careful not to clip a dog on the block. There is absolutely nothing that can give you more vitality and fun, not to mention the exercise you will receive from your hour on wheels. A person can always tell when spring has come to Farmville by the sound of laughing voices, and the rattle, rattle of skate wheels on the pavement. Won't you find a pair of skates and tour the neighborhood with a friend?

Hiking is still a subject to be talked up here on campus, and this goes without saying, that there is no better way to spend time under the clear blue skies. How many of us literally neglect this healthful activity here at school, and accomplish as little real hiking as possible other than a walk down to the corner or grunt when we carry our laundry an extra step. No real walking is done until we have left the hurried life on campus, except from one class to another. There is no excuse for going out in rainy weather just for the sake of a long walk, that will only give you a free ticket to the Infirmary with a rough cold, and make you miss endless number of classes. Be healthy and walk away your troubles, but pick a clear day to do your walking.

Watch for announcements in the dining room concerning the time and date of the class games that will be played here soon. Until next week get on the ball and turn out for the sports, and be a good sport.

Kappa Delta Pi met in the Honors Room last Thursday night. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster was the guest speaker.

TSU Places First In Grade Averages

Theta Sigma Upsilon had the highest scholastic average for fall quarter of this year, according to Miss Ruth Gleaves, Panhellenic adviser. The sorority placed first with an average of 2.03.

Mu Omega placed second in the quarter average with 1.98. Third was Phi Zeta Sigma with an average of 1.91. Other sorority averages were Pi Kappa Sigma, 1.88; Gamma Theta, 1.72; Alpha Sigma Alpha, 1.67; Sigma Sigma Sigma, 1.64; and Alpha Sigma Tau, 1.46.

At the annual Panhellenic tea held in the fall the scholarship plaque was presented to Mu Omega for having the highest yearly average for 1945-46. They won the plaque with an average of 1.94.

A plaque purchased by the Panhellenic Association is awarded each year to sorority making the highest scholastic average for the preceding year. Upon the announcement of the highest yearly average the plaque is presented to the winning sorority and the Panhellenic Council has engraved in the appropriate space the name of that sorority. When the plaque is filled the sorority whose name appears most often has it permanently.

Averages for spring quarter last year were Mu Omega, 1.95; Theta Sigma Upsilon, 1.83; Phi Zeta Sigma, 1.80; Alpha Sigma Alpha, 1.72; Gamma Theta, 1.69; Alpha Sigma Tau, 1.64; Sigma Sigma Sigma, 1.62; and Pi Kappa Sigma, 1.49.

orientation in time and space and to distil the "heart's life' into a single evening—in a single room—a single gown—a life time lived between the first and last moves of a game of chess.

Punch and the Judy, an affectionate satire of the "Iquabble and Scuffle" which fill the lives of men and women is a gay and ingenious blending of the commedia dell'arte, of mythology and of other elements all fused together by Miss Graham's inexhaustible imagination. What strikes the eye entertaining, with man, the extrovert, woman the unsatisfied, yearning for a dream Symbolized by Pegasus; the lambent Pretty Polly only too ready to take her place, the complications of family and the experiments with lay figures by the woman beface settling down to domestic tranquility, all attended by the three fates who are part of gossip, part compulsion and part a record of how the human world wags.

Robert Porterfield, who with his Barter Theatre, will present a play here tomorrow night. See story on page 1.

Dr. Allen, Guest For Emphasis Week, Speaks In Chapel

Dr. J. P. Allen, guest speaker for Religious Emphasis Week, had as the subject of his talk in chapel yesterday, "House Keys, Pine Trees, and Parenthesis."

Dr. Allen used the objects in this unusual title to symbolize conditions of life. He reminded the students that the thoughts they have—good or bad—are the materials that go in the building of their intellectual houses. He said that one could not cheat on these building materials because in the end the person trying to do so will be exposed. He illustrated this point by saying that students may be able to "get by" in college now but in later life they may need the information which they will have forgotten because they failed to get it honestly or because they skimmed it. In either case, the students would be forced to admit that their intellectual houses are shoddy once the key opened the door to those houses.

Dr. Allen brought out as the second point of his speech, the fact that students often ride habits and attitudes of life as though they were pine trees. In his youth, he recalled having swung on trees as a favorite sport. Going back to the familiar site of those trees years later, Dr. Allen noted that they were scrawny and stooped while those that had not ben ridden stood in majesty. "So it is with life," the minister said. "We make bad habits that we think can be bent back later on, but that is not so. What we do now, we will do tomorrow."

He concluded by saying that we are in life now; life is not something that we will enter into after we graduate from college. According to Dr. Allen, this life that we are now in corresponds to the parenthesis. This being the case, the student body was urged to make of it the best.

committee to attend this program because of its special interest to them as future alumnae and because of their obligation as hostesses to the alumnae during the weekend.

Luncheon will be served in the College Tea Room at 1 o'clock Saturday for the guests and members of the faculty. Longwood will be open from 3 o'clock until 5 Saturday afternoon with members of the Grandaughters Club as hostesses. Time will also be allowed for the reunion classes to meet from 3 to 5 Saturday afternoon. A formal dinner will be served all guests and students in the dining hall Saturday night at 6 o'clock.

Saturday night at 8 o'clock, the second performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" will be presented. This will officially close the program for the day.

Last year approximately $2100.00 was raised for the Jarman Organ Fund and the committee in charge of contributions hopes to greatly exceed this amount this year. Margaret Lohr and Miss Carolyn Eason are in charge of contributions from the student body and Dr. G. W. Jeffers and Mrs. Florence Richardson are receiving contributions from members of the faculty and administration. The Alumnae Association, realizing the need of S. T. C. for a new auditorium, started this fund last year with the purpose in mind of raising the money to install a pipe organ when the building is erected.

Miss Virginia Bedford is chairman of the Founders Day Committee. Serving with her on this committee are Dr. Edgar Johnson, Miss Carolyn Eason, Margaret Lohr, and Mrs. M. B. Coyner, alumnae secretary.

Special features for the observances will be a basketball game between Madison College and Farmville on Friday night, at 7 o'clock; two performances of "The Taming of the Shrew" by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs at 8:30 o'clock Friday night and at 8 o'clock Saturday night; and an alumnae chapel program Saturday morning.

Students Urged To See Play Friday

Tickets for "The Taming of the Shrew" which will be given Friday March 7 and Saturday, March 8, will go on reserve for student, faculty, and alumnae in the registrar's office Tuesday morning, March 4 at 9 o'clock.

These tickets are complimentary to everyone as a special Founders Day feature and the expences of production will be shared by S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney. It is necessary to have tickets, but students are urged not to obtain them unless they are certainly planning to attend. The Founders Day committee also pointed out the fact that the students could cooperate by attending on Friday night so that sufficient tickets would be available to the alumnae for the Saturday night performance.

Due to the basketball game, which immediately preceeds the play Friday night, the curtain will rise at 8:30. On Saturday night the performance will begin at 8 o'clock. These are both to take place in the S. T. C. auditorium.

'Seamy' Side of Play Glamour Carried On By Unsung Heroes

Deep down in the heart of each of us there is (or has been) a secret desire to go backstage to see the "seamy" side of the glamour which we see from across the footlights. Well, here's a second-hand chance to see what's going on behind those closed doors of the auditorium, and a view of the activities of those unsung heroes who do a colossal amount of work and don't get the curtain calls.

First let's get the low-down on the staging crew and their job. After seeing "Much Ado About Nothing" last week, most of us are expecting a setting similiar to the bright one used by the Barter players; that, however, was an Italian background especially adapted to the play and "Taming Of The Shrew" is to be given against the traditional Elizabethan stage. One alteration is to be made nevertheless, in that there will be two balconies one on either side (those familiar with the usual arrangement know that there is customarily one balcony over the inner stage.) On our stage it is impossible to reproduce the Elizabethan one exactly, but you may rest assured that the ingenius staging group will catch the spirit of the thing no matter what difficulties they have to surmount.

Costuming is another story, for there is more work involved in that than can be imagined. Staging will be relatively easy due to the fact that there are no scenes to shift, and pages in costume will signify changes with location cards; but the costuming is a "whale" of a task. Whereas the Barter players used the Italian costumes of the period, we are going to use the Shakespearian ones to be in keeping with the setting. Our wardrobe, while not very productive of the necessary authentic dress, is furnishing most of the finery that can be converted to the "real McCoy"—then a few articles are being obtained from other schools. Whenever this play is given it is possible to costume it in either Elizabethan or Italian style and it has been given by some companies in modern dress; however, in order to make it as authentic as possible the costuming group is employing all the wit and ingenuity in its power to garb the actors in the very best style.

In producing "Taming of the Shrew" it has been decided there are many technical difficulties, but these have been "brought under control". For example a whole presentation would take three hours, so it had to be altered to the modern taste; also there is no distinction made between scenes and acts so the cast has decided to divide it in two parts similar to the way it was done by the Lunts in their famous presentation.

If present indications may be taken as a basis for judgement the work already done on the drama is certainly good insurance for its being a "howling success"!

Myers Announces Cotillion Dance Date

April 12 has been the date selected for the annual spring Cotillion dance, according to Barbara Lee Myers, president of the Cotillion Club.

This will be a closed dance for Cotillion Club members and goats only. Members of the club will take part in the figure which will be lead this year by Nancy Whitehead.

French Circle Holds Monthly Meeting

Monthly meeting of the French Circle was held in the audio-visual room of the library Tuesday afternoon, February 25.

After the regular business meeting the program was turned over to Eilen McMullen. Everyone took part in playing the French games "repondez s'il vous plait" and "allez-op". Part of the meeting was spent in learning to sing a new song, "Les Ambrojes". The program ended with the sing of "La Marseille" by the entire group.

Sophs To Perform March 5 at 8 p. m.

Tickets will go on sale tomorrow February 27, for sophomore production which will be presented on March 5 at 8 o'clock in the Rec.

The production this year will center around Club '49 since it has been a tradition of the green and white classes each year to build their presentation on this theme. The acts will feature songs, dances, dialogues, and other forms of amusement and entertainment.

Practices are being held every night in the Rec. Those assisting Jean Cake, production chairman, as committee heads are Helen Jackson, assistant general chairman; Barbara Boyle, staging chairman: Dorothy Ramage, lighting; Martha Hatcher, costumes; Phyllis Alley, music; Ann East, tickets; and Anne Verser, food.

"All of you who would like to recall good times experienced at the beach in the past or who are looking forward to a wonderful summer of surf and sand won't want to miss the sophomore production," according to Jean Cake, general chairman.

Girls Will Canvas Halls For Costumes

Members of the May Day committee will again canvas the dormitories this week and next week for costumes to be used in May Day.

Miss Emily Kauziarich, director of May Day, has urged all students to lend any costumes that could be used this year in the festival which will have the theme, "The History of State Teachers College."

YWCA To Sponsor Drive On Campus

World Student Service Fund is a unique and inclusive organization of American students and professors for participation in emergency relief and rehabilitation in Europe and Asia. It was created in 1937 at the outbreak of the war, and it is sponsored by student religious forces. Christian and Jewish, in the United States.

The combined W. S. S. F. drive and the Red Cross drive will be carried on at S. T. C. from March 10 through 17, with three interesting chapel programs arranged to highlight the campaign. On Monday, March 10, the chapel speaker will be Margaret Anne Wilson, a graduate of the University of West Virginia, where she was a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and active in many other campus activities. Miss Wilson has a natural speaking talent, and has worked in W. S. S. F. campus drives in past years.

Chapel on Wednesday, March 12, will include the showing of a movie illustrating the great need of money both there and abroad. Miss Louise Farrard, who has had a wide and varied career in Red Cross work, will speak on behalf of the Red Cross in chapel on Friday, March 14. She has worked extensively both in this country and overseas serving with the Red Cross, and has spoken on numerous occasions during similar campaigns. Miss Farrard attended New York School of Fine and Applied Design for Women and Corneli University.

With a goal of one thousand dollars set for the campus, both students and members of the faculty are urged to contribute to

Are We Good Neighbors?

Much has been said about the good neighbor policy in the past, and it is still a topic of discussion. Perhaps we have added our part to the discussion, but have we ever brought the discussion home? Have we ever thought about it in terms of our college life? If we haven't already thought about it, now's the time to give it serious consideration because if we aren't good neighbors here, the chances are that we won't be when we leave here to take our places in the world.

Take an inventory of yourself. Have you really practiced the "give and take" rule that makes for a full college life? We say that we are so busy that we just don't think. That is just a feeble excuse for our faults, and we really overwork that statement. We need to realize that here we are judged for our everyday manners, not for our party manners. How many times have we stopped to chat in the halls without a thought of how inconsiderate this is to many people who pass through them? If we have a special reason for stopping, why not step to the side and leave the halls clear? There is much more to being a good neighbor than just that. We need to think about all sides of our college life.

We need good neighbors most in our dormitory life How many people could say about each of us, "She certainly is the best neighbor that I've ever had". People don't say that just because they know that they can count on you when they want to borrow. A good neighbor is polite, thinks of the other person first, and above all else, she is one that can take the bad news along with the good. How do we stand?

If we are dissatisfied with how we measure up to the standards, remember it's never to late to make a fresh start. Prove to others and yourself that you can be the best neighbor ever. Someone has summed up the first requisite of a good neighbor by saying "Courtesy costs nothing, use it freely".

Thanks

Religious Emphasis Week, sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. was brought to a close last Thursday. The dates set for the speaker have passed, but Religious Emphasis Week has not ended. Every week is Religious Emphasis Week.

We are indeed grateful to those people who were responsible for bringing such an outstanding speaker as Dr. J. P. Allen to our campus. It will be a long time before we will forget what he said to us. We will never forget some of the thoughts he brought to us. We won't forget such things as door keys, pine trees, and parenthesis. Nor will we forget the open discussion groups when we sat around and chatted with the Bristol minister. When we pray now we stop to think, if we are using prayer as a catalogue, a crutch, or a charm. These thoughts were brought to us by Mrs. Allen when she spoke to us at Prayers.

Religion is not something to emphasize only one week out of the year nor is it something to drag out for Sundays only. Religion is a part of us. Yes, every week is Religious Emphasis Week.

Congratulations

Congratulations go this week to the newly appointed publication heads. The publications committee has selected capable girls to fill these positions.

These girls will edit a yearbook, newspapers, and magazines of which you will be justly proud. However, no matter how well suited or well trained they may be, they cannot work alone. They will need the support of the entire faculty and student body.

These students have accepted their jobs; they have willingly agreed to give of their time and energy to bring the three publications to you. Don't let them down. Don't be quick to criticize their every move. Their primary thoughts are to give you the publications you want. Give them your full support.

Congratulations, girls, and good luck.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Last week we sorta hinted that you'd get your weekly concoction from a different chef and we aren't the ones to let you down—so here 'tis. When a man gets his hand in the batter anything can happen. At any rate you know the old saying, "too many cooks spoil the broth" so here's where we leave it all to one.

We enjoyed "Much Ado About Nothing" and are eagerly looking forward to the next two Barter Theater plays. But Shakespeare is still roaming around the campus somewhere, for we hear all this talk about the dramatic clubs' Shrew and her taming. We also wish real, real hard that we could make it up to Richmond one night this week to see "Henry the Fifth", which we hear is the show of a lifetime.

From out Hampden-Sydney way we hear that Mr. Firenze told another joke this week, so forth-with:

The well-known German professor called during the last minute of class on some student who hadn't prepared his lesson. The student who had been sure that he was going to get away with it, flashed Mr. Firenze quite a look, whereupon the teacher said "My, what a cursory glance—with the accent on the curse."

Another bit of news from Tigerland that will interest you—All H.-S. freshmen, after 10 days of very intensive ratting, will not be required to wear their rat caps any more. This business of taking off rat caps long before the year's end has been a tradition at S. T. C. for many years.

Question of the Week

What question would you like to have asked as Question of the Week?

Bobbie Graham: Why won't Richard open the door?

Sue McCorkle: Why don't we have some heat on first floor senior annex?

Betty Minetree: How does one go about latching on to Larry Parks? (From the Jolson Story, that is.)

B. B. Bowles: Who threw the whiskey in the well, and why?

Birdie Sarver: Which way did he go, George?

Lou Lovelace: Why doesn't Elinor Lawless just go on and marry that Bill of hers?

Heidi Lacy: Aren't you kinda glad we did?

Shuffle: Why don't we do this more often?

Lucile Upshur: What did the cat-fish say to the eel?

Anne Willis: Why, when the Powhatan Arrow stops in Farmville can't we have a train to Culpeper?

Mary Dickerson: Why was Ella Stone so anxious to go home last weekend?

Mrs. Hamner: Who uses 246?

Miss Garnett: Why does spring come only once a year?

Barbara Montgomery: Suppose I don't graduate?

Carmen Low: Where am I?

Jimmie Jones: Why don't the snow go?

Nelson Snyder: Wonder where Blalock is?

Nancy Whitehead: How long did it take the mush to rush down Grandpa's whiskers?

Annonymous: It is true that according to Bode the only solution to the problem of educational theory is the development of a theory of the mind corresponding to the changes in the conception of matter recently developed in physics?

Mary Miller: Anybody know of a ride to Washington?

Tootsie Hamilton: What happened to the "Lost Week-End?"

Violet Ritchie: Why is there a hole in a do-nut?

Despite Snow 'Twas Much Ado About 'Much Ado' Thursday

'Twas much ado about "Much Ado" last Thursday night. In spite of the snowy weather, the auditorium was crowded. To some of us, Shakespeare was an old friend. To others, his play presented a new experience. The flowery speech and flowing costumes of the Elizabethan characters were an awesome sight to see. We sympathized with the lovers and laughed with the clownish guards. The interesting story was easy to follow and we eagerly awaited each line.

Shall we go behind the scenes for a few moments? We enjoyed meeting the Barter players very much. It was surprising to find that off the stage they were just ordinary delightful people. It was even more fun to watch these people become someone entirely strange and different in the spotlights on the stage. It was a great experience for the girls that were allowed to help the actors set up the stage. They learned many valuable tricks that will help us in our plays. It was fascinating to watch the professionals put on their elaborate make-up and arrange their cosutmes. Incidentally, each player did his own make-up and made his own costumes.

Now, on with the play. Through the whole play, the players were either trying to make or break someone's romance. The lover and his fair lady had to overcome the difficulties planted by the scheming villains who plotted to prevent their marriage. They, of course, ended up happily married. The other romance in the play was that of Beatrice and Benedict. They both scorned marriage, but through the ingenuities of their friends, they were brought together, with not too many protests, in happy wedlock.

Probably the most popular characters of "Much Ado" were the comical guards. Their supple bodies lent themselves to many absurd and amusing antics.

In some scenes the stage was transformed into a ballroom where the handsome gentlemen and their ladies danced and prominaded in a typical Elizabethan fashion.

We thoroughly enjoyed the performance by the Barter Players and are looking forward to their return with their next play.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Are we really as inconsiderate at home as we are here at school? I'm speaking about those who delight in putting cigarettes on the floor when a perfectly good container is standing nearby.

The maids have a hard enough time keeping the floors clean and polished without our contributing more hard work for them to do. It really doesn't take much effort to put them in the proper place.

How about more cooperation in keeping our floors clean and free of cigarettes?

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Old man winter has really put on a show for all the gals and guys of S. T. C. (All eighteen of them guys, that is) But snow or no snow, those cute gals that went to W. & L. shore had it! Nancy Parrish took off like a big bird on Thursday. From all reports we gather that she had little or no sleep; in fact, she has been hibernating ever since. Peggy West, Dot May, and Jane Johnson decided that "Minks" were just the thing for this cold weather.

Nancy Whitehead, Nancy Dickerson, Martha Sours, "Birdie" Sarver, and Betty Minetree decided that the Univ. of Va. was as good a place as any to ah---keep warm. The bags falling to their chins indicated a fine time was had by all.

Barbara Jean's man, redhead from Tech, didn't let the snow keep him away. Maybe a ring had something to do with the method in his madness.

If anyone wants to see Anne Snead blush just ask her why they call Bill "Joke". It seems as if it had something to do with her being in Petersburg this weekend.

Lohr's back in school again with a big grin. Naturally Turner was around.

Orchids go to the cast and directors of the junior production. What we need is more entertainment like this.

Farmville was well represented in South Boston Ruth Ellen, Puss, Ginnie Sue went home with Mary Tolles. Ruth Ellen now don't tell us you didn't go Coon hunting.

Nick's having a hard time over at the practice house keeping her mind on "housekeeping". Instead she has her mind on John Taylor.

Martha Russell seemed to have had a hilarious time this weekend celebrating her anniversary with Neal.

Who is this attractive man from Hampden-Sydney that Betty Russell seems to be latching on to? Tell us more Betty.

Marjorie Miller seemed to have had a fine time at Chapel Hill this weekend. How about it Marjorie?

All we want to know is why Margaret Wilson won't pay any attention to this ardent admirer who keeps showering her with red roses and telephone calls.

Well that's all folks—We'll all be back to see how Richard is coming with that "dooh".

STC To Play W&M There Friday Night

17 Basketeers Will Make Trip

Seventeen varsity basketball players will leave at noon Friday, February 28 for Williamsburg where they will meet the varsity basketball team of William and Mary College on Friday night.

Last year S. T. C. defeated the team from William and Mary on the Farmville court by a score of 34 to 15.

The game between Bridgewater and S. T. C. which was scheduled for last Friday night, February 21, had to be called off because of bad weather. The game was to have been played here.

A large crowd of Farmville alumnae is expected to witness the game between S. T. C. and William and Mary this week-end. Approximately 100 alumnae saw Farmville defeat Roanoke College in Salem on February 14.

Girls who will journey to Williamsburg Friday are Lou Baker Winifred Beard, Marjorie Beane, Jeanne Bentley, Kitty Sue Bridgforth, Betty Burchett, and Jane Burchett.

JINGLE BELLS

The delighted citizens of Farmville saw a pretty scene last week if they looked out and saw Nicoti and the sleigh go by. Just ask Ducky and Jeanne how 1900-ish they felt as they glided across the new fallen snow along the side streets in the ole two runner. Everyone sighed and wished for the good ole days when hitchin Dobbin to the sleigh for going "over to the neighbors" was the most natural thing anyone would do. They had specially rigged harness then with silver sleigh bells jingling a steady tune as they trotted along. The most popular Beau Brummel in town was the one with the sleekest, prettiest pair of horses and the roomiest, coziest sleigh. Yes, indeed, horsepower really counted in those days.

Nicoti was out again Saturday pulling a sleigh full of mites about four to eight years old. These horses probably enjoy the novelty of the snow as much as humans.

Stay on the bit.

Library Displays Play Collection

With the presentation of "Much Ado About Nothing" by the Barter Theater Players, "The Taming of the Shrew" by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club on March 7 and 8, and the motion picture production of "Henry V" currently being shown in Richmond, the pictures by Edward A. Walsh of scenes from Shakespeare's plays and the books about Shakespeare now on display in the library should be of particular interest. If you are interested in authentic Shakespearian costuming and staging, Kelly's "Shakespearian Costume for Stage and Screen" will prove to be an excellent source.

The Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D. C., is unmatched by any existing collection. The book about this library and its collection gives information about the non-dramatic works of Shakespeare, source books; works that Shakespeare is known to have used in the composition of his plays; allusion books, books in which he or his plays are referred to or quoted; and excellent photographs of the exterior and interior of the Folger Library Building itself.

You might like to refresh your memory by reading from the collection of Shakespeare's plays. There are several copies included in the display in our library.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

This week's article is being written under snowy conditions but never let it be said that a few inches of snow can call a halt to our sports. No doubt by now you have followed the beaten path to the hills around Farmville. How many times have you been tossed from a flying sleigh? This is a relatively new activity on campus, since we have never had too many deep snows, but it has been fun you have to admit. There is a bit of advice you should live by, refrain from staying out until you feel numb, or you will be signing yourself up for a quick sore throat or some similar ailment. Take it easy on throwing those snowballs at the windows, who knows you may knock one out, get in some vacant lot for that particular sport, 'tis dangerous but fun, to say the least.

Are you keeping up with your general practices in the winter sports? Don't forget that it won't be long before the games will be played between classes, and you won't want to be kept off the team because you lack a couple of practices, so go down to the gym and work out with the rest of your team mates.

Have you had your daily dip lately? The water is just right and you will definitely feel refreshed, if you go down to the ole' swimming hole and practice your strokes, or maybe you prefer to wade. Some do. The pool will be open for your recreational hour, so take a break around 9 o'clock and take a dip.

Congratulations are in the making for our Farmville varsity basketball team on their recent games, they have shown the usual cooperative spirit in the games, and we are proud of them. Approximately a hundred alumnae saw the team play in Roanoke last week. The blue and white spirit never dies!

This is all there is for this week, be a good sport in all sports.

Spotlight Turns To Spring Suits

With spring "just around the corner" everyone begins to investigate the new fashions in suits The cutaway suit has stolen the spotlight this year with its dipping fishtail back and arrow straight side—slit skirt in rayon gabardine. The cutaway suit is designed for flattery for a fresh trim approach to spring in beige, gray, melon, white, or black.

The ever popular tailored suit is still very fashionable with a tab fastened collar, fitted waist, and fake upper pockets. The skirt may be plain or it may have a pleat in the front or back.

The travel wise girl this year will wear a ripple back jacket with a straight slenderizing skirt slit on the sides in wool.

The long-stemmed jacket is very popular this year with the cutaway back. It features wide revers and a quartet of trim flap pockets. This suit is wonderful for the figure with those slim-making stripes.

Those smart wool tweed suits with high collar, fitted waist, and panel skirt with a pleat back and front are always popular. Among the top suits this year is the classic wool skirt with a belted jacket, stem skirt with a slit in the front. Solid skirts with striped or checked jackets are also popular.

All one needs to know is the color and line most flattering to the face and figure and they can find just the suit to lighten their spring wardrobe."

Vincent-Viry Talks About French Student In Chapel Today

A series of talks have been planned for Annette Vincent-Viry, student teacher from Lyon, France, to be given in the near future.

Annette spoke in chapel this morning on the school and university life of boys and girls in France. She told of the academic aspects of school affairs and also of the daily routine, the sports in which students participate, the extra-curricular activities, and amusements.

On Monday, March 3, she will be with Miss Moran's geography classes to discuss France in general. Among the topics planned for this lecture are such pertinent subjects as the government of France today as it has replaced the old pre-war regime; political parties and their positions of power; and the future outlook as well as she can predict. Also at this time she will talk about the customs and people and will endeavor to hold open discussions whenever possible.

The Woman's Club of Farmville has invited Annette to speak to them on March 5. At that time she plans to discuss several of the topics which she brought before the students of Miss Moran's classes. Her topic will be "Customs and People in France Today."

Also on her schedule is another visit to Hampden-Sydney to talk to the French classes there. Last December she lectured to them in French on her native country. The date for her return engagement has not yet been determined, but is to be in the near future. These lectures make it possible for the students of French to hear the language spoken by one who also knows the current situation in France.

When the World Student Service Fund makes its appeal on our campus in March, Annette will also join them in making their program one of vital interest to all of us. If possible she will assist them in talking to other colleges in this vicinity, but her duties here prevent her from making any extensive tours such as students of other colleges are being called on to do.

During the spring Annette is to appear in Richmond at a number of schools to give talks on France similar to those given here to the various organiations. Besides these lectures at public schools she is planning to appear at Westhampton.

20 Girls To Attend IVCF Conference

Approximately 20 students from S. T. C. will attend the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship conference which will be held this week end at the Roslyn conference grounds in Richmond.

Dalia-Agostini and Loida Lahos will sing some Spanish songs at the meeting. Conference leaders will be Dr. Joseph Turner, D.D.S., Mr. Joseph Bayly, and Miss Sadie Gibson, and the theme will be "Christ Living Through us on Our Campus". Inter-Varsity groups from all colleges and universities in Virginia and Washington, D. C. will be represented at this conference.

Officers of the local group are Lee Carter, president; Mary Agnes Millner, vice-president; Gertrude Driver, secretary, and Nadine Lewers, treasurer. Miss Eleanor Boothe is adviser to the group.

Williams To Speak At KDP Meeting

Mr. Robert F. Williams, executive secretary of the Virginia Education Association, will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of Kappa Delta Pi, Wednesday, February 26 in the 'Y' lounge at 8 o'clock. Mr. Williams will speak on the teaching situation in Virginia, after which there will be an informal discussion. Everyone is invited to attend this meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Kappa Delta Pi is a national honor society in education in the broad sense. Its membership consists of students interested in the activities of the teaching profession including all fields. The membership in this organization is confined to students of the junior and senior years, whose scholarship ranks in the upper fourth of that of the student body.

Dramatic Clubs Will Present 'The Taming of the Shrew'

Play Will Be Given Friday, Saturday

Tickets for "The Taming of the Shrew," the Shakespearian comedy to be presented by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the H-S Jongleurs this week end went on reserve yesterday in the registrar's office.

Friday night's performance will begin at 8:30 while the performance Saturday night will begin at 8:00. This is the first time in a number of years that two performances of the spring play have been given.

Stars of this presentation are Bill Smithers of Hampden-Sydney as Petruchio, a gentleman of Verona, suitor to Katharina; and Gris Boxley, of S. T. C. as Katharina, the shrew.

Others taking part in the drama are Lucentio, son of Vincentio, in love with Bianca, "Red" Hanbury; Bianca, daughter of Baptista, Ann Nock; Baptista, a rich gentleman of Padua, Max Perrow; Hortensio, suitor to Bianca, Tom Vail; Biordello, servant to Lucentio, Bill Hamilton; Gremio, suitor to Bianca, Dan Bray; Grumio and Curtis, servants to Petruchio, Mason Cole and Betty House; Pedant, Walter Woodson; Vincentio, an old gentleman of Pisa, Carter Coghill; Tranio, servant to Lucentio, Pierce Brawner; Haberdasher, John King; tailor George Henri; servant McLin Choate.

The scenes are laid in Padua and at Petruchio's country house. The exact date of the first performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" is not known, but authorities estimate it to have been in 1597.

In addition to the cast there are more than 30 Dramatic Club members working with the stag-

400 Will Take Part In MayDayPageant

Outside Groups Volunteer Help

Over 400 will take part as the largest number ever assembled voluntarily on this campus in the historical pageant to be given May 3.

Some 300 dancers, a choral speaking group of 30 to 40 voices, a singing chorus of 100 voices all from the college, the children's acting group from the elemetary school and a negro men's chorus from the community will participate.

For the first time a formal outdoor stage will be constructed on the grounds at Longwood. Original music for one dance has been composed by Miss Emily Clarke of the music department. Dr. J. Beverly Ruffin has begun to house all historical material materials as a separate library unit.

The Grandaughters Club has staged two fashion shows on historical costume. A special plea is being made personally to each alumna as she registers for Founders Day. The May Day Committee is making another canvass of all halls next week. A similar canvass of the town of Farmville will be made within the next two weeks.

Orchesis, the Modern Dance Club and students taking Fundamentals of the Dance and Dance Composition are in the midst of tryouts for dance leads and parts as there will be more dance than choral speaking or song.

Miss Leola Wheeler will conduct tryouts for the choral speaking group immediately following Founders Day. Mr. Ned Crawley will conduct rehearsals of all song groups for the singing chorus. Practices will be held in physical education classes except for the choral and song groups.

A series of articles will follow at intervals in the Rotunda and two chapel programs will be given in the near future.

Red Cross Visitor Offers Safety Course

Robert O. Earle, Red Cross representative for first aid, water safety, and accident prevention will be on this campus March 10 through March 12.

He will offer a short course in accident prevention. All students 20 years old or older and any senior will be eligible to take the course. The class will meet for two hours on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings. This course will prepare students to teach accident prevention.

Mr. Earle will also teach an instructors course in water safety.

Easter Holidays

According to an announcement by Dr. Dabney Lancaster, Easter holidays will begin April 3 at 12 o'clock noon.

Classes will be resumed at 8:05 Tuesday, April 8.

Club '49 At Recreation Beach Offers Thrills, Excitement

Dar Betty.

Brr! I do wish the snow would go away. All I can do is sit and stare out the window an' dream about sunny climes and the beach.

You wanta'—let's go to the beach? We can—I wanta' go so-o badly. We can go Wednesday night. Meet me in front of Joan at 8 o'clock. We can go to "Recreation Beach" and stay at Club "49". You can see the whole beach from there. Imagine the sun'll be shining an' you'll smell the salt air as it exudes from the blue topped waves and white foam.

They've got the grandest "merry-go-round". Just think—the carnival music, the gay, plunging horses and the laughter. Don't you wish we could live at Club "49" all the time? That is, instead of STC. But we can go for one night though—we'll stay on the boardwalk til all hours. I heard that they have a marvelous looking life guard—just beautiful, he is. The best shoulders 'n' he stands up so straight. 'Course he's got a terrific looking gal, but you can never tell till you try.

You can see some peculiar people though. Somebody was talking about some terrible looking woman they saw there that—well she just wasn't the type of person you'd turn your man loose with. We can look for some beachbums too. It has always been my secretest ambition to be one—but maybe we'd better look them over first. I don't want to be too Bacallish (lean 'n' hungry, that is).

Do you think we should take our bathing suits? I sorta thought at first that it might help with that life guard but I've gotten so fat off these rolls that I dunno'. There are really some good looking "bathing beauties" down there too—whew. They look like Powers models an' can they dance around.

I was gonna' say something else too but—oh yeah—do you remember all the cracks the boys were making about the Barrel House Blues or wooden bathing suits or somesuch? I know some gal from North Carolina was mixed up in it and I wanta find out what it was.

Gosh, I can't wait cause we can have so much fun. Don't forget to bring some extra money 'sides your train fare of 25c so we can get something to eat. I'm so excited that I'll hafta quit and dream a-

Club '49 Boardwalk Will Serve as Theme

Boardwalk of Club '49 will be the theme of the sophomore production which will take place tonight at 8 o'clock in the Rec.

To build their productions around the general theme of a club has long been a tradition of the green and white classes. The acts this year will feature original, old and new songs, dances, dialogues, and other forms of entertainment.

According to Jean Cake, production chairman, you won't want to miss the bathing beauties, merry-go-round, and the shooting gallery and everyone will just fall in love with the lifeguard. "All of you who would like to recall good times experienced at the beach in the past", said Jean, "or who are looking forward to a wonderful summer of surf and sand won't want to miss the Boardwalk of Club '49".

Tickets went on sale Monday of this week. According to Ann East who is in charge of tickets there will be plenty of seats for everyone and students are asked not to push and crowd at the door.

Food will be sold at intermission. Anne Verser is in charge of this phase of the production.

Others assisting with the presentation are Helen Jackson, assistant general chairman; Barbara Boyle, staging; Dorothy Ramage, lighting; Martha Hatcher, costumes; and Phyllis Alley, music.

A slate has been drawn up and submitted by the present executive board which makes up the nominating committee. This slate consists of president, Jo Ann Brittingham; vice-president, Eleanor Bass; recording secretary, Denise Love; corresponding secretary, Paulne Nasser; treasurer, Barbara Grizzard; and reporter, Juanita Weeks.

Present officers of Alpha Phi Sigma are president, Jacqueline Bobbitt; vice-president, Sara Rawles; recording secretary, Ann East; corresponding secretary, Ann Owen; treasurer, Betty Palret; and reporter, Connie Newman.

Alpha Phi Sigma is a national honorary society confined to A-grade teachers colleges. Its membership is confined to freshman and sophomore students of high scholastic rating. Valedictorians and salutatorians of high schools are automatically eligible to membership. Other college students are eligible when their scholarship be-

STC To Observe Founders Day On March 8; 7 Classes To Hold Reunions Here This Week-End

Combined Drive Begins March 10

2 People Will Speak In Chapel Programs

March 10 through March 15 has been set for the launching of the W. S. S. F.-Red Cross Drive on this campus. It is a combined drive for the World Student Service Fund and Red Cross which is sponsored by the Public Affairs Committee of the Y. W. C. A.

It is very urgent that the students and faculty contribute all they can to the drive this year, as the need is very great. Members of the Public Affairs Committee will canvass the halls at night for individual contributions. Contributions may also be dropped into boxes that will be placed on the table in the hall at any time from Monday until Saturday night.

This year there will be a contest for the students between the different sections of Virginia and the other states. There will be boxes or bottles at the table in the hall labelled with the various sections of the state, and each student will be able to contribute through her own section.

The World Student Service Fund provides direct relief, rehabilitation, and reconstruction for students and professors in war-torn countries around the world.

Chapel attendance is also urged in order that students may realize from the speakers the immediate urgency for the money that they can give for this cause. Two very

April 1 Named Date Of Frosh Production

Freshman production date has been changed to April 1 according to Elizie Bragg, general chairman.

The production theme has been selected, but it will not be disclosed until the week before the presentation.

A general committee consisting of Ellnor Lawless, Cab Overbey, Ann Nock, and "Shorty" Long has been appointed to assist Elizie These girls will serve as a script committee. Other additions to committees will be announced soon.

Special Chapel Program Planned For Saturday By Committee

Emphasis Placed On Organ Fund

Founders Day which will be observed on March 7, 8 marks the reunion of the classes of 1887, 1897, 1907, 1917, 1922, 1927, and 1937. Reports and greetings from these classes and alumnae chapter will be given at various programs during the week-end.

Two performances of "The Taming of the Shrew" by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will be given. The first will take place in the college auditorium at 8:30 o'clock Friday night and the second at 8 o'clock Saturday night. Tickets are complimentary to everyone as a special Founders Day feature. This play was directed by Miss Leola Wheeler.

A special Chapel program will be held Saturday Morning. This program will feature reports and greetings from the alumnae chapters and reunion classes, a period costume show presented by the Grandaughters club, music by the College Choir under the direction of Mr. Ned Crawley, addresses by the president of the reunion classes, and a talk by Dr. Dabney Lancaster, president of the college. Students are urged by the Founders Day committee to attend this program both from the standpoint of their interest as future alumnae, and their duty as hostesses to the visiting alumnae.

The Farmville chapter of the Alumnae Association will serve coffee for the alumnae and faculty in Student Lounge Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Mrs. Marshall Watkins of Farmville is president of this group. Lunch will be served in the college Tea room at 11 o'clock Saturday and Longwood will be open from 2 o'clock until 5 with members of the Grandaughters Club as hostesses. Time will also be given the reunion classes to meet at this time.

Special emphasis is also being given the Jarman Organ Fund this year. This drive was inaugurated last year in order to raise funds for a pipe organ in honor of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, past-president of the college. This organ is to be installed in the new auditorium when it is built. Last year approximately $2100.00 was raised and the committee in charge hopes to greatly exceed this amount this year.

Miss Virginia Bedford is chairman of the Founders Day committee. Serving with her on this committee are Dr. Edgar Johnson, Miss Carolyn Eason, Margaret Lohr, and Mrs. M. B. Coyner alumnae secretary.

Leach To Lecture Here On March 24

Dr. Henry Goddard Leach will lecture in the college auditorium March 24 at 8 P. M. on "The Prospect for World Peace and Scandinavia's Contribution".

Dr. Leach is a well-known authority on Scandinavian literature and an exponent of international education — particularly between the Scandinavian countries and America. From 1922 to 1940 he was editor of Forum and Century magazines; but at the beginning of World War II he suspended publication of both and devoted his full time to the American-Scandinavian Foundation, an educational institution engaged in advancing intellectual relations between Americans and Scandinavians. Dr. Leach is a familiar lecturer in American universities and civic organizations and is noted for presenting complete and unbiased pictures of political, educational, and literary theories and practices.

Boerc Eh Thorn, in cooperation with the school, is presenting Dr. Leach as its annual speaker.

Chase Gives Talk On Folk Songs, Stories In Chapel

Mr. Richard Chase, a folk-lore specialist, spoke in chapel Wednesday on the folk songs and stories of Virginia.

Mr. Chase was brought to Farmville by the physical education and English departments of the college. He has been visiting the Farmville elementary and high schools, in addition to the S. T. C. physical education classes.

Although Mr. Chase was born in Alabama, he has lived in Virginia for many years and has made an extensive study of Virginian folk lore and dancing. Among the books which he has written is Jack Tales, a book of folk tales written for children.

Friday afternoon at 3:15 Mr. Chase will present a puppet show in the small auditorium.

Peculiar 'Goin's-on' Arouse Play Anxious STC's Interest

Only two more days of secrecy and wondering what's going on behind those closed doors of the auditorium. Honestly there have been some strange goin's-on down there. If there weren't, then why should Chris be seen walking around with a bull whip in one hand and a couple of broad swords in the other? Is the age of chivalry so dead that a maid must resort to such violent measures to keep the wolf from the door? And to hear Gwen protest, "Your arms are too long," might cause a question to arise in the mind of the innocent eavesdropper; but the answer to all these seemingly strange situations is quite simple when one is no longer outside looking in.

Don't worry, girls, Chris isn't setting a new style in self-defense —them's props she's totin', and Gwen was only lamenting the fact that she couldn't get a "Charles Atlas" into a neat little Elizabethan doublet. More's the pity? Still one can't help wondering whether all that practice Pat is getting in bossing the staging crew isn't going to come in mighty handy when she and Mr. Daniel start keeping house?

Now for a word about the actors and their part in the total job. As you know the play is about this old fellow from Padua that has two daughters, Ann Nock and Gris Boxley. NO NO we mean Bianca and Katharina, and all the wolves in the neighborhood are crazy about Bianca. Well, Katharina has to be married off too but she's such a shrew that before anybody can have Bianca, so they decide to see what they can do about it. Therefore, when Petruchio, better known as Bill Smithers, arrives they put her off on him. They couldn't have found a better man, according to Shakespeare, for Petruchio wanted the money for Katharina's dowry in spite of her terrible temper and he was determined that he could

Welcome Extended To S.T.C. Alumnae

This week we at State Teachers College are observing Founders Day. We would like to welcome back our alumnae which are such a vital part of our college. Particularly at this time would we like to welcome the "Seven" classes and the class of 1922 which is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary. It's good to have you back with us.

Returning alumnae will find that their alma mater has changed. New buildings have been put up, buildings remodeled, rules changed, but they will be glad to find that the Farmville spirit has not changed. It has not changed and it will not change. If they could see one of our intermural games, they would see us pulling for our classes. They will see that the same friendly rivalry is going on between the green and whites and the red and whites.

While our friends are visiting with us this week end we must show them that we do have the same Farmville spirit that they had when they were students here. We can show them this by attending all the functions that have been planned for this week-end. We must have a large attendance at chapel to show them that we are interested in what they are doing. We want to show them that we appreciate all they have done for S. T. C. and for all that they are doing.

The Founders Day guests, many of them, will not see the familiar faces that they did when they were here. We want to give them a warm welcome and show them that although the faces are different, the Farmville girls are still the same.

Think, Then Vote In Coming Elections

Everyone has become conscious that elections for next year are now beginning to take place. The junior class can hardly realize that they will soon be assuming the head positions of the students and it is hard for the seniors to realize that their work as heads is coming to a close.

This is an important time of the year. As we go to vote, let's not carry with us prejulices. We should vote for the girl that is the best suited for the position, not because she is your best friend or your roommate. Yes we'd like to see the girl who rooms across the hall have the office, but is she the girl that will make the best officer? We want to elect officers that will help our organizations or school, not one that will hold us back. Stop before you vote and think about what makes a good leader. Then without the influence of any one, vote for the one you are willing to follow, the one that you think will lead you in the right way.

When your new leaders have been elected, then follow them. Give them your full support and cooperation. Maybe the girl you voted for was not elected. Just because of that, don't sit back and sulk. Later perhaps you'll be glad it turned out as it did. Support each and everyone of the newly elected girls. They will need your support.

Again let us say, don't let anyone or any group influence you. Vote for the girl that you know will make the best officer. Just because she's cute or because you like the crowd that she runs around with is no criterion by which to judge.

How would it do to let the matter of admitting refugees to this country rest, at least until we have found a way to provide housing sufficient for the folks who are already here?

Puddin' n' Sauce

Greetings-gate, let's syncopate! Or in strictly profesional terms let's go to press with news of a gala, or galavanting (depending on whether or not you stayed on campus), week. "Anything can happen" observed a sage, and he might have been talking about one of our week-ends, 'cause with a dance there was enough going on to keep our friend "Bedcheck" buzzin' for a week—for proof of the statement consult said column. "I'll say old chap—Are you there?"

From the old familiar faces seen Saturday one would think it was a Founder's Day preview. No, not like the one the Grandaughters Club gave, these were just last year's girls. What we meant was that it surely was grand to have them back again.

If your sugar is so refined and you've got "de higher culture" get him to take you to see "Henry V" at the first opportunity. It deserves every bit of the praise which the critics have heaped upon it and still it isn't in the least bit "high-brow." Just remember that Shakespeare wrote to please the people; and that homo sapiens (a flattering term meaning humans) haven't changed much in the 1st 3 or 4 hundred years, then you needn't consider that he's over anybody's head. And speaking of the "bard of Avon" don't miss "The Taming of the Shrew" when Miss Wheeler, the Dramatic Club, and the H.-S. Jongleurs finally show the result of what's been going on behind those closed doors these past few weeks.

Message To Students

Called the Irish streetcar conductor to the pasengers standing in the aisle: "Will thim in front plaze to move up, so that thim behind can take the places of thim in front, and leave room for thim who are naythen in front nor behind?"

It is to you on our campus who are "naythen in front nor behind" in quality point average that I address this paragraph—to you who comprise the middle 50%. In so doing, I am trying to make quick amends, with apologies, for the little time this office has had to spend with you. Educators are frequently so concerned with the upper and lower percentiles of the student body that they neglect that vast army of students included in the middle 50%.

In American schools, particularly, contrary to European practice, we are guilty of devoting too little time to the upper percentiles, too. To that most worthy and yet most neglected group in American schools, the upper 8 or 10 per cent, we too often offer verbal encouragement and do little else to actually direct their ambition. "No need to worry about Mary", we say. "She can take care of herself", and yet Mary, with her fine mind, may lack experience. "She will go far. She does her own thinking", has often been our attitude, without ever questioning the environment and warring forces influencing that thinking. On the other hand, to that most petted and pampered and indulged group on any campus—the lower 15%—we devote long precious hours counseling, testing, questioning, and perhaps finally redirecting into other channels.

But you who are "naythen in front nor behind", it is with you I plead: bestir yourselves. If you can get a "B" grade, you can get an "A". It takes long hours of preparation to get a "B" but once you have reached the "B" level of performance, it takes only 15 minutes more to organize and pigeonhole your data sufficiently to obtain an "A".

Yes, I know, it is a poor scholar indeed who works for grades alone, but unless you can reproduce by recitation or on paper what you have absorbed from the classroom texts, your thinking is probably confused and your knowledge of the course too vague to be meaningful. Your grades, you see, are our most reliable index to your achievement.

It is true that man is not educated because of a diploma or a degree, and many very brilliant people have never graduated from college. An educated man is not always the one who has a degree, but he is unfailingly the one who has the power and habit of reflective thinking and the one who can translate that thought into efficiency. It is this habit of reflective thinking that I am afraid many of you middle 50% lack.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Now that the Ball is over, let's go snoopin' down Bed Check Alley to see what went on during the week end. Lots of I. C. C.'s rolled in, but in spite of all of that snow and stuff, the week-end turned out to be lots of fun.

If you don't think Pat Davis had a wonderful time, well, well you're all wrong. But who wouldn't with that cute man of hers namely, George Farry and boy, the rush he got.

The big mix up of the year occured between "Gussie" and Carter For all the particulars of this just mention a few things like Train Stations or Sunday night dates to "Gussie" and watch the reaction. It's a lu lu.

It sure was good to see Treakle back up here after so long. Seems as if her excuse was that she was snowed under, and from the looks of ole' man winter she was. Come back real soon, Treakle.

Congratulations to the basketball team for defeating the William and Mary team in that basketball game. How were the lights down there? Must have been pretty good.

Blind Dates Aren't Bad is the latest publication of one—Shirley Penn Slaughter. All of the inspiration came to her this week-end when she had that cute date down from Tech. Kakie is doing the illustration based on her "Bill".

"Pete", Kitty Sue, Nell and Sue seemed to have had a wonderful time in Suffolk over the week-end. Peir Como (pronounced with ze French Accent) seemed to hold all their conversation. If you don't believe us just ask Kitty Sue, she knows.

Boy, and we quote—the Boy, that is. When a man asks you up to U. Va., and then decides that he will come and get you, things just sound a little serious. Ask ole' Low what her charms are that can get four men in a Jeep down to S. T. C. to take her to Charlottesville.

Heidi seems to have calmed down slightly after that call from South Boston, but only slightly. She is still grinning from ear to ear, but it is oh so becoming.

And who was the life of the party this week end? You're right. None other than Petersburg's and Minnie's pride and joy, Marshall Johnson. Love that man.

Mary Helmer is the cute one these days, for there are not many of us who get a bid to Texas A & M. How about telling the rest of us how it is done, Mary?

For full details of the Washington Situation just see Hank about Garland and the rest of the population of Washington. Sounds like fun to us.

Nancy Lee's date was voted the cutest man on the whole dance floor Saturday night. Don't hide him from us any longer N. L. He really made a big hit.

Having a riotious time was Rosie, Bill, B. Ware and Betty Bibb the whole week-end long. Honestly all of us want to take a few lessons on how to keep laughing from the four of them.

Eades seems to like ole S. T. C. on Friday night. Well, maybe not the whole school but anyhow one member of the many. How 'bout it

Robert Porterfield founded the Barter Theatre in Abington, Virginia in 1933. It was the only professional theatrical group in the South. The Barter Theatre has recently been made the first state-subsidized theatre in the United States. The founder of the group, conscious of the desperate plite of his fellow players and of the need for legitimate drama outside of the major metropolitan areas, conceived the plan for bartering plays for food. Beginning in June, the theatre centers its activities at its home base at Abington, where the group presents 12 plays each seson in repertory. From September to April the company of 35 professional actors tours throughout the state with a repretory of six of these plays. Each season is concluded with a short out-of-state tour including an appearance on Broadway.

Tickets for the performance of "Blithe Spirit" can be bought in Mrs. Watkins office. The price of tickets for one performance is $1.20.

On Saturday night, March 21, the Barter Theatre will present its last play here. They will present at this time "State of the Union" by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse. This play was chosen as the Pulitzer Prize Play of 1945-'46. It is now playing in New Pork, Chicago, and on the West Coast.

Left Lead

Hello again, all you "hossy" people. The snow has inactivated us for some time, but don't let it get you down. Better days are coming, we hope.

Here are some pointers that experienced riders should review, and beginners remember forever. They are particularly applicable to the trail rides we have in and around Farmville.

Always warm up slowly. Never continue in the same gait too long, change from one to the other to rest both horse and rider.

Let your horse pick his way in rough places. Keep your weight well forward both up and down steep inclines. You free your horse's hind quarters by so doing, put the weight where it is easiest for him to carry it, and in case of downhill travel, make it easier for him to dig in his toes.

Don't trot or canter on hard pavements. This is one important rule we are prone to ignore.

If your horse goes lame, get off and investigate the cause at once. If a stone is wedged tightly between the frog and shoe, you will probably be able to knock it loose with another stone. If a shoe comes half off, pull it the rest of the way. The easiest way is to step on the protruding part and have the horse move forward. If two horses start fighting with their heels, swing their heads together.

That's enough to absorb these facts at once, and if you do, well your trail rides will be more pleasant.

There's a new book out by John Steinbeck called "The Red Pony . . . or if it isn't new, at least it has been very recently revived. Horse-lovers will like it, and nearly everyone should enjoy it.

Don't let the weather fool you, and don't you put it off any longer. We'll meet you at the stables.

Stay on the bit.

13 Bids Issued By Orchesis Group

Initiation Held For 7 Apprentices

Thirteen girls received bids to Orchesis, Modern Dance Group on campus, this week, according to Nancy Whitehead, president.

Girls who received bids are Marjorie Boswick, Nancy Chambers, Doris Funck, Dorothy Hornly, Betty Jefferson, Anne Longbein, Bobby Mitchell, Jesse Pickett, Betty Shank, Jane Taylor, Jeanne Tolley, June Walsh, and Barbara J. Wiley.

These girls will serve an apprenticeship. After they have appeared in two major productions they can be initiated into the group.

Monday night, March 3, the dance group entertained in Senior Rec with a supper party. After the party seven apprentices were initiated. The apprentices were in charge of planning for the next party.

Girls who were initiated are Jean Babb, Julia Booher, Betty Burchett, Nancy Dickerson, Janie Hanks, Helin Owins, and Mary Virginia Walsh.

Orchesis members are now holding practices for the trip to the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro where they will take part in the Arts Conference which is held there every year.

MARY HARRISON'S

On the Ball

As examinations approach, and the quarter is drawing nigh, the athletic calendar seems to be quite full of events. You as spectators and participants try to get in on all of them, for not only will you support your class colors, but your school spirit will hit a new peak of enthusiasm.

BASKETBALL—

The past week our varsity basketball team trotted off to play William and Mary. They kept the slate clean of defeats and brought home a score all of us can be proud of.

The basketball games are underway between classes. Listen to the announcements in the dining room, so you will be able to come to the games. Your support is important to your class team, and this support is always welcome, and an encouraging cheer from the sidelines always lifts a team's morale.

Basketball has been proven to be one of the most strenuous games that girls participate in in athletics, but is also one of the most exciting. The thrill when your team makes a basket cannot be equalled. Watching the team as a unit move down the court is important in team work, and the following up of plays is really worth seeing. You may not be an A-1 person when it comes to understanding the minor technicialities but you will enjoy the game. If you want to be able to understand the game more thoroughly get an official guide before you go to the games, and then you can view the game with a professional eye—that is to say, practically.

Swimming is one of the best all round sports anyone can participate in, for it is definitely good for the muscular system and builds strong bodies.

You dont have to be an expert in the sport, but that is no reason why you cannot enjoy recreational swimming. There is a capable guard on duty, so there need be no worrying about going under for the third time, and if you aren't too good at the art of swimming you can always go down and paddle around in the baby section, or the shallow end . . . . see you there.

How many of you have gone down to the gym and used the volleyball courts in the afternoon? It is more fun to be in the game than it is to stand around and watch. How many times have you wondered if the set up shot was going over or if you were going to score a service shot? You will want to get into the fun so take a break during your crowded day and knock the little girl around for an hour.

Until next week this is yours truly knocking off and urging you to get use to being sports minded.

Spring Ensembles Feature Blouses

Blouses are assets to a full social calendar, so it's important that we choose them wisely to chime with every costume. The new spring blouses are tailored to suit. String ties and tiny bows at the neck are prevalent this season, as well as yoked or "baby-bibbed" blouses with pin tucks and Peter-Pan collars. Down the center of the so-called bibs are numerous rows of pin tucks with tiny pearl buttons down the center. Among the most popular blouses are those with lace or embroidery in the neckline and on the sleeves. Lace is abundant this season arranged neatly in V-formations, zig-zags, diagonally or otherwise on the front of the blouse—It is also found on the cuffs of long sleeved blouses and at the neckline. For something more tailored, select a neat rayon crepe or cotton batiste with a jewel conscious neckline, cape or push-up sleeves, and pearly back buttons.

Something new and popular are name blouses, having names appearing on the front of the blouse or one name on the collar in any color desired. Jersey blouses are as good as ever and are just the things to add spice to suits, skirts, or slacks.

To have that spring wardrobe complete—better add several of these vital blouse "assets".

Librarian Begins Student Opinion Box

Since several people have requested that the library attain more copies of British and American plays, the library staff has provided a box on the circulation desk in order that others may voice their opinion.

According to Miss Beverly Ruffin, librarian, anyone having a title to suggest should write their choice on a slip of paper and insert it in the box labeled "What I'd Like to Read." It is not necessary to sign the request, but if it is signed, the person making the suggestion will be notified if the book is purchased.

Other books other than American and British plays may be requested.

The library has for free distribution certain pamphlets which may be of value to future teachers or teacher-librarians. These pamphlets are on a table in the reference room.

Students should be interested in recent issues of the Virginia Journal of Education which is the organ of the Virginia Education Association. Also available are pamphlets on the use of reference material and selection of books for children. Included are reprints from encyclopedias such as Thef Magic of Poetry by Stephen Vincent Benet.

A Message

Lacking it, you will never be educated, no matter how many credits you accumulate.

A review of a study made by the Rockefeller Foundation is before me. President Raymond B. Fosdick, in speaking of the Foundation's several programs for protecting refugee scholars unable to continue work in their native lands, mentions assistance given to one hundred and twenty-two individual scholars in the United States. Of this entire group only seven failed to live up to expectations.

If refugee scholars, with all the adjustments that they must necessarily make to a new language and country, can succeed, what about you who are working under the most favorable conditions?

Are you middle 50% who are getting a "C" average living up to our expectations of you or to your own expectations of yourselves? Our World Wars have given us many slogans for sustained effort. One of the most popular which came out of the first one was "Do your bit". Today we are faced with a bigger problem than that. In fact, we are no longer urged to do our "bit". Instead each one is called upon to carry a man-sized load and to work to capacity. Are you working to capacity when your school work averages a "C"? Come in and let us talk it over.

Freshmen Give Party For Big Sisters

Little Sisters will entertain their Big Sisters at a coke and nab party in the Rec Wednesday night, March 12, at 10 o'clock.

The party is given annually under the auspices of the membership committee of the YWCA. The freshmen are entertained by their upperclassmen Big Sisters in the fall at the Big Sister-Little Sister reception.

Entertainment for the party is being arranged by Jane Taylor, and the sing committee.

According to Betty Pairet, chairman of the membership committee all freshmen are supposed to invite their Big Sisters, call for them, and take them to the party.

What Rolls Around Most Often?—Exams

Counting the days until Easter Holidays we made a startling discovery—exams, yes the ugly things are rearing their heads again, come in between. Beware the Ides of March, but live in holy terror of the following week in which we may fall in our glory. Of course one only has five or six term papers to write, and a test every day, and Founders Day to celebrate in the meantime; so there should be plenty of time to spend in Shannon's fortifying ourselves with double malteds against the big trial.

Come to think of it, if there were no other way of telling that exams were just around the corner one could guess from the number of avowed study-haters who have been haunting the library of late. It hasn't been so popular since last quarter just 'fore exam time. Then too, it seems that someone told the teachers that they would soon have the pleasure of seeing just how much they had hammered into our heads since January, for assignments have become noticibly larger.

In short there seems to be only one thing left to do—much as we hate to say it, study. That is, unless you firmly believe that ignorance is bliss—but being on the Dean's List is too! SO—hit the books, chums, and good luck!

Tops in Wax

Shared by two great trumpet men, Roy Eldridge waxes Hoagy Carmichael's opus: Rockin' Chair and Yard Dog; and Billy Butterfield records Jalousie and Steamroller. All four sides rate playing, but the standouts are Rockin' Chair and Jalousie. On the former, Roy "Little Jazz" Eldridge gives his full range trumpet a complete workout and in a mood of relaxation that must rate bows from Hoagy, the composer. Roy catches the precise feeling Hoagy originally intended, and, in addition, lends careful support through the background music, in the use of his band. Decca cut the platter.

On Butterfield's Capitol label of Jalousie and Steamroller the raunchy horn of Billy predominates throughout except for a spot given to Bill Stegmeyer for clarinet. Billy sings Steamroller, and the production remains along the line of Cement Mixer—a fine novelty. For Dancing:

Leading off, Benny Goodman makes a good choice of a standard marching band number for background and solo work in the Columbia recording of Benjie's Bubble. He backs it with A Gal in Calico, with vocal by Eve Young. The impression is excellent.

Both Sonny Dunham, on Vogue, and Freddy Martin, on RCA Victor have worthwhile recordings of Save Me A Dream. Exclusive Records offer a jumping novelty, T. W. A. by Joe Liggins and the Honeydrippers, then back it with a moody Last Night Blues. Another new exclusive release is the highly playable album, by Johnny Moore's Three Blazers, three 10-inch discs with these titles foremost—Gloria, St. Louis Blues and Now That You're Gone.

New York's sensational small group, the Joe Mooney Quartet, have a four star topper in September Song and Just a Gigolo, (Decca). S. T. C. Hustles In Preparation For Returning College Alumnae

Why all the hustle and bustle? Why all the scrubbing, cleaning, and painting? Why all the borrowing of rooms? Why does everyone wear their brightest smile and smartest dress? Why, haven't you guessed? It's Founders Day! Yes indeed, that day is coming soon when all the women, women, and more women come back to their old alma mater to compare notes with their old classmates and to reminisce fondly of their school days.

Many of you are lending your rooms. Those of you who remain here will enjoy showing the alumnae the changes in the school and hearing about how STC was when they were here. Predominate in the happy gathering will be members of the classes of 1897, 1907, 1917, 1922, 1927 and 1937.

If, while calmly sitting in your room, you are suddenly startled by a voice from the doorway exclaiming, "Why this is my old room!" don't be alarmed. It's only an alumnae returning to the scene of her school day pranks. Be a dear little girl and invite her in and confess some of your own escapades. She'll be delighted.

Among other things on the program for Founders Day week-end, will be the spring play, "Taming of the Shrew" presented by the STC and Hampden-Sydney Dramatic Clubs. The special chapel program held on Saturday will be of interest to all the alumnae. There will be greetings and reports from all the "seven" classes. Much chatter and "remember when's" will be heard during the morning coffee in the Student Lounge and at the luncheon in the Tea Room.

Reunions are always a joyous time, and especially Farmville reunions. When girls and women get together with the common bond among them—the fact that they all are, or were students at STC and are still a part of it—there is bound to be fun. Just the way that they smile and say hello is a part of the present student body sincerely welcome the returning alumnae and give them every good wish for a pleasant week-end at the college.

Conference leaders were Miss Sadie Gibson, field worker for this area, Dr. Joseph Turner, from South Hill, and Joseph Bayly. The theme of the conference was "Living Christ on Our Campus".

Girls from S. T. C., who took part on the conference program were Dorothy Doutt and Dalia Agostini, freshmen who sang special songs, and Ruby Griffeth, junior, who had charge of the dining hall.

Red Cross Worker To Talk On Drive In Chapel Friday

Student Body Urged To Aid Fund

This week, the annual combined World Student Service Fund-Red Cross drive is being held on the campus. It is sponsored by the Public Affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A.

Contributions for this drive may be made through the milk bottles that have been placed at the table in the hall labeled with the various sections of Virginia. There will be a contest this year to see which section will contribute more toward the drive. Members of the Public Affairs Committee will canvass the halls at night also for individual contributions.

Miss Margaret Anne Wilson of Washington spoke in chapel Monday in connection with the drive, and a movie was shown this morning. Friday, Miss Louise Ferrard will represent the Red Cross on our campus and speak at chapel. Miss Farrard has had a wide and varied career in Red Cross work. Her first contact with the Red Cross came in 1919 when her father, the late Dr. Livingston Ferrard, was appointed chairman of the executive committee, which in those days corresponded to the present chairmanship.

Previous to World War II, Miss Farrard was very active in Red Cross volunteer work and also in the work of other relief agencies. She helped organize the British War Relief Society and was active as a volunteer with crippled children and Girl Scouts. Miss Farrand has worked with Red Cross work overseas. She returned to this country in 1944 in order to speak during the War Fund campaign. At the present time she is a member of the Public Relations Staff at National Headquarters in Washington. She attended the New York School of Fine and Applied Design for Women and Cornell University. Her education was also broadened by her extensive travel abroad.

Money collected for the drive will be divided between the Red Cross and the World Student Service Fund. This money will be Betty Jordan is accompanist for the group.

Parham Announces Exam Week Rules

Examination week rules have been announced by Kitty Parham, chairman of the House Council. Any student receiving one call-down during exam week will be given one week's campus.

Players To Present Blithe Spirit Here

Play Will Be Given Tomorrow Night

"Blithe Spirit," the second in a repertory of three plays to be given here by the Barter Theatre of Virginia, will be presented in the college auditorium tomorrow night, March 13, at 8 o'clock.

A three act play by Noel Coward, "Blithe Spirit", is a Broadway hit of recent vintage. It is presented under the direction of Bob Porterfield and staged by Owen Phillips. The action of the play takes place in Charles Condimines house in Kent.

Joan DeWeese, who playcd the part of Beatrice in "Much Ado About Nothing" recently presented here, shows up in the coming play as the materialized spirit of Charles Condimine's (Herbert Nelson's) first wife, Elvira. Her erstwhile husband might have enjoyed her visit more had his second wife, her successor, been elsewhere.

The entire cast in order of appearance will be Elizabeth Wilson as Edith; Chancy Horsley as Ruth; Herbert Nelson as Charles; Tom McDermott as Dr. Bradman; Margaret Thomson as Arcati; and Joan DeWeese as Elvira.

Robert Porterfield founded the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Virginia, in 1933. It was the only professional theatrical group in the South. The Barter Theatre has recently been made the first state-subsidized theatre in the United States.

About 100 good seats are still available for the play, and tickets can be bought in Mrs. Watkins' office. The price of tickets for one performance is $1.20. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

On Saturday night, March 21, the Barter Theatre will present its third and final play here. They will present at this time "State of the Union" by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse. This play was chosen as the Pulitzer Prize Play of 1945-46. It is now playing in New York, Chicago, and on the West Coast.

Mrs. Starke Named Alumnae President

Approximately 100 Return For Day

Mrs. Maria Bristow Starke of Richmond was elected president of the Alumnae Association on Founders Day, Saturday, March 8. She succeeds Mrs. S. Gordon Waller in this position.

Despite the sudden change in the weather, approximately 100 alumnae returned to celebrate the reunion of the 1887, 1897, 1907, 1917, 1922, 1927, and 1937 classes. The class of 1927 had the largest representation and was awarded the Jarman cup given annually to the class with the most members present. Alumnae returned from all parts of Virginia.

All of the reunion classes were represented in some way, either by personal representatives or by letters. Two letters of note were from Mrs. J. D. Eggleston of Hampden-Sydney, of the class of 1887, and Mrs. Ben Watkins of Midlothian of the class of 1907.

In the chapel program Saturday, the same "Farmville Spirit" prevailed. Letters from alumnae bespoke the devotion for their Alma Mater.

The 52 alumnae chapters in the state were represented either personally or by letters, telegrams, and checks.

According to Mrs. M. B. Coyner, Alumnae Secretary, approximately $2100 was collected for the Jarman Organ Fund, and contributions are still coming in.

Special features of Founders Day this year were the two performances of "The Taming of the Shrew" by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs under the direction of Miss Leola Wheeler, and a tea given Saturday afternoon for Founders Day guests by Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S Lancaster.

Leach To Lecture At STC March 24

Dr. Henry Goddard Leach, author, editor, and president of the American-Scandinavian Foundation, will lecture in the auditorium at State Teachers College, at 8:00 p. m. Monday, March 24.

The subject for Dr. Leach's lectures will be "The Prospect for World Peace—Scandinavia's Contribution." Dr. Leach is one of the leading authorities on relationships between the Scandinavian countries and America. In 1945 Dr. Leach was chosen by Upsala University in Sweden to be awarded the only honorary degree conferred upon a foreigner at the 350 anniversary. This distinction is signified by his wearing the gold ring of Upsala. Throughout his life his chief interest and ambition has been to further international education between Scandinavia and America, and as a result of his efforts in this direction, the number of America students studying in Scandinavia has steadily increased, and those Scandinavians desiring to obtain education in American universities have likewise increased.

Dr. Leach's lecture is brought here in order that the students might learn the present situation from one who is noted for present-

Swan Song

With this issue of the Rotunda we, the 1946-47 staff, gather up our copy paper, cover up our typewriter, and sing to you our Swan Song. The year has swiftly passed and now we pause to write our last words as editors of your weekly newspaper. We are turning the publication over to a new editor and a new staff, to a new editor and a new staff much more capable and efficient than we. Their heritage is that of many years traditions long established by this college. Their job will be a big one which they can take in their stride and perform as few before them have done.

We have enjoyed bringing you the paper each week. If you have been pleased with your paper, then the many hours of hard work that we have spent will not have been spent in vain. We have tried to bring to you the paper that you want. We have tried to be fair and square in bringing you the news each week. Above all we have tried to voice the feelings of the entire college and not of a chosen few.

At times the going has been rough when the cuts did not come back or came back the wrong size, when some unexpected event broke on Wednesday morning and the paper had to be remade, and when late at night we contemplated murder to get more news to fill up the paper. These are a few of the things that could happen any week. In spite of all of this, we'd gladly go through it all again.

We want to thank the student body, faculty, and administration for your splendid cooperation. We could not have done the work without the help of each one of you. We want to particularly thank at this time Mr. S. M. Holton, our advisor, for his unfailing help and good advice. We have indeed found in him a true and understanding friend. To Mr. Barrye Wall, Mr. Harry Lancaster, and the other employees of the Farmville Herald for their help, we want to say thanks—thanks for being so very understanding with us when we failed to meet our deadline or when we popped up with some outlandish idea.

Every hour we've spent on the Rotunda, we have enjoyed. We've had fun working together, meeting people, and going places. With a weak feeling around our eyes and a big lump in our throats, we sing our Swan Song. Farewell.

Give To W.S.S.F.

This week the YWCA is sponsoring a combined World Student Service Fund and Red Cross drive on our campus. The World Student Service Fund is a unique and inclusive organization of American students and professors for participation in emergency relief and rehabilitation in Europe and Asia. It was created in 1937 at the outbreak of the war, and it is sponsored by student religious forces, Christian and Jewish in the United States.

Three interesting chapel programs have been arranged. On Monday, Miss Margaret Anne Wilson spoke in chapel. Wednesday's program featured a movie, while Friday's program will be highlighted by a talk by Miss Louise Farrard. The goal for this campus has been set at one thousand dollars, and it is up to the students to see that the drive is a success. We, who are in colleges in the states, have many advantages, but there are many abroad who do not. Their colleges and universities have been hit hard by the war. Our shortages were small things campared to the troubles they suffered "over there".

We have so much; our beautiful buildings sufficient food and clothing, and money. What better way is there to show that we want to help those less fortunate than ourselves than by giving to this drive. After all, we do want everyone to enjoy an education, don't we? We are directly responsible for the success or failure of this drive. Dig down deep, and give to this worthwhile cause. Just knowing the happiness it will bring should be sufficient reward to us all.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Before going into the many events of the week perhaps we should give you a glimpse into what you missed this week-end (with the exception of those cute things mentioned in Bed-Check who went away and didn't miss a thing.) In the first place, it snowed. But did that dampen our spirits or those of the Founders who braved the elements and came anyway? Of course not, it only added to the gaiety.

Too bad that so many of you had to miss "The Taming of the Shrew" on Friday and Saturday nights. It was a memorable performance and showed to the best advantage all the days and weeks of preparation that went into it. All of you who saw "The Man Who Came to Dinner" last fall are familiar with Bill Smithers and Gris Boxley, so that you know even without seeing them what a swell job they did. And to give credit where credit is due, one must needs mention every member of the supporting cast for they all did their parts splendidly. Orchids of the rarest type go to Miss Wheeler for this production.

In this, our life, haunted this week by a test or two every day, a half dozen term papers or so, and exams glaring us in the face, there seems to be only one spot of interest. The Barter Theater returns to us tomorrow night with Noel Coward's delightful "Blithe Spirit". In fact "delightful" is a rather trite way of expressing it, for the humor is entirely different from the usual form to which we Americans are accustomed, and the play is hilarious all the way through. If studying is getting you down, then don't hesitate to get an evening off with "Blithe Spirit" to make you forget the weight of knowledge that's being forcibly crammed into your head.

Now let us wish each one of you the best of luck and happy hunting and all that. May you all come out on top.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

We think congratulations are in line for those founders who came back to roam these sacred halls even if the weather turned out to be like it was. Everyone sure had a wonderful time.

For full accounts of the perfect time in Halifax just see Heidi and Nancy. That little ole place must have been buzzin.

Our most hearty congratulations to Miss Wheeler and the cast of "The Taming of the Shrew" and everyone else who helped to make the play a Spectacular Success.

Ruth Ellen, tell us all about this fellow that you made such a big impression on at Tech that he wants to have you up to Easters. Must be nice.

Kackie came back to school Sunday night all grins. No one could figure out why until she nonchalantly flicked that miniature in front of everyone's face. The very bestest of wishes go your way.

Judy and Margaret Wilson kept everyone up late Sunday trying to prove which one had the better time at home this week-end. Frankly, we think they both did

Jean Pritchett was approached by someone after her week-end trying to find out if she were in love. It looks as if everyone who went home over the week-end came back very much in love.

All we want to know is, just who is this attractive man that we've seen Betty Russell with (and we might say quite a bit) lately. Don't keep his name a secret much longer, Betty.

All of us would like to have a returned performance of the Hampden-Sydney Serenaders who rendered a few songs the other night between Junior and Senior Building.

Betty Spindler seems to be seeing quite a bit of a certain H.-S. young man these days. Must be of literary interest to all.

For the most wonderful time she ever had just see Tuck about the past week-end. From all reports we all agree with her.

George Anne is all adither over the week-end and those cute West Point men she had so much fun with. Tell us more, Girl.

And so goes another week, and we'll be turning this column over to another Bedchecker. Those exams are just around the corner, so the best of luck to all of you on the events.

Will see all you bookworms after bedcheck burning the midnight oil!

STC-ers Stew as Exam Week Creeps Up On Unprepared

'Tis the week before exams and the furrows in the brows of S. T. C-ers continue to deepen.

"It isn't bad enough to be taking exams next week, but we have to have tests all this week" exclaimed one indignant student as she bewailed her fate.

The prevailing opinion seems to be that college would be a nice place to attend, if one didn't have to study.

Let's look in on a typical S. T. C.-er to see what is taking place in her "brain factory" this week.

Ah, there she is. Poor thing! She's sitting at her desk "stewing" over a book and tearing her hair out strand by strand. It was such pretty hair, too.

What's this? Oh yes, we "get" it now. One of those lucky people that never has to study has just entered the room to "gab" for an hour or two, thus, turning study hour into a social jam session. How we hate people like that! Some rat exterminator or D. D. T. might rid the school of such unwelcome pests.

Our typical S. T. C.-er sits there practically frothing at the mouth in anger, but still hasn't the "nerve" to tell this (censored) to leave in order that she may get a little studying done. The "character" rambles on and on going into detail over each incident that has occurred to her during the past 18 years and every where she plans to go over the week end. By this time our typical S. T. C.-er feels like telling her where to go before the week-end arrives.

Finally, at approximately five minutes before the bell which indicates the end of study hour, the intruder decides to go home. Ah, peace and quiet prevails—for five minutes, that is. As soon as the bell rings, doors fly open, and the general hub-bub in the hall begins. This continues until 11:00.

Our typical S. T. C.-er has gone "mad" and is thinking all sorts of evil thoughts. She finally gives up in despair, vowing that tomorrow night she will try the library as a last resort.

It Could Happen

Junior: Bride's shower in morning, announcement tea in afternoon, wedding at night.

Senior: Finished term paper, wrote to Aunt Agatha, started another pair of socks.

On the Ball

Hello sports fans. From this side of the dugout the week ahead of us is full of class games, and your presence at the games will be appreciated. The class games should be excellent experience for those who have never played in the class games. There have not been as many spectators in the gym watching the games, so for the next game try to be on hand for the excitement.

You are among the fortunate ones if you took part in the Water Safety course that has been offered on our campus. Don't forget that there are still recreational swimming hours on Monday and Wednesday and Saturday nights at 9 o'clock. Take a friend along and go down to the pool for a dip; the water is wonderful and you won't regret having taken a break in your studies, you mean to say a person has to twist your arm to tear you away from your work. Never let it be said that too much work and no play can't make you a very dull person. Recreation and play can not only broaden your life but gives you that extra glow in your countenance. Of course there is the other extreme of casting your books on the bed and literally wasting your whole night or afternoon without the thought of books entering your mind. This is a poor habit to form. Just rc

HEAR YE! HEAR YE! Farmville and surrounding territory will witness this spring one of the biggest horseshows of many decades, according to the plans being formulated now. There are three horseshows to be held in this immediate vicinity in April and May, Amelia, Blackstone, and here.

The Farmville show will have numerous classes including equitation classes for S. T. C. and Blackstone girls. As it stands now, you will witness the equitation classes in the morning and open classes in the afternoon, so pack up a light lunch and hike out to Longwood! The tentative date of May 17 should prove to be a Mecca for all types and kinds of hoss-loving people. If you don't know a lot about horses, hang around some of the old timers and pick up some tid bits of wisdom about horse flesh.

Miss Shields is making extensive and efficient plans to make this horse show a success, so let's have some support from the S T. C. girls. The show presents a delightful cultural interest for many people throughout Virginia, and we hope S. T. C'ers won't let a good opportunity slip by. Did you ever notice how picturesque Longwood is, with the green, sprawling golf course, the eager prancing horses and the trimly bedecked riders passing to and fro? Invite your friends to see a part of Farmville at its best!

Speaking of interest, Jeanne Sauerwein, president of Pegasus, has announced that Thursday night, March 13, everyone interested in riding is cordially invited to take part in a discussion with Miss Lucy Shields on "The Place of Horseback Riding at S. T. C." Miss Shields, the riding instructor, will expect girls to sign up for classes for spring quarter. Reused abroad to help provide for the education of the many students overseas whose schools were destroyed during the war.

"The need is extremely great," according to Jane Mantiply, Public Affairs committee chairman, "and it is up to every student to make a special effort to contribute every possible cent. The future of man rest in the minds of the students of the world, and without schools and supplies, they cannot receive the proper education. Posters in the halls will show just where the money does go, and how it is used. Every student should make her own individual goal at least one dollar, and this is not at all hard to do, once it is thought about."

Spring Fashions Spotlight Dresses

No wonder a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love at this time of the year, for a girl looks her prettiest in the bright colors featured in the spring dresses this year. The pastel shades are as popular as ever this year as well as navy blue, gray, and black. California prints have found their way east and are taking their place with the spring fashions this year.

There is variety in many of the dresses through the new hipline treatments, peplums, that swing full in the back, and through boleros which will turn a winter dress into a spring suit. Necklines are usually simple, so that they can be dressed down for spectator sports with a scarf or dressed up for dinner with costume jewelry. The new feature in skirts is the circular skirt pleated all the way around.

Sweet and new as the first day of spring with a young carefree look that's bound to lead to romance is the girl who wears a two piece dress with shirred and draped middy top frosted at the shoulder with a bit of white froufrou and a graceful, slightly flared skirt. Two piece dresses are still tops in fashions this year.

Rayon crepes seem to be leading in the materials this spring, but lightweight wools, rayon gabardine, rayon jersey, spun rayon, as well as pure silk, which is available this year for the first time since before the war, make up a variety of material that is being used in spring dresses this year.

Folk Dancing Led By Chase Recently

During the past week we have been very fortunate in having Mr. Richard Chase on our campus. Mr. Chase has become well known to every girl in STC through his participation in the Physical Education classes.

"Grab a partner, Promenade around, Swing your Partner" were the commands that greeted us as we entered the gym Wednesday and the two following days. Fat and thin, pretty and ugly, senior and freshman, all joined hands with a happy grin on their faces as they got into the swing with the music. What a happy merry time. With such an inspiring, vivacious teacher, how could the students feel tired even after dancing for a straight half hour? For once Miss Dabney, Miss Kauzlarich, Miss Iler and Miss Barlow could sit back and relax and not even have to stay in the class. It must be wonderful to be able to walk out of class when you want. They really deserve a rest, though, after the patience they have shown us for five long months.

Mr. Chase also held a folk dancing class on Thursday night which was a very gala affair. All Hampden-Sydney boys as well as "our boys" were invited, which made it more interesting.

On the whole, Mr. Chase contributed much to the student body

Students may vote at the table in the hall Thursday, March 27. Students in the freshman and sophomore classes and juniors and seniors majoring in the various urricula will be selected to become members of the Future Teachers organization.

Hear Ye! Freshmen Invite All To Greatest Show on Broadway

Hear ye! Hear ye! Official proclamation. "The freshman class requests the presence of each and everyone Tuesday, April 1, in the large auditorium, at 8 o'clock. See the greatest show on "Broadway" for only 25 cents and get delicious refreshments at reasonable prices."

Yep, the freshman class will really shine April 1. Talent abounds in this, the class of all classes. The heretofore undiscovered talent of the class is amazing.

Rehearsals, rehearsals, and more rehearsals are taking place in order that perfection may be obtained.

Every night one can hear the shouts, "Come on, everybody, time for production practice." At this books are thrown down and forgotten. Girls and boys (Yes, boys!) rush into the auditorium eager to make this the greatest of all productions.

The beautiful old songs of famous composers will bring tears to your eyes while other songs of the same composers will bring laughter and joy to your heart.

The S. T. C. boys add a great deal to the show as their talents are displayed in various ways. They are bound to delight the audience (especially since the audience will chiefly consist of girls!) See a certain "vet" sing a lovely song to a certain girl. Besides songs, there will be dances of all sorts. Yes, ballets 'n everything. What a show! You may have thought Al Jolson's and Jerome Kern's shows were terrific "But you ain't heard nothin' yet!" Just wait 'til the freshmen give out with that extra special something that only they have, and it will send you right out of this world. Why they have class that they haven't even used yet! The costumes, scenery, and managementship are marvelous.

Put this production down as a "must" on your list of entertainment. You'll never regret having seen it, so come one, come all for a grand evening of entertainment furnished by the freshman class.

French Club Plans Spring Activities

The French Circle held its March meeting yesterday afternoon in the Audio-Visual room. At this meeting Betty Spindler, president of the circle, nominated a committee to draw up a slate of officers for the coming year. The girls appointed were Annette Vincent-Viry, Ellen McMullen, Virginia Parris, and Imogene Moore. Plans for a picnic to be held in the spring were mentioned but nothing definite will be decided until the next meeting. The program was then turned over to Ellen McMullan.

Everyone participated in the song program which consisted of "Ma Normandie", "Symphonie", and a new hymn "Plus Haut", which Annette taught at that time. The meeting closed in the customary manner with the singing of the French national anthem.

March to Church

Each year March is emphasized by the Y.W.C.A. as "Go To Church Month". Girls who have carelessly gotten out of the habit of regular church attendance are urged especially at this time to attend the services with renewed interest.

Some who have eight o'clock classes every morning argue that Sunday morning is the only chance they have to sleep. But Sunday School doesn't begin until 9:45 and the regular Sunday morning church services starts at 11 o'clock. Surely one doesn't have to give up much sleep in order to be present at these.

Many prefer the evening services. They feel that the quiet calmness of twilight adds to the service and makes it more inspirational. Certainly one feels the nearness of God at the end of a beautiful day. Are you acquainted with the evening church services? One can find joy and comfort in the fellowship of other boys and girls at the young people's meetings immediately preceding the evening worship hour, and the preaching service is a help for the coming week.

During the week, we often find ourselves becoming too concerned with studies, pleasures, and general worldly affairs. Many have found a welcome break in their weekly routine as well as a comfort and consolation in the mid-week Prayer meetings held by the local churches. Make it a point to attend this service on Wednesday night.

With a life filled with weeks of seven 24 hour days, is it a difficult task to set aside one hour or more to the worship of God? Although there is only one more Sunday in March, let's all march to church this Sunday and then continue to attend regularly every Sunday henceforth.

We Need Your Help

With this issue of the paper, we, the new staff of the Rotunda, take on our new positions. We have the high standards of the staffs that preceeded us to live up to and uphold.

We shall strive to express the opinion of the majority of the student body, and to keep them informed as to the school happenings. Some times we are so concerned with cuts, galleys, and the numerous other things that go into the making of a newspaper that we fail to see beyond the four pages of our current issue. If you are interested enough in your school and your school paper, you will offer suggestions. Suggestions are always welcome, and serious consideration is given to them.

We do not agree with everything that is printed in this paper, but it is our policy to take a middle course. Sometimes an article may appear in this paper without the position that you think it ought to have. Remember then, that a news story is given its place with regard to the other news for that week.

This is your paper, and we want to keep it one of which you can be justly proud. The staff cannot publish the paper by themselves. We need the cooperation of administration, faculty, and students. When a staff member comes to you for information, cooperate with her. If you make an appointment with her, be sure and keep it. There are so many jobs to do, both large and small, that one appointment not met can hold up the progress of the whole paper.

Work on the Rotunda is one continuous cycle, before you get your paper to read we have started to work on the next issue. We don't need your cooperation for one week alone; we need it during all the weeks and months that lie ahead. Remember we have a deadline to meet, and give us the information you have as early as possible. If you will help us, we will give you a paper you can proudly say is yours,

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1947

Puddin' n' Sauce

Ho hum, the chef's got Spring Fever and the Chief-cook-and-bottle-washer is otherwise occupied so you'll have to take last quarter's leftovers along with the rest of this week's hash.

More and more dramatic "doin's" around here the last few weeks, you'd think we had all been bitten by the theater bug. The annual Play Contest, which the Dramatic Club sponsors, will be given on Thursday and Friday nights in the auditorium. These will give us thirteen plays to boast of during the year. Getting culture-conscious aren't we?

The Barter Theater has been and gone twice since the last issue of the "Rotunda" and according to the "critics row" both were splendid. "Blithe Spirit" was delightfully done by the same cast which gave us "Much Ado" some weeks ago, but "State of the Union" was done by an entirely different cast. Bob Porterfield, however, stole the show at the latter performance by announcing between acts that he was delighted to be back on the stage at the "State College for Normal Women". Now what could he have meant by that?

The Ides of March are well past so we can settle down to another spell of innocent merriment. Now that the Spring has sprung the migration to the roof has begun. Already we see the signs of sunburned noses—or did they do that on the QT with sun lamps to impress us timid souls who are waiting for really warm weather to go bask in Sol's glory?

If you're tired of the same old tunes at weddings why don't you get Horowitz to do his version of Mendelssohns "Wedding March" for you? It's a riot!

This one's too corny to keep. Do you know why the seven little morons set the alarm clock for 3? Because the other four didn't want to get up. With that we leave you until next weeks brain storm. One more thing—"in spring a young man's fancy—" need we say more? Happy hunting.

Host of Different Things Compose Spirit of College

Curious? I Knew It? Let your mind's eye follow me as I ask you one—just one question. If it stops at persons don't go on. You are too content! If it sees places you show a sentiment, but don't be sentimental. If it wavers, and you can't answer immediately you are the one who should read on.

WHAT DOES S. T. C. MEAN TO YOU? Your roomate? suite mates? Do you stop there? Or does it include the Rotunda? Longwood? the campus in spring? I know of other favorite haunts. Do you?

Is it something more than these, something intangible that you feel but can't see or hear. You know it's there? Is it the college speaking thru these—Ruffner, Cunningham, Frazer, Jarman, Lancaster? Is it of the beginning, the end, the now? there is no end. There was a beginning when one man, a great pioneer believed in a cause. What is that cause? It concerns you and me. It's of the present, for the future too. History is repeating itself before our very eyes. We cannot see it. We are with it. A voice speaks thru the years of Ruffner, Virginia's first State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Farmville's first president who believed "that his labors could be brought to full fruition only by devoting his energies to placing a well trained teacher of sound character and high intellectual ability in every school room."

Today's voice speaks of another like the first, of another pioneer visionary for the years ahead. This concerns you and me. "Today, as then, Virginia's greatest need is to provide a well educated teacher of high purpose, ability and character, for each classroom in the commonwealth. State Teachers College at Farmville is and must continue to be primarily a teachers college. No institution could have a greater challenge and in no other way could greater service be rendered the State." Are you willing to pick up the golden thread and weave it thru other years? Then, continue.

Each and everyone of us have our beliefs, convictions. The college has hers. Is it a pervading spirit, a guide, a symbol? Is it the Joan figure to you? Or is it the mural in the Rotunda? What does it say? Or is it again the something intangible you feel but can't quite put into words. It's all about the place!

Do the columns conjure a picture in your mind's eye that will remain with you always?

How do you feel about Farmville when you are eager to return in the fall? Is that it? Or, is it the friendliness about the place? You know everybody. Hi! They know you.

Who of the faculty will you remember? Do you remember the day you felt you were thinking for yourself for the first time? Whose class as it in? Were you a Freshman, Sophomore, Junior or Senior? Is that it?

You tell me! I am curious, too. I'll be listening for tiny voices echoing thru the shadowy halls. These are small, all beginnigs are. It's the little things that matter most. These make for happy, fleeting moments of your yester year, today and tomorrow.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Exams are over and spring is here, so let's glance into Bed-check and see what appears.

To all the lucky girls who have been invited to either V. P. I., Randolph Macon, or V. M. I. for the dances the week end of April 12, we extend our heartiest congratulations.

Especially excited over spring dances at Tech is Betty Jo Vail. And with such a cute date, no wonder!

Gussie Hargan had a most wonderful birthday—red roses, Carter, and all.

"Send Me One Dozen Roses" surely applied to Nancy Dickinson when her dozen red roses arrived. That Buddy must be quite the guy.

Who was the cute boy sitting in the Rotunda with Laura Jean Comerford on Thursday night? Could it have been Dick?

Hope Duke seems to have some main attraction out at Hampden-Sydney. Pierce is his name.

Mary Helmer was getting an awful lot of attention last Sunday from a guy named Dick Chevalier.

"Rumors are Flying" that Betty Ree is very fond of a certain Bill —'fess up, Betty.

Martha Gillum had a cute date last week end and a corsage of red roses. All this and Heaven, too!

Betty Nachman had a glorious week end at home. Was it because Buddy was there?

You're slipping, Pat D. John dated Flossie while you were away.

We are waiting for Margie Williams to make up her mind. Will it be Martinsville or Norfolk, Margie?

Puckett Asher had a big time at home last week end with her date from N. C. State. Tell us all about it, Puckett.

Mary Towles caused some excitement on 3rd Floor Annex when Ginny Sue and Churn locked her out of her room.

Have you heard about the Horowitz Concert? For full details, see Betty Spindler or Dottie Doutt.

Orchids to Miss Kay and her girls for making such a fine showing in Greensboro.

Lou Hurt and Ruth Radogna had a big time in Roanoke this week end watching the planes come in. High minded gals, eh?

Seem more than often around town are Lue and Tex. He really makes the distance between Farmville and H-S seem small.

Corky finally got the long awaited letter from Johnny. Nice going, gal.

Ginny Hollifield and Ducky were having a gay time Monday afternoon, as usual. The daze seems to be greater now than ever, now that spring has sprung.

B. Lee was having an awful time telling her good-looking date good night Monday night. Parting is such sweet sorrow.

Be good 'cause your bedchecker sees all, hears all, and knows all.

S.T.C. Dance Group Attends Conference

Can you dance, sing, or paint? We did! Some came for art's sake to gaze, others to learn anew. When we came the conference began. We were ready for every and anything. How revealing it was for us to find that we could corelate the arts—painting, music and dance. "One art inspires another" so says Thomas Munro. And "we are living in an age of electicism (mixing things together)." Now, where does one begin and other end? We didn't find out, gotta' go again next year. We did learn that of all the printings in the students' exhibit from the far west of these United States to the north, south, and east that you couldn't tell one region's exhibit from the other, but by the teachers ye shall know them.

Being dance conscious we could tell which college had the Graham technique. After the Master Class we think we know Hanya Holm's Anyway, we feel it. Going up and downstairs is the worst. And when we think of how we tried a skip with two different kinds of leaps following one another, we shudder. We didn't fall. The "darling" of the Randolph-Macon group took a spill. We didn't laugh either. Take our word for it.

Forget the music part didn't we? Well, the only place left was on the front row. And what a time we had holding onto our seats to keep, from being pierced by a high lying C or slapped by a broken violin or was it it violin cello string. And, when the bushy, beetle-browed Ernst Bacon came on stage we saw an immensity of height with a jutting chin who (we quote) said popular music has sounded a more American note than serious music. Why the man should have said it when we heard nothing popular—not a thing. He also said we, in America, were afraid of anything beautiful (he only meant music, we think), when the public demands it.

On the Ball

Basketball and volleyball, two of our major sports are behind us now, at least the games are, with a new quarter and a fresh athletic slate in view. This quarter's events should prove just as interesting. Softball will be one of the leading sports this quarter so fall in line and get "On the Ball". Come on down at once when practice gets underway. Some of you may think that's no sport for you. Oh, but it is, and you'll find you will have a jolly time . . . ball chasing and running bases. To add to all this, your appetite will be upped 100 per cent. (You can come down to the AA field and run it off the next day.)

Swimming

Don't forget the pool has just been cleaned and is ready for use again. Recreation hours and regular swimming classes will be held. Find time in your day for a cool and refreshing dip. You won't regret it 'cause it's fun for all.

Other Sports

Other sports in the spotlight this quarter are tennis golf, and archery. If you don't know how to play either, now is the time to learn. You will feel much better if you come out for some sports and fresh air. Remember color cup points are awarded for the winning teams, and there will be fun and competition.

So, 'til next week, stay "On the Ball" and have a good time in all sports.

★ SENIOR ★ ★ PERSONALITY ★

BETTY BIBB

The spotlight today shines on Betty Bibb, our senior personality.

Her love for her school and her class has been as great as her ability to serve them both. In her sophomore year, her classmates elected her to serve as class secretary, a position which she has held and fulfilled each year with increasing perfection. Many organizations found her an enthusiastic and capable worker. She proved her worth as vice-president of the Dramatic Club during her junior and senior years, secretary of the Spanish Club, and a member of Student Standards, serving as head of the Lyceum Committee. She is a member of A K G, Orchesis, the senior hockey team, the Riding Club, and has been an active Rotunda staff member.

Betty's happy laugh, her lively step as she hurries to an early class, and the bobby-sox she loves to wear exemplify the friendly, wholesome spirit of Farmville. We see her most often emerging from the swiming pool in her mermaid green suit (which, incidentally, is the color she likes best) or flying over the jumps at Longwood atop her favorite stallion, "Nicoti", which she describes as being "almost a palmino".

Betty gravely admits that "she hates people who have no dislikes, but can't think of anything she really doesn't like right off." Her loves range from munching apples at 10, 2, and 4 to reading good books, especially novels by Somerset Maugham and Emily Dickinson's poetry. In between comes conversing in Spanish, seeing movies with Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant, day-dreaming, and long week-ends at Randolph-Macon!

Betty's friendly grin and her genuine interest in other people's woes and triumphs have endeared her to those who know her best, and it may truly be said that Farmville is a better place for her having been here.

The state of Florida has some 30,000 small lakes.

Easter Bunny Spreads Joy By Fulfilling Girls' Wishes

Have you seen the Easter Bunny? We haven't seen him either, but he's here. You can just bet your life he is. Haven't you noticed the beautiful spring weather he brought us? Maybe his snow was a little out of season, but everybody makes mistakes. Underneath all this you can see the gay spring flowers blooming shyly and the trees beginning to bud. Soon the clatter of lawn mowers will be heard snipping the tender new shoots of grass. The renowned robin has returned, and even the air has that "springy" odor.

This obliging little rabbit has also brought us a new quarter. We can start a clean sheet and make all those wonderful grades we have been dreaming about. You will first have to overcome that little disease known as spring fever. It is very contagious, however, and the Easter Bunny is well known for spreading it.

"Bunny" has many wonderful things packed in his little bag—delicious new suits, crisp cotton dresses, exciting and foolish straw hats, and scores of other spring clothes to make anyone feel new and ready for all comers.

"Bunny" is in his full glory when Easter time comes. He simply revels in doing nice things for people. Why, the other day he came up to S. T. C. and told all the girls that it is time they took a vacation. He said it is time to forget stuffy classrooms and go home. Holiday time is here! Time to be joyful, care-free, and gay. Time to enjoy the wonders of Nature and rejoice in our many blessings. The S. T. C. girls gladly welcomed his advice. "That rabbit has got sense", they said.

So tomorrow we are all closing our books, packing our newest clothes, and hurrying home to celebrate spring and Easter time. According to "Bunny" we will either be cured or killed of spring fever and we will come back to school with renewed energy and light hearts.

We will leave you now with every good wish that the Easter Bunny will visit you all Easter Sunday morning and surprise you with a corsage of your favorite flowers. "Bunny" joins all of us in wishing everyone of you a happy Easter!

STC Girls Greet Springtime With Joyous Anticipation

"Spring has sprung, the grass has riz—I wonder where the birdies is?" With that time-worn statement, one can be fairly sure that the most delightful season of the year is truly here. What makes one so sure that spring is here? Oh, the usual things—the sunburn on the faces of S. T. C. girls, the gleam in some peoples' eyes, and you just can't overlook that ole demon, Spring fever, that hits you with a bang. With that long looked for sun shining, and with a cool breeze blowing, Spring is the best time of the year to do anything, but work.

Gals are bringing those cotton dresses out of the trunk, and trying them on for size. "What—you've grown?" Well, don't feel bad, there are few who haven't. One naive little STC-er wanted to know "Do I wash my own cotton dresses or send them to laundry?" Well, she can do as she pleases—but "does anyone have any Due?"

"In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of ——." Well, as a matter of fact, a few do think of love. So--ooo get out your lassos, girls, and with the help of Spring and cupid—you may get your man. O happy thought! It is almost a certainty that men become less "on guard" in Spring. All one has to do is watch for the one moment when he's well-fed and content—then pop the question. He's bound to say "yes"—we hope.

Yes, Spring is wonderful even if you are among the unfortunate ones who have to rise at the crack of dawn to admire the wonders of nature with the rest of a Biology class. Some person figured if she went to bed at nine o'clock she could still get her eight hours sleep.

"Welcome, sweet Springtime—We greet thee with song"—Ugh!

So You Want To Teach

Recently the Future Teachers of America sponsored a drive on our campus to find the best prospective teacher. We think that a drive of this kind does much to foster the teaching cause, and it really brings our future profession nearer to our hearts.

Have you seriously thought about teaching? It is one of the noblest professions of all. The task of training the young mind of the nation can be entrusted only to those who are capable and interested in this type of work. How else can we become fully trained for the teaching profession than by making the most of our college life?

Juniors and seniors perhaps feel closer to teaching than do the underclassmen because they are doing practice teaching and observing. What a tragedy it is, however, to discover after you are almost through college life that you could have done better. The realization that we must do our very best should come early in college life. Therefore, we appeal to all of the student body to do well now. This is the time—it is right now that counts.

So we plead with you, don't waste time. Make every minute count. We have heard so many people say, "Oh, if I had only done better when I first began school." For most people, this realization comes too late. Don't let it happen to you.

We wish to express our thanks to all organizations and individuals who are doing so much to promote the teaching cause.

Study Diligently

This quarter, which will be the final quarter of their college career for some and just another quarter for many, began officially on March 21. How many of us started this quarter with a determination to study more, to get more than just a passing grade, to really get all we can from our classes and make what we do learn carry over into our futures?

To get something from anything depends chiefly on what one puts into it. If we ignore assignments entirely or merely spend as little time on them as possible, are we being fair to ourselves? Do we really expect to learn anything from classes when we attend them with a "Here I am, teach me if you can" attitude? The professor knows the material already. Is the class period supposed to be just an opportunity to see if he or she can talk fifty minutes on the day's assignment? If we don't go to class prepared to take part in the discussion of the lesson, or to listen and ask questions intelligently, why do we go at all? Is it because we are just lazy and want someone to hand us an education with no work on our part at all?

By this time, most of us know our grades on last quarter's work. Some of these grades were good; others could be better. Regardless of whether they are good or bad, they should act as an incentive to do better work this quarter.

The end of last quarter is not too far gone for us to forget the many things we had to do at the last minute merely because we put them off until then. Let's keep this in our minds and try not to do it again. Do your daily assignments and do them thoroughly. It is you who will profit in the end. And you do want to profit from your years at college, don't you?

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1947

We Commemorate Easter

This Sunday, April 6, we will again observe Easter. Tomorrow we will go home for the holidays. At this time we naturally think about the good times, food, and all the things that going home includes. But let us not forget the true meaning of Easter. When Sunday morning comes and we go to church all decked out in our spring best, let's not forget why we celebrate Easter. When we go to church, let us remember that we are going to commemorate the resurrection of our Lord and not to criticize our neighbor's new outfit.

Several years ago we were unable to go home for the holidays because of transportation difficulties during the war. We are fortunate in this country this year to be able to go to a church that has not been wrecked by war, and to be able to have a new dress. We are fortunate that we can eat a good breakfast before we go to church rather than just the meager fare that so many people will still have to get by on. Let us not forget this, and not forget to thank God for the blessings that He has bestowed upon us.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Ah, at last it's Spring. And it's about time. One feels like rhapsodising over Spring—it makes one think of violets and a new Easter hat; of newly plowed earth and the nice fat ooey gooey earthworms one finds to go fishing with; and one is forced also by the ever-present examples abounding on our campus to think of love and sunburn. In fact Spring is such a lovely season that one feels like being poetic rather than prosaic—at least one did till some drizzle-puss came by singing "Spring would be a dreary season if there were naught else but—" Pooey on pessimistic people.

Comment on the general heart condition of the majority of the student body (strictly off the record of course): Ain't love grand?

We weep salt tears over the fact that this concoction must get hot on the press before Freshman Production because we hear that it's going to be one of the outstanding performances of the year. Congratulations on a swell show anyhow.

'Cording to the calendar we'll be going home tomorrow so Happy Easter everybody.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Here we are with the latest dirt.

All the couples in the Rec seemed happy enough Saturday night, especially Mary Frances Hundley and her date.

Patterson and Koch sho' make a good-looking couple, don't you all agree?

Please tell us more about this cute cadet from Tech that seems so devoted to you, Ruthellen!

You and Cooper still get our vote for the happiest couple on campus, Lawless. It must be nice.

Expressions on Jean Turner's and Jessie Waller's faces indicate that their's is a real romance.

All of us have noticed stars in Jackie Bobbitt's eyes lately. Could Johnny be the cause of this?

Still seen quite often together are Peggy and Lee.

This Bibb—Ware affair must be getting serious. She was off to Petersburg again this week end.

Especially excited over her big week end in Richmond is Gris. A KA party is something to get excited about!

Red Hart and Marjorie Boswick were together as usual this week end.

Winnie Beard had a time to top all times at the Medical College dance last week end. Tell us more about it, Winnie.

Incidentally, the glowing look on Iris Coleman's face might be explained by Howard's unexpected early return from Florida.

Sho' nuff having a wonderful time this week end were Nancy and Watkins. What about it Jessee.

"Home was never like this", exclaimed Miss Garnett's friend as he walked into the Rotunda Sunday afternoon. Incidentally he really made a big hit with all the girls.

Exactly who was that cute girl Frank Baldwin was with this week end? Gwen Smith really gets around.

Since all good things must come to a close, so must bedcheck. We'll leave you hoping the Easter Bunny's good to all of you!

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We'd like to express our thanks to the freshman class for the fine entertainment they gave us last night. We think they did a swell job.

Few of us realize what a hard job it is for the freshman class to organize their talents. Productions take a lot of hard work and the freshmen have diligently applied themselves to the task. They entered into the spirit of the affair just as they have so eagerly entered into the spirit of everything at S. T. C. since they have become part of us.

Orchids to everyone who took part and to the director, Elizie Bragg.

Sincerely,
Three Juniors

Infallible Spring Harbinger Means May Day Practices In Full Swing

At last all the winter months have been ripped off the calendar, boids are a-choiping a merry song of Spring, and the one infallible harbinger of said gay season has arrived—the May pole has been hoisted in the gym, even though April is barely upon us.

Practice for May Day is in full swing, and from where we sit, it looks like this year's festival has all the earmarks of being the best yet. Now we aren't groping in the dark when we make this assumption, because there're several very valid reasons why all S. T. C. is in a lather over May Day; and we're not referring to the dream dates everybody's lining up for the dance, though that is enough to make a cloud-walker out of every normal gal. The fact that Miss Kay has spent a period of two years brewing up the 1947 fete is enough to insure a knock-out success, but we also happen to know that she has several innovations tucked up her sleeve that will put a whipped cream topping on this May Day dish.

If you were to scour S. T. C. with a fine-toothed comb, you'd have to be a veritable Holmes(as in Sherlock, that is) to find one member of the faculty or student body who isn't contributing in some way or other his two cents' worth to the May Day program. In the music department we find Miss Clark who has composed an original May Day score to which the college choral group will give voice. That alone is enough to make us strut, but wait—the tale has just begun. Miss Wheeler has done us proud, too, by writing a script for a choral speaking group which is, by the way, one of the innovations we mentioned awhile back.

For weeks now, Miss Kay and Orchesis have been putting their heads together in long gruelling session, composing and perfecting dances around which the whole pageant revolves. Modern dance classes have been working hard at the art of being a tree or the likes and gym classes have become authorities on the even more intricate art of untangling the streamers of the May pole. The Grand-daughters Club have struck a pinkie in this pudding, too, and have come up with many of the period costumes which will be used in May Day.

To mention all of the teachers and organizations who have put their shoulder to this great May Day wheel and have got it rolling on the road to perfection, would make this little discourse equivalent to one of those little documents, so popular around here, known as term paper. Be it sufficient to say simply that May

Special Collection Displayed In Library Features New Hobby

Mrs. Frank Blanton of Farmville started the shoe collection now on display in the S. T. C. Library about ten years ago with one shoe that she found in an antique shop. She now has over fifty shoes in her collection. They have come from various states and countries, and some of them are quite old. One shoe is made of glass known as "end of day glass." This is because the glass blowers were allowed to have all the scraps left from the day's work to use as they wished, and it was from some of these scraps that this shoe was made.

There are several china shoes styled for men in the collection. These are especially hard to find. The smallest shoe, less than an inch long, on display came from Mexico.

Situated near the collection of shoes are books on such hobbies as hiking, collecting, writing, music archery, radio, photography, puppets, and star gazing. Hobbies magazine comes to the library each month and is available to both students and faculty.

National Hobby Week was celebrated over the entire country from March 17 to March 23. The Hobby Guild of America gives free information on any phase of hobbies to anyone who requests it.

Left Lead

The sun was shining brightly, the air was brisk, and Nickie, or Nicoti, as Betty Bibb calls him, was waiting along with the Filly for us. Not the slightest bit of persuasion was necessary for Mary W. and I were eager to begin our ride. With farewells to Miss Shields we started happily on our way. Butch, Miss Shields' "puppy", decided to accompany us. Incidently, he's just about as much a puppy as Mr. Five by Five is a small boy.

Riding out to the cemetery, we were having a marvelous time when suddenly Butch appeared with about five small dogs following him. They immediately started fighting, but our wise mounts cared not a bit and trotted along the road most unconcerned.

Clouds began to hide the sun, but the joy of our ride made us keep on. Cantering over the smooth, broad shoulder of the road leading to H.-S. C., we left the other dogs behind and told Butch that we thought he handled the situation very well. Considering—that is.

We slowed the horses to a walk and began to relate past experiences of our various relations with horses. I'll never forget the time a "devil-horse" charged toward me with his paws apart showing vicious teeth; then turned suddenly around and bucked and kicked at me. That was one time I took out for the fence in A-1 big hurry. No one was able to catch the beast, but, of course, I had to try. Never again.

About this time Dr. Brumfield drove past. We started to race him but decided he was travelling too rapidly. Reaching the cut-through dirt road we moved slowly forward taking in the beautiful view of distant meadows and forests. All of a sudden we both decided to gallop up the hill and dashed over the road with a terrific burst of speed. It was wonderful! People who never learn to ride miss so much. It is a sport of unlimited pleasures. Come out and let yourself be shown the way to enjoy an afternoon mounted on a dashing steed.

When we returned to the stable, snowflakes began to fall, but, luckily, we had finished our ride. Why don't you add riding to your schedule. It's fun!!!

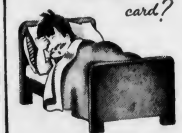
Porterfield Says Barter May Give 5 Plays Next Year

Barter Theater players, who presented their last play of this season in Farmville Saturday night, will have given 363 performances during their tours, when the company completes its fall, winter and spring season in April. After a few weeks vacation, the Virginia State Theatre, to use its official name, will resume its summer seasons offerings at Abingdon.

Robert Porterfield, who founded the institution in 1932 to "barter plays for vittles," spent the week end in Farmville renewing old friendships; prior to his stage, screen and radio work, he attended Hampden-Sydney College.

Porterfield, who still is director and leading spirit of the theatre, said Sunday that present plans are to give five plays in Farmville next year, these spaced out on a monthly schedule, no two plays being within three weeks of each other. This same scheduling will be used throughout the state. A tour, which will include Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, is being arranged for mid-winter, 1948. Out of state tours this year included the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida.



During the season the Barter troupe has played in Virginia communities of as few as 200 persons, when halls of sufficient size for production were available; as well as in cities of several hundred thousand persons.

Meanwhile, sucess of the Virginia repertory theatre has been inspiration for establishment of similar theatre institutions in California, Minnesota, Texas, Washington and Indiana, which hope to have similar state theatres within the coming year; other states plan to follow Virginia's lead later.

In order to enable the Barter Theatre to carry good dramatic entertainment to all areas of the state, the Virginia Conservation Commission last year allocated $10,000 to the institution, to pay a part of its expense. Commission members, as well as Director Porterfield, hope for a direct appropriation from the General Assembly at the 1948 session.

On the Ball

You eager beavers in sports should really make use of this spring sunshine—old man weather has changed a lot lately, but maybe we can soon settle down to our sports.

Tennis

Tennis is fun so come on out and brush up on your form, make use of extra time! For those that haven't as much experience on the court as some, don't let that stop you. With a little experience in welding the racket, sure foot movement, you could easily be on your way to becoming a first class player. Let's get out from behind the four walls of our dorm room, and give it a try.

Softball

Come on out gang, your team needs you, but you will need to practice and keep up your pitching and batting form. Soft ball rules are simple, and once you've learned to catch a ball and make the bat and ball connect, you're all set for an hour of good activity.

Archery

If you have not joined a class, find time in your day's extracurricular activities, and take some third periods in archery. To be a good archery player it takes skill and that can only come through practice.

So long sport fans. We'll see you after Easter.

Easter Bonnets Win Admiring Glances

In your Easter bonnet with all the ribbons on it, you'll make that ole Bunny Rabbit take a back seat. There is no better proof that spring is really on the way than the bright little hats that have appeared. Feathers or ribbons, straw or felt, they all have that fresh, saucy look.

Returning from the twenties is the deep-crowned, head fitting cloche. They say if you keep your mother's and grandmother's hats, they will come back in style. This small fitted hat with its fine look of miniature goes well with suits. Add a nosegay of contrasting flowers, and it takes on a lilting, spring-like air that will catch all eyes!

These days many bare the brow, as new brims lift by inches in front and new crowns settle down in back. A little brim curled back from the forehead and wider at the sides takes a different kind of wearing; a level set of the head and a straightforward regard. For the really daring, there's the little pillbox with a bustle back.

Soft pastels of straw, felt, or even a twirl of satin ribbon bedecked with flowers do surprising things to a costume. Second only to pastels—and in sharp contrast—the choice goes to brilliant kelley greens, scarlets, and yellows. Inspired by "The Yearling", a tawny shade of sunlight which goes well with black, navy, brown, and many high shades.

Use your heads! Select your hat on front of a full length mirror while wearing the rest of your costume. Choose a new bonnet which accents the lines of your suit and your best lines.

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

MARGARET WILSON

"The pen is mightier than the sword" and it is with this small weapon plus her engaging personality that Margaret Wilson has endeared herself to her classmates and friends. A loyal Colonnade staff member for three years, Margaret this year achieved the greater honor of being editor-in-chief and has performed the numerous duties attached to this position with increasing perfection. Her original touch may also be detected each week in the pages of the Rotunda of which she has been feature editor. Because of her fine literary ability she was chosen as historian for the senior class and made a member of the literary society, Beorc Eh Thorn.

The sight of Margaret flitting about the campus in her watermelon coat with a cheery greeting for everyone she meets, never fails to brighten lagging spirits. She's teaching her major subject, English, this quarter, although she is wary of the grammar, and her minor subject which is History a subject which she loves.

Her likes range from "Aunt Ellen's hot rolls to all sorts of literature—from the funnies to dramas and best sellers. Although her demure Desden-like features and cloud of wavy dark hair would never betray it, Margaret has a yen to travel and hopes that the coming year may find her in Honolulu. If so, we hope she won't discard her pet expression, "Yeh-h-h," drawn out real long, for a South Sea's dialect.

One of her favorite haunts is the Post Office from which we often see her emerge with a lengthy, brilliantly-penned letter from a certain U. Va. medical man. Don't tell, but he calls her his "Tall, dark, and assymetrical girl."

We call her "our Margaret," an ideal S. T. C. girl who has a very special place in the hearts of all who know her best.

Ex-Tiger Describes Cotillion In Various Journalistic Ways

By John A. Owen, Jr.
Ex-member Tiger Staff, now attending Medical College of the University of Virginia

A woman is a sometime thing. What other sub-division of the genus Homo can so mingle beauty and business, perfume and practicality, orchids and ordinance, even to the extent of distributing journalistic assignments, like favors, on the ballroom floor? And what assignment could be more plerplexing to the slow-witted male than that of a feature on the Cotillion dance?

There was a time (ante-bellum) when features were a prominent part of the repertoire — when a spate of words would flow from the pen at the drop of a linotype.

Today the state has abated to a mere spasmodic dribble. Even the style of writing is lost, to be searched for by painful trial-and-error methods. The ordinary news story style didn't fit. "Dancing to the music of the Vagabonds, the Cotillion Club members presented customary spring dance in the gymnasium Saturday night at 8:30 p. m.—" Obviously, that style didn't fit.

Nor was a hasty regression to the sports-writing stage any more successful: "Primed for their second triumph of the year, the Cotillion cuties waltzed on to victory in a thrill packed event at the gymnasium last Saturday. Starring for the home team was—." It wasn't hard to pick out the defects in that sort of thing.

Of late there had been considerable absorption osmosis, no less) of medical journal style. This was probably the least helpful of all. It was simply impossible to write: "In a series of two hundred carefully selected nulliparas engaged in the socio-environmentally acceptable sublimation of certain basic physiological drives —." Or if not impossible, at least highly impractical.

There next ensued a prolonged episode of floor-pacing punctuated by low gutteral exclamations of anxiety, despair, and eventually, resignation.

Finally there came the decision

Library Subscribes To Biography Index

According to Dr. Ruffin, college librarian, the library has added a new indexing service by subscribing to the recently published Biography Index, a one-place index to biography which is published quarterly.

This index includes current books in the English language, professional journals and obituaries of national and international interest from the New York Times. All types of biographical material are covered such as letters, diaries, memoirs, genealogies, fiction, drama, poetry, and autobiography. It includes material about individuals both living and dead. Made up of two sections, it gives an index by name in the main part and the second is an index to professions and occupations.

VEA Met Here For 2 Day Program

Dr. J. L. Blair Buck, Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, and Dr. C. Clement French were the principle speakers at the meeting of the Department of Teacher Education of the Virginia Education Association which was held in the Student Lounge at 8 p. m. Friday night, April 11.

Dr. Buck spoke on "State Scholarships." He said that these scholarships were set up for a specific purpose—to relieve the teacher shortage. These scholarships were primarily set up for those planning to enter the elementary field of teaching. He further stated that the scholarships were available to state and private institutions. There are 300 scholarships of $100 each, and 1,000 scholarships of $300 each. These scholarships are confined to juniors and seniors preparing to teach in elementary schools—subject to the approval of the State Board.

Dr. Lancaster, who is head of the Teacher Recruitment Commission, read from some reports that the sub-committees of his commission had made. He spoke about the work of the commission, and named the personnel of each of the sub-committees.

Dr. C. Clement French addressed the group on the topic "Improvement of College Teaching Study of the Southern University Conference." He said that the Southern University Conference is composed of 46 Liberal Arts Col-

3 Girls Selected As New Members

Joan Circle Began At S.T.C. in 1928

Heidi Lacy, senior from Richmond; Charlotte Grizzard, junior from Drewryville; and Mary Helmer, junior from Newport News, were tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma in chapel this morning.

Heidi has been a member of Student Standards for the past three years and served this year as chairman of the calendar. She is a member of Orchesis, on the AA Council, and is a class cheer leader. She was elected queen of the annual AKG circus this fall and will be a senior representative on May Court this spring.

Charlotte has been a diligent worker on the YWCA cabinet since her freshman year and was elected recently to the position of vice president of that organization. She served this year as chairman of the church cooperative committee. She has also been prominent in the work of the Granddaughters Club.

Mary has been active in both class and school activities, especially in connection with the choir and paper. Her freshman year she was elected as a Student Government representative and was the chairman of her class circus stunt. She started her career with the Rotunda as a news reporter and advanced to the positions of news editor, managing editor, and editor-in-chief, respectively.

Recently elected officers of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership society, are president, Jeane Bentley; vice-president, Nancy Chambers; secretary, Peepsie Brooks; and treasurer, Tucker Winn.

Alpha Kappa Gamma was organized in 1928 representing the merging of local societies which had been founded in order to bring together groups of representative students and faculty members whose purpose was to foster high ideals and standards of leadership. Joan Circle was one of the charter members of the organization.

Cancer Foundation Opened Dual Drive On Campus Monday

April 14 marks the opening of a dual drive, disseminating information as well as collecting cash, by the Virginia Cancer Foundation.

The national association is seeking $12,000,000 during the current campaign; Virginia's quota is $180,000 of this. Here at the college and throughout Prince Edward county solicitations will be concentrated from April 14 to 19.

The American Cancer Society reports that one out of every eight dies with cancer; under accelerated programs, 25 percent of all funds collected go to research to determine cure and prevention of the disease. Information which may aid in early discovery of cancer, in order to check it, is distributed by all canvasers.

The Virginia Cancer Foundation was organized in 1934, and the Women's Field Army established in 1937. The two merged in 1939 into one organization, The Virginia Cancer Foundation, Inc. affiliated with the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

April is designated as "cancer month" when every citizen is called on to contribute to the an-

One Out of Eight

One out of eight dies with cancer. What a terrible statement, yet it is true. This dread disease is no respector of persons—it hits both the young and the old.

A dual cancer drive began on our campus on Monday and will continue throughout the week. This is an opportunity to give to one of the most worthwhile drives ever begun. Part of the money contributed goes to research. When we consider the fact that there is still much to be learned about cancer, we will want to give generously.

There are numerous clinics in Virginia that provide for treatment of this disease. No patient is turned down even if there is little hope. In order to maintain clinics of this sort, sufficient funds are needed. Diagnosis and treatment of cancer is a pocketbook wrecker, as there are so many expensive factors involved. If some individuals had to pay all the cost, they would indeed be nearly broke.

We cannot be sure that we, ourselves, or our dearest friends or loved ones will not be claimed by cancer. If they were, we would want to help shoulder the burden—so why not help those who need our help now. We, in turn, may need their help someday.

Won't you do what you can—give what you can for this very worthy cause? Someone, somewhere will thank you from the bottom of their heart. What other thanks could one want for contributing?

Wake Up To World Affairs

Enjoying college life as a carefree existence made up of a series of parties, dances, fun, and a little work in the form of classes and tests, many of us fail to realize our duty as a citizen of Virginia, the United States, and of the world. We carelessly glance at the headlines of a newspaper occasionally, but few of us really keep informed on current events. What news we do hear, we merely accept in a nonchalant, disinterested manner.

As would-be future teachers, it is our duty to wake up to world affairs. We should strive to become well informed and really know something about things that are vitally important to us even though we may not realize it at the present time.

How well informed we are today will affect us greatly in the near future. Many of us are of voting age now and others soon will be. That means we will have a direct hand in the government through the election of state and federal officials. The vote of one individual may seem like a small thing, but if everyone used this vote to the best advantage by becoming well informed on current events and trying to see things from an unprejudiced viewpoint, the powerful result would be amazing.

Not only from the standpoint of voting should we be interested in world affairs but from the stand point of culture. Every person who is educated should be able to discuss intelligently current events. They should be able to formulate opinions and interpret world happenings to some extent.

Many of us say we do not have time to read the newspaper as we should. But if we would make it a point to at least scan the front page and read the main story and editorials of the daily newspapers or listen to news reports over the radio, we would find that we wouldn't really miss that little time. In the end it would be time saved for it would be time spent to good advantage and not wasted.

Let's make it a point to ask ourselves daily, "What have I learned today about world affairs?"

Puddin' n' Sauce

If one were to sum up our daily lives here in the most concise manner the trite little phrase "never a dull moment" would certainly fill the bill with nothing left out. How so many things can happen at one time or follow each other so rapidly that we can't get through with one before the next is upon us is the unsolved mystery which even the delightful Lord Peter Wimsey couldn't unravel. All of which is just a round-about way of saying that there is so much to comment upon that one hardly knows where to begin. Guess we'll just take a leaf out of Winchell's book and make this a running view of things in general. (Shall we call it a trip through the zoo?)

The glee club left yesterday for Portsmouth to give a concert . . . details can be obtained from other sources; let it be sufficient here to say that we know they did a good job. And don't forget to consult friend Bed-Check for all off-the-record happenings.

May Day is the event in the foreground today. Most of us don't realize just how much time and effort those who are responsible for it are spending. Imagine yourself giving up movies in the afternoon, or that all-important date, to work on it and you'll appreciate their efforts more. Let's all pitch in and do what we can to help them so that all their plans for making this the grandest May Day ever, go over big.

The inevitable weather makes an interesting thing to talk about in a tight spot; one can talk on and on about it without ever saying anything (a perfect example of Mr. Coyner's statement that some people can just start their mouths going and just go off and forget them indefinitely), but don't worry you're not in for many more lines of it. To be very brief: this weather brings to mind a little poem which begins—"April, April, laugh your girlish laughter and the moment after weep your girlish tears." And from the sublime to the ridiculous the duck said "about such weather you never can tell, I'd better take my fine umbrell."

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Another week has rolled around and here we are again, Gals, with some more news.

According to all reports, the Cotillion Dance this week end was a big success with everyone having a swell time.

Talking about the dance, Margaret Wilson really had quite a time. Seems she didn't think she would ever make the dance because of a "late" date, climaxed by not being able to get a ticket until the last minute. Ah, well, such is life. But better luck next time anyway.

Quite a large number of S. T. C.ers have been paying ole Sol a visit up on the roof judging from the "lobster" faces seen on campus this week. Their favorite saying up to date is "Oh, my sunburn!"

By the way, ask Slitz Litz how she nearly scared her cronies to death Saturday afternoon.

After the other night, Hilda should pay more attention to what is said. It might be more profitable, no?

Well, guess this is about all for now so 'bye until next week.

Guiding Personalities of Former Teachers Have Made Farmville a Great Institution

What does a personality mean to you? Is it an individual outstanding in place and time? Is it just a face? Does it make you think of some one you know? Or do you know someone combining those qualities the mind's eye sees? Does it touch something deep within—inside of you?

Time confirms the fact that schools are built around personalities. Herewith I present a few for you to judge. Were they all teachers? Did they teach?

The first personality, Miss Celeste E. Bush, is one who reflects the spirit of the school in its earliest days. Imagine Farmville in 1884—a shell of a building, a small appropriation, no desks, no chairs, no books. Would you have left a position close to your home with all the comforts life afforded in those days to come to a place unheard of to you and so soon after the War Between the States? Would a Northerner be welcomed in the South? Dr. Ruffner the college's first president convinced Miss Bush that if she "would manage working details" of which he had no knowledge he would "manage the vice-principal" (her title).

A direct quotation from her first letter to her parents in Connecticut is proof of what it took in those days to be a successful teacher (who would teach others to teach).

"On Wednesday the pupils and furniture began to arrive simultaneously, and you can imagine the confusion of setting up furniture in rooms under the pressure of some one impatient to get in and occupy it.

"Besides the general care of all this confusion and running from the top to the bottom of the building a hundred times I had to greet each new arrival in a dignified way and meet no end of gentlemen who came with their daughters or friends. Then Dr. Ruffner depended on me to organize and start the school. I scarcely have a minute alone.

"But this will be better soon. We shall get our house started and our school in grand running order and then it will be very nice. The people here are so good and kind, and I think they have decided that I am a success." And that from Farmville's first teacher. Did she just teach?

The second personality, also a woman, because "womanhood of itself is a glorious heritage" was not a teacher but the head of the college home or home department. It was Mrs. Portia Lee Morrison's "supreme aim to throw around the students as far as possible, the atmosphere of a real true home, where gentle demeanor, unselfish consideration for others, harmony and love prevail."

When Dr. Jarman came here as a young man he spent many an evening at this gentlewoman's fireside. Could she have guided him? Does the spirit of homelikeness still prevail?

Miss Celestia Susannah Parrish was a member of the faculty who came up from the ranks as a student in the 1887 class to be appointed Professor of Mathematics until she left in 1895. "Rendered penniless by the Civil War and by the early death of her parents she made heroic sacrifices to educate herself. She assiduously memorized the few books she was able to get her hands on." Her stay at the State Female Normal School was short in comparison to others who have devoted their lives to the institution, but Farmville is proud to claim her as a daughter first, Georgia as a pioneer among women. Having organized the first practice school in Georgia, the Southern Association of College Women, being superintendent of Rural Education for several years, identified with the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs "she was a pioneer in the promotion of preschool and adult education." Farmville, the Great Teacher of Teachers, started her on her way. Are there some among you today?

The next two must be included together as both started under the same president, both have served under three of the college's five presidents, both are still living after having devoted their lives to teaching. Miss Martha Willis Coulling, who came as a young woman, has seen the college's art department grow from a very elementary course in public school drawing in 1886 to one offering "almost every field of art practice and appreciation useful to the public school teacher." This is Miss Coulling's greatest contribution to the college. As for being a teacher of art appreciation ask Miss Bedford how she was guided. A teacher doesn't always teach. She learns from another.

Miss Minnie V. Rice, the second member of our twosome, has served the longest of anyone on the faculty. If asked what she taught, she would say, "Latin," but her students, "looking back through the years, see Latin as only the means to a higher end—that end being the development of ideals and standards of living that have influenced them after much of their Latin has been forgotten." Walk about town and you will see a little lady dressed in black, hurrying along (mind you) despite her eighty-odd years. Did you ever try to help her up the library steps? She refused me, too.

Miss Mary White Cox, better known as "Miss Mary" to the thousands of girls who came under her supervision, was head of the home long enough to see daughters of mothers she had counselled before come to her. And, as always, no one was turned away. Her very presence commanded respect, yet her opinion was never forced on any girl until she, too, had the opportunity to think it over. The college's homelike atmosphere, which still prevails, is Miss Mary's contribution.

Miss Jennie Masters Tabb, who was Registrar of the College and Secretary to Dr. Jarman for thirty years, wrote our Alma Mater, which, in years to come, will be considered Miss Jennie's greatest contribution. Yet, if you had spent hours, like I, with Miss Jennie's verse which has become the guide for the choral speaking part in a large portion of the college's historical pageant; or had just leafed through many of her jottings, often in her own hand, you would say, "How could one woman have felt so deeply, expressed so clearly the feeling of the college, have caught the something which makes the past vivid yet timeless, too?" It seems to be the living pulsating beat that will echo and re-echo through the years."Words of love are sweeter; and he who publishes abroad his love, and in the hour of need scries not, knows not the meaning of the word." Has she served well?

Miss Estelle Smithey, Professor of Modern Languages for forty-one years was a great teacher and moral leader. She taught, not one but all three—French, Spanish, and German. She was far ahead of her time in methods of teaching a language through speaking it orally. Too often the college student thinks that anyone near thirty is ancient and one is older is dotish, yet recall what one of your professors said just the other day about your not being so modern or new in thought. Many are born ahead of their time. Many teachers in their quiet way are too, only you don't or won't see it until you realize that time moves on, changes occur gradually almost imperceptibly until someone, no greater than the others yet born just right, puts it before the world's eyes. It is so with teaching. A teacher like Miss Smithey perceived that, as you no doubt will when you teach, but will you see the other, too? Could you look out your classroom window on a rainy day, see a spot of color in a raincoat or umbrella going by and say "thank God for that bright touch of color on a rainy day." Miss Smithey always did. She saw beauty in the commonplace, the everyday things. Will you?

The men personalities will follow in a subsequent article.

to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. The Cotillion dance was an entirely pleasant and charming affair. The orchestra played well and the women danced beautifully. While an eyewitness account of the figure is impossible, it may be aptly described as a graceful and very agreeable sigit. Dances at S. T. C are, and always have been wonderful events — comfortable, charming, and completely delightful.

With the subject matter of the feature thus baldly condensed to four paltry sentences, the feature was turned in. The official opinion of the feature was delivered in the few terse emphatic sentences which it so richly deserved. The effect immediate, complete, and exactly as calculated.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

You eager beavers in sports should reaily make use of this spring sunshine—old man weather has changed a lot lately, but maybe we can settle down to our sports again.

TENNIS

The courts have been rolled and lined and are in good shape for the spring season. Let's keep them that way by remembering to wear the regulation tennis shoes. The courts have been one of the most popular places on campus since the first signs of the sun, and we hope they'll stay that way.

SOFTBALL

The turnout for the outstanding sport of the season has been great, but it can be a lot better. Every girl with or without knowledge of how it's done should be out on that field during the class periods scheduled for softball to take part.

ARCHERY

Come on out and try your luck hitting the target. It is loads of fun and you will enjoy the sun and fresh air.

Until next week, stay on the ball.

Pretty Days Mean Time for Cottons

A skirt and sweater isn't becoming with a sun tan, that means it is time to get out your cotton dresses and give them a pressing, girls.

Look fresh and pretty during the warm weather in fashions of washable fabrics. Eyelets, seersuckers, chambrays, poplins and others are found in the spring parade of "tub" fabrics. They may be solid colored, plaids, stripes, figured or two-tone combinations. Pastels have always been popular but recent years have brought the darker colors into the scene.

Trimmings are necessary for almost every dress. Buttons—lots, and lots of them, shiny metal ones, colored, pearl or plastics; belts—wide ones, narrow ones, red green, blue, brown or black; fabric or leather — a wide choice, don't you think? Ruffels — here too there is no limit—necklines, sleeves, peplums, hemlines or any place for a light touch of frilliness. To make things even brighter, contrasting rick-rack, embroiders, or saddle stitchings highlound necklines; low necklines; sleeves, cap, tailored, short, bell, or even sleeveless. Maybe the gathered skirt is your pet, or you may prefer the sophisticated long, straight, split one?

Cottons are practical and permissable in most places, dress them up with heels or play in them with sandals.

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

MARTHA RUSSELL EAST

We focus our attention this week on one of our most outstanding seniors, Martha Russell East. Known to some as Rusty, Martha hails from South Boston.

When the class of '47 organized four years ago, they immediately recognized her as one of their most prominent leaders and elected her as secretary of the class. Spring election returns in '44 and '45 found Martha Russell as a representative to Student Government. Her junior year she was elected as secretary of the Y. W. and stepped up her senior year to fill the responsible position as head of that organization. She has met her duties as few before her have done. Alpha Kappa Gamma recognized Martha as a class and college leader and tapped her at the beginning of her junior year. She has been recognized nationally for her work at S. T. C. and her name will appear in the 1946-47 edition of Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities.

Possessing poise and natural beauty, Martha Russell has served on the May Court for three years. She has been selected this year to represent the college at the annual Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester. When May 1 rolls around we'll send Martha off knowing that our school is well represented.

Many of us have often turned to Martha for sound advice and found that she always had a word for each of us that would in some way make us feel better or see the future more clearly. Possesing a versatile nature, Martha has inspired many of the girls that have trod these halls from day to day and has added life to every party or bull sesion. We have indeed found in her a true and loyal friend.

When Martha leaves school in June, it will be our loss and a gain for the teaching profession. We can truly say that she has caught the spirit of State Teachers College. Not only has she caught the spirit for herself, but she has passed it on to others. We'll never forget Rusty, her attractive smile, her gracious manner, and her cheerful little mannerisms.

Mid-term estimates come out Wednesday, April 23.

leges and universities taken from the Southern Association of Colleges. Their philosophy was that one needs to know three things: how to evaluate college teaching, what is to be taught, and how to interest the faculty. The membership was appointed at the beginning of the college year. He closed by saying "When teachers themselves are concerned with the matter, we are certain that the situation will improve."

Saturday morning, April 12 Robert F. Williams, executive secretary of the V. E. A. spoke on "Cooperating in the Program for Action of the V. E. A." A business session was held after Mr. Williams' address.

Many people from different sections of the state attended the two day meeting which was held on the S. T. C. campus.

Notice

From now on until June we will have only one-half a day of school Wednesday mornings. The other half will be on Wednesday afternoons.

Jeffers Announces No Monday Chapel

According to an announcement by Dr. George W. Jeffers, head of the chapel committee, there will be no more Monday chapel programs. Dr. Jeffers also stated that the reason for not having compulsory chapel is that Dr. Lancaster promised the students that he would give voluntary chapel a try.

Dean Savage, newly appointed Dean of the College, will speak in chapel on Friday.

Dr. Jeffers said that the chapel committee is open to suggestions and urged that each student seriously consider ways in which chapel can be improved.

STC Album Goes To SchoolOverseas

High praise has been given the album on State Teachers College, its history and activities, compiled by 25 of the college students under direction of Jean Edgerton, for Red Cross international relations work.

Jean attended a Red Cross conference at Alexandria last December, at which was displayed an album made at the Institute of Lady Teachers, at Bruno Czechoslovakia. This showed pictures and contained information on that college's history, studentbody, curricula and locale. Since the STC girl was the only conference member from a teacher-training institution, the Red Cross asked that she have a similar book on STC made up, which through the Red Cross, could be returned to the Bruno school.

Students here wrote of Virginia, of the college past and present, put in photographs, paintings and drawings, showing a variety of college and community activities. The STC-made album was sent in March to the Red Cross headquarters for translation into the language of Czechoslovakia, and will be forwarded to the institute at Bruno.

Library Displays College Catalogs

The current college catalogs have been moved to the main floor of the library and may be found in the room adjacent to the card catalog.

The second of the new "Library Leaflet," a list issued monthly of selected titles added to the library has just come out. This new list contains annotations for titles which are not selfexplanatory. A new policy has been inaugurated by the staff for the distribution of this list of new titles. In addition to the members of the college faculty, the list is being sent to the elementary school faculty, to other librarians in the Farmville area, public officials of the town and county, presidents of local clubs, and other interested persons. A supply is publicly at hand in the library for distribution among students and other patrons.

May Day Is Theme of Conversation, Efforts, Concern of Everyone Now

There is just one thing to talk about now—May Day! You just aren't on the ball if you aren't concerned with May Day in one way or another. Nearly every organization in school is lending its talents to make this important event a success.The modern dance groups and Orchesis give action to the performance through dance. The choir expresses its feelings through song. Dramatic Club girls are working hard on choral reading. The publications are doing their best to spread the news of May Day far and wide. The staging and costuming groups require a large amount of work too.

Rehearsals! Rehearsals! and then some. Every day groups work in the gym and in the small auditorium. Soon the meeting place will be Longwood. That's when the fun really begins. What could be more enjoyable than an afternoon hike to the country to dance and sing in the dell.

Will each of you promise to do something for us? Please cross your fingers and hope that it won't rain. It would just be a catastrophe for we are expecting crowds from all parts of the state. This year May Day will be of particular interest to daughters, mothers, grandmothers, and even great-grandmothers who attended S. T. C. or State Normal School. The pageant will be brimming with sentamentality, symbolism, and human interest.

Miss Kay can tell you, and has told you, more than we can about the theme and background of this spring's celebration. We can only submit our opinion of the whole matter and say that we love it. We admire Miss Kay and the other members of the faculty for undertaking the hugh task of portraying through song, dance, pantomime, spoken words, and costumes, the history of our school.

Thinking of Taking Biology? Take Reporter's Word--Don't

If you took a course in the Department of Biology during the winter quarter, you had a little better than a 10 per cent chance of getting an A grade for the quarter. Of course, if you were a freshman your chances were not so good—a shade less than 6 per cent to be exact. Here are the figures for the department: 278 students from freshmen to seniors took courses in biology. Of these, 29 received A for the term (that is pretty close to 10.4% as I figure it). Of these 278 students, 152 were in Freshmen Biology and nine or 5.9% got an A for the term.

The department is a little reluctant about divulging the percentage that failed; as near as they could find out "about the same percentage as got A". I also tried to find out what biology course is the best one to take if you want an A. We will have to rule out the seminar course where they drink tea because they don't permit "ordinary" students to enter. At that I can't figure out why only four out of eleven students got A on drinking tea. The cat course is another snooty course, open only to a few students. But why be snooty over cutting up cats?

In Genetics, Dr. Brumfield gave 9 A's to a class of 44 students and immediately I started to sign up for Genetics next year. Then, I glanced further down the sheet and discovered to my dismay that six of the forty-four flunked, so I did not sign up.

I also tried to discover which is the toughest instructor in the department. Students taking the stuff differ widely and I conclude they are all tough. In only one course did nobody get A. That is embryology under Dr. Higginbotham, but only one flunked.

(I don't care what you write, says a freshman, Doctor Brumfield is cute! But seniors know better).

"Brainy" Frances Fears, Ella Stone Smith, and Mary Frances Vaughan made A's in two biology courses. A number of students made A in one course. What? You think that you'll take Biology? Well, if you do, don't say I didn't warn you.

Do We Still Have Farmville Spirit?

What has happened to the Farmville spirit? Our spirit has been noticed by many andwe cannot afford to let it diminish. It has always been something that we could be proud of—now is not the time to let down on the job.

There is always a large attendance at our games and plays, but the attendance at our concerts hardly justifies the work and time it takes to put them on. A large number of our student body are members of the Choir and Choral Club and it is unfair to them to have to sing to a small audience. Nothing is so disheartening to a performer. Put yourself in their shoes—now how would you like it?

Last Friday night when the Spring concert was given, the audience was so small that it was indeed a reflection on our student body. We believe that most students enjoy music and the concert was diversified enough for anyone to enjoy. If the students are not interested enough in our own choir, it looks as if the added attraction of the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club should have drawn a better crowd. Yet, we hate to think that our own Choir is not enough of a drawing card.

Some of the numbers that the girls sang were "The Children's Prayer", "I Heard A Forest Praying", and "O Little Star." The boys sang "Po' Ol' Laz'rus", "Steal Away", and "De' Animals A'Coming" among others. The "Animal" song drew enthusiastic applause and they rendered it again as an encore. Both groups sang "Because", "The Lord's Prayer", "God So Loved The World", and "Holiday Song". Who could ask for a better program than that?

Farmville has always been fortunate to have a good music department and a choir known all over the state. We should be proud of them and of their accomplishments and should be grateful for an opportunity to hear them perform. Music has always afforded hours of pleasant enjoyment to people, and when we have the chance to hear concerts such as those always presented by our choir, we certainly cannot afford to miss them. There should have been a large crowd at the concert merely from the standpoint of personal interest and enjoyment even if the fact that it was a student program put on by a group of talented students did not appeal to one's school spirit.

Long hours of work were spent in fixing the stage and attending to small details. We certainly were not very appreciative, do you think? Let's show that we still have some school spirit by attending the next concert en masse. Yes, the Choir is just as much a part of school as anything on our campus. This is a challenge to you—will you take it up?

Cooperation Needed In STC May Day

In about ten days, on May 3, Farmville's annual May Day pageant will be held at Longwood. The history of Farmville State Teachers College will be the theme of this year's presentation.

Many of us, in fact most of us, have little idea as to how much work goes into the preparation for May Day. Months and months are spent planning and collecting data for the factual background besides the last several months before the event spent in hours of practice.

Now that the day of the big event is so near, utmost cooperation is needed, everyone who misses a rehearsal throws the whole thing off and valuable time of others is wasted. In order to work out the last minute details and get everything in smooth running order, all participants are urged to keep the rehearsal schedule in mind and meet every appointment on time. Even though it may mean giving up a movie or a date for the time being, May Day will soon be over and there will be ample time for the few things you might have to sacrifice this last week.

May Days have long been outstanding affairs at Farmville. They have been known for the beauty and grace personified, and for the way the general theme is worked out. This year's historical pagent should prove to be no exception. It will be something of interest to each of us or something that we will remember long after our college days are over.

There is an old saying that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link. The individual is just as important in May Day. It is up to everyone to do his part well to insure the success of the pageant on which so much time and effort has been spent.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Who gets the pudding? Who gets the sauce What sauce? Apple? No! Puddin' head. Answer my questions. Be mindful of both suggestions. Which holds the clue? That's the question.

Ever notice the rubber mat in front of the Rotunda door? Either yes or no is correct for your first answer.

What is the Normal light? Ask Miss Taliaferro—she was in the first one. See Mr. McCorkle or Sue Hundley for up-to-minute information.

What organization, one of the largest, uses "white is for purity and youth and blue is the badge of the true"? All big sisters ask your little sisters.

Would marching to and from classes help you to get there faster? See Mrs. Coyner to tell you how it was done.

When was Joan adopted as patron saint? Which honor society is the oldest?

Is STC's Dramatic Club or the H.-S.C.'s Jongleurs the oldest club? Ask Mrs. Packer. She was Miss Fearless.

What is the oldest sorority on campus?

Have Seniors always worn caps and gowns? Ask any Senior. Charlotte Grizzard can answer you right off. Try it.

What is the difference between a fair day and a field day? Just say we have May Day today.

Who got the puddin? Who got the sauce? I just heard the bell. Let's eat.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

S. T. C. really had its share of company last week-end. It was swell having so many men walking around, and it was nice to see the rest of the visitors, too.

All the lucky girls who went to dances at either Randolph Macon or Virginia seemed to have had a most wonderful time. The girls in the Choir who sang at Virginia report that it was super. Now what did you mean, girls, the college or the men?

The typical STC girl was certainly not Barbara Churn. When she received that call from Macon she didn't even run to receive it.

We are so glad that Betty Brockway and Roger have made up. Good for you, Betty and you too, Roger.

If anyone knows how to break a plastic record please get in touch with Ruthellen Mears or Sue Hundley. They have been trying all year to break one. Must be some record.

Hooray, Bebe's rabbit has been found. Many thanks to the person who returned it. All the Juniors have fallen in love with the rabbit.

Ginny Sue, we all want to know about "Lovely" and about that "flat-tire" titie that refers to him. Tell us about it.

Three cheers for the Choir and H-S Glee Club. You presented a beautiful concert.

Mary Lou Woodward and Helen Londeree were seen with two cute V. P. I. cadets last week-end. Sigh-Sigh. The luck of some people.

Bill Hamilton sure gets around doesn't he Pattie?

For an exciting and thrilling story be sure and see Norma Roady about her Yorktown episode. You can't really afford to miss this one.

That's aboot all for this here week. Be sure and tune in to the same station at the same time next week for the latest. Be good or your Bed-Checker will find out.

Letter to Editor

Dear Editor,

What has happened to the "Farmville spirit" that we hear so much about?

Last Friday night when the Choir gave their Spring concert it was very disheartening to see so few people sitting in the audience. We think it is a shame when a group works as hard as the Choir and then as a reward gets an empty house at one of their biggest concerts of the year. We hate to feel that we have worked in vain.

We would like to take this means of thanking the people who did come. They were a very responsive audience—one that we enjoyed singing for.

Sun Bathing

April Brings More Than Rain But Would You Believe It?

"April showers bring May flowers—" and rain, warm weather, spring fever, and mid-term grade estimates." Yes, April is a great month. Why just look at all the things that come in April! First of all are the showers. The morning dawns bright and shiny, so we go down town and while trying on a dress we hope to buy, we look out of the window. Where is the bright sunshine? It's gone. All of the brightness of the few minutes ago has gone. From the looks of the pouring rain, one would never know that the sun warmed this ole earth for a week. Planning a picnic? Want to know "weather" or not it is going to rain on that day? Well, you know the answer. It's just a three lettered word.

April brings more than just showers, however. There is a strange disease that seems to be more prominent in April than in any other month. (Of course, there are some girls who seem to have this disease all year round.) The symptoms of the strange disease, termed in a strickly non-medical language—Spring Fever, are a wondering mind, looking out the window during math classes, inability to study (a year round symptom) and, well—in spring a young lady's fancy turns, too, you know. So far medical science has found no cure for this strange malady. It just must run its course.

April showers also bring mid-term estimates, accompanied by library visits, "Studying" signs, copying notes, and some actually studying for the first time since the beginning of the quarter. But maybe some pretty spring flowers will help our grade (See you in the field.)

But April brings picnics, too. After the three picnics in one week, remember that the "S. T. C. girl's best friend is—the infirmary." But has someone found out how to write a term paper the night of a picnic? One girl has decided to flip a coin to which she should do. Heads she goes to the picnic, tails she puts off her paper until tomorrow and, well you know.

"April showers bring—" April's a great month, with a capital G.

Men Personalities In Past Played Tremendous Part In Today's STC

Is your favorite professor a man or woman? Had you ever thought why? Is it because some or certain subjects which you like are best taught by a man or woman? Or, is there a time in a student's life when a man teacher is needed as guide, inspirer or friend?

In Farmville's record of personalities the women far outnumber the men but one must remember that S. T. C. has been a college for women. How many women personalities does Hampden-Sydney have? Therein lies your answer.

Perhaps these few personalities of the past will help you to see the men of today in a different light. Ask yourself is there a difference between a man and woman teacher's personality? If so, what? If not, what do all personalities have in common? They are about you in the classrooms, the halls, on the playing field as teacher, guide and friend.

Did you know that at one time when Dr. C. W. Stone was Director of Teacher Training and Head of the Department of Education that Farmville's Elementary Course of study was one of the best in the United States? Ask any members of the present staff who either as departmental heads or supervisors helped. Who said teaching wasn't glorious? To quote from a catalog of that period—"No student is allowed to graduate however proficient she may be in the academic branches, until she has satisfied the Training School Faculty that she is qualified to teach," is proof of the policy of today. It is no wonder that Farmville became the real training School for Elementary teachers.

The second personality is not a teacher in the classroom sense. Mr. Benjamin Mathews Cox saw service under three of the colleges' presidents, starting with Dr. Cunningham as clerk and Business Manager. "If long, faithful and efficient service is the proper measure by which to judge a man's stature then Mr. Cox to an eminent degree fitted this measure and met this standard. That a man's first duty is to his family is an acknowledged fact, but next after his family, this institution came first in the thoughts and affections of Mr. Cox. In fact, this school was to him almost part of his very life, and he gave himself to it unstintingly and joyfully." Every girl who attended school went away a loyal friend and admirer.

Dr. F. A. Miledge, the third personality, was a most unusual man. Possessed with a brilliant mind, and keen sense of humor, his influence was largely personal. He could talk on any subject even though he taught but Geography. There was never a dull moment in his class. If a student had to look up something she

Shoes Add Spice To Spring Clothes

By ADDIE DODD

With the arrival of Spring and signs of approaching warm weather, we turn our attention to the type of footwear that will comprise the summer shoe wardrobe. The emphasis here is on sandals, because these are the most popular styles for campus, office, or casual wear anywhere. They are cool, modern, and especially comfortable and attractive with cottons and playclothes.

Perhaps one of the newest type of sandal is the Cleopatra or Grecian style with only a few straps and a leather sole. It is available in all colors—If you prefer a less "barefoot" type, wings or moccasins in leather and suede with open heels may be your best buy These shoes are practical for all occasions with all spring clothes, and they are even suitable for dancing and long walks and are "feet-flatters" besides.

Colored play shoes may be found in numerous styles made of linen, leather, or suede. Ballet shoes and huraches are still among playshoe leaders, adding freshness to casual cottons, shorts and slacks.

Put spice into your accessory-wardrobe by adding to it several pairs of colorful sandals for campus and vacation wear.

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

MARGARET LOHR

The "spotlight points with pride" to one who was unanimously voted upon as truly a personality among the senior class. Hailing from Brightwood, Margaret Lohr began her freshman year by becoming an essential part of our college. Each year found her contributing more and more to make the spirit of S. T. C. as vital as it has become. Lohr has sincerely accepted her duties and conducted her life here in such a way as to make us all proud to know her.

Riding, basketball, hockey, swimming, "Turner," June brides, Tweed perfume, seafood—all of these we asociate with Lohr. We shall never forget those sensational basketball games, in fact, Lohr's all-out participation in sports has made her an outstanding athlete.

Then come her dignity in heading our Student Government Council. It was always with wise decisions and fairness that she reigned as executive. We loved her every moment too. Many organizations on our campus found guidance and leadership in Lohr. Her love for her school and class has been as great as her ability to serve them.

Her exciting trip to New Orleans, indulging in her favorite seafood, her crates of apples, and her Turner—none of us could fail to recognize Lohr with all of these. Her friendliness, contagious laugh, sense of humor—she is all of these. She has been a person to whom we all turned for help — ever dependable — ever faithful and friendly. This is Lohr.

Rehearsals, Trying But Fun Foretell Wonderful May Day

"Through the Years is in the middle! WHERE ARE YOU? Bridgforth, Hundley, and Lo-hr!" The cry goes up, the missing links are located, and the rehearsal is on. It's to be May Day with vengeance, and there's no arguing with the purposeful ring in Miss Kay's voice, and the extra oomph in the stomp of Miss Wheeler's foot. "With lifted voices," announces the choral speaking group, "we sing the praise of Alma Mater." The rhythmic rise and fall of the fifty voices bespeaks unmistakeably not only the hours of practice, but the sincere feeling which lies back of this whole May Day. Miss Kay proudly calls attention to the spirit of whole-hearted cooperation and enthusiasm which has characterized rehearsal. Each person seems not only willing, but eager to do his part, and more, to help in smoothing out the many difficulties which inevitably arise. With such a spirit, and such a theme, this must be our greatest May Day in many, many years.

But let's take a look around at the participants—those, that is, who are for the moment offstage. To our right there lies something brown and green and be-fringed. It has a face, and the face has a cigarette in it. Careful not to offend the costuming committee, we guardedly inquire as to its nature. It's a tree, silly. Anybody with any imagination could tell that—specially now it's up and swaying like one. Real pretty!

"Oh, chil-dren!" comes Miss Wheeler"s agonized voice, remonstrating with the choral speakers. "'With fame and COURAGE'" Accent, that is, on the courage. The Queen comes regally by, clad in a white bed-spread. She is closely followed by the the Maid-of-Honor, interestingly gowned in crinoline over something dark blue and very brief—shorts, as it

Wake Up Students Before It's Too Late

Much has been said in this column urging students to attend chapel. From time to time we have tried to prevail on your Farmville spirit to tell you what you have been missing by not coming to chapel, and our efforts have been in vain. Now we tell you that the chapel attendance is a disgrace to our college.

We are no longer children, but many of us have been conducting ourselves in a childish manner. It seems that having voluntary chapel would make you want to go. No, not S.T.C.'ers. They're too busy. They're busy drinking a coke in Shannon's. Have the students lost their pride in their college? It certainly isn't because schedules are too crowded. We went when we had compulsory chapel. Just what's the matter now?

The chapel committee has worked long and hard to give us good chapel programs. What have we done in return? We haven't appreciated in any way what they have done for us. We have stayed away with no good reason what so ever. On Monday, April 21, there were 31 students in chapel. Where were the rest?

Our president reduced the number of chapel periods a week and gave us voluntary chapel. He did this thinking we were adults and could be treated as such. We've let him down. We have showed him that we are a group of scatter-brain children. Dr. Lancaster has not let us down in any way, but we have let him down. We should hang our heads in shame that we failed to hold up our end of the bargain. If in a few years we are going out to teach the children of this nation, what will become of those children if their teachers show no more interest or pride than we, their teachers, have shown this year with regard to chapel?

Hide your heads in shame, S.T.C.'ers. Ask yourselves what has happened to the Farmville spirit, the rich spirit which has been a part of this college since its founding. Are we going to let this spirit die?

Library Offers Much To Entire Student Body

One of the most valuable assets of our college is its library, yet comparatively few ever discover the amazing things the library has. The library is well stacked with good books, magazines and references, and those timely exhibits and posters add to the charm of the library.

We are suggesting to you that you go over one afternoon and browse around and see for yourself what the library has to offer. What better way is there to spend an afternoon than in the company of Dickens, Browning or some other favorite of yours?

One of the nicest things about our library is the quietness that greets you when you open the door. After spending a day chattering every minute, quietness is just what you need.

One thing we must be careful about, however, is not to consider the library a meeting place for a bull session. Encourage your friends to meet you there, not to chatter but to read and enjoy books together.

The staff of the library is so willing to help you that you needn't have any qualms about asking questions. Very few people know all there is to know about the library, so ask questions and learn.

Since we have such a charming library, we must do our best to keep it neat and clean and in tip-top shape. Show the staff your appreciation by keeping the library clean.

Everyone likes praise, when it is due, so if you like some particular exhibit in the library, tell them so. Then too, if you think anything is lacking, make a suggestion.

We say we appreciate the fine library we have. Let's show that we do by visiting it frequently and not abusing the privileges it offers.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Some people think that S. T. C. stands for State Teachers College, formerly State School for Normal Females, oops, pardon—State Female Normal School, and May Day will attempt to prove it. But ask most any S. T. C. girl what the letters mean singly and she'll probably tell you something like this—

S stands for sunbathing on the roof and the inevitable result-sunburn, or it might stand for Shannon's; perhaps it brings to mind the bane of our existance—Saturday classes. I might even suggest the thing which we never get enough of, namely sleep. S stands for Seniors and Sophomores, for sisters and for the show. The rest we leave to your imagination.

T stands for town, whence Freshmen go at every opportunity, and Seniors at night. It could be for team work, or it be the dances at Tech. Perhaps it stands for telephone calls which "them what has, gets".

C stands for lots and lots of things, from the Colonnade to classes. To the dietminded it conjures up visions of cauliflower and cabbage, and mayhap cokes and Commission. It could be cold water on Annex every time there's a dance. C also stands for crazy—who, me?

Yes, these and many others contribute to life at Farmville and are as much a part of it as the Rotunda. So you see, S.T.C. is a very broad term. Go to May Day if you need proof.

History of College Presented In 4 Episodes of May Pageant

The program opens with a musical Prelude in ronda form. Strains of Alma Mater with that of the first theme are heard repeatedly before or after each succeeding melody of the college's five presidents.

The prologue, which sets the mood, or predominating, or central theme binding the whole pageant together, opens a choral speaking arangement. As the central figure, the teacher, Nancy Whitehead, moves on a specially constructed stage, Evelyn Patterson as Study, Anne Motley as Meditation, Barbara Jean Wiley as Rest, and Virginia Yonce as Recreation are the four figures who with the teacher move in a dance in archaic Greek form.

The four episodes, each following in successive and chronological order, show symbolically and authentically what each president as a personality has contributed to that which "belongs to the past, touches the present and reaches out toward the future." The first episode is centered about Dr. W. H. Ruffner as the pioneer who pointed the way for others to follow. A dance in rondo form shows symbolically what it took in those days to begin a normal school the first in the state with the odds for outweighing the advantages.

The Cunningham episode shows a gentle, humble courteous man. One of the outstanding modern dances of the tree figures in this section by students of the Fundamentals class. The triangle, a solo showing the beginning as well as the sympolism behind the religious spirit—the "Y.W."

The third episode, or the Frazer section, shows the college's first annual — "The Normal Light", Field Day showing a dumb-bell and wand drill of that period consists of 40 girls with Betty Burchett as the teacher.

Episode four is one of the most beautiful sections of the whole because it is centered around Dr. J. L. Jarman, the college's first president emeritus. The Inspirer of Youth part is touching when one sees the Senior, Margaret Ellett, arms laden with red roses approach the Joan figure—Anne Motley who sits immovable on the stage as the chorus sings, "Keep on Hoping", the song so familiar to every senior who has graduated.

The Friend part has all the Farmville spirit rolled into one. Archery and tennis use the class songs as musical accompaniment. Hockey has specially written music in Gollarde dance form by Miss Clark. Meetin' in rondo dance form has Betty Bibb as the chairman with the Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors entering in due order.

The May Court comes down the steps, around the green to form an ever-widening guard of honor for the queen and her maid of honor. The Maypole Dance follows after which the dancers part the streamers as a canopy for the court to walk through to make way for the dance "Through the Years". Here all the members of Orchesis in authentic graduation dresses dance a minuet, allemande and chaconne in stylized form to show the slow wheeling years where youth succeeds age. As the dancers move into their last circle, three seniors, Sue Hundley, Kitty Sue Bridgeforth, and Margaret Lohr enter up the steps as everyone speaks

"For us a glorious womanhood,
For us a torch to carry on."

and sing the Alma Mater.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Spring is here and with it comes the dances at Hampden-Sydney. A grand time was had by all our belles who attended.

We wonder what caused that happy glow on Betty Jefferson's face. Could've been the unexpected arrival of Carlton?

Have you all seen the rock "Lue" Baldwin is wearing on her third finger, left hand? We hear that wedding bells will be ringing soon also for "Pete" Evans. Our best wishes to you both.

Sarah Smithson was the most excited girl on Annex last week over her phone call from her favorite red-head.

Best time had this week end was claimed by the girls who dated the three "cuties" from Louisa.

The real center of attraction on campus this week end was "Boots" Foreman. Bring him back real soon, hear "Corky"?

Tell us, Millie, who is the "dream man" you were with at the dance Saturday night. You two sho' make the best lookin' pair we've seen for ages.

Our vote for the cutest couple of the week unanimously goes to Hank Hardin 'n David. They seem blissfully happy.

Can Art's coming account for the stars we've been noticing in Sally Ann Foster's eyes lately?

Seemingly having a delightful time at the H-S dances was Annette Vincent-Viry. She really gets around.

Who was that darling boy we saw you with this week end, Markham? C'mon, Gal, and give out.

There's one question we'd really love to have answered and it is—"From whom does Gin Tindall receive her numerous phone calls?"

Rickie, we hear you had a super plus time this week end. Need more be said?

If you are contemplating on making a blind date, see "Mert" Davidson for advice 'fore doing so.

So long for now. We'll see ya next week in Bedcheck.

Letter To Students

Dear Girls,

Tucker and I just had to tell you about our exciting trip to New Orleans. We left S. T. C. on Tuesday and on the train out of Lynchburg met the Westhampton College representatives bound for the same S. I. A. S. G. convention which was our destination. We jumped out of the train for just a few minutes in Atlanta, Georgia; Birmingham, Alabama; and Hattiesburg, Mississippi; so just ask us how many states we have been in and watch us beam.

A Marine lieutenant met our Westhampton friends when we stepped from the train onto famous Basin Street, and he showed us many parts of New Orleans before carrying us to the college where the conference was held. Tucker and I went downtown early Thursday to shop and explore. Maison-Blanche, New Orleans' largest department store, received most of our time and it was in the bridal department there that I bought my wedding dress. We visited the Royal Antique Shoppe in the French quarter and had dinner at the Solaris restaurant.

Conference discussions occupied our time until Friday afternoon when all of the delegates were shown through New Orleans. We saw the Sugar Bowl and Tulane University and ate at Antoine's. Friday night after our meeting Tucker and I went to see Charley Hop's sister and brother-in-law. After a great amount of apartment searching we found the delightful Sara and "Moon".

Saturday was an interesting day. To start everything off perfectly I received a telegram from Turner. All the business of the conference was closed at a morning session and in the afternoon we visited Jackson Square, the St. Louis cathedral, the Cabildo museum, and a French perfume shop. A formal banquet at the Arnaud restaurant ended our official trip. After dinner we met Sara and "Moon" and went to a hotel for dancing.

We were two tired but happy girls when our train pulled away

Left Lead

Not long ago, about eight of S. T. C.'s most interested equestrians motored to Sweetbriar College with Miss Shields. Dressed in riding habits and after making several wrong turns, we finally reached the stables of Sweetbriar.

We had previously planned to talk to Mr. Littere about horses and riding, but he was ill and we were not able to see him. We were very fortunate, however, in having Miss Rogers and Mr. Bailey, the riding instructors, demonstrate and talk to us about control. Mr. Bailey was an excellent rider, and, although Miss Rogers did not mount, we knew by her vigorous instruction and unlimited store of knowledge about each and every movement of both the horse and the rider that she was also. Jean and Mary W. rode while Miss Rogers tore their horsemanship apart and then skillfully put it back together again.

The stables at Sweetbriar are very nice but all of us particularly liked the indoor riding ring. It adjoined the main stable and was made from an old airplane hangar. Since the day was rainy, we realized its value doubly. (Wouldn't one of these be grand at S. T. C.?)

We finally had to tear ourselves away from this ideal riding place, but we stopped in nearby Amherst to eat lunch. Ever tasted an Eskimo pie?

The day proved exceedingly beneficial and all of us learned many new things about controlling our horses.

Don't forget the horse show on May 17.

were. A member of the court stands to the left. She is engrossed in an article which she is reading from her bouquet. Upon closer examination the same proves to be constructed of yesterday's Times-Dispatch. Editorial bouquets—or are be being corny today?

"Oh, Dumbells," a voice sings sweetly, and a surprising number of self-effacing people respond by charging out onto the floor. Mr. Crawley enters and departs, bearing the choir with him. Dr. Ruffner, nee, Nancy Dickerson, now has the floor. Gosh, he's cute. The Negro choir isn't here, but we are assured of three Negro spirituals come next Saturday. There is, in brief, a little of everything and a lot of a lot more involved in this May Day, and we couldn't possibly cover it all. But with the spirit, the talent, and the plain hard work which are going into it, it couldn't be any less than wonderful!

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

MARGARET ELLETT

The personality for this week is one who has held the No. 1 spot in the Senior Class for four years —it's first lady, Margaret Ellett.

Since she is active in so many things we often wonder how she has time for classes. We found out her Soph year when she received the Alpha Phi Sigma scholarship key. Her love of books and poetry was displayed in her interest in Beore Eh Thorn of which she was vice president. No one ever possessed more and class spirit. She even helped to make several productions successes with renditions of "The Man I Love" and "You Made Me Love You."She was on the varsity hockey and basketball teams, and on the class volleyball team for several years. These varied qualities of leadership were recognized by Alpha Kappa Gamma of which she became president.

"Pete" (a nickname brought from home) has taken plenty of kidding about how she looks in a leotard, but dancing is a favorite pastime, especially to that stuff she call "crooning" music. She is quite often called Senorita a name adopted because of her love of Spanish, especially the songs. At present she likes V. P. I., Tweed perfume, songs (the alto part only), Johnson's Baby Powder, jokes and Jennings Ordinary. Her grand disposition leaves no room for many dislikes, but we know of one prominent one—working at Virginia Beach.

She is truly endowed with the Farmville spirit. "Pete" has given much to her school and class. She wil leave a record that many will envy but few will duplicate.

Springtime Brings May Day Thoughts

When spring comes to the S. T. C. campus, it not only means that laziness and spring fever prevail in the classroom, but it also brings thoughts of May Day. This year, everyone feels, will be the greatest May Day of all. It is centered around Dr. Jarman and the history of the school up to the present time. This promises to be quite interesting as well as beautiful and entertaining.

As every one eagerly awaits this great event, the practices to bring perfection are being performed by approximately 400 participants, the greatest number ever to take part in this, the most important college event of the year.

Besides the students who will participate in May Day, many others are working day and night indirectly to make May Day a big success.

Under the able leadership of Miss Kay, who has been working on the May Day program for months and months in advance, we are surely to have the greatest May Day yet.

9 Students Pledge Sorority Groups

Nine girls pledged sororities as a result of rushing held on campus last week according to an announcement by Miss Ruth Gleaves Panhellenic advisor.

Patsy Ritter is the new pledge of Alpha Sigma Alpha and Ann Joyner and Lou Alyce Shelor joined Mu Omega. Those pledging Theta Sigma Upsilon are Dorothy Dodd, Nell Foster, Mary Lou Graham, Mary Jane Hite, Rosetta Simpson, and June Tolley.

Pi Kaps Entertain

On Friday night, April 25, Pi Kappa Sigma sorority held its annual spring banquet in the college tea doom. The invited guests were Dean Savage and Mrs. Savage, Mrs. Graham, Miss Gleaves, Frances Garnett, and Miss Iler, advisor.

Social Science Association To Meet Here Friday, May 9

Program Divided Into 4 Sections

Virginia Social Science Association will hold its annual meeting here on Friday, May 9.

The program will be divided into four parts—the economics section, history section, political science section, and the sociology section. The chairman of the economics section is Tipton R. Snavely of the University of Virginia, while Alen W. Moger, of Washington and Lee will serve as chairman of the history section. Charles O. Lerche, Jr., of the College of William and Mary will be in charge of the political science section, and E. W. Gregory, Jr., of the University of Richmond will be chairman of the sociology section.

There will be an afternoon general session led by Richard Lee Morton of the College of William and Mary. Following this discussion there will be a business meeting. A banquet will be held at 6:30 Friday night with George M. Moldin of the University of Richmond presiding. The guest speaker will be Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster. Kathleen C. Jackson of Hollins College will deliver the presidential address.

Students Sign Up For Picture Taking

Students may sign up for individual pictures for the 1948 Virginian at the table in the hall on Thursday and Friday of this week. Pictures will be taken on Monday, May 12, Tuesday, May 13, and Wednesday, May 14.

The table in the hall will also be open on Thursday and Friday of this week for girls who would like to finish paying for their annuals. Nancy Chambers requests that those who have not finished paying for them, do so as soon as possible as it will prevent confusion when the Virginians arrive.

The annuals are expected before the close of school. A preview of the annual will be printed in a later issue of the Rotunda.

The Virginian is the State Teachers College annual which is published each year by the students. A preview of the 1947 issue will be given by Sue Hundley, editor, in a forthcoming issue of the Rotunda.

H-S. STC Choirs Present Holy City

Concert Features 4 Guest Soloists

S. T. C.'s College Choir and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will present the oratorio The Holy City in the college auditorium Thursday, May 15 at 8 p.m. There will be four soloists from New York here for the occasion. The soloists are Barbara Troxell, soprano; Mary Davenport, contralto; William Hess, tenor, and Robert Matthen, bass.

Barbara Troxell and William Hess need no introduction to STC students for they have appeared here before. All of the artists are appearing here through arrangement with the National Music League.

Tickts for the concert may be obtained from any member of the Choir and the price is 60c for students and $1.20 for others. Tickets will be sold at the door, but everyone is urged to buy their tickets early to avoid confusion at the door.

On Friday night, May 16, the same program will be given at Hampden-Sydney in the new gymnasium. Following the concert, the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club is sponsoring a dance with music by the Vagabonds.

Both Glee Clubs will be under the direction of Mt. T. E. Crawley. The accompanist for the occasion will be Mrs. McRae of Hampden-Sydney and Preston Sawyer.

Taylor Announces Hostesses Needed

Nancy Taylor was recently elected as dining room hostess for the year 1947-48.

Nancy will have as her duty to enforce the dining hall rules and arrange the table seating for the coming year. She is a junior and a member of the College Choir.

The new rules for the dining hall will be published the first of next semester, but the main emphasis will be placed on keeping order and quiet.

As yet only a few incoming juniors have signed up as hostesses. Nancy urges that more offer their services

Collect Wits, Papers, Books, Then Begin--Term Papers

By JANICE SLAVIN

Collect your wits (which is not possible to begin with) and grab a pencil and some scrap paper. Pick your books—forgetting the main ones—and head to the Library. The minute you get there pester the girls behind the desk as to the location of every book you plan to use. When their patience is at an end, and you have a vague idea about the location of the material, make out a bibliography skipping the page numbers because you do not consider them important anyhow. Of course you'll have to write it over when your English professor sees it, but think nothing of it. Who knows, she may overlook it and certainly you are not the loser in a case like that. Nothin' like taking a chance, you know.

After consulting Readers Guide for awhile, go up to the stacks and start the search for information pertaining to your particular subject. Upon entering the stacks, you see your old friend ally who knows all the latest dirt. Here you forget everything and become verbally educated in the choice bits of gossip. You finally walk away with a sigh "Sally's a grand girl-she knows everything." After speaking to a few more people you know, you actually sit down with good intentions of working. First on the list of things to look up just happens to be an old Life magazine (your favorite magazine, of course). "Look at those horrible clothes that people wore back in 1936," you exclaim. After browsing around you remember with a jolt—the TERM Paper. You have to hand it in tomorrow and here you sit without a topic, information, or anything, and above all the outline that has to be handed in the next day.

The bell has just rung and the librarian is getting ready to close up now. You gather up your books and head back to your room (which is a madhouse) and try to think of a good excuse to tell the instructor the next day. Exhausted from such a trying day you fall sound asleep with just a few nightmares to disturb your sleep. What happened the next day? Oh, you don't really want to know. It's even more horrible than Lena.

REV. GEORGE KISSINGER

Inter-Varsity Plans Bible Study Week

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is making plans for a concentrated Bible Study Week to be held on our campus from May 12-16. Rev. George Kissinger, III, from Cape Charles, Virginia, will conduct the study. Meetings will be held every night in the Student Lounge at 7 o'clock, for 45 minute periods. At this time Mr. Klssinger will lead the Bible Study on the book of James. He will also speak at prayers Monday night, May 12.

Mr. Kissinger is a graduate of Hampden - Sydney College and Moody Bible Intitute. He served as chaplain in the Armed Forces for more than two years. He is now attending the Southern Baptist Seminary in Kentucky.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will have their annual picnic Tuesday afternoon, May 13. This group will leave for Longwood at 5 o'clock. They will return to the campus in time for the Bible Study each night and also the picnic.

Insect Collection Donated By Derr

An insect collection has recently been given to the school by Mr. H. B. Derr. A mineral collection will be given to the school by Mr. Derr in the near future.

Mr. Derr, formerly Agricultural Demonstration Agent for Fairfax county, is now retired. He is a member of the Virginia Academy of Science. He has frequently given exhibitions at the Academy and at schools throughout the state. Mr. Derr came to Farmville three years ago and gave a demonstration in the Biology labs.

Both Mr. Derr's collection and the Brodie collection which was previously left to the school will be temporarily stored until the new Science Hall is erected at which time it is to go on display and be used in the training of teachers.

Students Asked To Return Books

According to Dr. Ruffin, librarian, all books charged to students will be due back in the library by May 22. Every effort will be made to clear student library records before the beginning of examinations, in order that the resources of the library will be in good shape for the beginning of summer session, and also in order that no grades will need to be held up by the Registrar.

Dr. Ruffin states that students are asked to cooperate in this program. If by May 22 library records are in good condition, special permission will be granted by the staff for an extended use of books needed by students for last minute assignments.

STC Will Sponsor Horse Show May 17

On Saturday, May 17, S. T. C. will sponsor an all-day horse show at Longwood. The affair will start at 10:30 a. m.

Equitation classes both for S. T. C. and other colleges are scheduled as well as classes for local horses. Hunter and saddle open classes have also been planned.

The judges for the show will be Mr. Roland Dawson of Washington and Mr. Jim Wiley of Middleburg.

Practices for the event have just started and Miss Shields, riding instructor, asks that everyone interested come out to Longwood at two or four every afternoon.

On Friday, May 16, Dr. Lancaster will be the speaker at the morning chapel exercises. According to Dr. G. W. Jeffers, chairman of the chapel committee, this will probably be the last time that Dr. Lancaster will speak to the students this year.

Picnics, Hayrides Delight Heavy Laden STC Girls, Boys

Picnics, picnics, picnics—what a life we lead trying to get them all in. Everday we hear hayrides gaily embarking with cries of "When do we eat?" or "Get off my foot you big lug there's plenty of room over the wheel if you hold your feet high enough." Blue jeans and plaid shirts on the tumbled mass of humanity roll slowly out of sight in the direction of Longwood or Willises leaving the few who feel obligated to meet the deadline on that term paper to forlornly dream of hot dogs and burned marshmallows.

Those who blithely trip off, in total oblivion toward the fact that there are only three more weeks in which to make good those intentions of getting things done before the very last minute, fall off the wagon and work up an appetite to put Robin the Bobbin to shame playing softball or just hoss-play until "come and get it" sends them madly dashing to food. After eating everything in sight we notice that very little of the former activity is resumed, but that everyone sits around with a complacent grin waiting for the drowsiness to pass before a final burst of energy in which a bunch of shieking commanches whoop it up to let off steam (so that there won't be any energy left to prompt them to take up any studying when they get back to school).

'Tis a weary but happy group that throws most of the remaining hay off the wagon hunting for misplaced shoes, sweaters, and dear roommate's blanket when the overloaded vehicle finally draws up before the Rotunda. No doubt aboot it—a good time was had by all, and no doubt either but each secretly wishes that May, the month of picnics, came at least twice a year.

We Say 'Thank You' For Lovely May Day

May Day, an annually celebrated custom in the majority of colleges, has come and gone again here at S. T. C. The presentation at Longwood on Saturday afternoon was an inspiring one, and gave much evidence of the planning, thought, and work which are so necessary to such a presentation which members of our student body and faculty did in preparing for this day.

From the moment when the first figures appeared on the stage throughout the performance the audience was aware of the brilliant teacher-figure soaring above all other interests. To us, the students at S. T. C. who are aspiring to be members of this great profession, this was a striking example which pleased the mind and soul.

Many students worked long, hard hours in preparing the actual action of May Day, and many more, unseen on Saturday had spent time on the various committees. To all of these we say "Thank you" from the bottom of our hearts.

Miss Kauzlarich seemed to have been devoting all of her time and efforts to this great May Day pageant, and it is with gratitude in our hearts that we say "Thank you. Well done." to her. "Thank you" is a very inadequate word and she must understand how grateful we are without seeing it in print.

To Nancy Whitehead and Heidi Lacy, co-chairmen of the entire May Day committee, we are indeed grateful, and a hearty "thank you" also goes to each member of the faculty who contributed so freely of their time and talents. This magnificent and beautiful presentation will live in our fondest memories of S. T. C. forever.

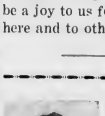
Springtime Means Campus Clean-Up



Now that bright sunny days are here again, the front campus has become one of the most popular spots around school. Before and after meals and just anytime that students have a moment of free time they enjoy sitting on the lawn and studying or just talking and resting.

We at S. T. C. are fortunate in having such a pretty campus. It is up to each of us to do our part in keeping it that way. Cigarette packages, candy wrappers, paper cups, and other trash certainly do not add to the appearance of the lawn. No one would enjoy sitting on the campus if the grass were not free from litter. We cannot keep it that way, however, unless each individual is willing to do her part.

Worn paths across the lawn do not enhance the beauty of the campus, either. At the present there is a nice stand of grass, but frequent cutting of corners can wear this down in little or no time. Few of us are ever in such a great hurry that we cannot walk around on the sidewalk. After all, they were put there to be used.

Since spring also signifies spring cleaning, the building should be considered as well as the campus. How many of us throw paper, kleenex, and other trash down in the halls without bothering to look for a trash can? Or drop our cigarettes and step on them without thinking of the way the floor looks when it is covered with cigarette stubs? We wouldn't dream of doing these things in our home. Why, then, should we neglect our manners while we are in school? We spend more of our time here during a year than we do in our respective homes so we should be just as conscientious if not more so about keeping our surroundings neat and clean. Are you guilty? Whether the answer to that question is "yes" or "no", let's all try to be more careful and keep the building nice looking.

The grass has just recently been mowed and the shrubbery trimmed. The campus now is at its loveliest. It is up to us to keep it that way. As Keats said, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." Our campus should be kept a thing of beauty and it will certainbe a joy to us for the remainder of our stay here and to others in town who see it.

Puddin' n' Sauce

May is the month for picnics and picnics were made for us—or we were made for picnics. What a life! The great urge to get out of doors is so powerful that books and classes are hard to stick by and everybody agrees with Davies that "a dull life this if full of care we have no time to stand and stare" whether it be at a fire full of roasting marshmallows or at the calendar to see when the next picnic will be. It is just the irony of fate that pleasure should conflict so drastically with term papers and final exams.

Both installments of May Day were wonderful and in spite of the "elements" which did their best to dampen our spirits as they did our clothes everyone had a grand time. Thanks for a splendid pageant, it really served its purpose in showing us the true spirit of S. T. C. and how it has come down to us through the years.

May Day also left us with the annual souvenir . . . poison oak. Won't somebody tell us why those beds of the stuff look so soft and inviting, just the place to plop one's weary bones after the long walk out? There really isn't any justice in it.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Well, another May Day has come and gone and before another thing is said—orchids to Miss Kay, her committees, and everyone in May Day. A million thanks to the Juniors and Gee Gee for a wonderful dance.

There were so many men floating around campus that it was quite an ordeal to tell who was with whom. One face you couldn't mistake was that of Ray Baby with B. Lee.

Everyone who saw that big smile on June Cregar's face Saturday afternoon knew that her David had finally arrived. Bring him back real soon, Cregar, because he is real cute. Wonder if he ever got that lady to turn on the green light for the man who wanted a green suit?

Bickie and Jimmy make a nice couple as everyone agreed. They both seemed to be walking around in a daze.

Just ask Grace Anderson what her new nickname is. Seems she acquired it after a certain phone call.

What was the attraction that pulled Martha Frances Morrison to Lynchburg so quickly? Aren't his initials T. E. C., Martha?

Judy Daily and Gordon were seen around. Were they walking on clouds or was it the atmosphere?

What's this we hear about Pat and Hugh? Planning for another big week-end real soon, aren't you, Pat?

It was so good to see so many old girls back. Among those returning were Treakle, Ruffin, Jackie Dunton, Millie Shepard, Mike Shiflett, Lucie McKenry, Claire Clark, Shevick, Katherine Prebble, and Nancy Duncan.

Why does Joyce Fleet get red whenever someone mentions the movie on Saturday night? Fess up, Joyce.

Hilida Abernathy had stardust in her eyes at the dance. Could Doug be responsible?

Sis Parris was having a gay time with that U. of Va. man whose name was Jim Leavitt.

Everyone was happy to see Charlie Trainer, one of the old H-S V-12's back on campus again.

Causing quite a sensation at the dance Saturday night was Nick with her sparkler from Johnnie. Congratulations and best wishes to you both.

Still causing all of the feminine hearts to flutter this week end was Clyde Campbell. S. T. C. welcomed him with open arms.

Eleanor's Johnny finally got here this week end. He's every bit as cute as you had reported, Withrow.

So long until next week. Here's hoping it brings big doings.

Added Attraction of Masculinity Makes Choir Rehearsals Much Fun

"Open the door just a little and be quiet about it. Say, what's going on in there? See, they've got a book in front of them. Wonder what they are going to do? Oh-oh footsteps, run. Whew, that was close. Here he comes now—isn't he the most super divine person you ever saw." From that statement one can guess that Mr. Crawley has arrrived. Strange how quickly they got quiet you say to yourself.

"Page four" booms a masculine voice and fairly soon thereafter the room is filled with song. Song? Well it takes a few minutes for them to warm up, you know. The music stops for a few minutes. Guess they made a mistake. Yep, seems as if the girls were a trifle flat. Well that's easily corrected and they start up again. On and on it goes and you begin to wonder if they aren't tired. Just ask one of them though and they are quick to say an emphatic "No."

In between numbers one can hear the buzz of conversation. "Did you hear about the rating that our rivals got?" Then everyone chirps in with her opinion of how good or poor she thought they were. Gosh, must be a lot of music critics in there, or maybe they just want to have something to talk about. Then as they start singing again, the sopranos look at there director and finally get his attention. "We just don't get that A flat," they chime out in unison. After it is played over on the piano a couple of times and they sing it over once or twice, they are ready to go on to the rest of the piece.

Well it's almost over except for a few comments. All of the girls lean forward in their chairs wondering and considerably worried about what the director will say about the rehearsal. "Good rehearsal," he says and contented grins are painted on the faces of everyone in the room. What's he saying now? Something about practicing out at Hampden-Sydney with the boys. The girls seem anxious to go--wonder why?

After roll call, the girls file out into the hall or would it be more correct to say fall out in the hall? One little girl is utterly happy because she can see her Tiger friend the next night. Yes, she can see him but that's about all because joint rehearsals mean lots of hard work. Another girl is busily peeking out the window at the back to get a glimpse of that cream-colored convertible. And yet another girl is exclaiming to her friend "Can you imagine it, for the first time in my life my voice cracked when I tried to hit that high note" and she hopefully adds that she didn't think it was too noticeable though, because nothing was said about it.

"Gee," whispers Susie," wouldn't you just love to belong to Choir? They have the best time." "Of course," you whisper right back, "but you have to be able to sing and that leaves met out."

George Anne Lewis Fixes Deadlines For Tennis Tournaments Held Soon

According to an announcement by George Ann Lewis, manager of tennis, the first match must be played before Friday, May 9. The second match must be played before Wednesday, May 14.

Those playing in the tennis tournament are George Anne Lewis and Betty Burchett, Mary Harrison and Dot Owen, Jane Burchett and Jeane Bentley, Lou Baker and Grace Loyd, Koiner Baker and Rnn Sawyer, Nancy Parrish and Bettie Parrish, and Patsy Ritter and Judy Griffith.

Girls are urged to come out and support their team. Girls are reminded to sign up for the mixed tournament and are asked to have some co-ed in mind when they sign up. Points will be given towards the color cup to the winning color in the tennis tournament.

Miss Emily Clark's music pupils will present a piano recital in the college auditorium Saturday, May 7.

Softball Games Begin Next Week

Softball games will start Wednesday, May 14 when the freshmen play the juniors at 5 p. m. that afternoon.

Thursday, May 15, the sophomores will play the juniors at 5 p. m. On Friday, May 16, the freshmen will play the seniors at 5 p. m. The seniors do not have a team this time because there are not enough players.

All who are interested in having a golf tourney are asked to meet with Jessie Pickett at the meeting she will call later on in the week. Those who are taking golf under Mr. Graham or Miss Iler will be able to play off their tourney during class hours. According to Jessie, the student does not have to be an expert player and she urges everyone to come out for this tourney.

★ SENIOR PERSONALITY ★

ANNA HEADLEE

"I like accordions,
How about you?
I think that riding's fun,
How about you?
I like good-looking suits,
Charlie and history books,
Yes, I like 'em, how about you?"

This familiar ditty with different words serves to introduce another of our favorite senior personalities, Anna Headlee. Tall, brown-haired, and poised, Anna has been one of the most outstanding girls in the class of '47 since the day she entered college.

She has served as president of Kappa Delta Pi, and treasurer of her class. Along with these responsibilities, she has also found time to serve as president of the F. T. A., committee chairman of the Y. W. C. A., and to give of her talents to Canterbury Club, A. C. E., and the Riding Club.

Anna declares that she has a "pash" for sea-food, neat rooms, red and grey, and intriguing historical novels. All who have known her will always think of her as a girl with a fine sense of fair play and cooperation, a keen sense of humor, and the possessor of the qualities we value most in a real friend. We are sure of her success in teaching in Bedford next year. How can those lucky sixth graders fail to "fall" for her lively accordion tunes and the sparkle of fun and enthusiasm in her friendly brown eyes?

Council Members

George Ann Lewis and Frances Dodson were installed as new members of the student council at a student body meeting held last week. Tucker Winn presided over the meeting.

Also installed were Nancy Taylor as chief dining room hostess Pattie Page as Fire Protection head, and Laura Jean Comerford as chairman of the student day chapel committee.

S. T. C.'s first piano recital will be presented by the students of Miss Emily Clark on Saturday, May 17 in the college auditorium at 8 p. m.

Intangible Something Draws STC Students To New Addition To Staff, Dean Savage

There is a decided aura of facination that simply draws one into Dean Savage's office. Whether it be something so tangible as pipe smoke or the inexplicable compulsion to explore the new, it cannot be explained, but the following paragraphs are the result of a delightful half-hour spent when a Rotunda news hound with the traditional "nose for news" followed hers into the inner sanctum.

We found him surrounded with important looking papers which brought fourth a stammered apology for interrupting him at such a busy time; but the easy manner in which he put them aside, as though nothing was more important to him than talking to us, made us feel quite at home. In fact, we felt so much at home that we were sorely tempted to ask about his family (eventually to bring the conversation around to his son who goes to William and Mary, of course) rather than to question him about his job, his plans, and what the something-new-that-has-been-added is.

Anticipating the questions even before they could be asked he told us that his office grew out of a need for centralizing and strengthening the guidance program.

DEAN SAVAGE

The college recognizes the fact that it is not enough for a student to be advised on her curriculum at the beginning of the first year, but that a continuing guidance program is needed to help students find their best field and to plan wisely for a future in that of their choice. From now on orientation will be the start, and the group counselors will continue to be helpers, advisors and friends to each student in the group as long as she is in college.

By a system of logic, in which we descend from the sublime to the ridiculous and back, we find that much in the same manner that "contented cows give better milk", contented students do better work. It is Mr. Savages job to see that we get into our proper pastures, one in which the grass does not seem greener on the other side of the fence. He accomplishes this by a process in which the student is given every possible opportunity for doing a high quality of work. Under the new program, which he told us about, the new student is guided from the time she is accepted (and no one is admitted unless her application proves as nearly as possible that she can complete four years here successfully) until she obtains a job, through the placement section working with the Dean's office, which is best suited to her own interests and abilities.

In addition to the guidance of students here, there is to be a summer seminar for teachers to answer the crying need for vocational counseling in the high schools. Plans are also underway for building up the finest library of vocational guidance literature in the state consisting of books, periodicals, and films. Of special interest to us who bring you the Rotunda was his saying that the

HILLDA ABERNATHY

Pi Gamma Mu Bids 4 New Members

According to an announcement by Hillda Abernathy, president of Pi Gamma Mu, four girls have accepted membership in that honorary social science group. They are Louise Brooks, Elizabeth Drewer, Mary Evelyn Miles, and Ruby Griffith.

The Virginia Gamma chapter, the local organization of Pi Gamma Mu, was organized in 1927. A high standing in general scholarship and an outstanding interest in the social sciences are required for entrance to this group.

Other officers of Pi Gamma Mu are Tucker Winn, vice-president; Martha Frances Morrison, secretary; and Dorris Ballance, treasurer. Dr. James Elliott Walmsley is the faculty sponsor of the society.

Immediately following, Miss Troxell was awarded a scholarship to study with Mme. Elyizabeth Schumann at the Curtis Institute, from which she was graduated. She has a long list of appearances to her credit and receives many such tributes as "—there wasn't an empty seat and the audience was very enthusiastic."

Mary Davenport received her musical education at Wells College, the Royal College of Music in London, and the Curtis Institute of Music. She has appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, and has had radio broadcasts on several networks.

Both the STC Choir and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club are under the direction of Mr. T. E. Crawley. Accompanists for the occasion will be Mrs. McRae of Hampden-Sydney, and Preston Sawyer.

Attend Choir Concert

Tomorrow night the combined State Teachers College Choir and Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will present The Holy City oratorio in the college auditorium at 8:30. Appearing with these groups will be four guest artists of great note. These soloists from New York are Barbara Troxell, soprano; Mary Davenport, contralto; William Hess, tenor; and Robert Matthem, bass.

The students who are members of the Choir and the H.-S. Glee Club boys have spent many hours of hard work in preparation for this concert. It will be one of their biggest and most noteworthy undertakings of the year. They have presented several other concerts this year at S. T. C., Hampden-Sydney, and in town to small but appreciative audiences. The crowd here tomorrow night and at the repeat performance Friday night in the new gymnasium at Hampden-Sydney should be as apperciative but much greater in number. A presentation such as this promises to be merits no less than a recor dbreaking crowd.

Barbara Troxell and William Hess need no introduction to S. T. C. students for they have appeared here before. From all reports Mary Davenport and Robert Matthem are also possessors of voices with exceptional quality. We are fortunate in having four such outstanding guest soloists to appear here. The Holy City will be an occasion, indeed, that few can afford to miss.

This will be the final attempt of our Choir to give us an evening of musical enpoyment. Our Dramatic Club, athletic groups, and other college organizations have had the privilege of performing before large, enthusiastic audiences. Surely our Choir and guests have the right to expect and get the same privilege and consideration. These talented students; their director, Mr. T. E. Crawley; their accompanists, Mrs. McRae and Preston Sawyer; and the four famous soloists have never presented less than an excellent conçert. Let's show them that we appreciate their efforts and applaud their accomplishments by having a full house tomorrow night.

Don't Be A Gossiper

Just as acid can eat away a piece of paper, so can gossip eat away a reputation. Some people think that the way to be popular is to know and spread the latest. Popularity is based on lots of things, but not on the amount of gossip one can tell. Gossip does no one any good, in fact, it does irreparable harm.

Whenever we are tempted to gossip, we must remember that someone's reputation is at stake. We would not want anyone to blacken our reputation, and surely others do not want this, either. Many people fail to realize that one little remark, innocent as it may be, can easily be turned into something more than it really was. We can best guard our own reputation and that of others by not dealing in gossip. We, on this campus, want to keep it out of our conversation and out of our thoughts.

Gossip is unkind and unfair. How can we be sure that we are hearing the whole truth? Most people have to add on a little to make their story a little bit juicier. Anyone who believes these untruths is just as much to blame as the person who spreads them.

The best way to control the spreading of gossip is to ask if the story is completely true. If it isn't, as in most cases, then tell the person that it isn't so. If it is true, then advise the person to keep it to herself. One important thing to remember is that if you spread gossip and believe it, then you can be sure that you yourself are being gossiped about. No one really likes a person guilty of gossiping. Are you guilty? What are you going to do about it?

Puddin' n' Sauce

Pass your plates pronto, this is "hasty puddin" and served hot. Tempus fugits so fast around here that cramming is an absolute necessity if one is to get a million and one things done before it's too late. In grammar school elocution classes we learned a "piece" that said "ram it in, cram, it in, childrens' heads are hollow" and alas how true we find they is still. When it comes to writing term papers, studying for tests and tying up all the loose ends of work that stretch back over the whole quarter, heads seem totally empty of all that we thought they contained. There just doesn't seem to be anything to do except work in frenzied haste to get everything done on time. Prosaicly speaking, deadlines makes dead ducks of dead heads.

The spotlight this week is turned to the oratorio tomorrow night when the H.-S. C. Glee Club joins our Choir and Choral Club in presenting "The Holy City". Friday night we go to them to sing at the college church. The girls and boys have been working hard and long to make the program an unforgetable one, and they are being joined by four artists of national fame; therefore, lets all try to arrange the above mentioned work so that we can take the time to attend. There is nothing more gratifying to a group that has put forth its best efforts than to have its concert attended by a large appreciative audience; and we not only owe it to them to be there, but we owe it to the school to show that we appreciate the cultural advantages offered us. So long for the nonce —see you at the concert.

Sunbathers Cooked to Degree of Rare, Medium, or Well-Done

These days S. T. C., like Gaul, might be split up three ways, only our divisions aren't territorial; in fact, it's hard to say just how you would classify our divisions, which consist of rare, medium, and well-done. Be that as it may, what we're getting at is that the sun bath on the dining hall roof has become just as much a part of our curriculum as any of the three R's. Yes, Old Sol has us all in his clutches, and just as sure as he puts in his appearance you'll find the roof adorned with a heterogeneous mass of bathing suits (filled, naturally), sun tan oil, coke bottles, sun glasses, and cigarettes. Come fair weather or foul, you'll see at least a handful of brave souls valiantly trying to coax their epidermis to a glamourous, coppery tan, airplanes zooming overhead all the while. We haven't yet figured out why each year with the advent of warm weather, planes start executing ther aerial acrobatics above the dining hall roof. Could it be that the pilots have binoculars?

Each evening in the dining hall we come face to face with varied degrees of these rare, medium, and well-done humans. Those of the well-done variety seem the hardest to get along with. When we naïvely greet them with a hearty slap on the back accompanied by a "Hi ya' old palsy-walsy!" first they cringe under the blow, and then they paralyze us with the iciest of dirty looks. But right away we forgive our suffering comrades when we remember our own lobster colored skin, which seems to burn a hole right through our abominable dress. (Clothes seem so unnecessary when one is suffering with sun burn.) If our sisters of the rare and medium divisions feel fewer ill effects than we, it's only because they have more afternoon classes, and not because they take their sun in sane fifteen minute doses according to the rule book.

There's no length we sun worshippers wouldn't go to get the coveted tan; we endure those blade-like gravels that leave inch deep dents in our tender skin, we concoct messy mixtures of baby oil and iodine, slather it on, and then fry in our juice; we ruin our mother's best blanket, arrive at classes late, go through agony at night—and all for what?—all for a complexion that will fool people into thinking we live at the beach. At best this hard won hue can't be made to last more than a couple of weeks without repeating the rugged process at least several times weekly. For this we throw to the winds our term papers, the letter that just HAS to be written to Mother (never the one to the O. A. O.) the jaunt downtown, and our trillion other responsibilities. We can only think our lucky stars that the sun doesn't shine at night, and that there's no such thing as a moon tan.

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Many STC-ers trotted home this past week-end to see their Mother or their best beau.

Mary Harrison and Ed Slate were seen together, and from all reports it looked as if a good time was had by all.

Lexington greeted Margaret Ellett and Martha Wells with open arms.

Who's flowers was Dot Daniels sporting on Sunday night? Ruth Tillet was also adorned with flowers this past week-end. Mac was an added attraction too, wasn't he, Tillie?

Betty Bennett had quite a time in Newport News. Just ask her to tell you about all that went on.

Mary Lou Graham can't seem to make up her mind between that STC vet and Hampden-Sydney's Neal.

Neva Brankley adorns all her notebooks with the name of one individual. Tell us more about the lucky lad, Neva.

Having fun in Lynchburg at the Sigma Chi party were Martha Russell and Wince, Pat and Hugh, and Ann Ford and Balas. It must have been quite the time.

Ginny Marshall and that nice man of hers take the first prize for the most devoted couple. He's so-o cute, Ginny.

If you haven't already noticed, take a look at the sparkler on the third finger left hand of Iraida Ramirez. Congratulations to you both, Iraida.

Dotsy Harvey had a most wonderful time on the SCA picnic that was held last Saturday night. Of course, Bev accounted for part of it, didn't he, Harvey?

Puckett, when do we get to see Jimmy that we've heard so much about?

What's this we hear about Charlotte Thorpe and Stuart? Things are getting mighty serious it seems.

Betty Russell gets numerous phone calls from her Hampden-Sydney friend. We think he's nice too.

Spindler and Irvine have got quite a plan worked out regarding points won in a track meet. Let's hope he doesn't win too many meets, Spindler.

Two red heads are better than one according to Red Hanbury.

Seen together recently were Mary Lou and Nelson. Seems that things are back one the ball again.

K. T. Rainey seems kinda that way about Jack. Must be nice.

Claiming to have the best time of all over the week end was the gang who went to Covington over the week end. Now, gals, "Where were you last night?"

Although Timberlake was nice, it would have been the perfect ending if you had gotten back a little sooner, eh Joyce and Lawless?

Nancy Jessee still has stars in her eyes. Her week end in Lynchburg and Sunday excursion to Tech must have been out of this world. Or was it who you went with, Jessee?

Well that's about all for this heah week. See you next week with with the latest about the latest.

Correction Class Sees Therapy Work

Physical Education Majors Make Trip

Senior and junior majors in physical education made a tour of three hospitals in the Richmond area Friday, May 9.

The first stop was at McGuire Hospital where all units of physical therapy, neuropsychiatry, and occupational therapy were explained. Of particular interest were the paraplegics (spinal cord injury cases of World War II) who showed evidences of improvement over last year's conditions. Fewer cases were observed because of the Army routine of "rounds in the wards" observance on Friday but an excellent over all picture of war therapy was given.

From there the group went to the Medical College where the opposite viewpoint was shown, that of therapy in a civilian, private and public hospital. Several cases were observed this year as the clinic was in operation. An interesting explanation of physical medicine and its serving branches of therapy was given.

The afternoon was spent visiting and observing children of the Crippled Children's hospital which offered more revealing information of the exceptional or handicapped child who is either a birth injury (cerebral palsy), conenital anomaly(like three were born without the largest leg bone in the lower leg), the sick (like tuberculosis of the spine or a joint), the trauma (injured), a polio or infantile paralysis case, and many others than could be found otherwise.

The girls who made the trip are all enrolled in physical education 457, corrective physical education, with the exception of Jesse Pickett. Those in class are Alice Ann Abernathy, Jean Bentley, Julia Booher, Betty Burchett, Jane Burchett, Edith Duffy, Mary Harrison, and Peggy Moore. Miss Emily Kauziarich sponsored the field trip which is a part of class work.

Greetings everyone. Since May Day is off our minds we turn to sports once again.

ARCHERY:

"Did you see that bull's eye? I didn't know I could hit it!" is the reply you hear from some of the girls. A lot of time spent in practice will bring YOU a bull's eye. You may like the feeling so much that you will continue to make more bull's eyes.

The game may be a minor sport, but it takes perfect form, coordination, power in your arm and good eyesight. You can become a champion in the game!

SOFTBALL:

Have you been going out to practices? You know you can't play on the team if you don't have eight practices. Remember points are given toward the color cup.

HORSE SHOW:

S. T. C.'s annual horse show will take place in the ring at Longwood this Saturday afternoon. The girls have always displayed excellent riding and horsemanship and those who don't ride enjoy spectating. Hike out and take it in.

SWIMMING:

Splash! Have you been down to the pool lately to watch or swim during recreational swimming hour? This hour is a good time to practice your strokes or even make up a third period.

Summer Styles Say Bright Swim Suits

By HELEN WILLIAMS

It won't be long now before you can store those grassy green and "tattle-tale grey" tank suits and get a more colorful bathing suit.

Since Americans began swimming about 50 years ago there has been a rapid change in the styles of bathing dress. Each year they have become a little less. The 1946 and 1947 suits are more feminine looking than they have been during the past five years. Lines are looser and more flowing copied from the Hindu.

Let's not forget that one-piece suits are still in style even though two-piece are seen more. The one-piece suit has been found to be the more comfortable for swimming by professional swimmers. They are also more becoming to most women.

Have you seen those cute designs of Caltex and Cole of California? They are the one-piece suits with a peak-a-boo midriff and the other is the suit with the elastic-shirred back. Water will never effect their fitting.

The two-piece suits are found in a large variety of styles, colors and materials. Colors are quiet or extremely opposite. Stripes, gay plaids, pastel prints as well as the gayest print you can find.

Shirring, drapes, and gathers are found on the shorts as well as on the bras. A popular style is the one which laces up each side. Let's notice the mermaid effect with fishing net and see how popular it is going to be.

Bloomer girl is back again after making a big hit last year—she certainly did stay behind the screen a long time. Of course they are much shorter than they were in grandmother's time.

Gerbardines, cotton and rayon jerseys, seersuckers, chambrays—bathing suits are made of most any kind of material now. One of the favorite is the ever glazed chintz, they are cute, made with a gathered skirt over cotton knitted pants. You may even make that yourself.

Here hoping that you will have fashionable swims throughout the summer until you have to drag out those tank suits again next fall.

French Circle Elects New Club Officers

Although the regular meeting of the French Club was cancelled, the officers for the coming year were elected recently from a slate drawn up by an appointed nominating committee.

The officers for next year will be: Jacqueline Eagle, Winchester, president; Mary Neal Garrett, King William Court House, vice-president; Jean Anderson, Portsmouth, secretary; Helen Hardin, Richmond, treasurer; Gwen Smith Covington, reporter; and Nancy Kibler, Callao, pianist.

A called meeting will be held soon to discuss plans for completion of the year's work.

Cress Chosen Head Of Home Ec. Club

Gwen Cress, sophomore from Lynchburg, was elected president of the Home Economics club at a meeting held Tuesday, May 13. She succeeds Betty Scroggins, junior from Richmond, in this position.

Other officers elected were vice-president, Connie Newman, sophomore from Chuckatuck; secretary, Frances Farley, sophomore from Lynchburg; treasurer, Nancy Hughes, junior from Mullens, West Virginia; and reporter, Frances Treakle, junior from Farmville.

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

SUE HUNDLEY

Noted for her catchy remarks and her ready grin, the senior personality for this week is Sue Hundley.

Medium height, blonde, and always ready to join the fun making, Sue has been an outstanding member of her class since her freshman year when she was elected representative in the annual A. K. G. circus court. This was proof of her well rounded personality which was displayed throughout the remaining years.

Her scope of interest was not limited to any particular activity. She was a member of the A. A. Council and participated in all sports, hockey being her favorite. Along the education side, she was an important member of Kappa Delta Pi, Beorc Eh Thorn, and Alpha Phi Sigma. Her ability as a leader was recognized when she was tapped her junior year by Alpha Kappa Gamma.

When Marilyn first asked for girls who were interested in working for the annual, Sue was one of the first to show her enthusiasms. This later led to the editorship of the 1947 Virginian. We feel that she must get tired of saying "Maybe next week" to the eternal question, "When are the annuals coming?"

Among her favorites, good foods hold the number one spot such as meals in the Tea Room, Hershey bars and cokes, chocolate royal and Suffolk peanuts. She has a definite tendency to "cordies" and white blouses, good records, the roof, and interesting people.

We of us who have known Sue will never forget her readiness to help in any situation and her fine sense of humor. Unknown to us and her, too, is her job for next year, but we feel sure that she will succeed in carrying on the wonderful work which she has started here.

On The Ball

If you are around the courts, you will hear a lot of oh's and ah's-service-good, double faults-let ball; a lot of hard playing will be seen.

Points are given toward the color cup; therefore, come on out and support your color. They need your support and you will enjoy watching.

Until next time, get on the ball and support your team. You'll have fun!

Week End Awaited Eagerly by STCers

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday—the week is half over. Then come Thursday, Friday, and then the day of days—Saturday. Week-ends! And what a multitude of things are planned on week-ends! Heading the list for a wonderful week-end is, of course, going home. All week long we have planned the week-end at home, even to the minutest detail. And, of course, everything works out just as planned. (That is, everything but the time we had set aside to write that geography paper due at 8 o'clock Monday morning.)

Then, just think of all those wonderful week-ends spent at the University or another college, during their dances. And the next best thing to going yourself is staying up late Sunday night listening to the girl across the hall tell about her good time.

Stay at STC for a week-end? Sure, and have a wonderful time! Think of dating late, and think of dating without bothering about next days assignments? But this past week-end, however was kind of lonely. Out of over eight hundred students, only 130 were here. But, never fear, the 130 took good care of the city of Farmville. Oh, yes, on Saturday night you can see a "Bang-them-up, Shoot-them-down Western."

Only one thing mars our week-ends. Here we are, all set and raring to leave Friday right after our 11:40, and lo, we remember we have a paper due Monday morning, or that our term paper is not even begun. "To stay or not to stay. That is the question. Whether 'tis nobler to stay and study or to go and forget worries." (P. S. We go.)

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday—and the week is half over. Then come Thursday, Friday, and then the day of days—Saturday. But, watch out. According to the most accurate calendar Monday is just around the corner from each Saturday. But never mind, as long as there is a college, there will be a Saturday, and week-end.

paper will be clipped next year to go in the students' individual files (we forgot to ask him about Bedcheck, but it could be done.)

We regret that we have told you so much about the plans that we haven't the space to tell you about Mr. Savage personally; however, if you don't know him already you shall someday through an interview, and you should look forward to it with a great deal of pleasure. On the other hand don't get yourself maladjusted just because it's so pleasant to be in his office—remember, Dean Savage is a busy man!

Honor Graduates Will Be Announced At Commencement

Changes Made In Dean's List

Honor graduates will be announced at the Commencement exercises that will be held Monday, June 2 in the college auditorium, according to an announcement by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster.

Heretofore the student's work in college for three years and two quarters has been the basis for determining honor graduates. This year the honor graduates will be determined on the basis of all four years of work.

Two honor lists will be announced at the annual Commencement exercises. Those students who average nearer A than B on four year's work will be graduated "With High Honors". Those who average B or better but nearer B than A on four year's work will be graduated "With Honor".

To be placed on the Dean's List next year, a student must have an average of B plus (2.25 quality points) on all work taken for the semester with no grade below a C. The student on this list may be absent from classes when she can use her time in ways that seem more to her more profitable. A student may be removed from the Dean's List if her mid-semester grades do not meet the required standard.

Spanish Workshop Offered in Summer

For the first time in the history of the school there will be a Spanish workshop for all teachers of Spanish, all college graduates who intend to teach Spanish, and all teachers who would like to learn more about the language in preparation for teaching some day.

The workshop will be held from June 17 to July 15, 1947. Most of the activities will be held on the ground floor of the Student Building. There will be a large room for the display of books and work tables, a music room, a library, classrooms, and the auditorium. Students will live in the Senior building.

A distinguished group of Spanish speaking professors have been selected to instruct the students. They are Sr. Salvatore C. Mangiafico, Associate Professor of Romance languages at Sweet Briar College; Sr. Ermilo Abreu Gomez Professor of Literature, National University of Mexico; Sr. Guillermo Duron, exchange teacher from Honduras; Srta, Rosalina Saiz, exchange teacher from Panama; and Sr. Ricardo Garcia, Informant at Sweet Briar College. Miss Emily Barksdale will serve as registrar.

Classes offered will include Spanish conversation on two levels, a course on Latin America in the Twentieth Century, Latin American Folklore, and a Seminar on methods and Materials. Every evening there will be an hour of group singing, folk dancing, and games under the supervision of one of the staff. This will serve as a lab for the course in Folklore. Special lectures and films will also be shown in the evening, and will be open to the public.

At the beginning of the course, students will be asked to sign a pledge to speak nothing but Spanish the entire four weeks. One section of the dining room will be reserved for the group, and special instructors will be on hand at all times to aid in the difficulties that arise in conversation.

Some of the students who have already enrolled are: Emily Carper, '48, is teaching Spanish at Culpepper; Mary Preston Sheffey, '45, who is teaching business at Marion College; Margaret Ellett, Elcise Stancell, Betty Bibb, and Betty Davey of the June '47 graduating class.

Overby States Rules For Exam Week

House Council regulations for exam week have been announced by Eleanor Overby, president.

"A call down received during exams will mean one week of campus," Eleanor stated. She urges that all students keep a strict study hour and that no unnecessary noise be made. Lights may be kept on for as long as are needed.

Model HomeShown In Library Exhibit

In the two glass cases found in the library is an exhibit of the model home, presented by the Virginia Electric Home Bureau of Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The first case contains a miniature model of the modern kitchen and laundry with informative phamplets on the science of kitchen planning.

Attractively displayed in the second case is a model bedroom and living room with information about planning the home.

In the background, placed on the bulletin boards, are pictures exemplifying various rooms in the home.

Additional information on kitchen cupboards, kitchen planning storage space, and arrangement are given.

Among the books displayed are Duncan Miller's "Interior Decorating" from the "How To Do It" series and Wooster Bard Field's "House Planning."

Abernathy Names Committee Chairmen For Pi Gamma Mu

Committee chairmen for Pi Gamma Mu for the next school year have been announced by Hilida Abernathy, president.

Virginia Bailey, junior from Lawrenceville, will serve as general chairman of Mardi Gras, the annual costume ball. Other chairmen are Lela Bouldin, scrapbook; and Augusta Hargan, social. Hilida and Nancy Parrish will attend the national Pi Gamma Mu convention which will be held in Washington on June 14.

Officers of Pi Gamma Mu are Hilida Abernathy, president; Tucker Winn, vice-president; Martha Frances Morrison secretary, and Dorris Ballance, treasurer.

Art Department Sponsors Exhibit Of Student Work

Creative Display Opened With Tea

With an opening tea on Tuesday from 3 to 5, the State Teachers College Art Department formally opened its exhibition of student art. The exhibit is on display in the art department of the college and will be open daily for a week.

The greatest aim of the art instructors of S. T. C. is that student work be creative, and that the students have a knowledge of many art mediums, with special emphasis always on color and composition. The creative work of the college students through the year is presented in painting, drawing, design technique, lettering, poster work, and crafts in all media of visual expression: water color, oil, chalk, charcoal, pencil, crayon, ink, and tempera. Craft work includes ceramics, metal work, weaving, bookbinding, leather, textiles, puppets, paper crafts, and construction problems related to art education.

Ceramics are new this year, and complete equipment for fire and glazing is now installed in the art laboratory. The craft work is generally selected by girls specializing in elementary education, those preparing to work in summer camps, and others desiring a recreational hobby.

Among those whose work is on display are Eula Ayers, Jo Anne Brittingham, Sutton Bland, Anne Charlton, Jean Conroy, Sue Davis

Rotunda Deadline Set For May 29

Due to the fact that the last issue of the Rotunda will be published June 2, the deadline for all copy will be Thursday, May 29.

All staff members are required to turn in their assignments before the deadline in order that the printer will have sufficient time for printing the paper. Papers will be given out immediately after Commencement exercises are completed. Any member of the staff who will be in school during the Commencement exercises is asked to help with the folding of papers which is to be done on Monday, morning, June 2.

Riotous Escapades of Girls Drive Hall Presidents Crazy

"Splash! Eek! I'm all wet! Oh-h-h! Now I'll have to put on clean pajamas, and the laundry's lost all but two pair. I think you all are mean!"

These are some of the usual sounds heard in freshman dorms from ten to ten-thirty any night. For you innocent little people who are wondering what brought on the weird shrieks above, it was a dunking in the tub. If there is ever a gang of girls lolling in a room resting after a hard day's work, you can be sure one bright soul will say: "Hey, I have a wonderful idea! Let's dunk somebody tonight. I feel so-o-o energetic!" (Is that possible?)

With that, everyone's eyes begin to wander around the room, and woe to the person who is picked to be a victim. Do they vote on this decision? No—they just dive for her as she goes bolting out the door and shrieking down the hall. The chase is half the fun—for the pursuing, not for the pursued. Everyone on the hall always comes to the door and stands laughing hysterically as if they had never seen a dunking before. This is one sport that S. T. C.'ers never seem to tire of.

Another favorite is Spin-the-Bottle, or maybe we'd better call it Roll the Coke Down the Hall. This sport is never indulged in until after eleven o'clock because it's no fun unless you wake up the whole hall and then play hide-and-go-seek with the hall president and Mrs. McCoy. The only thing that detracts from the popularity of this game is that it usually results in a call-down, which means that it can't be played more than two or three times a quarter. However, it's particularly thrilling and well worth the call-down, if there is a nice long staircase handy to roll the bottles down.

Numbered also among S. T. C.'s favorite after-dark sports is the "stampede", which occurs about once every coon's age. At some time during S-Day (Stampede Day) each stampeder-to-be is notified of the meeting place and the time. That night as soon as the hall presidents have settled down for their long winter's naps, doors creak open and the participants issue forth, tiptoeing their way to the rendezvous, which is usually the art lab, in case you're interested in attending the next stampede.

For about ten minutes the crowd milling around in the pitch blackness, stepping on each others' toes and shushing each other up until they get tired of waiting for the fifty odd who promised to come but haven't shown up. Then they

Rotunda Receives ACP Rating; Colonnade Rated 'Second Class'

Suggestions Made For Improvements

National Scholastic Press Association rated the Colonnade "Second Class Good", according to Margaret Wilson, who served as editor of the issues of the magazine which were judged.

The critics commented that the faculty art and verse were good, and gave high ratings to many other phases of magazine work. Editorial content was rated 315; Art work and photography, 155; Editing and make-up, 180; and typography and mechanical considerations, 125. The total score was 775.

Suggestions were made as to how improvements in the Colonnade might be made. The critics suggested that the copy be edited and also that fiction and factual prose be differentiated between.

The scorebook provides a practical outline for the use of critics in analyzing magazines, and furnishes helpful, specific, suggestions to staffs. In using it, the critics have considered the school magazine from several viewpoints common to all good publications.

Hundley Reveals Theme of Annuals

"Farmville Music" is the theme of the 1947 Virginian, according to an announcement by Sue Hundley, senior from Suffolk, who is editor-in-chief of the '47 annual.

Division pages for each of the six sections in the annual yearbook of S. T. C. will include special designs and appropriate lines from a song pertaining to the contents of that section. The songs used will be the Alma Mater, "Green and White", "Red and White", "Onward Farmville", and songs sung by the seniors in the senior chapel. Faculty and Administration, Classes, Organizations, Athletics, Social Life, and Features form the basic divisions of the book. Each issue of the Virginian represents a cross section of college life for the year and is, therefore, highly valued by members of the graduating class.

Pictures of the senior personalities will be included in the annual, and there will be a picture of every organization in the college. The main and secondary colors used in the cover design will be run throughout the entire book.

Sue Hundley, editor of the '47 Virginian, served as managing editor of the Virginian last year,

Senior Day Chapel Slated for Friday

Juniors Will Name Honorary Classman

Friday, May 23, Senior Day will be observed with the program opening as the seniors walk into the auditorium to the strains of Alma Mater. One of the local ministers will be in charge of devotions.

After the devotions, the senior class will sing their songs. Margaret Ellett, senior president, will then give a short farewell speech which will be followed by a response from Louise Brooks, junior class president.

Louise Brooks will then announce the name of the member of the senior class who will be an honorary member of the incoming senior class next year. The duty of this student will be to return next year to assist the senior class in the figure for their dance.

The program will close when the seniors march out to "Green 'n White". They will form an arch down the aisle under which the juniors will leave the auditorium.

Madrigal singing led by June Cregar was the featured event in chapel today.

750 Point Total Awarded Paper

Associated Collegiate Press score book rated issues of the Rotunda "First Class Excellent" with a total of 750 points. The Rotunda has received the "First Class" rating before.

The ACP critics commented that the Rotunda's editing was excellent, and high scores were received on many other phases of newspaper work. News values and sources were rated 180; news writing and editing, 200; headlines, typography, and make-up 185; and department pages and special features, 185.

Papers judged were published under the staff headed by Shirley Slaughter. Serving as managing editor then was Mary Helmer, while Mary Agnes Millner was business manager.

The purposes of the Associated Collegiate Press serves not to create rivalry, but to give an agency through which staffs may be aided in giving their schools a better publication, and to help the staffs with their problems.

15 More Days at STC to Fill With Both Cramming 'n Fun

Fifteen more days! Yes, dear students, just fifteen more days left in this quarter, in this school year. And if you don't believe it is near the end of the school year, just look around at some of the seniors. Aren't they proud showing each other their newly signed contracts? See the said dignified seniors so industriously studying with one eye on the book and the other eye on the "sheepskin" they hope to get in two weeks. See the tear fall as they enter their last week of school. But the one who takes the proverbial cake is the one who said, tearfully, "I'm writing my last term paper."

But this is a busy time for all as we enter the last few days of this year. The juniors are eagerly viewing themselves in the seniors' places, the sophomores can't wait to get in Cunningham, and the freshmen are just waiting for rat week next year.

What a mad rush! And we promised ourselves that this quarter we would NOT be rushed at the last! Let's see, how many picnics can we go to between now and exams? How many nights do we have to stay up all night long in order to finish the term paper that we've had all quarter to do? Can we possibly go to two picnics at one time? I tell, you, fellow students, we just have too much to do to attend classes.

If you need further proof that it is near the end of the quarter just go to the library. See your friends studying who have not been in the library since last exam time. See all the lights burning so late each night. Is not this convincing?

On top of this mad rush we are trying to find out what some of our friends are going to do this summer, and also making our own plans. What an exciting three months, June, July, and August are going to be for all of the STC girls!

Yes, it happens that once each school year the last May rolls around, filled with picnics, term papers, contracts, parties, and "sheepskins," and this year is no exception!

Fifteen more days. Make the best of them!!

Study for Exams

As the days before examinations begin to dwindle down to such a few that they can be counted on one hand, the problem of studying in preparation for these last tests comes up. For some, these will be the last exams of their college career. For others they will only mean the end of another quarter. But adequate preparation is as important for one as for all.

Time and time again people have stressed the point of keeping up with daily work and not having so much before us when examination time comes around. But how many of us have heeded these warnings? Do you have work staring you in the face now which could have been and should have been completed earlier in the quarter? Has your motto been "Don't do today what you can possibly put off until tomorrow?" Regardless of how we have handled the situation, the fact remains that the time is here again for some hard, intensive reviewing and it is time we settled down to work.

During exam week, house council rules are relaxed concerning late light privileges but they become tighter in regards to noise and confusion and one call down gives you a week's campus. We should not, however, have to be reminded to be quiet during this time. We should be considerate enough of those who are trying to study to keep noise down to the barest minimum so they may work without distractions. Remember even though you may not be deeply engrossed in your books every minute of your time, someone else may want to study. Keep your radio and vic tuned down and get out on the campus for your noisy bull sessions.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, remember, and the old adage is just as applicable to members of the feminine sex. Get out in the afternoon for a coca-cola or for a good long walk, or maybe a game of tennis. The exercise and relaxation will help you both physically and mentally. A tired mind cannot possible concentrate and get the benefit from review like a relaxed, rested, alert mind can.

Make Summers Count

What to do this summer is a question that often comes to mind at this particular time of the year. Some students will be working, others resting from the hard routine of study, and still others will find themselves with nothing to do. Boredom during the summer months can best be avoided by doing something constructive. What? Well, one might volunteer to serve in a camp for the children that would otherwise be forced to spend the hot summer months in the city.

Other useful services one might perform is that of working as a playground counsellor or assisting in the hospitals. If service to others does not have any appeal, why not try a little self-improvement? There are numerous good books that we have wanted to read but just haven't had time for. Now is the time to catch up. Books are often termed an escape, but who can think of a more delightful way to escape reality for a short while than by reading good literature?

The summer months are fun certainly with no lectures to attend, no lessons to prepare, and no fret over whether or not one passed that hard test. When we return to school the next fall and someone asks how we spent our vacation, we should not have to reply that we just loafed and had a good time. Not only is doing something for someone else fun, it helps our morale as well.

The experiences that we have during the summer months will play their part in our future life just the same as those that we have during the nine month session of college. Let's make our summer count for something.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Hot weather and more of it has descended upon us and the yen to go swimming or fishin' came with it. The real summer weather has brought about a mingled fearing of "O boy, school is 'most out" and "Won't we miss all the kids when we go home?" For the freshmen June second means the beginning of a wonderful summer with no thoughts of studyig and the end of a year of new experiences; to the Seniors it means the beginning of a broad new life and the end of four years of wonderful college life. Sophomores look forward to living in "the building" and the Juniors to be Seniors but the Seniors have a lifetime to look forward to. It doesn't take a crystal gazer to know that a lot of diamonds will have a companion on the third finger, left hand and that some lucky kids are going to be able to apple polish their new teachers, (provided they're shrewd enough not to use our own methods) At any rate 'twill soon be all over except the shouting and whether we're glad or sorry, it has been fun.

A word to the wise would be to get the cramming done this week, for it promises to be even hotter next week and who wants to study when it's hot. In fact, who wants to study anyway? Perhaps in the future we can have knowledge capsules so that students wouldn't have to strain their brains stuffing it in the hard way.

Seniors Sing

Thousand 'n One Odd Things Greet STC-er Trying To Pack

By VIRGINIA BAILEY

The time for packing has rolled around again and various sounds ranging from moans and groans to sighs and resignation greet one. "How in the world am I going to get everything in this trunk?" It really is amazing how much junk one can accumulate in a short year.

When one leaves home to come to STC, the trunk arrives neatly packed with everything in its proper place. When one leaves college, the trunk goes home with clothing, etc., thrown in. When the trunk is opened, items fly out and practically knock one off her feet. "Now aren't you sorry that you didn't pack neatly?"

Mothers are always amazed into speechlessness by the large pile of soiled clothing that their darling daughters bring home for them to wash. But there is no need for her to worry for the whole washing can probably be done in less than a week. Then there are the various unidentified articles that must have gotten in by mistake. That blue kerchief and those red socks look exactly like some your roommate had. Oh well, you can always return them next year, if you can find them by then. Also among the souvenirs that you have collected by hook or crook are a few library books that you certainly remember paying for at least three times. Gosh, just a couple of years more and you can start your own library.

What a headache! Three whole days to unpack and it only took twenty-five minutes to do all the packing. Someone must have slipped in a few extra articles when your back was turned. All I have to say is—it's a good thing the house has a basement and an attic. Remember though you must ask Dad to buy a truck before schools starts again. There are just hundreds of things that have to be taken back next year. Maybe if you start your memorandum right away. NO—it just can't happen, not even to you. Here you haven't even finished unpacking for the summer vacation, and already you are packing for the next year. Whatta' life and you have to live it.

At last! All the bags are unpacked and everything is neatly stacked in the corners and hanging out of the windows Why did you gripe in the first place? It wasn't such a bad job after all. Ahhh—sweet order, everything in its own special place. Now, where could that toothbrush be, and where is your best suit? They couldn't still be at school for you were very careful not to leave anything, not even the dust out of your mailbox. Maybe they are in that huge pasteboard box in the corner. Well, what do you know? I surely thought I threw all those room warnings away, but maybe they can be used to start fires in the cook stove. By then you are discouraged of the treasure hunt and are convinced that the articles among the missing will surely come to light before you outgrow them.

All is peaceful and serene. The great task is ended. Now, rest—Oh, how could you have forgotten the most difficult of your unpacking—your pocketbook. Let's see, there is your toothbrush, cosmetics galore, four dead corsages, a wealth of cigarette butts and dozens of the most important things to your welfare. The final dumping reveals only two old keys. TWO KEYS. Oh no, you forgot to turn in your closet keys and all the time you were desperate for money. Stand back everyone for you're surely going to let the tears fly, or I'm handing in my resignation as a good judge of S. T. C. characters.

Orchids to the H-S Glee Club and STC's Choir for a most superb performance. The Holy City was really swell.

It seems as though a lot of girls are suddenly acquiring nicknames around school, but there is a story behind those given to Sue "Beanie' Hundley and Louise "Birdie" Redd. Fess up, girls.

Is there anyone on second floor annex that doesn't know that Jackie Watson was excited last Friday night—and why shouldn't she be? We don't blame you at all, Jackie.

What was so interesting in the conversation of Max Perrow and Puckett Asher that suddenly caused stars in her eyes- Hum-m-m?

Congratulations to the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" better known as Hank Hardin. We are so happy for you—you lucky girl.

What gal had so many dates for the dance at Hampden-Sydney that she couldn't make up her mind who to go with? She solved the problem by going with one, dancing with the others, and returning home with yet another. Must be nice.

Could the reason that Thelma Weeks seems to be walking on clouds be that she and Lou are together again?

The man about campus this week seems to be McHenry Peters. He sure gets around.

Alma Crawley is reluctant to tell all about that U-Va. man of hers and we don't blame her. He's entirely too cute to share, right Alma?

He's here again. Who? Sue McCorkle's Mel. He's so nice Sue, that it would be grand to have him around more often.

Won't the girl that is being called Happy's secret STC passion step forward? We want to shake her hand.

For the best laugh of the season get Hugh Warren and Dan Bray of the neighboring institution to sing "Cigarettes and Whiskey, and Wild, Wild, Women". It's really a scream.

Peg Murry, give us the latest info on that man you were having so much fun with last week-end.

Winnie Beard is so-o excited over her invitation to the H-S finals. Who wouldn't be if that nice Dee Brown asked them?

Tindall, we just can't keep up with all your men. Who rates highest now—Flip, Johnnie, or Charlie?

The real question of the week is what draws Bernice Nichols away from STC every week-end? When do we get a glimpse of him, Bernice?

Doofy Ramage caused quite a sensation at Longwood last week end. Better make certain the person is asleep next time, Doofy.

Back to the grind now, and good luck on those exams.

burst forth, come pounding down second floor Main, by the Rotunda and on to Annex. On the way some of the more chicken-hearted drop out when they arrive at their own abodes, but the faithful few stampede doggedly on.

About the time that the mob is emerging from the depths of second floor Annex, an irate Miss Garnett looms before them at the head of the stairs. The lucky ones at the end of the line beat feet home by the back paths; the others who can't possibly escape are nabbed, given a severe tongue lashing, and sent cringing to bed, where roommates are all ears to hear the tragic end of this escapade. The penalty for "stampeding" is one of those heart-to-heart talks with Dean Smith and a promise never to do it again (at least until the next time).

H-S Tennis Team Plays Matches Here

Disappointment, Joy Vary In Intensity As Girls See Proofs

"Oh, this just couldn't be me. Do I really look that horrible?" Yes, you guessed it. This excited little S. T. C.'er just got her proofs back. And she had so counted on a glamorous picture for her O. A. O.'s birthday.

This spring, in addition to the usual hurrying and scurrying to get all the last minute things (which will 'mount up despite all good intentions) done, something new has been added. Precious hours have been spent before mirrors adding finishing touches to one's glamor before she makes her entrance in the Dean's Parlor to have her photo made. The click of the camera's shutter was heard over and over as student after student took her place under the lights. How those photographers could say "Just a little smile, please" hundreds of times a day and still smile is beyond us.

But at last the fatal hour arrived. The exclamations which arise when she sees the results, which definitely are not what she had hoped for (nor, confidentially, expected) are varied in degree of intensity from the ear-splitting shriek to the low, despairing moan. Faces lengthen and everywhere the cry is raised. "This can't go into the annual!" Our S.T.C.'er buries all thoughts of sending this monstrosity, even to her mother who doesn't have any illusions about her, much less to "Him".

Alas! Such is life, as some pessimist said about ten years ago. However, if you look at the weird creature in the photograph long enough, you come to the sad conclusion that it does look like you after all. Besides, maybe the Virginian editor will soften up and have some retakes done in the fall.

The last class open only to college students was the open college equitation. Ann Yoe was tied first; Mary Wright, second; Frank Kenwick from the University of Richmond, third; and Nickie White, fourth.

On the Ball

The weather has been very beautiful for all of our sports. Haven't you been enjoying them? If you will only go out for some of the sports, you will enjoy them.

Softball

Remember the softball games will be played this week. Come on out and support your class team. Points will be given towards the color cup and you want your color to win, don't you? Of course you do! If you have gotten eight practices, come on out to the athletic field and help win the game. If you haven't, you certainly can cheer.

Swimming

Have you been swimming lately? Now that the days are so warm, you will enjoy a nice swim. Also remember that there is recreational swimming, and you can make up that class you missed or you can just enjoy a nice, cool dip.

Tennis

Did you see all those nice plays Hampden-Sydney and Byrd Park boys made? You know, if you try, you may become a good player. Practice makes perfect. Come out and watch some of the plays of some of our girls. Even if you don't play, you will enjoy watching.

So long for this week, and go out and support your team.

Summer Pajamas Help Beat Heat

The smart S.T.C.'er is all out for comfort and coolness where summer p. j's and nighties are concerned. If you take a look around the halls, you will note that the coolest and most popular night wear is the short-style pajamas made of seersucker, batiste, and prints of gay colors in stripes, checks, and solids. You see plain ones with bare midriffs and tie or button fronts. Some tops have a round neck with gathers and tiny puffed sleeves. Others appear more feminine with touches of hamberg ruffling or ruffles of the same material around the collar and legs of the pajamas. Ranking next in coolness as well as attractiveness are the ever comfortable Tommy coats made of cotton or rayon. These, too, are popular with dainty trimmings around the yokes in the back and front and the plainly tailored ones are equally as cute.

In the brides' wardrobe, (and we do have a few brides-to-be in our midst), we find the more sophisticated, frilly, Tommy coats and exquisite satin and lace gowns —But no one will go wrong with several pairs of cool, comfortable cotton p. j.'s and night shirts in their wardrobe or trousseau to "beat the heat" of the sultry summer nights.

Array of Color In Art Exhibit Draws Attention

Approaching the steps to second floor library, ones eye is suddenly caught by an array of colors. What is this? Why, it is the Spring Exhibition of art at S. T. C. which is being held from May 20 through May 26.

Reaching the top of the steps, there are pictures suffusing the hall with intriguing delight. Where to look first seems a problem.

Flower pastels are on the left, murals that hold one's attention for more than a few minutes are close by and oils of such dazzling beauty that they seem to be real face the murals. Further down are the landscapes. See anything familiar? Of course you do. Why you've passed these places dozens of times. Opposite these are the portraits. The likeness' are really breath-taking as one recognizes one's friends.

In the little alcove are such animated drawings of animals in crayon that the place seems alive. The shelves under all the pictures are filled to overflowing with the hand crafts such as woven pocketbooks, books made and bound, puppets, and in clay—vases, figures, etc., and stenciled cloth.

Down the hall leading to the cat-walk are a multitude of surrealistic paintings, and the groups of leaves with their great feeling of movement.

These and many others fill the halls. Words are too inadequate to describe any of them. There are some things one must see for oneself for full enjoyment.

★ SENIOR PERSONALITIES ★

KITTY PARHAM

SHIRLEY SLAUGHTER

A cheery smile, bright blue eyes and a friendly "hi" all serve notice that one of our most outstanding seniors, Kitty Parham, is present.

Kitty has served us capably and faithfully as president of our House Council. Known to all, especially students in the Main Building who like to have those "after 12 lights and bull-sessions," Kitty will always be remembered by, "What the heck's going on in here?" Freshmen and sophomores won't forget how 8 or 10 girls all tried to get under the same bed when the other night-watchman, not Mr. Reid, made her appearance.

Kitty's dignity just couldn't be missed if you happened to sit in on a meeting of the Pan-Hellenic Council or attended an open meeting of the Association. Her smooth, very efficient execution of all duties involved here led us to depend on Kitty to get the job done. AKG realized that in Kitty they had found a true leader, and tapped her last fall.

If you hear a deep base rendition of "I Don't Know Why", you'll know Kitty is coming. Another favorite with her now is "That's My Desire". Terribly partial to suits and possessing a passion for black, Kitty was recognized as a natural beauty by her election to Mardi Gras Court and May Court this year.

The words "very much alive" must be added to a description of "Kitty P." She is always ready to join in the fun and can add many a good laugh to any party. Furthermore, a party to Kitty can mean a Philip Morris, a cup of coffee, "It's Loving Time", and Shannon's.

An ever-faithful daughter of P-burg, Kitty plans to return there to teach the third grade next year.

S. T. C.'s spotlight has pointed with pride this week to one of it's "best all round" seniors. An ardent blue and white supporter, a delightful conversationalist, a sincere friend, Kitty will be missed by all S. T. C.

"What the heck's going on in here?"

Quiet dignity, good sense of humor, and patience are but three of a host of characteristics that could be used in connection with our senior personality of the week, Shirley Slaughter.

Shirley transferred here from Agnes Scott her sophomore year and ever since she came to STC, she has taken part in the activities of both class and school. Shirley's big interest is in newspaper work and her proficiency in this field was made known when she became managing editor and then editor-in-chief of the Rotunda. Her ability as a leader was recognized when she was tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma this past fall.

Shirley's "likes" range from a cup of coffee and a cigarette to a good night's rest (an item that she sorely missed while editing the paper). Shirley plans to teach next year and her students are sure to like her as much as STC-ers do.

Her willingness to listen to one's troubles and be sorry with them or to one's triumphs and rejuice with them has endeared her to all. Few people have the ability of making friends and keeping them like Shirley Penn does.

"To know her is to love her", is a statement that might be applied to Shirley P. who is a truly a personality in every sense of the word.

Complete Confusion Reigns During Last Few School Days

Our rooms here at S. T. C. have been a bad state of affairs many times during the year but never has the complete confusion we had this week been attained before.

Monday night when we should have been studying for those two exams we had on Tuesday we began to pack. We were really sorry on Tuesday morning that we hadn't studied, but nothing could dampen our spirits—after all, weren't we going HOME in four days? Tuesday night was the time we had definitely planned to study in the library, but people kept coming in with Virginians for us to sign—until when we finally found time to go to the library—it was hours past the time for the library to close.

Some lucky people finished their exams on Wednesday or Thursday, and with tears in our eyes we said good-bye as they left with promises to think of us—and keep our fingers crossed for us on Friday when we had our chemistry exam.

We did finally get the trunk packed early Thursday morning and after half of the girls on the hall come in to sit on it, we got it locked. Fifteen minutes after Charlie carried it off, we had found as many articles which we should have put in, but didn't.

Friday morning we lay in bed for the longest time after we woke up, waiting for the bell to ring. After a sweet repose of ten minutes we decided that some pranksters had cut the bell rope again and that we had better hurry to dress for breakfast unless we wanted to be locked-out of the dining hall our last morning here. When we reached the Rotunda our suspicions were confirmed. Not only had the michief-makers cut the rope to the bell—they had sent down oceans of feathers from above the Rotunda, and the maids were disgustedly exerting great efforts trying to clean up before visitors began to arrive.

Going through the hall Friday morning we saw at every door stacks of suit cases, hat boxes, blankets, and various other articles. Passing one door we heard a frantic voice shouting, "Eugene, Eugene! Where is Eugene?" Looking in, in hopes of finding a handsome male relative of some dear

Honorary Classman

BETTY MINETREE

Minetree Elected Honorary Member

Betty Minetree, senior from Petersburg, was selected as the honorary classman of the senior class of 1948, according to an announcement made in Senior chapel by Louise Brooks.

Margaret Ellett, senior class president, made a farewell speech and Louise Brooks, president of the incoming senior class responded. The seniors sang their farewell songs, and then formed an arch down the aisle through which the juniors marched out of the auditorium.

Betty will return to S. T. C. next December to lead the figure for the Senior Dance along with the senior class president.

Senior Class Holds Class Exercises Saturday, May 31

The formal presentation of a new portrait of Judge Asa D. Watkins preceded the class day exercises. The program took place in the S. T. C. library at 3 p. m. and was open to the public. The portrait was painted by Miss Julia Mahood of Lynchburg and accepted by the State Art Commission. It was unveiled by Judge Watkins' grandson, William Forbes Watkins, Jr., of Hampden-Sydney. The portrait was presented by Senator Robert K. Brook, former law partner of Judge Watkins. Blake T. Newton, president of the State Board of Education, will accept it for the state of Virginia. The Rev P. A. Roberts offered the invocation and benediction. Dr. Lancaster, president of S. T. C., presided at the program.

Annual Dedicated To Miss Foster

Virginian Arrives During Exam Week

Dedicated to Miss Nancy Foster of the English department of the faculty, the 1947 Virginian arrived on campus Tuesday morning.

The dedication reads in part: "Some people are assets to our everyday living without our being truly conscious of it but without whose aid and presence we could not progress. It is to such a person we wish to pay tribute—Miss Nancy Foster."

Bound in green and inscribed in white, the annual bears its name, year, and the seal of the college on its cover. "Music that is Farmville" is the theme of the yearbook, and this motif is carried out in detail throughout the book. Division pages are decorated with notes and appropriate lines taken from the Alma Mater and the senior songs.

The Virginian includes pictures of the entire faculty and administration, the members of the four classes, the different organizations on campus, and several attractive views of the campus. Eleven of S. T. C.'s co-eds are given a separate page. Full-page pictures of the senior personalities appear near the back of the annual. Margaret Lohr, Martha Russell East, Kitty Parham, Margaret Ellett, Patsy Dale, Nancy Whitehead, Betty Minetree, and Sue Hundley are the girls pictured.

Small pictures, typical of life at S. T. C., and an index and register of students bring to a finish the annual.

Subscriptions

Any senior wishing to subscribe to the Rotunda next year may send their subscription to Betty Spindler. The price for a one year subscription is $1.50.

Betty asks that each person sending in a subscription be sure and send the correct address to which the paper should be sent.

Elaborately dressed dolls are among the presents given to infant brides of the Hindu and Mohammedan faith in India.

Phillips Speaks At Baccalaureate

129 candidates for graduation were present for the sixty-third Commencement exercises which were held this morning at 10:30 o'clock in the college auditorium. The exercises began with the processional which was followed by the invocation delivered by the Rev. Philip A. Roberts.

The principal address was made by Mr. Henry G. Ellis of Petersburg. Following Mr. Ellis' talk, the Madrigals, under the direction of June Cregar, sang "How Merrily We Live." Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster then awarded the degrees, and announcement of the Honor graduates was made at this time. The National Anthem was then played which was followed by the recessional.

At the Baccalaureate services which were held last night, June 1, the exercises began with the processional. The invocation was delivered by the Reverend O. Worth May. The College Choir sang "Prayer" by Guion, under the direction of Mr. Ned Crawley.

The sermon was delivered by the Right Reverend Henry B. Phillips, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia, Roanoke, Virginia. The recessional was played after the benediction was pronounced.

Officers of the graduating class are Margaret Ellett, president; Grace Loyd, vice-president; Betty Ribb, secretary, and Anna Headlee, treasurer.

Fun, Friendship, Food Play Part In Stay at College

"As freshmen we came to the newness of college." How short a time it seems since we first entered the doors of STC as scared freshmen and were met by a Y girl dressed in white who helped us find our room and let us cry on her shoulder for dear ole Dad and Mom who just couldn't get along without us. So many events made our freshmen year just fly by—first there was Circus, then a blessed vacation for Thanksgiving, then the rest of the year just faded out of sight as three other years has done since then.

Hasn't it been fun to play bridge and eat snacks at midnight? And who can possibly forget the mad dash for Shannons betwee classes and at every other possible moment. Can't you just picture the battles and sledding that were synonomous with the first snow?

Will you ever forget how wise we were when we became sophomores and juniors? Then when that last part of the junior year approached it didn't seem possible that we were to be the leaders of STC during the next year.

Then that last week of that last year approached and feelings were both of joy and sorrow. We began to realize that this was probably the last time that the entire class would be together. Never again would all of us be able to hear together Birdie's "By the Sea" of Grace's "Harrigan." When we marched down that aisle for the last time with that diploma red-hot in our hands we realized then and only then—that we were Alumnae.

These four years at STC have been wonderful and we wouldn't have missed them for anything. Wherever we go whatever we do, the graduates of 1947 will hold STC dear to their hearts, for here we have made "friendships that will never, never sever."

Realization Comes 'We Are Now Alumnae'

One year ago I wrote an editorial to say farewell to the class of 1946. Now as a member of the graduating class of 1947, I pause to say farewell to the friends we leave behind. Last year at this time our class was a little shaky because we realized that then we were seniors and that others would be looking to us as we had looked to the seniors before us. We realize that we've made many mistakes, but we did our job as best we could. To the class of 1948 we say, "The best of luck. May your senior years be as wonderful as ours has been".

In body we are leaving Farmville and our friends, but not in mind. We won't forget how meekly we entered these halls, how we ratted the freshmen when we became the mighty sophomores. We won't forget our suites in Junior building, when we walked under the arch of caps at the end of last year and officially became seniors. Nor will we forget the inspiration that Dr. Jarman was to us, and the challenge that Dr. Lancaster has given us. We'll never forget our senior year; capping, senior dance, senior chapel, senior sing, the daisy chain, class day exercises, the lantern parade, baccalaureate sermon, and finally graduation.

There have been tears intermingled with our joys these four years. At times the going has been rough. We have made many friends at Farmville among our classmates, among our schoolmates, among the faculty and administration. You have enriched our lives. To you all we say thanks, particularly to Miss Olive Iler who has served us so faithfully for four years. We won't forget you and what you have meant to us.

Today we join thousands of other alumnae in pledging our support and loyalty to our alma mater. We now lay aside our, hoods our caps, and our gowns—"There is nothing left to say but just good-bye."

Congratulations Go To Green 'n White

We'll put the colors on the Color Cup, just watch our team sail!" This line from the Senior's winning song in the annual song contest became an actuality for the classes of '47 and '49 when Betty Burchett presented the Color Cup to Margaret Ellett and Violet Ritchie in Senior Chapel. Congratulations Green 'n White! You've fought long and hard and you deserve the honor.

The Color Cup, which is presented each year to the colors winning the most athletic events during the school year, has long been a cause for competition and hard work at S. T. C. Participators in the various sports and their class supporters eagerly await the totaling of the score. Each class looks forward to winning the cup, especially in their senior year.

S. T. C. girls have always been good sports whether they win or lose. This year the competition was keener than usual but good sportsmanship prevailed as always.

Congratulations, Green and White, for winning the Color Cup. Congratulations, Red and White, for a game well played.

Student Body Bids Seniors Farewell'

Out of our auditorium today passed another graduating class, but they are not just another class who have finished their required work and won their diplomas. No, out of our auditorium doors passed some of our dearest friends who we have come to know well and love. We, the underclassmen, hate to see you leave and STC won't seem the same without you. We are justly proud of you, and wish to thank you for having made Farmville more than just a school to us.

You, the senior class of 1947 have made capable leaders. When the going was hard for us you pitched in and helped us. We appreciate all the things you have done for us. You have been our inspiration, and if we are able to carry on next year with success it will be solely from the ideals and standards that you upheld and now pass on to us.

We wish you luck and success in everything you undertake. You are now alumnae, but we hope the spirit of Farmville will follow you wherever you go. You will always have a distinct place in our hearts. We can't forget the class with the class and school spirit, the class that stood by us and never failed us.

Farewell, Senior of 1947.

Puddin' n' Sauce

Dear Seniors "we weep to see you haste away so soon", but it's selfish of us to regret that you will leave us for a fuller, richer life. All the things that we've done together in fun or in earnest have been directed toward the goal of graduation, so we really shouldn't wish to keep you here when you have much to look forward to. We are so proud of you and wish you every success, and the best of luck in every endeavor. There may be tears, but we can smile through them and say—"stay as fine always as you are now, and keep those "fond mem'ries of S. T. C.'"

So long until Founders Day; happy hunting, and Mizpah.

Farewells Resound Through Halls As STC-ers Prepare to Go Home

"Good-bye. Have a nice summer, here? Hey, Betty you forgot something—isn't this blue sock yours? Oh, I just can't bear to tell you good-bye. Promise that you'll come to see me real often." These remarks abounded through the halls just before S. T. C.'s horde of girls departed for the summer. It wasn't an unusual sight at all these past few days to see men parading through the halls with their arms overflowing with miscellaneous items that had been accumulated by their child at the end of one year's stay at STC.

Many were seen biting their fingernails wondering if their parents would ever get here. Then they began wondering if their parents would know which building to come to. When Mom and Dad finally arrive and the car is packed to overflowing — the time has come when it is esential to take one last look at STC—and close those eyes tight and don't let those tears come. After all, STC will still be here next year and it isn't such a long time from June till September.

Just think next year you will be an upperclassman and can enjoy lots of privileges. Privileges—well at least you can go downtown wherever you want to. Shannons will get rich off of your money—well what's the good of coming to college if you can't eat at every opportunity?

"No more exams, no more books"—well, have fun this summer.

Commencement

HEARD AFTER

Bed-Check

Here we are again with the last scoop, dirt, gossip, etc., of the year.

What's this we hear about all those phone calls that Davidson gal has been getting. Who is this fellow in Orange, Mert?

We wonder what put those stars in Annie Ellis's eyes. Could it be that gold watch she got from Robert?

Say Chris, we think that exvet is right cute too—Seems you'll are seen together quite a lot lately.

It must be something pretty important to keep Martha R. from going home this week end. Could it be Guthrie?

We sure see a lot of Sara and a certain red-head. It seems that he can sing to—

We can tell by that look on Keliam's face that things were finally straightened out with Van and he is coming this week end. You two have fun.

Betty Parrish we have noticed that happy look on your face too. Must be 'cause Charlie is coming.

Adding to our list of third finger left hand girls are Ann Hauser and Jerry Newman. Also causing a great deal of excitement is that sparkler that Mary Harrison received. We think it is wonderful and the best of luck to you all.

We guess that a certain town boy is pretty lonesome now that his favorite S. T. C. girl has gone home. Tough luck, Ray.

Betty Jo and Corky are seen together more and more. We think you make a darling couple.

Wedding bells will soon be ringing for Dot May, Ann Shufflebarger, Margaret Lohr, Ann Nichols. We wish you the best of luck and happiness for the future.

Incidentally Jene Guthrie—"Are you ready for Freddie"?

From all reports, Laura Jean had a super time last week-end, but then, who wouldn't at Ring Dances at Tech.

All excited over the coming week end is Joan Hahn 'cause once again she'll be with her Donald.

Our seniors aren't the only lucky ones in our midst 'cause we hear Elinor Farmer, Mildred Sadler, and Elinor Lawless will be taking the fatal step this summer also.

Lou Baker is still seen with that tall, dark, handsome fellow. They really make a striking couple.

Links is sho nuff thrilled 'cause Ray's going to be in Lynchburg all summer. Lucky gal.

Joyce Townsend really is the popular one these days. More power to ya girl.

From all reports Jean and Mickey are that way about each other.

What this we hear about wedding plans, Martha Russell? Let us in on it.

Tell us more about a certain S. T. C. girl and town boy playing "Peas, Porridge, Hot"—Didn't you know that Ruth would be just mortified!

Why does Hilda Abernathy adore going to the movies anymore?

How 'bout that gleam in Margaret Jones' eye. Could Carter be responsible?

Seems that Babbs and John Moore are "that way" about each other.

Have to go now girls. Have fun this summer but remember we will be watching you!!

Plan Student Tour To 'Common Glory'

Special arrangements are being made for the more than 130,000 Virginia high school students to attend Virginia's historical drama "The Common Glory," by the celebrated southern author and Pulitzer prize winner, Paul Green, which will be presented this summer at the Matoaka Lake Theatre near Williamsburg, beginning July 17.

"This historical drama" says G. Tyler Miller, state superintendent of public instruction, "which dramatizes early days of our nation's history and which is sponsored by the Jamestown Corporation, headed by Governor Tuck as honorary president and former Governor Darden as president, has the wholehearted endorsement of the State Department of Education.

"We feel it such a real opportunity for state students to learn first hand of the early history of our Nation that we have worked out a plan through which all interested high school students can attend "The Common Glory' and visit historic points of interest near the ampitheatre." This plan, Miller says, has been worked out through cooperation of the College of William and Mary, Colonial Williamsburg Incorporated and the Jamestown Corporation and will enable students to be transported to Williamsburg by buses on special scheduled days; where overnight accommodations are necessary these, along with meals will be furnished by the college at minimum rates. Minimum rates will be allowed students by Colonial Williamsburg and by the Jamestown Corporation for the drama.

Miller said directives have been mailed to all division superintendents requesting that attention of all principals and teachers be called to the drama and that all high school students be contacted as soon as possible in order that plans may be made and trips tentatively scheduled before closing of schools. Opening night of the drama is set for July 17 but group attendance of high school students will be the last of July or first of August. A special Student Reservation Bureau will be set up in Williamsburg to handle arrangements for the groups

★ SENIOR ★ PERSONALITY ★

NANCY WHITEHEAD

The spotlight moves this week to Nancy Whitehead, a senior personality who by this time should be used to the glare. Grace, talent, are words which have been synonymous with Nancy's name. A May Court representative since her freshman year, she was the obvious choice for this year's queen, in addition to her duties as May Day chairman. Alpha Kappa Gamma, Alpha Phi Sigma, and Kappa Delta Pi have recognized her abilities in leadership and scholarship; Orchesis her unusual talent for dancing by electing her president; Gamma Psi her aptitude with brush and paint by making her vice-president, and Cotillion her beauty by making her figure leader. She was a capable editor of the Colonnade her junior year, and an equally successful chairman of Student Standards this year. Her talents have been claimed by the Dramatic Club for several plays. This it would seem might go on and on. Nancy's versatility and efficiency have made her a leader in virtually every phase of college activity.

Among her likes are dancing, Bob, bacon and tomato sandwiches, Prince Matchabelli Stradivari, clothes, black and blue, Heidi, South Boston, and slamming doors. Her dislikes are less numerous, but equally as decided: cake—especially angel food, mills, red, and dresses that don't fit.

Here is one personality that will long be remembered for the interest in the college and especially in her classmates that she always displayed.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

Congratulations to the Green and Whites for winning the color cup. We are proud of you. And congratulations go also to the Red and Whites for the good sportmanship that they displayed.

Haven't you enjoyed all the sports this year? Didn't it make you feel good to go out and enter into a game of tennis, golf, archery, or the multitude of other sports that were offered?

We will miss all the seniors very much next year, especially the basketball and hockey team members. We wish you the best of luck in whatever you undertake. For the people returning to STC next year, have a nice summer and hurry back in September.

To the members of the faculty and student body
We appreciate the business you have given us this session
Hoping for each and every one of you a pleasant vacation

Campus Clothes Spotlighted

Just look around the campus and see all the pretty play dresses that the girls are wearing this spring. Many of them are wearing sun back dresses, bare midriff dresses, and dresses with dropped shoulders to show off that golden sun tan.

Have you noticed Binkie Motley's snazzy one shoulder dress in yellow pique with a tie belt sash? It's just the thing to show off that pretty suntan and those green sandals.

Maybe you prefer a bare midriff dress like Ann Motley's in light blue. The top has a low round neck and puffed sleeves, and the skirt is gathered all the way around.

If you want something different why not make one like Corinne Baker's cute black cotton with dropped shoulders. It has a wide ruffle around the top trimmed with white eyelet, and a full skirt.

classmate, we saw only the classmate desperatey searching the room. "Who is Eugene that We're looking for?" we queried. "Why, my favorite stuffed animal, of course," replied classmate, seemingly very vexed at our ignorance. With that we retired, and as we journeyed down the hall, we heard a pleased exclamation behind us, "Oh! Here you are, Eugene."

At this point we decided to gather our year's accumulations together, and start our trek homeward. As we left, we silently begged the maid's forgiveness for leaving our room in such a mess.

S.T.C. Girl Wins Scholarship, Gifts

Ruthellen Mears, junior from Cape Charles, represented the state of Virginia in the annual Miss America contest held in Atlantic City, New Jersey, from September 1 through 7.

She was chosen as the state representative in Norfolk on August 9, competing there as Miss Cape Charles. With her selection in Norfolk she received a thousand dollar scholarship and her wardrobe to wear in Atlantic City.

All of the contestants registered at the Traymore Hotel in Atlantic City, but they stayed in several different hotels. Ruthellen was at the Brighton with Miss Greater Philadelphia and Miss New York City. The girls were kept busy with rehearsals for the nightly presentations and meetings with the board of directors and various committees.

Tuesday afternoon was devoted to a parade of floats, each girl appearing on a separate float bearing the name of her state. The fifty-four contestants were presented in Convention Hall on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. After the selection of Miss America on Saturday night, a ball was held at the Traymore Hotel. Miss America of 1946 was hostess at a tea for this year's contestants one afternoon during the pageant. Ted Malone served as master of ceremonies on all occasions.

Ruthellen's sponsor, the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Norfolk chose Mrs. Murray Walden, also of Norfolk, to accompany her as a chaperone. Atlantic City provided each girl with a chaperone upon her arrival there.

A noted New York firm presented each contestant with a suit especially designed for the Miss America aspirants of 1947. in addition to this, Ruthellen received a wrist watch and ninety-one dollars when she appeared on the Professor Quiz radio program. The sponsors of this program gave

Faculty Member's Book Published

Work Dedicated To Philosophers

Dr. J. P. Wynne, a member of S. T. C. faculty, has had his second book published recently by Prentice-Hall, Inc., of New York City.

Entitled "Philosophies of Education", Professor Wynne's book has been described as "a systematic presentation students can understand". He describes at the outset the three dominant philosophies influencing both the informal education offered by life, and the formal education received in schools. Then he shows how each of these three philosophies is reflected in the theories that affect every major phase of experience and each major aspect of school practice.

This book is dedicated to John Dewey, William Heard Kilpatrick, and H. Bode. They are three of the leading philosophers in the United States today and the book has the approval of all.

Dr. Wynne is using the new book in his Philosophy of Education class this year at S. T. C., and his first book, "The Teacher and The Curricuia" is also being taught on this campus this year.

College Endorses New Study Plan

Effective immediately, a strict study hour will be observed in all dormitories. This is one of the new regulations governing student activities that was approved this week by the college.

Several changes affecting all organizations and groups have been inaugurated. Last spring Dr. Lancaster appointed a committee on scheduling student activities, headed by Miss Leola Wheeler, to study the rules then in effect. A final report from this group was submitted at meetings of the faculty, student officers, and administration during the last ten days for criticism and revision. As printed below, the regulations have the approval and endorsement of the various groups. They are designed to eliminate confusion in meeting dates and places, to bring to the campus a properly enforced study hour, and to encourage fewer but better entertainments.

General Rules:

1. All programs and rehearsals must be scheduled by Miss Wheeler, the chairman of this committee.

2. There shall be no postponements of any alloted dates except by permission of this committee.

3. There is to be nothing scheduled within ten days prior to examinations.

4. After permission has been obtained for rehearsals lasting beyond 7:55 p. m., the faculty advisor will inform the Office of the Dean of Women. It, in turn, will give the information to the House Mothers and Hall Presidents.

5. Faculty are requested to inform themselves of and abide by these regulations. This includes special night classes, meetings other than at scheduled times, group conferences, and tests as they interfere with othcr scheduled meetings.

6. The calendar for sheduling rehearsals shall be kept in Miss Wheeler's classroom 12. A copy will be in Mrs. Watkins' Office.

I. Meetings:

A. All meetings must end by 7:55 p. m. and must be held only at scheduled times.

B. Organizations are requested to have not more than one meeting a month.

C. Initiations should be held in the afternoon or before 7:55 p. m. If this is impossible, initiations may be held on Saturday night or on one school night each semester, the date for sorority ini-

Sobs, Sighs, Homesickness Denote Arrival of Freshmen

With many a sob, the freshmen arrived to take their first peek at S. T. C. life. Many took one look and screamed to go back home again. Tears are still "flooding" the dorms. All this makes the Keenex company very happy, however, as they know that in September there is no danger of coming out on the red side of the ledger. Yes, nostalga is very prevalent and the theme song of the freshman seems to be "Home Sweet Home".

The freshmen education began with the word matriculate. "What on earth is that? I know I'll 'flunk' everything here!" one poor lil' freshman mourned as she clung fast to her mom and dad for refuge. Of course the upper classmen try to be very encouraging by calmly replying, "Ah, you 'aint' seen nothin' yet—just wait until you get professor so and so!"

The infirmary is doing pretty good business right now too. If you suddenly find a freshman at your feet, she isn't proposing—merely a candidate for a bandage as a result of the highly polished floors.

"Thy halls and thy arcades . . ." is certainly a very appropriate song when trying to find one's way around S. T. C. Here, as always, the freshmen have encountered many difficulties. "I looked and looked for room 34" exclaimed one pupil. "After locating it, I found it occupied by little gremlins around eight years old! Not only were they in the rooms, but they were in the halls, peering out from doors, around corners, over banisters and on stairs."

Seriously though, we want to welcome the freshmen to S. T. C. After you have attended your first girl-break dances, lyceums, college circus, club installations, Dramatic Club plays, class productions and finally May Day, you too will find that the "greenness' has worn off. You will have caught the spirit of the school and eagerly await your next three years.

Support Your College

It has been said that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. We who love S. T. C. feel that our college is no stronger than the spirit within it.

You may ask, "Just what is school spirit?" We believe that it is an inner emotion for which every student in every school should strive to obtain. It is a combination of loyalty and service given to the school, both during the time of enrollment and in later years. School spirit includes the qualities of being honest, being morally clean, and being a good loser as well as a good winner.

A person with school spirit is always honest with others and with the school. He strives to develop a strong character, and he upholds the school at its weaker moments. Anyone in the school can shout, "Hurrah", for a winning team, but it is only the person with a deeply-imbedded school spirit who can accept defeat when it comes.

The individual whose school spirit is an outstanding quality is a leader in the activities of the school. This is true almost all of the time not because the student seeks to be a leader, but because his fellow-classmates regard him as a capable and dependable person.

Desiring to be a credit to her school, her classmates, and her instructors is a trait of the person with genuine school spirit. Let us work at all times during the coming year with the goal in mind of showing people, whom we contact now and in later life, that our school has given to us the proper start into this confused and ever-changing world.

Ray! Rah! Freshmen

Last week 250 bewildered freshmen arrived to become a part of our college. We hope that you are going to like us, and we shall like you. We have great hopes for you and your life at STC.

We have certain ideals, traditions and standards here which we believe in wholeheartedly. In time, we hope you will adopt them too. Our system of government, our honor code, our "Y", and many other things have helped us and will continue to do so because of our willingness to become a part of them. College has much to offer you—take advantage of it. The old saying that you get out of something exactly what you put into it is true of your life here in this institution.

Farmville has long been known for its school spirit. It is our hope that you will catch this spirit and enter into our activities. Think before you join, or you will find you have too much to do. A proper amount of study, recreation, and rest along with meditation is the ideal life here. Budget your time and you will find things will run much more smoothly.

The upperclassmen are willing to help you at any time in any way. We are behind you and rooting for you every step along the way. This freshman class, of which you are a part, will have much to live up to and improve upon. Be a good member of your class and of this student body.

We are glad that you have chosen Farmville for your second home, for that is what it will soon be to you. Three cheers for the freshmen!

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1947

Puddin' 'n Sauce

The subject of "we-know-you're-going-to-love-it-here" has been covered pretty well except nobody else has stuck her neck out to explain why. Well, all of us upper-class-upper-crust were new here too in the not so dim past, and very few of us have forgotten how bewildered we were the first week or so. S. T. C. sort of grows on you. At first it is a terrible conglomeration of steps and more steps, and dorms with names such as "Gym"—which means 2nd and 3rd floors over the P.O. and "Library", which is at present the primary school. But take heart' dear Freshmen, you'll get used to it. Maybe.

Perhaps you came here thinking that the letters S. T. C. just stand for State Teachers College, but it really goes deeper than that. After you've been here for awhile you'll find that S also stands for Shannons and Senior Dance, for sleeping through breakfast or an eight-o-five, and for study hour. It also stands for the Spirit which makes a Farmville girl a sister of every girl here.

T stands for teachers all right, but it means tennis and team spirit, telephone calls and talk-fests that last far into the night. T stands for term papers too, just as it does for the Time of your life, which we hope you'll have here.

C is for callers in the Rotunda who usually wait till you've given up hope for a Saturday night date, and have rolled up your curly locks to turn in. Or perhaps it means a cup of coffee that you hastily grab in the Tea Room 'cause you couldn't make it to breakfast. C stands for Cunningham and the Colonnade as well as a hundred other things so dear to the hearts of S. T. C. girls.

So to all new girls, Freshmen and transfers, we're glad you're here and hope that you'll like our way of life and enter into it with all the enthusiasm you can.

Bed Check

Well, can you believe that the summer has flown by and the time has come again for ye ole bedchecker to gather some more news and gossip from thither and yon for you gals to feast upon?

Everyone seemed to have had a swell time during the summer according to all the glowing reports but still everyone said that it was nice to get back again.

Before going any further let's welcome the freshmen and wish them all the luck and success in the world as you start your life at college.

Among some of our girls who middle-aisled it during the summer are Ricky King, Peggy Stevenson, Iris Davis and Martha Russel East. Congratulations to the lucky guys.

Have you seen Booher's diamond ring? It's a beauty. Bob sounds quite exciting.

Rodger just did make it home from Canada before Betty Jane Brockway left. But she was chewing her nails for fear he wouldn't make it. They surely make a cute couple.

There were many new twosomes formed at the church parties Saturday night. From all reports everyone had quite a gay time.

Talking about twosomes on compus one familiar one again this year is June Walsh and Bill Smithers alias Thomas Jefferson of "The Common Glory" fame.

Jean Tolley is sporting a miniature from that darling man of hers.

Just ask Pete Peterson which branch of the service she likes the best.

Gin Tindall, why don't you bring Chan around more often?

Why does Katie Ellis blush everytime anyone mentions Alberta?

Mary Helmer just can't seem to make up her mind about three fellows but between you, me and the gatepost Texas has the strongest lead.

It's almost time for bedcheck, but let us warn you, we know where you are after "lights out."

LETTER TO EDITOR

September 22, 1947

Dear Editor,

I have just returned from a meeting of the heads of organizations. Miss Wheeler chairman of the committee on scheduling student activities, explained the rules and suggestions made by this committee, which are printed in the Rotunda tonight.

I certainly hope that every girl will read these rules, because they apply to every last one of us. They were made so that there would be as little conflict as possible between organization activities and study hour. To study, after all, unpleasant as it sounds is the primary reason that we're here.

After reading these rules and suggestions, which, by the way, are to be incorporated in the handbook next year, we should familiarize ourselves with them. They deserve our support, since they were made for our own good.

Sincerely,
A Sophomore.

Gallop Pole

(Asked to transfers) "How does S.T.C. stack up against the college you attended last year?"

Doris Lloyd (Westhampton): I'd say I liked it better if I'd been here longer.

Peggy Crowder (Madison): More school spirit.

Love Bentley (Georgetown Visitation Jr., College): There's no comparison—the two schools are entirely different. I'm impressed by the friendliness here. My last school prepared me well to come to S. T. C., and I'm glad I came here.

Ann Robertson (Averett): I don't like these Sunday afternoons. But I really love the school, especially Cunningham Hall, third floor Annex.

Rives Edwards (Averett): I just love it; that's all—coke machines on the hall, kitchens to cook in, and having your own bathroom. And the girls and teachers are so friendly. They go out of their way to help you out.

Phyliss Austin (Mary Washington): S. T. C. has more school spirit and much better rules.

Polly Caldwell (Mary Washington): I think it's much better in every way.

Belle Wagstaff (Womans College, University of North Carolina): The rules are a lot stricter but the girls are a lot friendlier. I think they should have a better system of having dates call you. The school spirit is just fine.

Martha Hall (Westhampton): Not as high.

June Nichols (Averett): I especially like Cunningham Hall, but I don't care for these Sunday regulations.

Kitty Sheffield (Madison): I think Farmville is way over top of Madison. They have so much more school spirit here than they did there.

Lee Stickley (St. Mary's): They're both just wonderful, but the atmospheres are different. Here everybody's been so friendly and made me feel so welcome. The sophomores have been so sweil about accepting me in their class and crowds.

Elsie McAllister (Marion): They aren't to be compared because there's too much difference. S. T. C. is so much larger that it makes things seem different. I like the campus and the friendliness of S. T. C., though.

Lila Easley (Mary Washington): Since this is a smaller school, you get to know more people. However I like Mary Washington better as a whole.

Connie Heather (George Washington University): I like S. T. C. better because it's so much smaller, and you get the opportunity to make more friends.

Romances Relived As Summer Ends

"Back to school"—a phrase that should never have been coined with the appearance of these "sweet" words in the most unusual places come thoughts of summer joys soon to be forgotten. Back to the same old routine of classes, study and more classes. But are the memories quite forgotten? Indeed not, for among the shouts of greetings can be heard the familiar line, "Oh, I met the cutest boy this summer, and I'm having him up for the very first dance!" That's how it starts and so the story unravels into the wee hours of the next morning, with a few dozen interruptions from a few dozen eager listeners.

In an amazingly short space of time a whole summer lies unveiled. You suddenly discover why you never received all of those promised letters. If your supposed correspondent wasn't busy getting a large department store out of a hole in the credits and debts office, then Virginia Beach certainly held greater attractions than a plain sheet of stationery. But all of this is soon forgotten when all you have to do is yell down the hall and either get results—or else an echo.

Old Students Know About Life at STC

So much has been said about the way the new girls come to S. T. C.—but what about the way the old girls come back? Amid innumerable suitcases, multitude of boxes, and mountains of packages (for experience has taught them what they will need) the old girls arrive on campus. Then everything drops; for, at that moment, she sees one whom she hasn't seen since June. Registering, matriculating, paying—these are all routine to her, and are done between joyous greeting of friends, exchanging of summer experiences, and showing the new girls around.

But the thing that gets old girls down is fixing their schedule. All of the faculty will help the new girl, but seem to think the old girl should fix her own. Problem: How can I avoid 8:05 classes, afternoon and Saturday classes, side track the required but ieared science, get my favorite professor, and get permission to take the 19 hours needed for graduation, at the same time? And this business of changing from quarter to semester is confusing to say the least.

The juniors have come back with the added anticipation of Cunningham Hall. (Just wait until it rains!) Even then, can their

Welcome to S. T. C. new girls. By now you have been given an introduction to the sports at S. T. C. On Thursday you were given an exhibition of the many sports at S. T. C. Orchesis gave you an idea of how you would like to dance, and the hockey players raced up and down the field showing the do's and do nots in the game. Some other sports are: basketball, tennis, archery, volleyball, and golf.

You will find time to enter several sports here, and learn new ones, and develope your old favorite sports by playing on a class team. Show your interest by coming out for a sport, and you'll have fun. Remember you can help to add points for the color cup by helping out on the class team or by keeping up the class spirit.

You Frosh remember that you play the Sophs in hockey. You had better get in some practices to defeat them and remove those rat caps sooner.

Remember the tennis tournament is on its way. You can be picking out a partner.

So long for now—get in the game, play a good game, and be a good sport. Happy sports season to you all!

Left Lead

Things that make a deep impression on small boys and girls usually last throughout their span of life.

Once I watched a group of riders pass by and wished sincerely that I might some day be able to ride as well as they did. At the end of the group, however, I noticed that a man was pulling the reins of his bridle back terribly hard, and the mouth of his horse was wide open. The horse was shaking his head from side to side and to me he seemed to be in great pain. I became furious with that man and wanted desperately to push him off and take the beautiful steed off to some quiet place.

There was nothing I could do, but the picture has remained with me to this day. Actually that man was not hurting his mount at all. As I found out later he had been riding a very spirited stallion and in reality was handling the horse very well.

It takes real horsemanship to handle a creature of this type, and the thrill of doing so surpasses many other adventures. Real riders are hard to find, those who know and love their horses and handle them with kindness.

If you are interested in riding be fair to your mount and you'll find that riding is one of the most enjoyable sports.

Next week I'll tell you about the different types of horses I have seen and ridden and how close I came to not being here at all.

Answers Offered For Skirt Problem

By ADDIE DODD

Shall they be long—or are you a strictly L. B. K. gal? In either case, your skirt hemlines from last year are no doubt a little skimpy. Everyone wants the "new look' but, of course, it would be a struggle to part with perfectly good suits and dresses because of the lengthening problem. Well, stop your worrying—cause there are several ways short skirts may be remodeled and with eye-catching results.

The principle of the yoke is the most popular. That is, the addition of a wide waistband or yoke of contrasting material—suede or metallic lastex—dressy suit skirts may be lengthened by putting a wide ribbon at the top or a corselet belt. The yoke principle works with gored, pleated, or gathered skirts—one-piece dresses may be lengthened by the insertion of a midriff band and adding of cuffs or colors to match.

A black crepe cocktail dress may be effectively lengthened by the addition of a three of four inch ruffle or band of matching lace or net at the hemline.

A good winter coat which has little or no hem can be made attractive by putting a band or fur at the bottom. Raincoats are ideal with an added plaid band at the hemline with matching turned back cuffs and lapels.

If you have a slick dark dress-up dress with no hem to let out, your best alternative is to remove all extra trim, use another fabric and drop your skirts (?) from the waistline. The insert may be hidden by a flashy bustle or peplum—make your own variations and see what happens! Good Luck!

"Charlie Hop"

MR. RAYMOND H. FRENCH

Introducing...

Mr. Raymond H. French, better known as "Charlie Hop". Mr. French teaches chemistry. (need more be said?)

Charlie Hop is well known around campus for his grin and that "Hi-ev-body" which is accompanied by a salute with his hand. He has many hobbies—chief among which is his love for fishing and eating oysters. (He does do other things beside making H2S.)

Charlie Hop is sponsor for the Junior class besides being active in the Scheduling Student Activities Committee and the Rotary Club. He is former president of the T. A. A. Charlie Hop is a member of the Methodist church.

Charlie's home is in Callao which is part of that place called Northern Neck. Speaking of Callao, ask him about that screen door that woke up the entire population of fourteen.

One can find Charlie Hop wandering around the halls most anytime, and, if not, he lives at the Graham's.

Freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors alike have come to know Charlie Hop and to love him. If you haven't met him yet, you soon will. Keep your eyes open for an A-1 professor and friend.

Longwood was the scene of a picnic Tuesday evening, September 16. The Student Government Association sponsored the picnic for the new girls, to help them get acquainted with each other.

Frosh Entertained

The annual "coke and nab" party sponsored by the "Y" for the fresmen was held in the Rec Monday night, September 15. Ann Nock acted as chairman of entertainment, and a program was presented by some of the old students.

STC Students To Broadcast Over New Farmville Station

Piano Pupils Play On First Program

Farmville now has two radio stations with WFLO being the new addition. WSVS has been broadcasting some length of time.

STC will present a program over WFLO from 4:15 until 4:30 every Thursday afternoon. Tomorrow, Miss Clark's piano students will broadcast at this time. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will introduce Miss Clark to the radio audience. Dr. Lancaster spoke in assembly about the possibility of arranging a studio in the college. The committee appointed by him to work out the details of broadcasting is composed of Miss Wheeler, Dean Savage, Dr. Moss, Mr. Wakefield, Mrs. Watkins, and Virginia Yonce.

W. LO is located on Route 45 near Needham a mile from Farmville in Cumberland county. The station is known as "Flo" and the dial is 870. The tower is the tallest standard radio tower in Virginia. The opening ceremonies were held August 16 with Governor Tuck speaking by transcription.

Events of the recent fair were broadcast over this station and Mr. Louis Hubbard program director, said "this was accomplished by standing knee-deep in mud." A special booth was erected at the grounds for broadcasting purposes. One interesting observation made was that ten percent of the air time is of a religious nature.

Savage Clarifies Old Regulations

It is imperative that all members of the faculty and administration understand and abide by the regulations of the College regarding student absences from classes, according to Dean W. W. Savage. In view of this we are summarizing these regulations below. Please study them carefully and cooperate fully in all matters pertaining to them.

1. A student whose name appears on the Dean's List for the preceding semester is entitled to be absent from classes on any day "when she can use her time in ways that seem to her more profitable." To be on the Dean's List, a student must have a "B plus" average (2.25 quality points or more) on all work taken for the semester with no grade below "C".

2. A student with a "B" average for the preceding semester is entitled to two absences from each class during a semester. (These absences may be used in the same manner as to those given to students on the Dean's List)

3. A student with a "C" average for the preceding semester and who received no grade of "F" is entitled to one absence from each class during a semester. (These absences may be used in the same manner as those given to students on the Dean's List).

4. A student with less than a "C" average for the preceding semester is entitled to no absences from any class during the semester.

5. A student whose absence from class is excused because of her average for the preceding semester IS NOT excused from any

Other Programs Planned For Year

Officers of the College Choir and Choral Club have announced that more than 175 students reported for try-outs for the two organizations. This represents approximately one fourth of the student body, which is an unusually large percentage in comparison with former years. Mr. Crawley has stated that his intentions are to limit the choir to seventy-five voices (slightly larger than last years group) and the choral club to approximately fifty. This means that voices can be carefully selected, and tryouts are being extended in order to assure accurate and complete information upon which to basis the final decisions.

The director and officers of the Choral Societies are more than pleased with the excellent quality of many of the new voices. A large number of upper-classmen as well as freshmen have reported for tryouts for the first time. The choir is extremely fortunate in having several well trained singers coming in who are transfers from colleges with dependable music departments.

The two choral groups will be completely organized by Wednesday and will settle down to strenuous rehearsing in preparation for repeat presentations of "The Holy City". The first presentation is scheduled for November 12th when the two choral clubs and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will give the oratorio in Burrus Hall, V. P. I., Blacksburg, Virginia. The program is one of the Lyceum Series of that institution and is the only Lyceum Program to be presented by amateurs. The college can nwell be proud of the invitation extended the singers, for V. P. I. sponsors one of the outstanding Lyceum Series in the state. Persons who heard the oratorio in the spring will be interested to know that the same soloists who sang with the chorus last year will return for this performance. They are Barbara Troxell, soprano; Mary Davenport, contralto; William Hess, tenor; and Paul Matthen, bass.

On Sunday evening, November 16th, the choral groups will present the oratorio in Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Virginia. At that time they will be joined by outstanding soloists selected from the choirs in Richmond. Mr. Schutt, Minister of Music at Grace Covenant, will accompany at the organ.

On Sunday morning, December 14th, the choir will join the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club and two guest soloists from New York, Miss Florence Manning, soprano, and Miss Emma Pitt, contralto, for a program of sacred music at the Farmville Presbyterian Church That evening the same groups of singers will present the traditional Christmas Concert in the Col-

Sophomores Choose Jones As President For Coming Year

At the first meeting of the sophomore class, Annette Jones took over the duties of president since Joanne Brittingham did not return to school.

Caroline Page was elected vice-president to fill the vacancy left by Annette. The other class officers are: Jacky Eagle, secretary and Edith Brooks, treasurer.

Jane "Shorty" Long was elected circus chairman and the representative to circus court will be elected at the next meeting.

It was announced that the regular class meeting will be held the first Tuesday of each month.

Freshman Likes All Classs But Admits To Feeling Green

I went there—Yes, I walked in and they made me sit down. I felt awed at first and resembled a tree in the Petrified Forest I'm sure—only I was slightly greener. I tried to cross my legs in my state of uncomfortableness but joints had hung a "sleeping" sign and they just wouldn't work.

"Look Bud," I said feebly to myself, "you're you and everyone else is everyone else and you're in the same boat with them: so be gallant, be brave." I wasn't very influential with myself.

By this time you've no doubt guessed that I, a mere victim of—not circumstances—but S. T. C., had been subjected to the first day of classes.

I was asked to write a letter in English class and at first was very enthused, but then I realized that my latitude of experience in such fields of endeavor was extremely limited. So after picking up my trusty pen and making a brave attempt at composition (to no avail), I put down my trusty pen. But, patterning the letter by one I had written long ago, I finally succeeded in arranging a few select words to form the necessary sentences.

My next class was Spanish and upon entering the room I was greeted by a hail storm of foreign words. I didn't like it one bit so I tackled (yes—football style) my way right out of the door! My pride was extremely crushed until I was informed that the hurricane of words meant merely "Good morning and how are you". I persuaded my pride to give my mentality another chance.

Later I hopefully strolled into my Etiquette class only to find that Emily Post didn't approve of strolling and that I should walk briskly.

At last I came to that health-building (or tearing down as the case may be) class, known as Physical Education. I about faced and left abouted and right dressed until I could dress right when the time came to clothe myself.

But really, though, I love my classes. They seem to whiz by (especially those I sleep through). Natch, the reason for this sudden love of studies is not due to the fact that a boy sits four seats to the left of me and only five rows back of me!

Remedy For Coughs, Sneezes Found In College Infirmary

If ever you have an ache in your big toe, spots before your eyes, or some strange, foreign malady; there is but one place to go—the infirmary. Take it from me. I know. This one has had it!

Feebly, I stumbled down the infirmary steps and sat down in one of the chairs while awaiting my turn. Every now and then, I'd shift to another chair nearer the nurse's office. With a glassy stare, I looked over the dozen other waiting girls who were looking at me with equally glassy stares.

Susan Jones was miserably sitting there with a box of Kleenex in one hand, cough drops in the other, and a bottle of aspirin tablets in her lap. Susan, bleary-eyed, sniffed a greeting.

Sitting next to Susan was Sally Cedarchest. Sally was suffering from a rare disease that becomes chronic when tests or exams are just around the corner.

Finally, after four shifts, two coughs, and a sneeze it was my turn to enter the nurse's sterilized domain. The penetrating odor of medicine assailed my nostrils (the one I could breathe through.) As I opened my mouth to tell Mrs. Crute my symptoms a thermometer was put in my mouth. Another patient came in while I gurgled quietly to myself.

Surprisingly enough, I had a temperature (about three-fourths of a degree). I was hurriedly dispatched back to my room to get my pajamas, tooth-brush, tooth paste, comb, brush, and of course stationery.

Approved Caller Regulations Deemed Unnecessary by Staff

What do you think of the new regulations that have recently gone into effect? Are you entirely satisfied with them?

We, of the Rotunda staff, are of the opinion that while the new regulations are stiff in some respects, they are more liberal than ever in others. For instance, we like the new study hour. The halls are quiet and the atmosphere is conducive to study for the first time.

We cannot say that we like the idea of approved callers, though. We think we are mature enough to be able to judge for ourselves whom we want to date. At home, most of us are not subjected to this and it seems very infantile that we should have to undergo this type of thing here at S.T.C. We would not mind introducing our friends to our housemothers, but how can we possibly list the names of all the out-of-town boys deemed suitable? The majority of students here are ladies in every sense of the word, and we have proven this. Our parents trust us and we deserve this trust. We can understand the administration's point of view, but is it really necessary to go to such ends?

Other than this particular situation, we think the rules are fine. Our Sunday privileges are all we could ask for and desire. We intend to abide by the regulations set up for us, and we indorse them wholeheartedly as a whole. However, we do believe the approved callers situation could be improved upon—how about you? Do you think this just or unjust?

YWCA Offers Opportunity To Fill Life's Measure

A Latin motto reads, "Life is a measure to be filled, not a cup to be drained." We at S. T. C. are conscious of this fact and are constantly reminded of it by various happenings on campus.

The Y. W. C. A. is one of the most active organizations at S. T. C., and it is traditional for every enrolled student to belong to the Farmville S. T. C. chapter of the national Y. New girls will be impressed during the coming year many times by the stimulating and impressive ceremonies conducted from time to time by our Y.

The purpose of the Y. W. C. A. reads in part: "We unite in the desire to realize a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God." The aim of the Y in college is the development of Christian character in its members, the promotion of the spirit of friendliness among all the students of the college, and the training of leaders for future service.

The Y. W. C. A. offers an opportunity to each and every one of us to "fill the measure of life". Numerous committees of the Association are engaged in useful work on the campus at all times. Every talent can be used in some branch of the Y and it is hoped that every new student on the campus will give serious thought to choosing the committee upon which they would like to work.

But this chance to be an active member of a Christian association is yours now, even before a definite time of choosing arrives. S. T. C. is noted for its spirit of friendliness. See that you contribute to that spirit every day—every hour. Be kind and helpful whenever a chance presents itself. Support the activities of the Y and you will find your every contribution returning to you—in a much fuller quantity.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

According to last week's survey, the transfers seem to like it here; assuming that the Freshmen do too, and confident that the old students are nuts about, (no, Harry, don't put the period behind the nuts this is no place for personal opinions!) We can venture to say that we've taken on that old "one big happy family" atmosphere. At any rate we've settled down and accepted the 3 pet peeves (homework, Saturday classes, and the food) along with all the wonderful things that come with being educated.

"A word to the wise is sufficient" so don't mention the word Minneapolis to certain members of this staff. You might evoke donder and blitzen!

When there's nothing else to talk about, one usually resorts to the weather, or men, or food, or new clothes, or maybe nothing, both in general and in particular. Which all leads around the elbow to the fact that this column is mostly about nothing and sometimes something. If you know anything to go in it let us know, otherwise, this thing will go on and on just as is. In other words, ex nihilo nihil fit!

Everyone has their favorite story about "the little Freshman who said" etc. etc. etc. But the scoop of the week; the delight of ye columnist's heart is forthcoming. As all old students as well as the Freshmen and transfers know we have been giving tests on orientation this week. Thereby hangs our tale. In answer to the question "Who is the patron saint of our college" our prize answer was—you'll never guess. Tucker Winn, no less. Take your bow Tucker you may as well take your place among the saints as to wait till some of your pupils' experiments "gang aglay".

Bed Check

Once more fall is here 'n with fall comes football games 'n you know what that means!

"Chub" Barksdale sho seems to be doing all right for herself these days. We just wonder what Jeff has to say 'bout his roommate's inviting her to Virginia for the game, too.

Janie Fox and Corky are one of the most frequently seen S. T. C. H.-S. combinations 'round the campus these days.

Mary Lawless, Lanie Gill, P. Alley, 'n "Hunky" were among our "old timers" back for a brief stay over the week-end. It really was great seeing them again 'n we hope they'll hurry back again soon!

Tell us, Jane Simpson and June Nichols, how does it feel having not one—but three dates up for the same week-end?

Helen William's Harold, from all descriptions, must be simply "out of this world"! We can't wait to see him.

"Mitty" and "Sonny" make the best looking pair we've seen in ages.

We hear everyone had a mighty big time on the S. T. C.-H.-S. Presbyterian hayride Saturday.

"Ginnie" Walsh 'n Wally, from all we've seen 'n heard are "that way" 'bout each other. More power to them!!!

Still excited over her big weekend at home, is Lela Bouldin, but then who wouldn't be if they had a cute man like hers just a-sitting 'n a-waiting for her.

It couldn't be "Tiny's" getting his discharge soon, that's causing those stars we see in Tilson's eyes these days, could it?

You should've seen the greeting Gwen Cress got from Lawrence Sunday when she went down to meet him in junior parlor. Must be nice!!

Joan Hahn is literally counting the seconds 'til the week-end, 'cause she'll be with her Donald.

The question of the week is—who are those darling boys we've been seeing "Vonnie" and Nancy with so often.

It must be true love with Margaret Dillon 'n S. T. with his coming up 'n everything every weekend.

Julia Booher 'n her man are the most blissful looking twosome we've observed recently.

Jean Watts is still Lynchburg bound each week-end. Can't say we blame her tho, with Bill so eagerly anticipating her arrival.

Some girls have all the luck!—especially Anne Robinson. Daily telephone calls, telegrams 'n best of all—that hunk of man from Duke. Sigh! Sigh!

Have you all noticed Eleanor Withrow's recently acquired diamond? We wish her and Johnnie the best of everything, always.

Charlotte Flougher and Doug are one of our "old couples" still seen together as often as ever.

We've noticed Louise Bergman with a certain Hampden-Sydney boy, quite a bit these days. Craddock sho is cute, Louise.

Looking forward to a big week-end in Richmond is Caroline Calhoun. Wouldn't we all love to go along?

Esther Goffinger and Leonard Maxey are still seen together constantly around these parts.

Have fun at all the football games till it's time to read Bedcheck again.

Omnibus

Westminister Fellowship held a combined hayride and picnic Saturday afternoon. The affair was held at Logwood, and Mr. Roberts, Presbyterian pastor, and Miss Carolyn Eason accompanied the group.

Tryouts for the fall production of the combined Hampden-Sydney, S. T. C. dramatic clubs are underway. The cast and title of the play will be announced at a later date.

S. T. C.'s choir sang at the Methodist church on Sunday evening. Mr. J. E. Crawley was organist in the absence of the regular church organist.

"Little Spain" Existed Here When Spanish Workshop Met

By JEAN CAKE

Virginia Workshop for Teachers of Spanish. Thus read the little sign under which 30 people studied and played together last summer. Under the direction of Dr. Salvador Mangiafico, the workshop was primarily for the benefit of teachers and future teachers of Spanish and strove to give them the experiences and opportunity for study that a trip to a Spanish speaking country would give them. Among the members of the staff were Miss Eunice Coe, secretary to Dr. Mangiafico; Dr. Mercado, who is in this country as an exchange teacher from Bolivia; Mr. Garcia; from Cuba and Senorita Maria Rosa Ortega y Gasset, a girl from Spain who recently graduated from Sweetbriar College. Among the 17 who participated in the workshop were Margaret Ellett, Eloise Stancell, Betty Bibb, and Betty Davey who were members of S. T. C.'s class of '47. Miss Emily Barksdale acted as registrar for the group and being the only member of the workshop that was allowed to speak a word of English, she was the "go-between" for the group and the administration of the college. The eight Puerto Rican girls who were attending summer school here played an important part in the workshop.

From June 17 to July 15 the Student Building was transformed into a "Little Spain". It was as though a small section of a Spanish or Latin American country had been pasted on the heart of Farmville. All of the familiar pictures were removed from the walls and in their places hung Spanish paintings. The corridor suddenly became an art gallery with Spanish and South American scenes strung from one end to the other. In the lounge the flags of the various Spanish speaking countries had their place near the fireplace and mantel. Also in the lounge were tables offering pamphlets, books, and other literature of special interest to the workshop. The 'Y' room was used as the seminar, and the music room became their classroom. Dr. Mangiafico had his office in the publications room. The room next to the small auditorium was used for pronunciation drills, while in the auditorium itself their programs, shows, and fiestas were held. The men participants were housed on second floor Senior Building, while the women roomed on the first floor.

Perhaps before we go any further we'd better tell you that each participant in the workshop signed a pledge promising to speak only Spanish and not a word of English during their stay. This caused many an amusing incident and even more hard work. The activities of the group were enumerable, both academic and social. Classes were held in the morning followed by seminar in the afternoon. They listened to lectures in Spanish, learned Spanish songs, presented short dramas in Spanish, danced Spanish folk dances, and played Spanish games. Religious services were held each Sunday with prayers and scriptures in Spanish. Each night after supper their song fests were enjoyed by the workshop and observers alike. Everywhere they went the workshop group and their strange and beautiful language attracted much attention. Groups gathered about them to listen to their conversation and hear their songs, or pointed them out on the street and in the stores with awe.

Bound together by their common interest, the group was thoroughly congenial even though they ranged from an 18 year old to a grandmother. The little Girls are reminded about the swimming team and are urged to practice their strokes during recreation swimming periods, according to "Peepsie" Brooks, manager of swimming.

Poor Freshmen Really Are Poor

"Well that's that, I've paid my fees" you remarked to yourself as you left the Treasurer's office, your receipts grasped firmly in your hand. Little did you know then, much have you learned by now!

First to the postoffice—"Have you paid for your box?" "Then do so." Back to the Treasurer's office you go. "What's fifty cents more or less?" you asked yourself gayly—THAT didn't phase you a bit. But just wait there's more, much more to come.

"This schedule is correct. Now be sure to pay your Lab fees in the Treasurer's office before reporting to your classes Friday." "More!" you murmured to yourself in amazement but away you went to secure yet another receipt to add to your rapidly accumulating store.

"That is that" you assured yourself once more. But it wasn't, as you soon discovered.

Hardly was the roll taken in your first class when you found yourself presented with a list of books. Remembering your dwindling funds the prices seemed to read in the hundreds of dollars. In class after class the same process was repeated.

Your first set of classes were over, your first list of books—"You only have to get these now, I'll give you another list for the second semester" seemed to stretch for miles and miles.

"Maybe I can get some of them second-hand" you muttered to yourself. Taking a second look at the list and a mental peek at your pocketbook you decided you

Infirmary

Pleasantly installed in a room, I yawned and prepared to enjoy myself. Suddenly the door opened and Mable Flitter burst protestingly into the room. Nurse Crute put her in bed, told her to be good, and left. Mable had the mumps! Since I had already had them, she was placed in the room with me.

Mable soon told me, and anyone else within a radius of five miles, that she was going to Tech that week-end. Because of mumps, her plans were ruined. Her chance of getting pinned was smashed, slashed, and stymied. How could she tell Horace Cecil, pride of the Tech Christian Temperance Union, that she had mumps? To think this would happen to her at a time like this! Surely no one could or should suffer like this!

I realized then, that my stay in the lower regions (commonly called the infirmary) would hardly be be one of quiet, peaceful solitude. But I was reconciled to my fate.

Mable had been talking steadily for an hour, when I dropped thoughtfully off to sleep. Just as Bilgie (of Smith, Smith, and Bilgewater Insurance gency, ten years hence), was about to propose a clear, uncommonly cheerful voice rang out "Time for your inhalation".

Wonderingly I sat up—would it hurt! A paper bag was creased around my face. Then all became dark. When I opened my eyes, I found I was staring down into a bottle of liquid, from which came steam, smoke, and incence. The object was to breathe in and out (something quite new, I've heard) to stop my coughing. Behind me, Mable was still spouting complaints. Frankly, to my way of thinking, Horace Cecil was one lucky boy that week-end. But oh, pity me! I had been, (figuratively speaking) beaten, trampled, and stamped upon. However, with the first bloom of spring, I was released. With my newly-acquired freedom and blushing nose, I sallied forth eager to tell everyone my experiences while in the infirmary.

grandmother was particularly dear to the group for not only did she have as much pep and energy as the rest of them, but her amazing musical talent made her a valuable pianist.

The members of the workshop were entertained in the homes of Farmville with parties, picnics, and teas. Of course the hosts understood that their guests could not converse with them in English but lively remarks were passed back and forth by mediators. It must have been fascinating to watch these people playing such games as bridge, croquet, tennis, and badminton in Spanish.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

Hello, everyone! Another week has rolled by and everyone should be enjoying at least one sport. Did you pick out at least one sport? Well, if you didn't, you will regret it when those bones start cracking everytime you move.

Come on out and show your interest. Don't get the idea that you have to be an unusually good player, because you don't.

I know some of you will be interested in the recreational swimming. It is a sure way of refreshing yourself after an eventful day of classes. Maybe you don't consider yourself "a fish in water," but you can still come on down and enter into the fun and dabble in the water. Don't forget that swimming test you must pass.

Hocky classes have started so come on out and get in the groove. Don't put off until the next week what you can do this week. Put on your shin guards and enter a hockey class, and ready yourself for the great event that is full of thrills and an occasional spill, all in the game of fun, of course.

Have you been playing tennis? If you haven't, why don't you get in some good games of tennis before the weather becomes too cold.

If you cannot get into any of the games, why don't you go for a walk? Have you tried the streets that lead away from the downtown mob rather than those which take you to the crowded walk of Main Street? These cool autumn afternoons are wonderful for a brisk walk to help you brace up before spending a close evening in your room preparing for those next day's classes. Give your lungs an opportunity to take in pure, fresh air, and your mind a chance to wake up and to relax. Take into account the cool loveliness of these autumn days.

So long for now—but get into the game.

From Astoria, Oregon, comes the news that the price of tuna reached a new all time high of $510 a ton. The price was an increase of $100 a ton over that of a week ago. This will doubtless affect the price of the canned tuna.

Regulations

responsibility placed upon the students by the instructors in the classes missed. For example, if an instructor announces a test for a specific date and the student chooses to "cut" the class at that time, the instructor may deal with her case as he sees fit. The fact that the absence is excused in no way imposes upon the instructor the responsibility to give the student another test unless he personally desires to do so. He may give her a grade of "F" or otherwise penalize her for her absence. It should be emphasized that each instructor is in charge of each class that he teaches and is empowered to handle such situations as he sees fit. Students must realize that "cuts" do not limit their responsibilities as students.

6. Each absence from a class on the two days immediately preceding and the two days immediately following a holiday shall count as two absences on a student's record.

7. Excuses for all women students, for reasons other than medical, must be issued by the Dean of Women. Such excuses for male students must be issued by the Dean of the College.

8. All medical excuses must be issued by the College Physician. (See pages 36 and 37 of the Student Handbook for regulations governing medical excuses.)

9. No instructor shall initial any excuse that is not filled out PROPERLY and COMPLETELY and SIGNED by the proper official.

10. Excuses for medical reasons are not counted against the allotted absences earned for the grade averages described in Nos. 1, 2, and 3 above.

11. Except in cases of illness and emergencies, excuses must be initialed by instructors and submitted to the Registrar's office by the students PRIOR to their absence. If this is not done, such absences will not be excused even if the excuses are later submitted.

12. Excuses for illness or for absence because of emergencies must be submitted as quickly as possible and, in any case, not later than two days following the issuance of absence slips by the Registrar's office as described in No. 15.

13. On alternate Mondays, beginning October 6, the Registrar's office will notify each student of any unexcused absences recorded against her (or him. for the preceding two-week period. If the student believes there is an error in the report, she must investigate the matter and rectify any error by 4:00 p. m. on Wednesday of the same week. No corrections will be permitted after that time.

14. An instructor must not report a student as present on any date unless he or she attends the section of the class in which he or she is enrolled. In other words, attendance in a section cannot be used to remove an absence from another section.

Dr. John W. Melton, of Baton Rouge, La., has been scheduled for the SCA's fall Religiou Emphasis Week, it was announced recently by Lewis Lancaster, SCA president.

Skirts, Sweaters Invade Campus

East side, west side, all around the town, all the girls will notice that the skirts are coming down. Along with the lengthening of skirts came cold weather, so skirt-'n-sweater combinations have again invaded the campus. Perhaps the most prevalent among the Kampus Krowd are the plaids with predominating reds, greens, and black or winter white. Knife pleats, accordian pleats, kick pleats—in short, pleats—seem to be more popular than the straight skirts.

Since certain other favorable factors have, shall I say, been partially removed from view, girls have apparently drawn the conclusion that the only way to get "every man for herself" is to wear very feminine blouses and becoming sweaters with those skirts. A rainbow of colors pass the eye daily in pull-overs and cardigans. The "sloppy joe" of previous years has almost disappeared to be replaced by neater lines.

Seniors Elect Bailey Historian Of June '48 Class

Virginia Bailey, senior from Lawrenceville, was elected historian of the senior class at a meeting recently. She will give the class history at Commencement exercises in May.

Frances Livesay was elected to Students Standards to fill the existing vacancy. Senior chaperones were also named at this time.

Meet the Faculty

One who has endeared himself to all, is Dr. George W. Jeffers. His favorite pastime is talking to people. He plays at golf whenever he can get his feet right (according to one of his close associates). He also admits that he likes tea; a fact that the seminar class will readily verify.

Dr. Jeffers obtained his B.S. and M.A. at Boston University and his doctorate at the University of Toronto. His special field is the study of marine life. Dr. Jeffers is chairman of the Chapel committee, a member of the Rotary Club, a member and former president of the Virginia Academy of Science, and a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Jeffers is vitally interested in improving the standards of the college. He has been called by some people "the squarest person I know". One story that is told on Dr. Jeffers is that of the freshman passing through the biology lab who exclaimed "Look at that old stuffed owl" at which, the story goes Dr. Jeffers stuck his head out the door. Can't claim its true, but that's how the story goes.

"For he's a jolly good fellow" which nobody can deny.

Yonce Announces New Dance Date For Cotillion

The first meeting of the Cotillion Club was held Tuesday night at which time the date for the fall dance was set. The dance, which was previously scheduled for October 18, is to be held in the gymnasium Saturday night, November 1. The date was changed to avoid the conflict with Hampden-Sydney's Homecoming.

Also it was announced that bids will be issued to old students in the near future in order that goats may decorate for the dance could do very well without that "maybe" and set to work. After scanning the bulletin board, roaming the halls and pestering everyone you knew and many you didn't, you acquired, if you were lucky, about four second hand books. That hardly made a dent in your list.

According to Virginia Yonce, president of the club, Pat Patridge has been selected to furnish the music. This band is a local one and has played for college dances in previous years.

Grimly you wrote home—"I am fine but I need money." Now to tackle the bookroom line you had been so carefully avoiding!

With your arms full of books, which should have had gold letters on silver pages, set with diamonds, and perhaps two cents between you and starvation, you repeated again your chant "That's that," and added "I hope!"

Barely had you begun another letter home when your door opened—"Would you like to buy an annual?" After assuring them that you most certainly would you cautiously inquired after the price. "Well-er, would you mind coming back later?"

In rapid succession came the other pleas—"Dues have to be paid by October 1st." "Tickets will be on sale immediately after dinner."

Laying your hand upon the nearest stack of books you grimly vowed never, never to utter that phrase again. For truly it seems that "That is never that."

Rat Caps Presented To Frosh Thursday By Sophomore Class

The Freshman Class, two hundred and fifty strong led by Sophomore big sisters, filed into the recreation hall Thursday at 10:00 P. M. to receive their rat caps.

Class songs heralded their arrival as each big sister accepted a cap to be given the Freshman.

Annette Jones, president of the Sophomore Class, capped her little sister and as other Freshmen knelt to receive their blue and white badges of distinction, declared them all to be "first class Freshmen of Farmville."

Rat caps will be worn every day except Sunday and week ends off campus until 6:00 P. M. from now until Thanksgiving holidays. If the Freshmen lose the class hockey game to the Sophomores, the caps must be worn the remaining weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Library Arranges Freshman Corner

A corner of the S. T. C. library has been especially arranged for the freshman class.

This corner is being used as an aid in parallel reading for the freshmen and new students in the college. In the display are novels, biographies, short story collections, and groups of plays. The books included in the corner shelves were selected with care by the librarians and several members of the English faculty.

The corner enables students to find a specific type of book without searching in the stacks. Several bookshelves and a reading lamp outfit the corner.

Moffatt To Speak In Chapel Program

Dr. Fred T. Moffatt, in Farmville to speak at a special series of meetings at the Baptist church, will speak in chapel tomorrow.

Dr. Moffatt, now a pastor of the First Baptist Church of Frankfort, Kentucky, has recently returned to the United States after visiting his native Scotland and attending the Baptist World Alliance in Copenhagen, Denmark. While in Europe he saw first hand the ravages of the war and the conditions in that continent today.

Dr. Moffatt was born in Dundee, Scotland and came to the United States after being released from a German prison camp by the Armistice, 1918. For a number of years he has been pastor of the First Baptist Church of Frankfort, Kentucky's capital city. This church has a membership of over 2500 members and is one of the leading churches in Kentucky. Dr. Moffatt has been honored by his own denomination in being placed on a number of important boards where he has served with distinction. He is widely known throughout the country. Georgetown College in Kentucky conferred on him the honorary Doctor of Divinity degree several years ago.

A. K. G. tapping ceremonies will also take place on the chapel program tomorrow.

Lemen Presents Art Exhibit At Meeting Of Kappa Delta Pi

At the first meeting of Kappa Delta Pi, an art exhibit was presented by Mrs. Janice Lemen. This past summer Mrs. Lemen was a member of an art colony in Maine. The colony was composed of artists from the fields of teaching, commercial work, and students.

Their day consisted of watercolor work in the mornings and excursions into the neighborhood countryside in the afternoons to find subjects for painting. Mrs. Lemen told of the customs of the people, of their fishing industry, and of the perfect settings of nature for painting. She showed pictures of fishing boats, farm houses and landscapes.

Life in the art colony was very colorful with the costume dances, visits to the theater, and minglings with the local people to ablings with the local people to ablife.

This exhibit is not only one of beautiful work, but with the commentary remarks it provides a most interesting account of the Maine countryside.

Freshman Class Receives Long-Awaited Dreaded Symbols, Blue 'n White Caps

It all started with a simple little announcement in the dining hall. There had been rumors, a few true facts before, but that announcement rally started the whole thing—"Rat-caps will be sold at the table in the hall after lunch and after dinner tonight."

At once, the head of every Freshman was filled with the vague, half remembered remarks of the Sophomores. Rat-caps! Didn't our very greeness, our restricted privileges, our bewildered looks, set us aside as Freshmen enough? Some of us were even being taken for upper-classmen, we had acquired such an air of mistaken assurance. It's all over now—there'll be no doubt about us being Freshmen from now on.

Then there was the bright side of the whole affair, at least, we tried to make it as bright as possible. After all, weren't we supposed to be proud of belonging to the class of '51? The first class to have to pass such rigid examinations to get in, the first class to have four years in the "new" Farmville, that was a distinction, we had been assured. And besides, every other class had been through exactly the same thing. They didn't seem to have suffered too much. If only the Sophomores would refrain from visiting such fiendish glances upon us!

By bed-check, the Freshman dorms were filled with rumors, suppositions, and mostly, apprehension. "My big-sister said - - -" "A sophomore at my table said - - -" "Did you know that we're to be capped Thursday night?" Even a few facts had sifted in among the rest.

We all knew we were to be capped in a few, a very few, days. What we didn't know was what "capping" was to be like. "Is it the beginning of rat-week?" What do we have to do after we get our caps?" Question flew thick and fast.

Before we knew it, we were dressed in white, waiting for our big-sisters to come and get us. They were taking us forth, to what? All we knew was that it was known as "capping". That vague phrase could be, and was, taken to mean almost anything.

Finally we were lined up around the rec, our big-sisters standing behind us. The first Freshman was capped by the President of the Sophomore class. Kneeling, we each received our own caps. An announcement, we scarcely even heard the words of it; a song or so; and then what? "What?", our big-sisters remarked. "Why that is all."

We were stunned, amazed, and filled with happy rejoicing. Why that was nothing a-tall. But wait until next year—we'll scare those Freshmen to death with our fiendish glances, our wild rumors! Just wait!

Artists conception of the proposed State Teachers College Auditorium. Still in the blueprint stage, additional information is unavailable but structure would have seating capacity of well over 1400.

We Look Into The Future

Farmville will not be the same ten years from now or even one year from now. If we need proof of this fact, look at the entrance requirements that were made for the first time this year. The fact that only prospective students who were thought to be able to complete their studies successfully were admitted, other things being considered too, is going to make for a bigger, better STC. In the years to come, Farmville is going to be turning out better teachers and better individuals.

Can you imagine this institution when all the new facilities are erected; the new science building, the new auditorium, and a broadcasting room right on campus? With these new things planned for the near future, the student body will have to rise to new standards. We shall have to settle down to outfitting ourselves as best we can for the work we have to do. There is no place for teachers who are haphazardly prepared. During the war years when the teacher shortage was so acute and even now, almost anyone with little training can become a teacher. But the time is coming when with better pay and more advantages being offered in the profession, the best trained person will get the position.

Virginia needs teachers, but she needs good ones. STC is attempting to meet her needs, but whether we will be able to depend on the students. Our administration and facutly are of the finest, and through these new entrance requirements, we hope to have a fine student body. Let's keep forging ahead for that bigger and better STC which we hope to have in the near future.

NOTICE

When the editorial was written last week on approved caller regulations it was not generally known throughout the student body that a blanket permission, if secured from home and properly endorsed, is acceptable.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

The campus fairly blossomed last week, not with the flowers of the flock for our "wise fools" (oops, one shouldn't translate Sophomore when there are Frosh around,) wouldn't stand for that but with blue and white Rat caps. These glamorous chapeaux are for the purpose of distinguishing the lowly Freshman from the lordly Sophomore, so if she does something peculiar such as coming to the dining hall with her PJ's rolled up under her rain coat, or carries a glass of milk out in her pocket, or perhaps wears a kerchief to class because she overslept and has not had time to finish dressing she just hasn't gotten used to the way we do things around here. By all means do not mistake this poor misguided creature for a wise Sophomore!

Whether the Freshmen are so attached to their Rat caps or vice versa is a debatable question; the following incident may shed some light on it. Strolling leisurely down the hall of a Freshman dorm we encountered a "Rat" who by all visible evidence had just washed her hair. At least that was the conjecture we agreed upon as she was carrying a shampoo bottle, a brush, and a towel. We become nearly convinced of the above mentioned fact until we noticed that upon her head was not only the customary towel but also there was perched neatly and very conspicuously on top of that her RAT CAP. You figure that one out.

"'Round and 'Round and 'Round the Turn Table Goes" and so does the news at S. T. C.

"No Can Do" was Sizie Bowles reply to invitations to V. P. I. and U. of Va. "It's Murder She Says!"

"My Bill" is June Walsh's song, especially this past weekend when Bill visited at home. Ask June if he isn't "The Best Man!"

Annette Jones has been talking about going to R. M. C. this week end for a long, long time. "Life Can Be Beautiful."

Liz Bragg and Betty Nachman are always talking about "My Buddy." Betty's Buddy has been up from Newport News two week ends in a row. "To Each His Own." (Buddy, that is).

Hope and Betty both exclaim "Oh, Johnny" about their beaus at H. S. Who sighs the loudest, Duke or Spindler?

Eve Davis has been singing "No Letter Today" all week. What's wrong with Colin?

"Margie, Margie" it's you! Why else would Kent come up here on Friday and spend the whole week end to see Miss Boswick?

Molly just got back from a week end in Lynchburg. "It's Wonderful" she says. Did she see that man of hers?

It's going to be "Carry Me Back To Ole Virginny" for lots of S. T. C. girls next week end when they hit U. of Va. Just "Ask Anyone Who Knows."

Jackie Bobbitt just "Can't Help Loving That Man." Who could blame her for rushing back Sunday to see him?

Betsy Ward writes that she is thinking about "An Apple Blossom Wedding." What will U. of Va. do without her?

All Mary Miller could say after her big weekend at V. P. I. was "That's For Me!"

Sally Land has "Stars In Her Eyes" with that marvelous invitation to Annapolis this weekend. How's that for a "Sentimental Journey?"

Jean Turner and Pat Paddison are going home to Ashland next weekend. They ought to have fun living "Just Around The Corner" from R. M. C.

When Nock said "There's Going To Be Some Changes Made," She meant it. That blonde hair is tres sharp, Nock. "Everybody's Doing It" now days.

"This is a Lovely Way to Spend an Evening" is what all the girls on the A. A. retreat and on the "Y" retreat had to say about their evening. All agreed to "Why Don't We Do This More Often?"

Was the reason for that black eye that "Gat" had because he and Hilda had been "Feuding, Fussin', and Fighting" or was it because he was in Hilda's words, "My Hero"?

See ya next week gals. Right now it's "Nightie Night," so "Dream, Dream, Dream."

Alumnae News

Many Amusing Incidents Confront Students Teaching

Teaching X300, or Teaching X400, called "Directed Teaching," but better known as Student Teaching, is the one inescapable subject of most S. T. C.'ers. Does the freshman who decides to take a B. S. in Education know what this one subject involves? During her first year she may be innocent of what's in store for her: during her sophomore year she is slightly aware that in the future she'll have to endure student teaching. Then during her junior year she alters herself with a newly acquired dignity, straightens her hose, polishes her "heels" and observes in the classroom.

Then, when the September of her Senior year rolls around, lo, she finds herself a student teacher! Just what happens? She spends the first week observing how the supervisor handles the not-so-little children. Well, it doesn't seem too hard, and the children obey her. Bravely she grits her teeth the first day that she has to take over the class. What does she do when Tommie passes a note? or when Mary Ann has to get water every 5 minutes? She finds she can not refer to any "Problem in Elementary School," or "Child Development," so she tries to smile, takes the note, tells Mary Ann to sit down and establishes the fact that she is boss in that room, for a semester, at least.

Conferences, papers, and grades —the three woes of a Student Teacher! When one looks at the schedule of a Student Teacher one may think that she has an easy schedule—1 hour of teaching and 1 or 2 classes. Do not make this mistake. One has to allow for several conferences each week with the supervisor. Papers each night take a lot of time, especially when one finds telephone numbers or addreses in the upper right hand corner. Only math majors may be sure of averaging the grades correctly. But how is it that the children know that their average for the six weeks is 89.5 when you had it down 88.5?

Some humorous happenings occur in the classrom. For instance the composition for English:

"Roses are red
Violets are blue
If I had a brick
I'd throw it at you."

Then there is the student in junior English who, when asked to make a sentence using the word "insulation," wrote "The insulation of officers will be held Monday night."

Gradually the Student Teacher's knees stop knocking; she smiles and thinks—"Teaching is fun!" Yes, even "Teaching X300 is fun." She gets to know the children and "to know is to love." She looks forward to real teaching.

Tennis Practices Begin This Week

Tennis singles practice will begin this week according to an announcement made by George Anne Lewis, manager of Tennis.

The following girls have already signed up to support their colors:

Betty Burchett, Jane Burchett, George Anne Lewis, Jeane Bentley, Lee Robertson, Jean Babb, Betty Minton, Anne Langbein, Frances Allen, Martha Berry, Emilie Doub, Beanie Dudley, Margy Beane, and Nancye Gillie.

Red and Whites and Green and Whites have both been out in full force for Hockey practice this week. Eight practices are required to make the team. Alice Ann Abernathy is Varsity Hockey manager, and Joyce Webb is General Hockey manager.

Correction

Play Day, sponsored by the Athletic Association of S. T. C. will be held on November 8. The Rotunda published the wrong date last week.

AST Entertains

The Alpha Sigma Tau Sorority entertained with an informal supper Saturday, October 4. The guests of honor were Miss Virginia Bedford, advisor, and Mrs. E. F. Jesse, alumnae representative.

All horseback riders who have had any experience with the different types of horses know that they are not all kind and gentle. Let me warn you beginners that although your mount may appear sweet, never trust him completely or allow your alertness to fade out.

Early one perfect morning a friend and I decided to take a ride and a new road. When I reached home, she told me that she hadn't been able to catch her mare and that she was afraid to try again. This surprised me for I knew that she wasn't afraid of horses although she hadn't ridden for quite some time. I offered to try my hand at the task, regardless of her pleas not to.

On the Ball

Let's look around the sports again and see what will be on schedule for this week. Have you newcomers followed the practices this past week? Shade off those aching muscles if you've followed sports this past week, and take on some new ideas. Have you tried your luck on the tennis courts? If you are not in a tennis class you will find the courts available for use after class hours. This is a brief reminder! If you did not sign up for tennis singles come on out and cheer for that favorite friend or that favorite class color.

No doubt by now all of you have found your way to the hockey field. If you haven't follow the crowd down one afternoon around 3:45, and put on your shin guards and get in one exciting workout, and by next practice you'll be raring to do the same again. If the game is new to you, there will be new thrills and excitement in store for you. When the game time comes, you will be glad you gave up a movie that can wait another day, and decided to add another practice to your score. Perfection in a sport comes through practice, practice, practice!

Have you tried your skill in the ancient art of archery? Take aim and let it go; Who knows, you may hit a bull's eye, if you're brave enough to take a look. Archery is one sport you'll enjoy on campus; something you can take home with you and prove to your kid brother that he isn't the only one who has an eye for archery.

Why don't you give golf a try? You'll be overjoyed to show your dad how you can beat his score on your weekend at home.

Until next week, be a good sport in all sports.

F.T.A. To Promote Higher Standards

Since the college is selecting only those who have the capacity and interest to become teachers, the J. L. Jarman Chapter of the Future Teachers of America has become selective also. Beginning this year, only those students who show unusual promise will be invited to become members of the F. T. A. A limited number of seniors from each curriculum will be invited. They will be selected from a list which their major professors and other instructors nominate. In other words, the Future Teachers in our school are putting a premium on the qualities which are essential in being an excellent teacher.

out to see what I could do. The mare was grazing peaceably several yards from the gate and didn't seem to notice me. Walking slowly toward her, I noticed that she raised her head slightly and backed her ears. This warned me of the bad humor she was in, but I kept walking. Suddenly her head shot up and her gleaming white teeth showed like vicious fangs. I stopped dead in my tracks. She reared up, gave a snort and charged toward me like an angry lion. I threw up my hands and shouted causing her to wheel around just in time. At that moment she gave a death-drolling kick which missed my head by inches. I stumbled backward but managed to regain my footing just as she turned for another charge. Running for all I was worth, I fell over the fence just as she kicked again. Fortunately the fence only lost a few palings, instead of my mouth losing a few teeth.

SIGN-OFF

I (name of rat) from (name of home town) am a seditious, sciolistic freshman and seem to sense that the sensationally sagacious sophomores surpass us scholastically and socially, for standard statistics state sophomores stand stable, steadfast, and staunch since stratosphere started. Such singular stamina surely speaks splendid sucess secured, showing sufficient, even superfluous signs of success. Sophomores should really sever all connections with the silly, shallow freshmen, since they are scrapping in a sclemachy. PRAISE '50.

He will also take part in the panel discussion on "How The Offerings Of The School System May Be Improved". Dr. Johnson will preside at the meeting of the Audio-Visual section on Friday, October 17.

On Thursday, October 16, Governor and Mrs. William M. Tuck will give a reception for the school teachers and administrators of Virginia. Speakers at the meetings will include Mr. Virginius Dabney, Editor of The Richmond Times Dispatch and Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, Editor of The Richmond News Leader.

Tickets for each play are $1.20. Tickets will be sold at the table in the hall at various announced times. S. T. C. has been limited to 197 seats for each production; therefore, students are urged to buy now so that good seats can be obtained.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Taps Five In Chapel Recognition Program

Dean Announces H-S Dance Rules

Dean Martha Smith Smith has announced the regulations set-up for STC students attending dances at Hampden-Sydney.

All S. T. C. students, whether living in a dormitory or elsewhere are expected to abide by S. T. C. regulations concerning Hampden-Sydney dances. The fact that an S. T. C. student is spending the night in her own or another's home in Farmville or Hampden-Sydney does not exempt her from abiding by the regulations.

Regulations governing each dance are agreed upon, in advance, by Dean Smith and Mr. Bittinger. They will be outlined by Dean Smith in the Dean's Parlor immediately after dinner the night of the dance. It is imperative that every student be present whose name is on the chaperone's list.

1. Dormitory students will leave the dormitories at approximately the same hour and all students will arrive at Hampden-Sydney at the hour set for the dance to start. They will report to their chaperone and check their names on her list. Upon leaving the dance to return to the dormitory, they will check again their names. Unless illness prevents, they are expected to remain until the close of the dance; but, irrespective of the hour, they are required to place a second check by their names before leaving the dance.

2. No S. T. C. students may go to a fraternity house at any time except during the intermission of a dance and only then at those dances to which Mr. Bittinger, acting for H.-S., has invited them through Dean Smith. When invitations to fraternity houses have been extended, Dean Smith will advise S. T. C. students at the meeting held in the Dean's Parlor before the dance. Any infraction of this rule will result in blacklisting the man and the fraternity house. The Student Government will recommend to Dr. Lancaster the punishment for the girl.

MARY HELMER

Helmer Elected V.I.P.A. Officer

Mary Helmer, senior from Newport News and editor-in-chief of the Rotunda, was elected vice-president of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association at a meeting held at the University of Richmond October 10 and 11.

Pat Striplin of Hampden-Sydney was elected president, and Martha Carter of Lynchburg College was elected secretary-treasurer. B. Dick Coombs of Lynchburg was elected chairman of the the planning committee.

Newspapers, annuals, and magazines of the colleges throughout the state were judged for makeup and content. William and Mary's "Colonial Echo" scored a first in the year book competition with VMI's "The Bomb" winning second place. In the newspaper division, Mary Baldwin's "Campus Comments" won a first with VPI's "Virginia Tech" placing second. "The Royalist" of William and Mary took first place in the magazine section, and Virginia Tech's "Virginia Tech Engineer" won second place.

Awards to the winning publications were made by Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond News Leader and the principal speaker at the closing session of the two day conference which attracted some 60 campus newspaper, magazine, and year book workers from colleges in Virginia.

Other representatives from STC were Betty Spindler of Blackstone and Puckett Asher of Newport News.

The next meeting of the convention will be held at Lynchburg College in the Spring.

Movie News Added To Reading Room

S. T. C.'s college library has further equipped its pleasure reading department with a section for the latest movie reviews and criticisms.

Just inside the main door enroute to the reserve books room are two tables laden with the latest movie reviews, books, and plays from which some of the best known pictures have been adapted. Also on this table are found the weekly theater calendars from the local movie houses.

According to the librarian, these materials will be changed as soon as the latest information becomes available.

Correction

Alberto Casella is the author of "Death Takes A Holiday" rather than Oscar Wilde as was stated in last week's Rotunda. Casella is an Italian writer whose play was rewritten for the American Stage by Walter Ferris.

Upperclassmen Bid As New Members

Five S. T. C. students were tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, in chapel last Thursday morning.

Those who were tapped are Hilda Abernathy, senior from Cochran; Jane Burchett, senior from Suffolk; Bebe Geyer, senior from Chatham; Laura Jean Comerford, junior from Meadowview; and Violet Ritchie, junior from Alberta.

Hilda is business manager of the Virginian and a member of Beore Eh Thorn, she is also president of Pi Gamma Mu and a member of Kappa Delta Pi and member of the College Choir. Jane Burchett is president of the Athletic Association, a member of Orchesis and the Monogram Club and is also active in class activities. Bebe Geyer has served as stunt chairman of her class for the annual circus for two years, and has been active in the work of her class. Laura Jean Comerford is secretary of the YWCA, and a member of the College Choir. Violet Ritchie is president of the Junior class and a member of the YWCA Cabinet.

Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary society for leadership, was organized in 1928. It represents the merging of local societies which had been founded in order to bring together groups of representative students and faculty members, whose purpose was to foster high idcals and standards of leadership. Alpha Delta Rho, organized in 1935, became the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma and was one of the charter members of the organization.

Officers of the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma are Jean Bentley, president; Nancy Chambers, vice-president; Peepsie Brooks, secretary, and Tucker Winn, treasurer.

STC To Take Part In Civic Program

Of all the civic undertakings ever to take place in the town of Farmville, the Southside Salute, next Thursday, October 16th, seems destined to be the most eventful. Many commercial institutions of Southside Virginia will be represented either with personalities, floats representing commerce and community or military and civic organizations. Persons from all over the commonwealth and the surrounding states will be here as guests and the largest continuous non-military parade ever to appear in Farmville will get underway at 1 p. m.

In the parade alone will be 55 floats and exhibits contributed by various civic and commercial organizations of the area; the official United States Marine Corps Band and the seventy piece Randolph-Henry Band will march and play. Units of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Shriners, Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, representatives from high schools in Southside Virginia and students from Hampden-Sydney and State Teachers colleges will attend. The Acca Tempie Band of Richmond is expected to participate as well as high school bands from the various communities. Out of town judges for the float contest will come from Danville, Fredericksburg, Tappahannock, Lynchburg and Powhatan. Another contributor to the day will be the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club under the direction of T. E. Crawley.

New French Girl on Campus Tells of Life In Native Land

Laurette Veza, of Lyons, France, new French assistant at S. T. C., is not impressed by the bustle and grandeur of New York, which is compared to that of London and Paris, but by the friendliness and peaceful atmosphere of Farmville, and the trees of America.

Laurette has majored in English at Lyons University and at the Sorbonne in Paris. She decided to come to S. T. C. when one of her professors at Lyons, with whom Miss Draper has corresponded, told her of the vacancy left by Annette Vincent-Viry, who is now at the University of Wisconsin.

From Le Havre, Laurette embarked on the SS "Marine Jumper." Aboard ship she shared a cabin with twelve other girls, most of them had crossed before, nevertheless they became seasick, but she, on her first ocean voyage, felt no ill effects whatever. Of the eleven days it took to cross, only one was rough. The ship docked on September 22 at New York.

Because an error had been made in her passport Laurette was forced to remain on Ellis Island for two days, until a hearing cleared the matter. She then proceeded here by train. Her welcome at the college made her feel at home at once; she enjoys the absence of talk about another war and about the "hard time" people are having to make ends meet; to quote her, "It is so refreshing to be in this quiet place. And the trees in this country—big trees, old trees, so many of them; I've never seen anything like them in France."

Laurette will, in addition to her work at the college, give private lessons in French, Italian, or Latin.

Naturally she was asked to tell us about the latest fashions. She says that long hair, either upswept or brushed down, is in vogue. Dresses for daytime are still the tailored suit or simple dress—with the hemline reminiscent of 1900, the shoulders rounded, waist tiny, and hipline accented. Pearls and costume jewelry are fashionable. Nylons are to be found only in the black market, along with many other scarce items, but silk stockings are available. Shoes have turned from the wartime wooden soles to leather or "crepe" soles, but no new styles are appearing. Lingerie for daily use is rayon; silk goes into daintier apparel.

In answer to questions about the food situation, Laurette said that only about 200 grams (six slices) of bread a day are allowed each person under present rationing laws. Butter, potatoes, meat, almost everything except wine is scarce.

The Food Situation

The students here at college have been complaining a long time about the food; now here are the facts.

A regular glass washer has been procured and will be installed immediately. This will do away with lipstick on the glasses and give them a cleaner look. According to Mrs. Hammond, our dietitian, glasses have always been sterilized but because they were not dried, they appeared cloudy.

Now to the facts about the food at S.T. C. Mrs. Hammond may not spend over 53 cents per student per day. (When we consider this she manages to give us three meals a day at a price that can be duplicated in very few places.)

Mrs. Hammond has told The Rotunda staff that she buys approximately 647 pounds of chicken, 200 pounds of pork, and approximately 260 pounds of steak when planning a meal for us students that includes any of these items. She stated that all milk served in the dining hall is pasteurized and homegenized, and that we use approximately 80 gallons per day at 63 cents a gallon. She said that the rumor that the eggs in the dining hall are powdered is not true and that she uses 50 dozen eggs strictly fresh from a nearby farm. S. T. C. students are served very few canned vegetables.

We of the staff think that we are served as good three meals a day as can be found anywhere for 53 cents. It is only natural to complain about the food when we know few facts. However, instead of "griping" among ourselves we should either tell Mrs. Hammond or write our "gripe" to this paper. We have the assurance that constructive action will be taken regarding all legitimate complaints.

This Is Your Paper

To the list of things to Americans belong such things as the World Series that has just attracted the attention of millions, fashions nobody wants and everybody wears (which not only goes for womens' long skirts but also for the stiff collars and tjes that men have hated for years and never done much about), and the setting aside weeks for observing various things. Last week was Fire Prevention Week, but we wish now to turn back to National Newspaper Observance Week which has just passed and bring it right down to our campus.

We, of the staff, are proud of The Rotunda, are you? We are not attributing our pride to the fact that we spend a great deal of our time and energy on it so that it is merely a product of our handiwork. The Rotunda has as its purpose the accurate recording of the activities on the campus, the views of the students on school affairs and news of general interest to all who read it weekly. If we can accomplish this in an attractive manner through the best writing we can secure, the most pleasing arrangement we can make with conformance to journalistic principles, and a number of cuts each week then we feel that we have brought a good paper off the press for you.

In order to have sympathy or appreciation for a thing it is necessary that one know something about the basic principles or the practices employed in its make-up; therefore, we wish to take time here to tell you about the working of the staff so that through your understanding we may secure your cooperation. There are two main divisions of the staff, the business staff and the editorial staff. The names denote their work so there is no need for elaborating. All news data are collected before Friday night if at all possible, for Friday is the deadline for material. Saturday the material is typed in order that it may be taken to the printers on Monday. Tuesday afternoon the proofs come back and we set to work making corrections, measuring, making up the "dummy" and writing headlines. Wednesday afternoon eleven hundred copies come off the press and the circulation staff sees to it that your copy is in the dining hall for you that night.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1947

Puddin' 'n Sauce

The paper must go to press as surely as the mail must go through; therefore, press conference, Rat Week, and all the other pleasures of this carefree existence to the contrary not withstanding, we must get this column written on time.

We know you're dying to hear all about our trip to Richmond to the V. I. P. A. convention last weekend; that is, we're dying to tell you about it—same difference. We had a very successful as well as a very pleasant time, and came home with a fair share of the laurels. To give credit where is due, our good neighbors (who else but the men from The Hill?) did a sporting cooperation job. By the way the prize story of the whole series of meetings is on Mary (somebody hide the blue pencil, please). In voicing a protest against some measure she hotly announced; "I'm only six miles from Hampden-Sydney and I don't know why". Wonder why the group from Tech got such a large charge out of that?

Press your best bibs an tuckers girls in anticipation of next month's Lyceum. Mac Morgan the star of City Service Hour, that man with the voice "you love to touch", is coming for a concert. Anyone who has the notion that Lyceums are for "Long-hairs" and "brains" can put said notion out of her feeble, frivolous grey matter. 'Taint so.

So long till the chef finds her recipe for tipsy pudding again; in the meantime, stay on the gravy train.

Bed Check

Well, here we are again. Bet you didn't know we were hiding under the chairs in the "rec", and Junior and Senior parlors.

It seems that Mary Jane Kelly and Lou Bergman had a fine time at the Virginia-Harvard game this week-end. Can't blame you all for being so excited. We think H. H. Caldwell and Sam are cute, too.

June Cregar seemed to be in her seventh heaven this week end. Could it be because her man from N. B. C. was here to see her?

We didn't see much of Betty Ree at S. T. C. this week end. Seems that her time was taken up by a certain Bill from V. P. I.

One of our former students, Ruth Brite has been added to our list of third finger left hand girls. Best of luck Ruth.

The question of the week! How does Jane Taylor like Blind Dates?

Mary Tolis W. had quite a time at W & L this week-end. Who wouldn't love breezing around in a '47 cream colored convertible?

Who was that cute W.&L. boy Nancy Rushing was with this week-end? Tell us more about it, Nancy.

From all we hear about Jack, Jo Ann, he must be quite the stuff! You all must have had a grand time this week-end at the football game.

Sara Green is Richmond bound every week-end. We can well see why if Tommy is as cute as we are told.

Eva and Creeper are still seen together a lot. They seem to be "that way" about each other.

Peanut Harrel was all aglow Sunday night. We think that KA pin is pretty much all right, too.

C. T. appears to be the reason Joan Driver is walking around in a dream these days.

What about Irvine's walking nine miles to see Spindler? All we can say is it must be love.

Puckett Asher is still thinking of Johnny. When do we get to see him again, huh?

Martha Frances and Winnie certainly enjoyed their ride with Fred. Did you say he was bashful?

Aber and C. B. make a one cute couple. Bring him around more often, Alice Ann.

Barbara Andrews, just what did you hear recently that was so funny? By the way, George must mean more than you claim if all those rat letters mean anything.

Nancy Litz had a most eventful week-end at home. See her for the details.

If East as East and West is Bridges, why doesn't somebody get that twain on the twack?

From all we hear Nock made quite an impression on that bus ride back last Sunday night.

Girls, I am not one to gossip but—if I see or hear anything lookout for next week's bed check!

Alumni News

The Norfolk Alumnae Chapter had its first luncheon meeting recently at the Essex House, Virginia Beach, with Margaret Harrell as hostess. Despite football competition, twenty-seven were present. Catherine Riddle, an exchange teacher from Norfolk talked to the group on her teaching experiences last year in the schools of Honolulu, Hawaii. Marshall Greathead was chosen to represent the Norfolk Chapter at the Alumnae Council, held at State Teachers College, October 24 and 25. They also decided to have a tea for the present Norfolk State Teachers College students during the Christmas holidays. This chapter has a monthly luncheon meeting in the city during the winter months, and at the beach at other times.

Of the more than 60 metals known today only about seven were known by the ancients.

Short Story Contest

Gallop Pole

"What legitimate complaint do you have against the food, considering the fact that the dietition has only 53 cents a day to spend on each student?"

Dolores Duncan: There isn't enough for ten people. We have that much at home for four people.

Annette Jones: It isn't enough!

Kitty Carmichael: I think its pretty good, but not enough without eating outside.

Jesse Overby: Too much bread and not enough vegetables.

Charlotte Newell: I think she's doing good for what she's got to work with.

Hazel Lewis: I think the state ought to allow us more for food.

Ann Nichols: The selection is very good, but what happens to the food before it gets to us is the trouble.

Lou Shelor: I think we need a little more variety and a little more food on the table.

Dorothy Gunn: I don't think they have a very good system. At Mary Washington they have cafeteria style breakfast which is very nice.

Mary Lou Woodward: It's not enough!

Virginia Walsh: This is not about the food, but I don't think we ought to stand before the blessing.

hirley Clark: Why not have a meal ticket system as they do at William and Mary.

Cera Dickerson: There are too many starches.

Jeanne Dunn: It's not the food, it's the way it's prepared.

Jackie Robins: I think the state should allow us more money so that we could have well balanced meals.

Jane Gray: The preparation of food is very important and I think the diettition should be allowed better help in order to do this.

STC Lassies Attend VIPA Meet To Bring Back New Suggestions

"We love a convention!" Them's the sentiments of our Rotunda executives, namely Mary Helmer, Betty Spindler, and Puckett Asher.

Last Friday morning these three lasses gaily set out for the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association convention at the University of Richmond. Now as they reminisce, it grieves them to think of how they almost didn't arrive. It seems that Betty Spindler had been entrusted to bring the bus tickets; as the zero hour approached, there were Mary and Puckett seated on the bus and rarin' to go, BUT as yet ticketless. Minutes crept by, and still no Spindler! Just as the driver had decided to chuck them off and wend his merry way to Richmond, Spindler charged in, the precious tickets clutched in her clammy paw. (It's rumored that the blame for this near disaster may be laid on a certain unreasonable regulation whereby one is required to have her class excuse signed before she leaves school.)

Bright and early next day our trio hailed a cab, and asked to be delivered at the U. of Richmond. This must have been a particularly green cabby, because he got lost a couple of times before the stately towers of the university loomed in sight; and then to put the whipped cream on the sundae, he dropped them off at the boys dorm instead of Keller Hall as he had been directed. This was not quite the place for three proper young ladies. But with the aid of Asher-the-Resourceful they succeeded in thumbing a ride over to Keller.

Once there, Mary, Betty, and Puckett were joined by the Hampden-Sydney brigade, and together they trotted around to the meetings. There they discussed journalistic problems, listened to speakers, presented awards for yearbooks and papers, elected officers, and planned the spring convention, which will be in Lynchburg. Of all the meetings and lectures they attended, our delegates seemed most hepped up over Dr. Freeman's talk.

When we approached these newswomen on the question of their main accomplishments at the convention, we received a dual reply: first, according to editor, Helmer, "We succeeded in reviving the V.I.P.A. and in ironing out some problems that confront most college papers"; and second, out of the mouth of Spindler, "We buried the traditional S. T. C.-H.-S.C. hatchet."

Can you believe that three femmes could succeed in one short week-end where a whole school full of them have failed for half a century?

Monogram Club Bids 5 Students

Five students have been issued bids to the Monogram Club. They are Julia Booher, senior, Peepsie Brooks, senior, Jo Anne Sterling, junior, Jessie Pickett, junior, and Bebe Geyer, senior.

These girls will be initiated in the near future. Officers of the Monogram Club are Alice Ann Abernathy, president, and Jeane Bentley, secretary-treasurer.

Notice

Friday, October 17, is the date of the first rounds in the annual S. T. C. tennis tournament, according to an announcement by George Anne Lewis, tennis manager.

The varsity hockey team will be chosen tomorrow afternoon. Girls desiring to be on this team are supposed to have had eight practices.

Jamboree

Frank Beer; "St. Louis Blues", Phil Franck; "I'm a Ding Dong Daddy," Mrs. Joan Midyette, and other features all fitted in to make up a program of real fun.

Also J. F. Blair with his eight end-men, and I. F. Grigg's sermon and congregation alone are said to be well worth the price of admission.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

All over the country this is football weather, while on campus it is definitely hockey season. Of course, we can't play football but we can surely create a lot of excitement from watching a forward line charge down the field heading for a goal. Won't you help support your team and come out for an afternoon's scrimmage? You will enjoy it. If the game is new to you, there will be new thrills and excitement in store for you. The inter-class games will bring you to the edge of your seats, but if you have gotten in your eight practices, who knows, you may score that goal.

The tennis form has been made out and matches are to be played this week. Those who failed to sign up will find time to come and be in the cheering section you know. Some color cup points are given to the winning class in this sport. Who knows, you may be just the one to walk with the honors.

Have you tried a hike into the country? If you have never found any particular interest in this quiet activity, won't you take along a friend and enjoy the country air. This is one sure way to do a lot of clear thinking in clear air, rather than chatting in a smoke filled room or over a bridge table. These cool afternoons are made for walking—take a brisk walk some afternonon after classes, and lesosns are behind you.

Some other activities you will enjoy are: archery, golf, and swimming. When you play tennis be sure to wear tennis shoes. Have sure to wear tennis shoes. Have you given golf a try? No doubt if you try hard enough your score won't be merely beginners luck, but just good shooting; therefore, make up for lost time and try to make golf one of your many favorite sports here on campus.

Dance Rules

3. Any S. T. C. student who leaves the dance without permission will be reported to Student Government. Written permissions from parents are necessary before a student may go home or anywhere else after a dance.

4. Any S. T. C. students leaving the dance hall to walk around the H.-S. campus will be reported to Student Government. They are expected to remain in the dance hall except at intermission. Dean Smith will advise them before each dance what entertainment has been planned for intermission—but strolling on the campus at night is not permitted at any time.

All Colors Seen In Newest Scarfs

Scarfs! Scarfs! Yes, this is what every college girl is now wearing. With suits, dresses, skirts and sweaters, scarfs are all the go, for young and old alike.

You can buy them in many colorful designs, with any figure you could possibly want. The materials for these lovely scarfs are usually of silk, cotton, or a thin sheer material.

The ones which are for the neck pieces are sheer, so as to fit nice and not look bulky.

One of the most beautiful color contrast of the scarf are the two-tone shades like dark blue and pale blue. Fuschia and turquoise are very popular colors and are being used by many of the College Girls.

The S. T. C. girls are now finding them very useful by wearing them around the neck of a sweater with a ring holding it together and swinging down in front.

On Sunday and other important occasions you will find at the neck of every well dressed girl who is wearing a suit a scarf caught with a fancy sterling pin. This is very attractive and adds much to the looks of a well groomed person.

The scarf is also being worn with dresses with one side dropped over the shoulder and caught with a pretty ornament.

"The House of Quality"

Meet the Faculty

Miss Florence H. Stubbs, our sociology professor, hails from Bennettsville, S. C. a fact of which she is reportedly very proud.

Besides the B. S. and M. A. degrees which Mis Stubbs earned at Peabody College in Nashville, she has done post-grad work at the U. of Chicago.

It was in the one-room country schools of her home state that Miss Stubbs began her teaching career. Not long after that she found herself principal of the first consolidated rural high school in South Carolina. The next rung of the Stubbs ladder brought her to us at S. T. C. in 1917 as head of the Rural Education Department, which has since been eliminated.

If you'll stop and look around, it won't be hard to find evidence of Miss Stubb's many contributions to our school. A little known fact is that the school Founders' Day grew out of a project in one of her sociology classes of more years ago than we care to count. Our own Miss Stubbs helped found the national leadership fraternity, Alpha Kappa Gamma, and she aided in the establishment of various circles of the organization.

In 1936 Miss Stubbs was elected first woman president of the Virginia Social Science Association of which she's a charter member. The Elementary Course of Study Committee of Virginia counted Miss Stubbs among its members, and for a period she served as director of the Journal of Rural Education. Some other of Miss Stubbs' interests along the sociological line are school improvement associations, P. T. A.'s and the Planned Parenthood Committee of Virginia.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch, in 1938, recognized Miss Stubbs as one of the twelve "Leaders of Virginia" in its first Annual Honor Roll. Her course, The Negro, was cited as a "a model type of instruction in the field of interracial relations." This course remains one of the most popular in any curriculum.

Miss Stubbs tells us that some of her favorite extra-curricular activities are nature study and gardening. From other sources we have been reminded that "motoring" is also paramount among her diversions.

Library Exhibits Mementos of War

Exhibits of war mementos are now being featured in the library. There are sketches made by Dr. Graziani on Okinawa, numerous souvenirs brought back from both the Pacific and Atlantic theaters of war, and a grass skirt from the Solomon Islands may even be viewed. Also on display are some samples of American propaganda leaflets dropped over Attu and Kisha by American airmen, a scrapbook collection of cartoons and clippings from German newspapers and a number of pictures and maps of a German prison camp. These were contributed by T. W. Brooks Jr. of Farmville, who was a German prisoner of war from March 1944 until April 1945.

On another table there may be seen an exhibit for the Barter Theater production, "Twelfth Night." Interesting magazine articles about the Barter Theater by Robert Porterfield are on this table as well as some magazine articles and pictures of the 1940 production of "Twelfth Night" on Broadway which starred Helen Hayes. "Twelfth Night" is the ing given in the S. T. C. auditorium tonight by the Barter State Theater of Virginia.

The exhibit also includes information about other plays in the Barter repertoire, among them "The Hasty Heart" and the "Importance of Being Earnest."

Attend Annual Circus

The circus is coming to town, yes, the AKG circus will open Saturday night when the big top is raised at eight o'clock. The presentation of the circus offers an opportunity for each class and the school as a whole to show their talents. It also presents a real opportunity for that school spirit which we hear so much about.

If we are not a participant in circus, we can make it just as much of a success by being a good spectator. Circus has always been something that the entire student body enjoyed. We sincerely hope that the students are going to make this one more successful than all the others. If your class does not win the circus stunt, remember that the judging was impartial and that you will have other opportunities. The members of AKG, the students, faculty and administration have all worked hard to make this a memorable occasion.

Circus is just as much a part of school activities as anything else on campus. If you think it important to win a game or present a good play, it is equally important to have a good circus. People from many parts of the state will be present to witness this event, and the impression we make then is one which they will carry home with them. This is something to remember.

Congratulations, Freshmen

Last Tuesday and Wednesday S.T.C.'s graduating class of '51 became a real part of our college family for those two days witnessed the annual Rat Days on our campus.

Finding themselves in many awkward and embarassing situations, the spirited freshmen arose to the occasion and proved themselves to be a sporting class group. Each year the combined upperclassmen and faculty await Rat Day eagerly—to see just what the new class "has" as its make-up in general. This present freshman class showed an indomitable spirit spiced with good will during the two-day period.

The members of the class of '51 proved their abilities for being good sports by accepting the many and varied tasks given to them by the sophomore class. Now S. T. C. awaits the class' contributions to the school. A new group of girls adds zest and enthusiasm to the student body. The new class will begin soon to take their places in the activities of the school. This has already begun in the field of sports with a large number of freshmen coming out for hockey.

The members of the other classes are proud of the freshmen.

Rev. Roberts Given Honor

The Rev. Philip A. Roberts, pastor of the Farmville Presbyterian church was awarded the citizenship trophy for outstanding civic work during the past year. Among the many varied activities in which Mr. Roberts took an active part were the Boy Scouts, which he served as councilman for the Piedmont Council and assisted in organizing troops; chairman of the Farmville Red Cross chapter; Farmville director of the Synod's campaign to raise $500,000 for Hampden-Sydney College; director of the Pioneer Group, Presbyterian Young People's camp at Holliday Lake; president of Farmville Rotary club, member of the Rotary softball team, leader of District H, of Virginia Rotary Clubs; a member of the Farmville Junior Recreation Council, and editor of the West Hanover Presbyterian (quarterly).

The citation of the secret committee which made the selection from a number of nominations read:

The selection of the most outstanding citizen of a community is not an easy task. This is especially true when the various communities are blessed with both men and women who are able. The decision in this case was based on varied efforts during the year 1946-47 beyond the line of duty. The chief concern of this citizen was for students and young people. The success of his labors was due primarily to the spirit that directed them,—a spirit characterized by unselfishness, humility, enthusiasm and devotion to all the people of the community. His spirituality, high ideals and sterling character have made him a benediction to our people. He has worked unceasingly for the moral, spiritual and physical welfare of all. He has given without stint of his time and talents to all good works and this area is the richer and better for his presence in our midst. The Business and Professional Woman's Club is honoring itself and all of us in presenting this award to the Rev. Philip A. Roberts.

VIPA Convention Results

1) Voted that officers for the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association should consist of a President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, Convention Planning Board Chairman, until the spirng convention at Lynchburg.

2) Decided that the Association should meet twice a year.

3) Accepted an invitation from Lynchburg College to hold the spring convention there.

Decided that number of delegates over and above one for each school publication should be determined by the host school. It was brought out that many school publication staffs would like to bring several underclassman writers to workshops but that almost universal limitation of facilities for housing and boarding placed a restriction on the number of delegates, which should be decided by the host school.

5) Decided that each school should have one vote in regular business sessions at future convention.

6) Agreed that if at all possible, the officers of Secretary-Treasurer and Planning Board Chairman should come from different schools.

7) Appointed a Constitution Board composed of representative from University of Richmond, Mary Baldwin, William and Mary, Hampden-Sydney, Randolph-Macon Woman's College and Lynchburg College, who should, by the spring convention date, draw up a constitution to be presented for approval by the Association.

8) Elected new officers for the coming term as follows: Pat Striplin, Hampden-Sydney, President; Mary Helmer, Farmville STC, Vice-President; Matrha Carter, Lynchburg College, Secretary-Treasurer; and B. D. Coombs, Lynchburg College, Chairman of the Convention Planning Board.

Bed Check

The dances this week-end proved to be most exciting to say the least. Everyone had quite a marvelous time judging from all glowing reports.

Betty Ferguson was seen driving around town in a luscious black convertible. Sho' was pretty.

Talking about cars in general, just ask Hillda Abernathy and Jeanne Tolly about their experiences trying to keep the door closed on the "dream" (or should it be called "nightmare") they were driving in to the W. & L.—Va. game. Jeanne, is your arm still in one piece?

"Monkey" Monk and B. J. Spencer thought they weren't ever going to make it to the dance Friday night. For the "gruesome" details see them.

Bob is mighty cute, Anne Lynch. Those Tazewell boys!

Is Claude your O. A. O., Molly? He's really beating a path between Lynchburg and here.

The dazzling ring on "Peanut" Harrell's third finger left hand almost matches the starry look in her eyes. The ring is really a beauty!

Another familiar twosome from last year was seen back on campus—Ben Lake and Connie. Good to have you back again, Connie.

Congratulations and the best go to Betty Spindler. That PiKA pin is really sumpin' and so is Johnny Irvin.

Laura Jean Comerford gets a far-away look in her eyes everytime anyone mentions Va. Tech. Wonder why? Maybe Dick is responsible.

Alice Ann Abernathy was another gal that got herself pinned this week-end. It's a beautiful pin, Aber.

June Robertson's sparkler on third finger left hand is simply out of the world—so is her man.

Our own Marjorie Boswick has been elected sweetheart of the Theta Chi fraternity chapter at Hampden-Sydney. We are as thrilled as you are, Marge.

Pat Davis made quite a hit this summer at H.-S. finals. Ask her about that letter she received Tuesday.

Betty Renn goes home every week-end to see that man of hers. This could develop into something serious.

Lorraine's Dick must really be quite a boy for she goes home or to Charlottesville nearly every week-end. When do we get to see him again?

Well, as the clock is striking the hour when all little girls should be ready to jump in bed, the ole bedchecker bids you au revoir until next week.

Circus Clown

Frosh Reach End of Ratting Exhausted, Hoarse, Yet Happy

Scared? You bet we were! To put it mildly we were scared stiff! We showed it, too. Our faces were almost the same shade as were the sophomores" when they "walked" on us. And they used powder, chalk, or what-have-you to create the effect. We didn't! We didn't have to.

After seeing the rules, we had not only known that we were going to look ridiculous, but we suspicioned that we were going to be made ridiculous, also. We were right.

Monday afternoon the stores had been swamped with pleas for black stockings, red socks, cardboard, veiling, red flowers; the clerks thought we were crazy. We knew it.

As we stood there in our doorways, there were no other words to express how we felt except—scared and bewildered. The same girls we had laughed and joked with were now scowling and yelling at us. We would have literally shaken in our boots, only we had on our bedroom slippers.

Getting up at the crack of dawn on Tuesday the laughs that broke from our lips at a glance at our fellow rats were soon stifled by the high and mighty sophomores. "Sing, rat!" "Air-raid, rats, air-raid, rats, I said!" "Wipe that smile off your face!" "Scramble like an egg, turk; spot like a leopard—rat, you certainly do look foolish!" "Where's your voice? You lost it! WELL, hunt for it, then!"

Between appointments and rat courts, we were really busy. Classes were only a minor detail on our schedules. We never dreamed we'd make it through the day, but someway or other we finally managed. Six o'clock was welcomed by a gleeful shout from the entire freshman class.

The lucky ones tumbled into bed as soon after supper as they possibly could, but the unluckier ones had yet to face "Little Rat Court." For them there was more shaking and trembling, but even that was finally over and they rushed upstairs to tell what they had been through.

It was even harder to get up the second morning—but thank goodness, the "sophs" were almost as tired as we were. It turned out to be almost a duplication of the day before, but now we were a little more used to it. Some of us had even learned how to "Turk"!

We wrote letters; we made up beds; we swept rooms; we saluted Joan of Arc; we sang "Red and White" until we were hoarse; literally, we jumped every time a sophomore spoke. And they spoke pretty often, too.

Ten o'clock found us assembled in the auditorium, once more in decent clothes, even if they were red and white. With a roll of tom-toms the curtains opened and the class of '51 was facing its last rat-court.

Finally even that was over and the "Best Rat" went out to ring the bell fifty-one times for the class of '51, Natch.

We were tired, oh so very tired but we still had energy enough left to shout, "Praise '51". And in spite of the past two days, or maybe even because of them, we really meant it when we serenaded the "sophs" that night. They were good, even if tough, "ratters." We really feel that we are a part of the school now, thanks to them.

H2O Club Plans Water Pageant

Swimming Meet November 25

Martha Jean Leavitt was elected general chairman of the pageant at a recent meeting of the club. Jesse Lee Pickett is president of the H2O Club, and Betty Burchett is secretary-treasurer. Miss Mary Dabney is advisor of the group.

The class swimming meet will be held Tuesday, November 25 in the college pool.

All girls who wish to take part in this meet must have eight half hour practices. Girls may get in their practice periods during any recreation period.

Recreational swimming is held at the following times: Monday at 4:45-5:45; Tuesday and Thursday at 3:45-4:45.

Select Hockey Team

The Varsity Hockey team will be picked on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Kansas City, Missouri, is planning on the purchase of an airplane to assists in enforcing the ordinance against low flying over the city.

Freshmen Lead Busy Life Governed By Rules, Hard Work

"Look there goes a poor little freshman!" That is the comment that passes among upper classmen each time one of those unfortunate souls pass by. These poor timid creatures spent their first week being told how to act. How can they help but be timid when they have so many rules to remember? How can they help but be timid when they see those grotesque sophomores coming down the hall?

These poor unsuspecting females arrived at S. T. C., on September 15, a blistering hot day; the next it was cold and rainy, the same the next day, and still the next. Some of the learned upperclassmen informed them that it was the equinox and there is always such weather at that time of the year. Poor freshmen, who brought all their dainty little summer frocks! They just had to freeze until Mom could mail a skirt and sweater.

Then classes! That eventful day when they met those humans who were to instruct them in their higher learning for the next year. They had heard so many rumors from the upperclassmen. All the "rats" expect broken backs before the end of the year.

Thursday! Hallelujah! At three o'clock the streets of Farmville suddenly become crowded. Shannon's is brimming full of squealing girls their first glimpse of one of those angels from Hampden-Sydney. Everyone is buying paper curtains, bedspreads, and all sorts of stuff to brighten up the room. The movie was also well attended. The six o'clock bell saw heavy laden freshmen, wellfed freshmen and red-faced freshmen. that had just finished weeping through the show. After supper, they were all busy hanging curtains and re-arranging furniture. The rooms were beginning to take on a home-like appearance.

Then study hour, everything was quiet, except for a sob from a love-sick romancer who missed her sweetheart and the summer moonlit sky.

All the previously busy heads popped out of their rooms as the bell donged the end of study hour and they gossiped until the hall president could round them up and tuck them in bed.

Isn't it absurd to go to bed at eleven every night? Why at home we went to bed anytime we pleased! Isn't it absurd to have to get up at a quarter of seven every morning? At home we didn't have to be up until eight o'clock!

Now, kind readers, I appeal to your sympathies. Isn't it just simply awful to be a freshman? All those rules to remember, scary hard-boiled sophomores, outlandish weather, rumors, only three afternoons downtown, being away from him, going to bed early, getting up early, all these hardships are certainly enough to make them deserve the title "poor little freshmen".

A total of 28,600 persons were killed in automobile accidents in the United States in 1945, the last year for which complete records are available.

Veterans' News

Veterans who fail to repay subsistence allowance overpayments while in education or training under the G-I Bill and who later apply for unemployment or self-employment allowances will have the amounts they owe the Government deducted from the latter benefit checks, Veterans Administration said.

Explaining that Federal statutes prohibit payment of Government funds to persons indebted to the United States, VA said instructions will be issued to state unemployment compensation agencies for the recovery of such overpayments from readjustment allowance claimants.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

The weather has been fine for the sports on the campus. Have you tried any sport? Shame on you if you haven't! Try dashing down the hockey field and making long runs with the forward line, and you won't be able to find a better way to spend an eventful afternoon. Don't forget the practices you must have before you can play on the class team.

Have you followed any of the matches in the tennis tournament this past week? If you are not participating in the game, won't you come down and support your class? A good audience stimulates a player to play a better game.

Bang! A bull's eye! Who knows that may be you if you will master the art with a little confidence in yourself and your straight forward shots. Try your luck once, and you will go back again and again.

Splash! Have you been to the pool lately? There are recreational hours for those who enjoy the water, and can't get enough swimming during class. Come on down gang, the water's swell.

The idea of keeping fit has been introduced to you many times, but no one really seems to fully realize the importance of this phrase until she loses her resistence to colds and other common diseases and has to spend a week in the infirmary resulting in a loss of classes and fun. Take the doctor's advice and get plenty of rest, fresh air and a well-balanced diet.

Until next week—keep on the ball.

Colors Important In Accessories

Often it is difficult to tell just why a dress, suit, or any outfit for that matter doesn't make a hit—your figure may be fine—you have good lines—It's the latest style and fairly expensive—and yet it definitely lacks another fashion ingredient—What does it take to achieve smartness?

Probably the real answer is the development of an accessory sense. A girl with taste in her accessorizing can make even the drabbest ensemble look chic. Failure to use the right accessories can result in cheapening a beautiful outfit, and this should not happen when there are rules and tricks which can be learned by anyone. Most important by far, and most often abused, are the color rules. It's a good idea to choose clothes and accessories which go together for plenty of changes. Neutral or dark colors are by far your best bet in dresses and suits because they make a perfect background for so many interesting color accents. Besides, few girls can wear an all over-bright color well. Much smarter and more flattering is a clever use of bright spots-color combinations, that is—instead of the obvious red with black, use a canary yellow—try bright green with navy—a red-brown with grey—anything goes—if you plan those bright spots!.

Meet the Faculty

A person of varied interests and talents is Dr. A. Curtis Higginbotham.

We've had it straight from him that he put in quite a bit of time on the Northwestern U. wrestling team. In fact, it seems that next to his family and biology, sports are dearest to Dr. Higginbotham's heart. We might cite a few such as football, golf, and fishing.

Northwestern is Dr. Higginbotham's alma mater, and it was there that he acquired his B. S. and Ph. D. tags. He's a member of Sigma XI(an honorary scientific fraternity), the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Ecological Society of America. Back in his college days he was a member of Phi Pi Phi fraternity.

Dr. Higginbotham's major interest in the biological field is the fresh water fish of Virginia. For years these benighted little things have been swimming around in unclassified ignorance, and Dr. Higginbotham aims to do something about it—namely to classify them. To do this it's necessary first to catch the fish, and then to put them through the rigors of research, ie., counting their every last scale, measuring their heads, and so forth. From time to time Dr. Higginbotham and his associates issue a series of scientific papers concerning their research. Someday these papers will be compiled into a book.

Won't it be the day of our lives when we catch a fish whose last name is "Higginbothamus"?

Over 7,150 persons met death by drowning in the United States in 1945, the last year for which complete records are available.

Freshmen Elect Jones President At Class Meeting

Students To Choose SG Representatives

Jean Jones, from Blackstone, was elected president of the freshman class at a meeting held in the "rec" Monday night.

Jean was the freshman class representative on the circus court this year and she was in charge of the dance committee for the freshman circus stunt. In high school she was a cheerleader, S. C. A. representative, and president of the Home Economics club.

Betsy Gravely, from Martinsville, was chosen as vice-president of the class. She was treasurer of her high school class, business manager of her senior annual, a cheerleader, and assistant captain of the basketball team in her senior year.

Elected as secretary of the class was Helen Agnew from Burkeville. She was secretary of her junior class and president of the senior class in high school. She was also a member of the high school paper staff.

Spectators Marvel At Circus While Participants Tremble

I was a celebrity! No less. I had a part in our class's Circus stunt. Now really, it was no mean feat, but I felt the secret of my success would be to put in an appearance at every practice and each time, put everything I had into the act.

Now, I realized that there were others who had larger parts than I, but surely no one was anymore important. Why, without me, I had no doubt, the entire Circus would have been an absolute flop. And it was a known fact, that if I missed my cue by a fraction of a second, it would have ruineo everything.

Finally, the big night came. Naturally, I was just one great big nerve. I could hardly force myself to eat meals and in between snacks. Here, at last, was my long-awaited moment. Of course, there were others who seemed slightly jittery, but it just wasn't as serious step for them. After all, my entire future was resting on my success that night. Would I become a renowned actress, or be forced to isolate myself from the world and join the Salvation Army?

Nervously, I slipped into my costume—brief but snug—and hurried myself over to the locker room. Excitement was in the atmosphere. Apprehensively, I peered through clouds of smoke, trying to locate a mirror. Was my hair mussed, my lipstick crooked? Oh, really, I was in a state of agony.

However, I wasn't so excited I couldn't enjoy watching the Queen and her court. George Ann Lewis, the queen was lovely in her white gown. Betty Tillson was striking as Maid of Honor. Both Jean Dunne, the Sophomore representative, and Jean Jones, the Freshman representative looked luscious. I was impressed, I almost forgot my fright and anguish.

At last it was my time to go on. Hesitantly, I stuck my head through the curtain and pulled the rest of me out. The spotlight burst into my eyes, the stage was mine! Bravely, I smiled and thrust out my arms to say my line, but life isn't as easy as that. For instead of waving my arms in the air, as planned, I contacted one of the stage props—an apple tree. And when I finished with that tree, it was apple sauce!

Some how, I managed to pick myself off the floor, scattering paper apples everywhere, and crept off. Amid tears and supplications, I vowed to forsake the stage.

So any Saturday, look for me in front of the Court House. I play the bass drum.

Educators Plan Testing Program

At the invitation of President Lancaster, representatives of all four-year colleges and universities in Virginia enrolling white students and representatives of the State Department of Education met here on October 21 to discuss the possibility of a cooperative program of testing applicants for admission.

The need of such a plan has become evident as more and more institutions have begun to utilize scholastic aptitude and achievement tests in considering applications of students. Since boys and girls often apply to more than one institution, principals or other school officials are called upon to administer more than one set of tests to the same students. A cooperative plan of testing, agreed upon by colleges and schools, would eliminate this duplication and relieve school officials of the added responsibilities caused by it. Furthermore, greater standardization of testing conditions would be possible. As some of the college officials have pointed out, a state-wide testing program would likewise be of value in locating high school seniors of superior ability who should attend college but who, because of a lack of financial aid, are unable to do so. Once such students are found, college and high school officials may work together to assist these students financially.

Following a lengthy discussion of the various aspects of such a program, the group in attendance here elected a committee of five to represent it in a larger committee composed also of five representatives from the secondary schools of Virginia and one representative from the State Department of Education. The college representatives elected were: Paul H. Farrier, Director of Admissions, V. P. I.; Mrs. Martha S. Grafton, Dean, Mary Baldwin College; Frank A. McDonald, Assistant Director, Norfolk Division, College of William and Mary and V. P. I.; E. D. Myers, Dean, Roanoke College; and William W. Savage, Dean, State Teachers College.

The full committee will prepare the details of a proposed program and present it as a program and present it as a program feature to the February meeting of the Association of Virginia Colleges. It will also be discussed before a meeting of principals.

Library Recognizes National Bible Week

An exhibit commemorating National Bible week is being displayed in the library.

Among the various Bibles on display in a Chinese Bible loaned to the library by Mrs. F. R. Crawford, who spent many years in China as a missionary. This Bible has a curious title placed in, what we call the back of the book, and the pages run from back to front.

Also on display is a beautiful two volume edition of the Bible in French with illustrations by Dore. Also a facsimile of 25 pages from the 42 line Gutenberg Bible which is in the General Theological Seminary in New York City. The date of this Gutenberg Bible is unknown, but it was printed in the city of Mainz between 1453-1455. It is the first large and important book ever printed.

Others on display include a New Testament in Greek, a Facsimile of the New Testament translated by Smith and Goodspeed, and a family Bible recording the marriages, births, and deaths of the Blanton family.

Patterson Tells Concert Dates

Miss Jessie A. Patterson, head of the music department, has announced the dates for the music concerts to be available to S. T. C. students this year.

The list includes four concerts at the Mosque in Richmond and two in the S. T. C. auditorium. The Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra will play on the stage of the Mosque on Monday, November 24. In January there will be two Richmond concerts, the Russian Ballet on the 17th, and Lily Pons on Friday, the thirtieth. On March 31 the Metropolitan Opera Company will be in Richmond on its first southern tour since before the war. The opera to be given will be anounced at a later date.

S. T. C. is having two top artists during the winter. Mac Morgan, star of the City Service radio program, will sing here on Monday, November 17, and Albert Spalding, one of the world's great violinists, will appear here on Tuesday, February 10.

The concerts in the school auditorium will be of no cost to the students. The trips to Richmond will be made on a Greyhound bus with the total cost of the bus and ticket set at $3.75 for each trip. Miss Patterson will sell tickets to the Philadelphia Symphony trip on Monday, November 3, from 5 to 6.

450 Delegates Meet At Press Convention

450 college editors, business and advertising managers met at the 23rd annual convention of the Associated Collegiate Press in Minneapolis, Minnesota from October 23 to 25th.

Representing college publications from 32 states and Canada these young people met to discuss the problems confronting them and how to make their publications fully capable of meeting their responsibilities. The School of Journalism, serving as host, obtained notable speakers for the luncheons and banquets as well as outstanding newsmen to conduct the roundtable discussions and workshops. Among these speakers were Professor Barnhardt of the University of Minnsota, Bryant Kearl of the same university, and Edward Kanale of the National Advertising Service.

Attending the conference from STC were Mary Helmer, editor of the Rotunda and Betty Spindler, business manager.

Wheeler Selects Members of Cast

"Death Takes A Holiday," the fall play play, will be presented in the college auditorium November 14 by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and H. S. C. Jongleurs.

The play, written by Alberto Casella and rewritten for the American stage by Walter Ferris, is based on a poetic conception of Death suspending all activities for three days during which he falls in love with a beautiful girl, and through her realizes why mortals fear him. The action of the play takes place in the Great Hall in the Castle of Duke Lambert, in Italy. The first act takes place on a late October evening; the second, three nights later; and the third, at 11:30 on the same night.

Prince Sirkialias, (The Shadow of Death), a man of distinguished appearance and voice, is portrayed by Bill Smithers. Duke Lambert, a man of 45 with an air of good breeding, is played by Max Perrow. Dolly Anne Freeman plays the part of a Duchess Stephanie, a dark, rather mysterious woman of 40. Their son, Corrado, a dark mannerly man of 22, is Tom Vail. Gaxia, Corado's fiancee, a lovely girl of 18, charming and gentle is portrayed by Nancye Moore. Martha Smith is the Princess of San Luca, Graxia's mother and Duke Lambert's neighbor.

The guests include: Alda, a woman of 28, beautiful and experienced, a widow, played by Griswold Boxley; Baron Cesarea, her father-in-law, a bluff red cheeked map of 75, played by Danny Bray; Edic Fenton, his sister, a straightforward girl of 24, played by Yvonne Burch; and Major Whitehead, a distinguished soldier of about 40, played by Tom Foley. The servants of the household, Cora and Fedele, are portrayed by Martha Hatchett and Charles Talley.

Students Request Course in German

Thirteen students have presented a petition to the college, requesting that at least an elementary course in German be offered during the 1948-49 session.

All other students who would be seriously interested in enrolling in such a course are requested to notify Dean Savage at once.

Enemies of Farmville Girls Once More Invade Campus

"Where are you going you crawling wonder?" I asked one of those many legged creatures that frequently inhabit my room. He ignored me completely thinking me just another stupid human being. He gave me a look which seemed to say "I'm providing food for my family. We ants are not lazy like the mortals we have in our way all the time pushing us around and slaughtering us by the millions." Feeling a little ashamed of myself, I remarked "Well, move over to your side of the bread then. I'm hungry, too."

These little demons are really quite a problem. They tell me that one even gets used to them after a while. One sophomore (jolly sophomore, that is) told me that the freshmen threw their food away if they happened to find an ant on it: the sophomores blew them off and ate it: the juniors eat them, but really don't enjoy them too much: and the seniors have them for the flavor they add to the food. This particular sophomore is pretty far gone, however. She remarks that she is already eating them for flavor!

It is quite interesting to study the ants on your desk when you are tired of studying a text book. I guess that makes one an anthropologist—No?—No?!! The ants spy a cracker. Soon there are two bodies of ants each an enemy to the other side. They line up on their respective sides. The big race is on. Each side is tugging at the cracker—neither willing to give in—its more exciting than a Yankee-Dodger game! You are all excited! Jumping up and down furiously you cheer for the side that is winning—naturally.

Soon you discover that neither side is really getting anywhere. The excitement of the contest has caused you great expenditure--

Appreciation of Circus

Saturday night, before a full house, the students of S. T. C. presented their annual circus. The show was complete with a queen and her court reigning over the program including animals, clowns, and talent stunts.

A festive spirit was evident in the college gymnasium housing the "big top" and the entire audience was in a gala mood. Few members of the audience however, were aware of the hours spent on the production as a whole by the many people taking part in the various activities of the circus. Of course it is true that certain girls worked harder than others in bringing all the details of such an undertaking to their culmination, but there was no one in the long list of participants who did not use one of her most valuable possessions, time, in making the 1947 circus the success that it was.

Congratulations are in order for the classes whose stunt-presentations were judged the best, but praise is also due the two classes who received no more than hearty applause.

College life in the real sense of the term is living, which includes work and recreation, not just hours upon hours of study. The fact is very evident on our campus, or any other which you should desire to judge, that the leaders among the students enrolled are not those individuals who study at all times but those who take an active interest in current activities on the campus. The leaders are the girls and boys who loyally contribute their time and talents to carrying on the school traditions and customs.

By this we arrive at the conclusion that S. T. C. can be proud of its many student leaders. The circus stunts, parade, and queen and her court exhibited many contributions of time and talent. To everyone who worked for the success of circus the entire student body says "Thank you. We really appreciated it."

Be Careful With Cigarettes

Have you noticed those no smoking signs? They are posted above the auditorium and gymnasium, and in various other places. These signs are reminders that fire may result from cigarettes.

Our auditorium and gymnasium are not fire-proof, and a fire in these buildings would mean perhaps a loss of life and property. It is not that we mean to endanger other peoples lives, but we just don't think. This is dangerous. A fire at STC is not impossible as those people who remember the dining room fire years ago will tell you.

While we are discussing the possibilities of fire from cigarettes, it is a good time to caution those who smoke in their rooms and in the halls. Here, there is an even greater chance of fire. It is too easy to flip a lighted cigarette into an ash tray or trash can. Particularly when leaving your room, take an extra minute to check and see if all cigarettes are out.

How fortunate we are here at STC. At many other colleges, students are not allowed to smoke at all or they are allowed to smoke only in one particular room. A trust has been placed in us in regard to smoking, and it is our duty to keep this trust. We have just one more thing to say—please, please be careful with your cigarettes; put them in proper containers and make sure that they are put out.

Fire costs many lives each year. People recall even how the ghastly Texas City fire and other fires that have caused much destruction.

We would like to suggest that some member from the student body or the fire chief and her council be delegated with the responsibility of seeing that students conform to smoking only in the proper places, and that they properly put out all cigarettes. Perhaps a call down for this offense would be effective in combatting this situation. We dislike someone spying on us just as much as the next person, but this has gone too far to be funny. The whole gist of the matter is just this—STC cannot afford a fire. Neither can you, as students, afford to loose your possessions. Think the matter over.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

Notes from the convention are mostly brass tacks since we went all that long way on business but there are a few off-the-record facts we might tell on ourselves such as Mary's forgetting her coat and our missing the train in Cincinnati and having to take a pokey local back. We had to defend our Southern accent continually; grinning and bearing being called "Honey Chile" and addressed as "you all" in the singular. For awhile we thought all Midwesterners were rather thick between the ears or morons or something for they asked us to repeat everything we said two or three times. Then we finally discovered that they just wanted to hear us talk. Nothing like being a curiosity; that is if you aren't self conscious. Off time gab sessions proved that students all have about the same interests no matter what section of the country they come from, f'instance the men talk about womens skirts and make such observations as "Long skirts are like prohibition; the joints are still there, it's just a little harder to find them." And all women talk about hats and men, naturally. Occasionally some sharp individual delivered himself of a lengthy opinion on veteran problems evidently derived from an editorial of which he was unduly proud. Then Mary locked horns with a hot red-head with an antipathy toward women sports writers. The outcome was quite interesting, but the details are confidential and may be obtained by personal request. She might also tell you why she thinks "Simple Simon" is apropo of the occasion. 'Nuff said.

Bed Check

We really had a wonderful week-end, didn't we? Circus was a big hit and it went off beautifully.

Orchids to our lovely Circus Queen, George Ann Lewis and to the other representatives, Betty Tilson, Jean Dunne and Jean Jones.

It certainly was grand to see so many of our girls back for the week end. Among those here were Kitty Parham, "Pete" Ellett, Betty Minetree, Grace Loyd, Hilda Bennett, BeBe Bowles and many others. We certainly do miss them and wish they could come more often.

The marines really landed at S. T. C. this week-end. We saw Frankie Dodson and Roady leading two around. And speaking of marines, ask Mary Miller about Eddy.

Romine Man hood also had the situation well in hand when her man, Cecil Powers, came to see her. Notice the glow in her eyes?

Did you see Peggy Moore making faces at Buddy? That's really love, isn't it, Peg?

Martha Hall really went all out for fox hunting this past week. Yeah, fox!

June Banks and Gris Boxley had a big week-end at W. & L. homecomings. They said it was so-oo much fun they hated to leave.

Shirley Hilstead also had a gay ole time at V. P. I. and Roanoke this past week-end with John.

We understand Charlotte Flaugher had quite a time this week-end. See her for the gruesome details.

Polly Richardson is all excited already about going to R. M. C. the week end of November 15th. Can't say we blame her.

Who in the world is Peggy White expecting that phone call from, anyway?

Eleanor Withrow's Johnny was here for circus. Also Tommy came up from R. M. C. to see Annette Jones.

Well, gals, this is about all for this time 'cause I'm awfully sleepy. See you next week in Bed Check.

Alumnae News

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, who was introduced by Mrs. Maria Bristow Starke, led in a round table discussion of the Alumnae Council on Friday night, October 24. Dr. Lancaster discussed the proposed new auditorium and the music building at Farmville State Teachers College; which will have a seating capacity of about fourteen hundred, and excellent music facilities. Numerous phases in the operation of the college and improvements in the training school were also brought before the group.

Dean William W. Savage discussed the college's new method of admitting students, the responsibility incurred by the college upon acceptance, means of deriving pertinent information from the students concerning their past life, experience and possibilities as college material.

Mr. Boyd Coyner gave a favorable comparison in scores made by this year's freshmen on the intelligence test and those of previous years, and touched briefly on the standards required for admission.

After this meeting, a reception was given by the Granddaughters Club in the Y. W. C. A. room. Miss Virginia Wall greeted the Alumnae and Mrs. Ruth Gleaves presided at the punch bowl. The regular fall meeting of the Executive Board was held after the reception.

On Saturday morning, the pictures for an Engagement Calendar were discussed, and it was voted to sell the calendars before Christmas. Each item of the Handbook was also discussed. Dr. Francis Simkins, an authority on history in the South, spoke on the writing of a social history of our college. The Council pledged aid to Dr. Simkins with the hope that he will write such a history. The Alumnae were asked to send old letters, scrapbooks, memory boks, programs, etc., to the college library. Dr. Beverly Ruffin, librarian, spoke on her interest in making and keeping such a collection in our library. The meeting adjourned after lunch.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Hampden-Sydney men have their own ideas about the STC date rules. Herewith are presented the HSC date rules.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of—STC. We seemed to be plagued this year, as usual, by that ever present institution of loveable darlings known as STC. This is all well and good, but egad man, what trials and tribulations, we, as well as our feminine companions, must endure to comply with those abominable clauses, adroitly termed "date rules." Having been driven thus to distraction on more than one occasion, I have finally reached my limit and can contain myself no longer. It is with great pleasure that I herewith present my reply to the aforestated expostulation in the form of HSC date rules.

1. All HSC men must be logged out in the Dean's office before going on dates.

2. All HSC men must obtain three character references from STC dates.

3. All HSC men will be allowed to date STC girls ONLY after 9 p. m. when it is assumed that all homework is completed.

4. All HSC men must be returned to the college within five hours after each date.

5. All HSC men must be at least 15 years of age before dating STC girls.

P. S. Any similarity to persons living or dead is purely coincidental.

Your H.-S.C. Correspondent.

Dear Editor,

"If anyone suggests to me from now on that teaching is an easy job, I think I'll just shoot 'em down. I am now beginning to realize more fully why schools have such a long summer vacation. In spite of everything, though, I do enjoy it; but I find that time is my chief enemy. I seem to be just getting somewhere in counting when I suddenly realize I've spent too long at it, and that I should be doing drawing or singing. I'm trying very hard not to fall in the habit that so many Scottish Schools foster, that of labouring at the 3 R's to the exclusion of everything else. Fortunately, the Scottish Education Department is alive to this danger and has been making all kinds of reports on Drawing, Handwork, Singing, etc., in the Primary School."

"You know, for the first time since I started teaching I took time off the other day to compare the children in my class with the children in the kindergarten in Farmville. Believe me, I got quite a shock. The children I have now are for the most part between 5½ and 6 years of age, a few are already 6, yet they would appear to be older not only mentally but physically. While this may be commendable in some ways, I'm afraid our children are more strained than is really natural. I am, for the moment, discounting the war effects."

"While children in my class are solemnly doing sums on paper, e. g., 4-plus-5, 2-plus-11, 6-minus-3, and so on, their counterparts in America are learning number values or reading by pictures, or just drawing, etc. The children in kindergarten had their own chairs and thus had a certain freedom of movement. My children here sit at dual desks and if one squirms around too much he's bound to kick someone or knock his pencil, and there you have a commotion. In the 'baby room' of course, there are individual chairs, but my point is that they should continue to be treated as very small children at least until they leave the Infant Department, age 7. I think we rush our children into serious lessons much too quickly."

—From a letter of Margaret H. Pattie, student at Farmville, 1942 to 1944, graduate of Jordan Hill College, Glasgow, Scotland, and now teaching in the Glasgow schools.

Barter Theater Brings Enjoyment to S.T.C.

Although Shakespeare wrote "Twelfth Night" some three hundred and forty years ago it has lost none of its flavor and spice. Just ask any S. T. C. girl who was lucky enough to secure a ticket for the recent Barter Theater production of Shakespeare's comedy.

From the moment that the curtains parted to the time they closed after the last curtain call the audience enjoyed every minute of it. Orsino was received with sighs; Sir Toby Belch with laughter, the audience lamented the unreciprocated love which Orsino held for Olivia. They sympathized with Viola who delivered messages of love to another from the one whom she herself loved. They recognized the possibilities of a solution upon the entrance of Sebastian, Viola's twin. When it all ended happily those on the stage were no happier than was the audience.

Ah, yes! S. T. C. is looking forward to the next Barter Theater production.

PAUL MATTHEN

Paul Matthen, distinguished bass-baritone and member of the Bennington College music faculty, has been heard in concert, oratorio and opera all over the country.

Mr. Mathen was born in Pawling, N. Y., and at the completion of his high school studies was awarded a scholarship to Bard, where his training included conducting and organ as well as voice. He received his Bachelor of Arts Degree and did graduate work in music, meanwhile studying voice under the able tutelage of Friederich Schorr, noted Metropolitan Opera baritone.

A member of the Connecticut and Trenton Opera Companies, in which he has starred in many roles, Mr. Matthen was soloist with the Boston Symphony in 1945. During the war his Victory Concerts were recorded by the Office of War Information and were sent overseas to entertain the soldiers in all parts of the world.

In 1945 he as bass soloist with the Dessoff Choirs in the presentation of the Schubert Mass at Carnegie Hall, and was engaged by the same group for the performances of the Mozart Requiem in Carnegie Hall this past April.

Paul Matthen has recorded for Victor Red Seal and Harguil Press records and is rapidly becoming known as one of America's leading bass-baritones.

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of four articles on the New York artists who will appear with the College Choir when they present "The Holy City" at V. P. I. November 12.)

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

Let's look around the sports again, and see what will be on schedule for this week. Have you followed any of the matches in the tennis tournament this past week? If you did not, you should be reviewing the strokes for the next tournament which will be played in the spring. Though it doesn't take an expert to play in the tourneys here on campus, you do need practice. Do enter the doubles tournament this spring. Skill only comes through practice, so get in some additional practice with the roommate, or a friend who enjoys the game.

This has been a wonderful hockey season. Haven't you enjoyed it? Don't forget the class hockey games; therefore, get in your practices—you may make a goal for your team. If you don't play, be sure to come out and yell for your class.

The weather has been fine for hiking. Did you try one of those country lanes leading away from the crowded ways of life- Take a brisk walk some afternoon after class. No doubt the next morning you will feel like a new person.

Did you see that bull's eye?? Who knows, you may be the one to say this if you have tried your skill or should I say luck in archery. Come on out and try, you'll love it.

Until next week—be a good sport and get in the game.

Notice

According to an announcement by George Ann Lewis, the first round of tennis has been played. The second round must be played by Saturday, November 1.

She urges all students to watch the A. A. bulletin board, and to play their games promptly.

Meet the Faculty

Over a period of twenty-six years Mr. Thomas A. McCorkle, "Mr. Mac" to the chem students and his cigar have become a popular institution at S. T. C.

During this period Mr. McCorkle has taught varied subjects in and out of the chemistry line, but right now he's keeping within the limits of his official title, Professor of Chemistry and Physics. For twenty-one of these twenty-six years he's been guiding the Virginian staff in their blood sweating task of getting the annual out. And for that same length of time he has served as chairman of the Schedule Committee.

After Mr. McCorkle had gotten his B.A. at W. & L. University, he secured an M.S. at the U. of Chicago. We've been reminded too, that he put in some time sailing the seven seas as a U. S. Navy man.

Some of the organizations which claim Mr. Mac's membership are: The American Chemicaly Society, The American Legion, the Lions Club and The Masonic Lodge. Also he's chairman of the Presbyterian Board of Deacons.

Since Mr. McCorkle spends nine tenths of his time here at S. T. C., the remaining one tenth doesn't allow much time for hobbies. However, his admits that he's fond of "kicking around the house" and gardening.

Dr. John H. Yoe will be the guest speaker for the student assembly program tomorrow morning.

Dr. Yoe was one of twenty-one American scientists invited by the War and Navy Departments to observe the atomic bomb tests which were held at Bikini Atoll on July 1 and 25, 1946. With this group also were twenty-one observers from eleven foreign countries as well as several United States senators and representatives. The observers sailed from San Francisco on June 12 aboard the USS Panamint.

Dr. Yoe served as chairman at the technical meetings held on board the Panamint and arranged a series of about twenty talks by the American and foreign scientists.

Thursday's program includes Navy motion pictures of the bomb tests. The film is in technicolor.

Lancaster Announces Increase In Board

A letter has been sent by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of S. T. C., to the parents of every student enrolled here, advising them of an increase in the cost of board for the remainder of this session approved at the last meeting of the State Board of Education on October 24.

The increase of $5.00 per month is due to "the increased cost of food and a general increase in the operating expenses of the college," the letter states. This increase will be effective at the middle of the first semester, November 15.

One paragraph of Dr. Lancaster's letter reads as follows: "I assure you that we regret the necessity of increasing our charges, but I am confident that everyone realizes that with increased cost of living, we cannot provide for our students satisfactorily on any other basis."

Biology Students Attend Lecture

Members of the biology seminar class attended a lecture at Hollins College on October 23.

Dr. Lawrence H. Snyder, formerly of Ohio State University of Oklahoma, was the speaker. Dr. Snyder is the author of the genetics textbook used on the Farmville campus entitled Principals of Heredity. He referred to many of the case diseases mentioned in his book, placing a emphasis on blood types, especially the Rh blood factor.

After the lecture the Farmville biologists were invited to attend a reception given for Dr. Snyder by Hollins College. During the reception they met Dr. Snyder personally and were free to ask him any questions which had arisen during his talk. The S. T. C. students enjoyed meeting and hearing Dr. Snyder.

Attending the lecture, accompanied by Dr. Jeffers, Dr. Brumfield, and Dr. Higginbotham, were Jean Babb, Marjorie Burns, Frances Fears, Anne Langbein, Elizabeth Motley, Elinor Overby, Helen Owens, Betsy Scott, Viola Turner, and Virginia Yonce. Miss Olive Bradshaw, teacher of Biology at the Farmville high school, also attended the lecture.

On Thursday, October 30, the seminar class broadcasted over station WFLO telling about the lecture and their trip to hear Dr. Snyder speak on genetics.

Drive For Books To Send To France Begins On Campus

French Club to Help Replace Libraries

French Circle is sponsoring a drive to send books to the University of Nancy and the University of Lyon in France. These books will be used in the comparative literature courses at these universities.

Many parts of the libraries of these two colleges were destroyed during World War II, and often students are forced to stay up all night to read a book, so that another student can have it the next day.

The books desired are those by Edgar Allen Poe, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Walt Whitman, Herman Melville, Ernest Hemingway, Sinclair Lewis, John Dos Passos, Gertrude Stein, John Steinbeck, Ernest Caldwell, William Saroyan and Harold Faulkner.

This drive will be on through Christmas, so that students will be able to look at home for these books. Books can be taken to Jacqueline Eagle in room 17 annex in the main building and to Mary Neale Garrett in room 9 Cunningham.

Minstrel To Feature Singer, Tap Dances Chorus on Program

At 8:00 p. m. on November 18-19, in the Farmville High School Auditorium, the Farmville Lions and Rotary Clubs, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a minstrel. The proceeds will be used to equip the Farmville High School Band with uniforms, instruments, and music.

The black faced chorus will include fifty members of the service groups. Specialty numbers will include choral groups from Hampden-Sydney College, with a Negro Spiritual under the direction of New Crawley, and State Teachers College; a number by STC's own Laurette Veza; a child tap routine; and a tap solo by a town girl, the mysterious star of the show. Edwin Cralle, who received a tremendous ovation in the auditorium of State Teachers College recently, will be the guest soloist.

Easley, Spindler, Bailey Win Highest Awards For Stories In College Magazine Contest

Library Displays Graphic Material

Graphic material on Palestine including maps and pictures, is on display in the college library. Supplementary reading matter is also presented with the exhibit.

Articles from the Journal of Geography, the United Nations Weekly Bulletin, and the National Geographic Magazine; clippings from newspapers; and books provide a background for this study of the Jewish-Arab situation in the Holy Lands.

One of the maps presents one proposed plan for the partitioning of Palestine. Two other maps are primarily drawn to show how the Jews have developed modern irrigation systems. Two aerial photographs are of special interest. One shows the lazy meanderings of the river Jordan; the other, presents a checker-board likeness of fields radiating out in every direction from a circular village.

Anyone interested in continuing this study of Palestine will be given a chance to obtain a personal touch on Wednesday, November 12 from 3 to 3:30 p. m., when Mrs. F. R. Crawford, who has spent many years in the Holy Land, will speak on the subject over radio station WSVS.

Taylor, Watts Chosen Government Members By Freshman Class

Louise Taylor from Hague and Nancy Watts from Onancock on the Eastern Shore were elected student government representatives of the freshman class at a meeting last Wednesday night.

In high school Louise was secretary of her junior class, and a member of the S. C. A. and the Home Economics Club.

Nancy was treasurer of her senior class in high school. She was also president of the Home Economics Club and a member of the Dramatic Club and Athletic Association.

Other officers elected last week are president, Jean Jones; vice president, Betsy Gravely; secretary, Helen Agnew,; and treasurer Romine Mahood.

Backstage Pranks, Dancing Add Zest To Play Practices

"Crash!!" Great scott—What was that? Just a line in the play that echoes through the auditorium. The play's the thing all right—but whether we mean the play on or off stage is another question. It's exciting, maddening and full of love (on stage, that is). Of course "Corrado" and "Grazia" often practice their love scene in private—just to get it down pat and make sure the latter can remember his lines!

The girls sometimes bring down nice bottles of cokes for their actors, but when the drinks start gurgling and making like a volcano, the boys investigate further to find flakes of undisolved aspirin stirring within. The cues always pick up, though, and the acts move right along. One of the best acts in the play is the disappearing cigarette act. It always goes over with a bang—!

When things get dull someone knocks herself out, or another screams in the middle of a love scene, then realizes it was the wrong cue. And the great gentleman of all times bows to a lady and says, "I had not realized that the women of your country were so beautiful," and then adlibs to another boy who keeps missing his lines, "nor the men so stupid!"

But when the lights grow dim and Death makes his majestic entrance, it's really a bewitching sight. Off in a corner my attention is drawn.. What do I see? . . . A garden of rosebuds in the moon light? No—the sage manager clinging to a rope trying to adjust the colored bulbs as he flaps to and fro on the ladder.

More than one person has learned to jitterbug backstage, or crow like a rooster, or do the camel walk. All talents are pooled and shared equally.

Play practice really isn't all one mad rush of funnies and dance. It's work, of course, but satisfying to those who like the theater.

But now the curtain is closing and the last line has been said so it's time to leave. See you out-front at "Death Takes A Holiday," Friday, the fourteenth.

Nerve Racking Experiences Confront Innocent Bather

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness—or so they say. Maybe a better saying would be—"Cleanliness is next to impossible." At least it is when a good, hot bath is your objective. Let us run through a typical struggle.

"I think I'll take a nice hot bath tonight right after supper and then settle down to some deep studying," you optimistically remark to your roommates. Gathering together your bathrobe, towel, soap, and other miscellaneous articles you gaily start off for the tub. BUT, much to your dismay, you find them all occupied.

Returning to your room unwashed but still cheerful you resign yourself to study sans that nice, hot bath you had visualized. Every two minutes you befake yourself to the bathroom but the tubs remain uncompromisingly full. Needless to say, this continued interruption plays havoc with your studies.

Finally you locate an empty tub! After dashing back to your room to get your necessary accessories you happen to glance at the time. Three minutes to eleven—barely time to brush your teeth with a lick and a promise and climb into bed in time for bed-check!

Setting your alarm fifteen minutes early you assure yourself that you will get that "nice, hot bath" first thing in the morning, before breakfast.

Morning already! Now why was I going to get up so early this morning? Oh! My bath! Cheer-you, for the water is stone cold. everyone didn't arise as early as you.

"With no 8:05 this morning, I still determined to get a HOT bath. You begin dressing, muttering to yourself about fifteen minutes of perfectly good sleep which have been wasted.

still get that hot bath!" you declare to anyone who may be listening, interested or otherwise.

And this time you are right! Especially about the hot part, for a brisk walk some afternoon after classes, and lessons are be-"Hot" faucet boiling but also that from the "Cold." Oh, well, you always did like to be scalded anyhow, and besides—you got that HOT BATH after all didn't you.

What About Sororities?

The question of sororities and whether to continue them or gradually disband them at S. T. C. has been running in an undercurrent throughout the school for a long time. Let's bring it out into the light for open, frank discussion for there are bound to be important pros and cons or the question would never have arisen. All the sororities on this campus, both the honorary and the social, were organized because a need was felt for organizations to foster high ideals, scholarship, leadership, and to furnish a means to develop a skill in human relationships. Everyone will agree that the honorary sororities still maintain these objectives, but whereas the social ones adhere to them in theory their practice is often found sadly lacking.

If every sorority girl on this campus would read over her Code of Ethics and really strive to live by it, what a valuable asset she would be to the college as well as to her own group. Sadly enough we too often forget that to belong to a sorority is to have more expected of us. Of all the places where a girl should reach out to make as many contacts as possible; exchange ideas, experiences, and opinions, it is in college. Plainly then college is no place for petty jealouises and a "holier-than-thou" attitude toward all others who are not of her itnimate group.

One of the greatest mistakes which we as sorority members make is to be overly secretive in our effort to refrain from discussing our respective societies with non-members. Originally designed to prevent intensive rushing and a line of demarcation between sorority and non-sorority girls, this, well-meaning practice has been over-emphasized to the point of engendering hurt feelings and the left-out feeling of inferiority. We would like to suggest that sorority members stay within the limits and and yet answer all new girls' questions, see to it that they are familiar with the Pan Hellenic rules printed in the handbook to avoid embarrassing misunderstandings, and see to it individually that no distinction, however small, is made between a girl who wears a Greek letter pin and one who does not. It is also well to remember that any girl who has been here more than one quarter may be invited into the chapter room. Be friendly, and extend a warm invitation whenever you can.

Sororities can and should be maintained as an asset to S. T. C. provided they fulfill their prime purpose, if they do not then there are few, if any, arguments on the behalf of their continuance. Let us individually see to it that we live up to what is expected of us, and collectively cooperate by keeping our groups small, congenial, and inconspicuous; always striving toward the common goal—making S. T. C. a better place for our having been here.

We Need More Food

With the increase in board looming in the near future, the "griping" situation here has become consistently worse. What the students seem to fail to realize is the fact that food costs have soared recently, and what other sources seem to fail to realize is the fact that the students do have some legitimate "gripes".

It is true that many students complain about the food and do it solely because they can think of nothing else to "gripe" about other than food. However, this is a legitimate complaint; we need more food. It is easy to see that one small chicken cannot possibly be divided among ten people and give them more than just a taste. The same holds true with the other meats and with the more popular vegetables such as peas, potatoes, and green beans. Seconds may be obtained at the kitchen, but they fail to realize that the person is returning the platter for enough to feed more persons than just themselves. We, of the staff, have heard more students say, "I come away from the dining hall just as hungry as I was when I went". These students don't say that just because they did not care for what was served, but because they honestly didn't have enough to eat.

If the price in board has to be increased to meet rising costs, then students should not have to supplement their meals by eating downtown or in their rooms. Neither should they have to write home stating their old familiar plea, "Mom, I'm starving to death—please send me a box of food".

If something can be done about these complaints it seems to us that now is the time to do it. With the hope for more food in the future, we must make this stand—that we will not waste food but eat everything we take upon our plates.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

Isn't weather wonderful? It's so changeable. In fact no one knows just what kind of weather we're going to have next. We emphatically repeat—it is wonderful. It's the changeable things too which give variety to the inevitable. Mark Twain once said that the two inevitable things were death and taxes. (It was M. T., wasn't it?) This is all very true, but Mr. Twain never having gone to a state female normal? school didn't know that of equal inevitability is a test on the "big weekend". Never fails.

It seems that all the jokes around here are not on the Frosh (or else second story affairs) cause we've been hearing quite a number that came out of classes recently. For instance did they tell you the one about the atheist corpse who, when he was all laid out, was all dressed up and no place to go? Or ask someone why lawyers can't sleep at night?

Bed Check

Wasn't S. T. C. quite the place with all the added male population, 'n the dance was just super plus! We'll let ya in on a little of what we saw 'n heard.

Mary Jane talked with Hank 'most the night when he called her from W. Va. Must be LOVE, eh, Kelly?

Still thrilled over her big week end is Anne Orgain. Jim is just the cutest one, gal!

Janie Fox, tell us more about this secret crush of yours. Sounds mighty interesting!

Nancy Rushing was just in heaven having her one and only up for the week-end.

These Sunday dates of yours must be quite the thing, Rives Edwards.

Grace Kappes 'n that man of hers are a mighty cute two-some we'd say!

It was soooo wonderful seeing Jackie 'n Johnnie together again. They have it bad, we'd say.

Jane Simpson sho' was having a big time with that date of hers Sunday.

Julia Booher 'n her Bob really make the most perfect pair we've ever seen!

From all appearances, Anne 'n Wooly Rowe were having a big time in Junior Parlor Saturday night.

Two more of our fair lasses acquired sparklers for their third fingers left hand, namely Mary Frances Squire 'n Mitty Hahn. Congratulations to ya both!

Nellie O'Brien, that bus trip back to S. T. C. on Sunday night must've been "all rite." Say ya're going home again next week end just for that ride back?!

Louise Redd and Frankie Dodson are slowly recovering from that wonderful time at Chapel Hill.

Ellen McMullen is the recipient of sooo many phone calls. She takes our vote as being one popular miss.

Hey, Eleanor Bass, we hear that you greet everyone with an "I'm in love" statement. Just what do you mean?

Martha Frances Morrison is taking a trip home for just one reason. Seems as if it was vaguely mentioned that the man of her dreams is a dentist.

Nancye Litz says her date for Senior dance is so tall that he can't get a tux to fit him. We will be looking forward to seeing that giant.

Alumnae News

By TONI ALLEN

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter, Mrs. Adelle Hutchinson Watkins, President, will give a tea honoring the new members of the State Teachers College faculty in the Student Lounge on Thursday afternoon, November 6, from four to six. All local Alumnae and faculty members of State Teachers College are invited. Mrs. Mabel Fitzpatrick Putney and Miss Ruth Gleaves are co-chairmen of this occasion. Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster and Mrs. Ruth Harding Coyner will preside at the tea table.

In the receiving line will be Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Wakefield, Miss Carrie Sutherlin, Miss Kate Trent, Mr. R. H. Ballagh, Principal, Farmville High School, and Mrs. Ballagh, and Miss Rosemary Elam, the new assistant to the Dean of Women.

The Alumnae Council voted last week to undertake the sale of a college engagement calendar. For many years the need of such a project has been felt. It will contain twenty lovely scenic pictures of the college, and the words and music of our Alma Mater song. Every girl will want one for herself, for her many engagements, and as a diary or memory book afterwards. Copies of the calendar will sell for one dollar each and will make memorable, beautiful, and timely Christmas gifts. It will make an ideal gift for One and Only, girls, just in case you are "at sea" on your Christmas gift list. Or perhaps that old high school pal would enjoy some extraordinary pictures of your college. Regardless of whom you have in mind, it's the gift of the year! I know you will be interested in knowing that you can purchase a copy in the Tea Room, the Business Office, or on the halls after December 1.

Potential Author Tears Hair Over Short Story For Contest

Have you ever tried to write a short story—well don't!

I got an inspiration some time ago to write a magnificent story that would shock the readers out of their wits (it probably will, too). They will read it once, then twice, and then send a special delivery letter to Williamsburg for a room reservation.

I managed to collect my pencils, paper, wits, and a few other miscellaneous items and started to work.

"Lets see now, Sharkespeare would start out this way, I told myself, or did Shakespeare write short stories. Oh well, it really doesn't matter."

Knock, Knock! "Come in!" I bellowed in a discouraging tone of voice (discouraging the person to enter, that is!)

"I had the best time over the week-end—biah, biah! We biah! biah! This tormentor went on for at least an hour. "Well, I hope I haven't talked you to death," she replied sweetly—gritting my teeth.

Now to get back to the business of the day. What type of story shall I write—love, murder—?

Yep, it will be murder, someone just entered the dooor!

"Please, please, help me write up my childhood experience for English class. The theme has to be in tomorrow at first perioc and I can't think of a thing," the Character went on.

The door opened again. "Have you done your accounting etc. etc. rattles another worry bird.

Everything was in confusion! I was pulling my hair out—both strands.

I gazed around the room practicing my self-control that I will need when teaching school. It seemed as if I were born with a tendency to draw crowds because these people (?) were lined up all around the room firing questions at me.

Finally, the hall president's shout, "Lights out" sounded.

I welcomed it for one time in my life. Everyone left the room—joy!

I had written one sentence on my short story, when the battle began—"Keep on—you've got a good start now" urged my dratted conscience, while that lovely bed beckoned with outstretched sheets (stetched out all over the floor, that is). Then my eyelids dropped, trying to play on the sympathies of my conscience. However, Madame Conscience, the unsympathetic, the resoureful, came up with the brilliant idea of a coke as the perfect eye-opener.

Orchesis Sponsors Concert In March

Merce Cunningham one of the leading younger dancers of today and formerly a member of Martha Graham's Dance Group will appear in concert here March 31, 1948.

Orchesis will sponsor the event which will occur immediately following the Easter holidays. Tickets will be sold by all members and apprentices of Orchesis first, after which, they will open to the general public. All seats will be reserved.

The concert promises to be interesting not only to those students taking dance, but to the student body generally, because no dance concert artists have appeared here since the Dudley-Bales-Maslow Trio of two years ago.

Advance press notices from Orchesis members say he looks like Joe Cotton. Real notices will say he is a dancer in his own right, first.

Abernathy Announces Days For Practices

PIGSKIN PARADE

By TONI ALLEN

The University of Virginia Cavaliers successfully hurdled their last foe before their meeting with mighty Pennsylvania next week by defeating the University of Richmond Spiders, 34-0, at Scott Stadium Saturday before 12,000 fans. The Spiders put up a great battle for almost three periods, but the Cavaliers had their passing attack working to perfection, collecting 220 yards via the aerial route for three of their five touchdowns. The outstanding defensive man on the field was Robert (The Rock) Weir, Virginia's freshman flankman, who was all over the premises making tackles, although Guard Larry Baumann, Center Lockwood Fizzell, and Tackle Stuart Barbour came in for their share of the glory. Richmond's guards, Wes Curtier and Johnny Zizak, played well up front and Ed Ralston was a defensive and offensive standout in the Richmond backfield.

Army's mighty Cadets, sidetracked recently by Columbia, took it out on Washington and Lee's passing General's Saturday afternoon at Michie Stadium, West Point, N. Y Earl Blaiks Black Knights from the Hudson steamrolled Art Lewis "Aerial Circus" from Lexington, 65-13, in preparation for the important clash with Notre Dame, which comes up this Saturday at South Bend. Washington and Lee University's eleven was saved from complete humiliation only by the great passing and never-say-die spirit of Quarterback Dick Working.

William and Mary's big Braves, putting their pressure on Wake Forest's Deacons in the second and third periods, and holding off Wake Forest's one big bid for a touchdown with a four period goal line stand, defeated the North Carolina Baptists Saturday afternoon, 21-0. The Indians, getting surperb line play, beat the Deacons at their own game—passing. The crowd of 16,500 spectators came in the expectation of seeing a bruising battle between two big lines. And a bruising battle it was, with the Indians up front giving the Deacons a fearful beating.

Davidson's Wildcats, who have been called a first half, spiritless club, marked both teams off the record Saturday afternoon as they outfought a favored Virginia Military Institute team in the fourth quarter of the Presbyterian homecoming and pushed across a touch down which earned a 14-14 tie. Outgained on the ground and in the air, the Wildcats turned back two determined V.M.I. threats, silenced Keydets Passer Bob Thomason's aerial thrusts with effectiveness and sent Mack Erwin, sophomore fullback, plunging across the fourth period marker which gained the tie. Buck Williams, vieing with Virginia's Ken Carrington for extra point accuracy, converted both attempts from placement.

Randolph-Macon added Washington College to the scalp belt by a 29-0 score Saturday at Chesterton, Maryland.

• • • •

Believe it or not, Hampden-Sydney's Tigers can still have a "good season", despite the fact that they haven't scored during six straight losses. They need only to beat Randolph-Macon's Yellow Jackets, with whom they have a rendezvous at Ashland to wipe out the memory of as sorryful a season as ha, been their fate for generations. Every phase of statistics and records makes the Tigers far inferior to the Jackets, but the form sheets are so much confetti when the two colleges renew their ancient and tradition-honored rivalry.

Meet the Faculty

One who is well known on our campus for her sense of fair play, and for her love of teaching is Miss Pauline Camper. Miss Camper is associate professor of education.

Miss Camper hails from Salem, Virginia and has only taught one day out of the state. She taught in Brooklyn for that one day and termed that teaching experience a complete failure because her students had difficulty in understanding her Southern accent.

She attended school here at State Teachers College, and then went to Teachers College of Columbia University where she received her B. S. and M. A. degrees. Miss Camper has done special work in Education at the University of Virginia. She also attended Roanoke College.

Miss Camper belongs to many organizations, and she admits that she has "joining fever." She is a member of the Virginia Education Association where she was active in the Department of Rural School Supervisors and a former president of this Department. The National Education Association, American Association of University Women, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Daughters of the American Revolution also claim her as a member. Here at STC, Miss Camper is counselor for Kappa Delta Pi, and advisor to Sigma Sigma Sigma, which she has been for the past twenty-three years. She represented the sorority on the Professional Panhellenic Association for a number of year. She is now national historian and is busy writing the history of the sorority for the past fifty years. Miss Camper has also served as chairman of the advisory board of the Y. W. C. A. twice.

She rates gardening (real dirt vegetable gardening, that is) and motoring tops as hobbies. Her classes will be quick to tell you that motoring involves her car which is indeed a nice one. Her pronounciation of car, by the way, is cy-ah.

Another interesting thing is the fact that she has taught in every grade of grammar school, high school, and college. She has even taught graduates, only bypassing the small tykes in kindergarten. To one who has taught for so many years and who shows in her every way her profound love for teaching, we can only say that we are confident that STC is a better place for your being here.

BARBARA TROXELL

"A warm lyric soprano with a dramatic tinge at the top" sums up one critic's ideas of Barbara Troxell's remarkable voice.

Born in Easton, Pennsylvania, Barbara put thoughts of a musical career in the back of her mind until she attended the Pennsylvania State College where she won her Bachelor of Science and Master's Degree in Musical Education, and earned her graduate degree after a period of teaching voice and piano.

With a voice of such potential greatness, Barbara Troxell could not long delay the eventuality of a singing career, and immediately following her college graduation, was awarded a scholarship to study with Mme. Elizabeth Schumann at the Curtis Institute of Music, from which she was graduated in 1942.

Coming to New York in 1943 she studied and gave some recitals under League auspices and in the Spring of 1944 appeared with the Dessoff Choirs and the National Orchestral Association—this time in the City Center of Music and Drama—in the presentation of the Brahms Requiem. The Summer of 1944 was spent as soloist with the eminent Sir Thomas Beecham's Mozart Opera Festival in Mexico City where she received enthusiastic press comments. Sir Thomas Beecham again chose Miss Troxell to appear in Montreal Festivals in April of 1946, where she met the same approving response.

In September, 1946, Miss Troxell was guest soloist on the coast-to-coast radio program of "Let's Go To the Opera", and more recently she appeared with the Brooklyn Chamber Music Society at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. Last Fall she appeared under Leonard Bernstein, with the City Center Symphony Orchestra, in a concert presentation of "Rosenkavalier." In the Spring of 1947 Miss Troxell was soloist with the Albuquerque Civic Symphony in their presentation of the Brahms Requiem.

Such a record in Opera, oratorio and concert has marked Barbara Troxell for an exciting and notable career as one of America's leading sopranos.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

Hello again sports fans. Think this weather will hold out very long? Just so the weather is pretty for those hockey games. Freshmen, remember you are not to take those "rat" caps off until you beat the Sophomores in hockey. If you do not beat them, you are to keep them on until Christmas. Have you been out to any of the practices? You have to have eight practices before you can play and your team needs you. If you don't play, come on out and support your team and class colors.

Did you enjoy that tennis game the other afternoon? If you did, why don't you try it again instead of sleeping all afternoon. You will feel much better. You should now be thinking of a person for a partner for the tennis doubles tournament which will be held in the spring.

How are you getting along in archery? Don't you like it? Isn't it more fun to see how many you can hit. Come on out, the practice will do you some good as many of you never get your daily exercise.

Have you tried your luck in golf lately? No doubt if you tried hard enough your score won't be merely beginners luck, but just good shooting; therefore, make up for lost time and try to make golf one of your many favorite sports here on campus.

So long until next week. Keep on the ball and be a good sport in all sports.

Suits Rate Foremost On Fashion Parade

What are the S. T. C. girls wearing now for dress wear, more than anything else?? Yes, you guessed it—Suits, and do they look grand!

The more popular shades in suits, now are moss green, luggage tan, and raleigh red. Of course, black is still the most outstanding shade, and will always be worn.

Suit styles seem to change each year. This winter the suit skirts are much longer, narrow, and plain, with probably a slit on each side, or maybe one in front of the skirt. The jackets are being made longer, and are fitted nicely about the waist. Also there is less shoulder padding.

The popular shade of hose which adds much to the suits is black. Black gloves, hats, and bags are being used, also. This shade is being worn more with suits that are different colors, although grey and tan are used.

The scarfs which are very much in evidence now, add quite a lot to your suits, and the S. T. C. girls are seeing that it does do this very thing.

On your next dressed-up occasion wear a lovely suit of one of the latest shades. You won't know how stunning they look until you try wearing one.

So—checking my watch to make sure that it wasn't time for Mrs. McCoy, I scuttled up to the coke machine, deposit my nickel, and waited with bated breath for fear the machine would be empty. Hallelu! a coke tumbles forth!

And so, once more we return to the scene of the orginila skirmish. By this time I was wide awake, my conscience at the helm, I set to work with a grim determination that only comes to one the night before a deadline. After hours, seemingly eons of writing, cutting, and rewriting, I threw the screwy masterpiece on the desk and fell into bed praying that I'd find time in the morning to type it. Resolved—never to attempt

GRANT REYNARD, artist sponsored by the Richmond University Center painting a scene on the Hampden-Sydney campus. Unidentified students look on.

Reynard's Lecture Interesting

Artist Paints Local Scene

Grant Reynard, artist sponsored by the Richmond area University Center, was at Hampden-Sydney Wednesday, Oct. 29, the morning of which he devoted to painting a water-color landscape in front of Morton Hall, and the afternoon to giving an informal talk in the Biology classroom. Opportunity was given everyone entering and leaving Morton throughout the morning to watch him paint. The lecture room at Bagby was filled for his talk.

Reynard's painting, done on the campus in front of Morton Hall, was not of the school proper, but of a small log cabin about a mile south of here, which he saw while driving up to H.-S. on route 188, the road which goes through the campus. Mr. Reynard explained that after travelling through so many colleges and universities, as he has been doing, he was surfeited with the more or less conventional college type of architecture, and that by the time he had reached H.-S., he preferred to paint a more provincial subject that would tend to mirror the geographical locality.

Mr. Reynard, in his talk later in the afternoon in Bagby Hall combined an interesting subject with his own volatile personality to make a very instructive lecture. The talk, which lasted over an hour, was accompanied by the series of paintings which he has been doing of Virginia colleges, by a series of sketches of musical figures, and by slide reproductions of a series of human interest sketches and engravings of New Yorkers for which he was commissioned by the tabloid, PM. The watercolors of the different colleges included the Wren building at Wm. & Mary; Bruton Parish church in Williamsburg; Jefferson's home, Monticello, at the University of Virginia; faculty houses at R. M. C.; and a campus landscape done at the University of Richmond. His sketches of musical figures were universal enough to include both Serge Koussevitsky and Artie Shaw, and all of these subjects were done in informal attitudes of work or relaxation. The sketches and etchings done for PM were almost entirely of characters and scenes he had seen on the streets of New York, and ran the gamut of emotions from hilarious good humor to pathos.

Before going into the detailed part of his lecture, Mr. Reynard gave a short, humorously biographical sketch of himself, saying that he had originally intended to become a pianist and that his early sketching, which was incidental, had only gradually usurped his interest. The entire lecture was enlivened by his completely informal style and by his healthy indifference to the fear of offending people, which enabled him to express his own opinions and to make a few apt, if acid, remarks.

In explaining his technique, Mr. Reynard said that he generally paints in watercolor because it is comparatively easy to handle and dries rapidly, after which he reproduces the ones that he deems best, in oils. The watercolors are first sketched in with pencil and then filled in with color. He also explained the method of producing copper engravings.

Reynard is one of several artists who are slated to appear under the auspices of the University Center.

Dramatic Club Will Give Fall Play Friday Night

Tickets Placed On Reserve

Friday evening, November 14, the fall play, "Death Takes A Holiday" will be presented by the STC Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs in the college auditorium. Miss Leola Wheeler is director. The performance starts at 8 p. m.

According to Jean Cake, president of the Dramatic Club, tickets are on sale at the table in the hall, and the price of admission is sixty cents.

The play, written by Alberto Casella and rewritten for the American stage by Walter Ferris, is based on a poetic conception of Death suspending all activities for three days during which he falls in love with a beautiful girl, and through her realizes why mortals fear him. The action of the play takes place in the Great Hall in the Castle of the Duke Lambert, in Italy. The first act takes place on a late October evening; the second, three nights later; and the third, at 11:30 on the same night.

Bill Smithers is cast as the Shadow of Death while Max Perrow portrays Duke Lambert. Dolly Anne Freeman plays Duchess Stephanie, and Tom Vail is cast in the role of Corrado. Grazia is portrayed by Nancye Moore while Martha Smith is the Princess of San Luca. Alda is played by Griswold Boxley while Danny Bray is cast as Baron Cesarea. Eric Fenton and Rhoda Fenton are played by Arthur Stuart and Yvonne Burch respectively. Major Whitread is played by Tom Foley while Martha Hatchett and Charles Talley are cast as Cora and Fedele.

Announcement of the time when these estimates are to be called for will be made in the Dining Hall, the Men's Lounge, and in the Town Girls' Room. Estimates may be called for at the Registrar's Office. Copies of the estimates will be mailed home to the parents.

It includes a vast wealth of material on all phases of Southern culture. Dr. Simkins explores the many-faceted culture of the South, discussing politics, race relations, religion, social customs, agricultural, commerce, industry, literature, architecture and fine arts.

Mail To Males Or Moms Presents Problem of Tactful Phrasing

Let's see, whom do I owe letters to? No, let's put this way—whom don't I owe a letter to? After counting up the letters I owe, it is easy to realize just why my mail box is always empty.

I must neglect a couple of tests (trifle matters, of course) to write Joe and Mom a letter. Pen and stationary in hand, I start to work. "Can't think of a thing to say", I tell myself. I then commence fumbling through my desk drawer, stationery boxes, etc., to find their letters. The best I can do is answer the questions they ask.

"Oh, here is Mom's letter. She usually asks some questions", I remark to my roommate who, of course, isn't listening. Yep, here is a question, "What kind of grades are you making this year?" I slip that question. "Are you studying hard", I slip that one too. "Are you behaving yourself?"

"Hm! Nothing in this letter", I mumble to myself since my roommate doesn't seem to appreciate my remarks while she studies for a test. I then proceed to bite the pencil. This always helps—cut teeth, that is—wisdom. I'll tell Mom I have just been elected to another office. No, she won't appreciate the fact that I'm apparently majoring in extra curricula activities. Ah, I have it, I need some money! I must be tactful about asking for it, however, since my allowance has already arrived. Ah, I have it—Dear Mom: Send me some money quick! I'm broke! You might send me some food too.

Dear Joe: I went to a dance last weekend. Had a wonderful time. "Murder"! I scream as I scratch that out. He will swear I went with Ed (which I did). Joe is my one and only—he thinks. Let's see now. I went to the football game with Jim. I had better leave that out, too. I really seemed to be getting nowhere fast. The thoughts of my tests loomed large in my mind like threatening demons and there I sat without either letter written. The door bursts open. My best friend came in. That was the last straw. I throw down my pen, forgot both tests and letters, and listened to an interesting bit of dope on any and everything.

Program Features Quiz To Test I.Q. Of STC Girls, Boys

Who's the smartest, the boys or the girls at STC? All one has to do to find the answer to that question is tune in WFLO at 4:05 p. m. tomorrow afternoon, Thursday, November 13. At that time STC will present a quiz program with Dean William W. Savage as quiz master.

Defending the girls intellect will be Hilda Abernathy, Anne Langbein, Elizabeth Scott, and Charlotte Grizzard as alternate. The boys participating will be Craig Cumbey, Alger Southall, Jr., and Ned Orange with Stuart McGhee as alternate. Dr. Gordon Moss will serve as judge, and Gee Gee Yonce will be the announcer.

According to Dean Savage, the questions will cover a variety of subjects. This program is one of the regular programs sponsored by the College every Thursday afternoon over WFLO.

Brazilian Material In Library Exhibit

In the library, the featured topic for exhibition is Brazil. Various information about this South American country may be obtained from the pamphlets, books, and magazines containing material concerning the different aspects of Brazil. These materials have been placed on a table on the right hand side of the main room as you enter the front door. Above this table is a bulletin board with a group of colored pictures of Brazil. These were furnished by Miss Moran of the Geography Department, who is now taking up Brazil in her classes.

Exhibits in the glass tables were contributed by Mrs. George Henderlite, widow of Dr. George Henderlite, who was a missionary to Brazil for about thirty years, and her daughter, Mrs. R. D. Wilson. These exhibits include a handwoven hammock from Brazil, cups, spoons, and dishes made from horns of cattle, a lampshade made from wood, showing peculiar formation of engraved knots, Brazilian wooden dishes, and handmade linen and laces.

Portugese books including hymn books, fiction, a testament, and a funny book were contributed also.

Wynne Studies Philosophy Needs

Dr. J. P. Wynne, who is a member of the National Philosophy of Education Society, is among those making a study of philosophy in this country. He has charge of a region including Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, and the District of Columbia.

This society has held meetings at Durham, N. C. last spring and also at Charlottesville at which Dr. Wynne was among those present from various colleges. Today and tomorrow the Virginia group are meeting on the college campus.

Dr. Wynne also attended the meeting held in New York the first of this week to honor Dr. Boyd H. Bode. The theme of the conference was Democracy of Education in the World Crisis.

Talented Texas-Born Baritone Collects Records, Likes Gardening

By PUCKETT ASHER

Mac Morgan, rising star of the musical fields of America, was born in Arkana, Texas, but spent his boyhood in Jacksonville, Fla.

John Charles Thomas, of world wide acclaim now, spotted Morgan's talent, and advised the boy to try to gain admission to the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York. Mac Morgan graduated from this school in 1940, and while he was doing graduate work in Rochester he married Helen Nelly, who had acted as his accompanist on many occasions.

In 1941, Mr. Morgan began singing in oratorios like the Bach Festival at Rollins College, and in 1942 he went to New York City. He was a winner that year in the National Aria auditions for the summer season of the Cincinnati Zoo Opera. In 1943, Mac Morgan joined the U. S. Army, and he was a staff sergeant in the southwest Pacific area. There he was on a series of radio programs with Lansing Hatfield, noted concert artist, and he appeared in a USO camp show with Alfred Hay Malotte, composer of "The Lord's Prayer."

Mac Morgan and his wife make their home at a Cape Cod Cottage at Darien, Connecticut, where he does his own gardening and relaxs by building a terrace. An extensive collection of rare old phonograph records constitute the chief treasure of the Morgan home.

Southside Hospital To Obtain More Beds

At a public hearing at the state library auditorium in Richmond on October 21, a state plan for developing and integrating hospital service and medical care in Virginia was presented by A. G. Howell, director of a study which has been in progress for the past 12 months.

New hospitals and additions to hospitals now serving the public would be integrated in five regions with base hospitals, intermediate and rural hospitals in each region. The Southside Community Hospital at Farmville was designated as an intermediate hospital, serving the counties of Prince Edward, Cumberland, Buckingham, Charlotte, Nottoway and Lunenburg.

The complete plan would require 300 beds to this region or 237 additional beds to the present facilities. The hospital board of the Southside Hospital plans to raise sufficient funds to meet the federal standards and enlarge the hospital by 70 beds some time in the future. No definite plans have been formulated as to when a drive for this purpose will take place.

NOTICE

Thanksgiving holidays for STC students will begin at 11 a. m. on Wednesday, November 26. Classes will be resumed at 8:05 a. m. on Monday, December 1.

Attend Coming Lyceum

Monday night the first lyceum program of this school year will be given in our auditorium.

The guest artist who will appear here in a prominent star of musical America at this very moment. Although young in years his training and experience have already fitted him to be called an artist in the true sense of the word. He has been acclaimed by the foremost music critics of our times and S. T. C. is fortunate to have secured him to sing here.

In former years the college faculty committee arranging the concerts for students have chosen to bring several less-prominent young musicians to our stage. This year, however, a decision was made to spend more money for fewer artists, and in this way bring to Farmville only outstanding performers. Every member of the student body should be grateful for this decision, and be so to such an extent that the auditorium will be filled to capacity when Mac Morgan appears.

Learning to appreciate drama, art, and music is an important part of a well-rounded education, the goal for each of us. This appreciation can come only through personal contact, and repeated observance or listening as the case may be. We will find something new in a play every time we see it given; we will recognize something not seen before each minute we gaze at a painting or a portrait; and we will discover a new beauty of tone every time you hear a single piece of music.

Our school's reputation is established throughout not only the state but the nation by us, its students. The manner which we receive outside guests on the campus will be remembered by those visitors. They will transmit their impressions to others in all walks of life.

If every student will see that she, or he, contributes to the good reputation of the school by individually supporting the finer cultural things arranged for her. or him, we can establish soon our reputation for seeking the higher, finer things of life. As each day passes the honor of saying "I went to S. T. C. in Farmville" grows. If that honor is to continue its growth we must prove that we are becoming a college of the highest degree of culture. Let us prove to our faculty committee that we approve their decision to bring us the best that is possible and support wholeheartedly the lyceums of this and future years.

More Light, Please

There is a definite need for sufficient lighting here at State Teachers College. The steps leading up the campus in front of Senior Building are treacherous at night because of the total lack of lighting. A light has been placed in front of the steps of Junior Building, but one for Senior dormitory is still non-existent. The same situation exists regarding the steps in some halls. Those from second to first floor Student are unlighted most of the time because of [illegible]reless handling of the switches con[illegible]ts nearby.

[illegible] guests deserve a bette[illegible] rassing to have a [illegible] because she cannot see the way, and our own senses of humor are worn thin after we take several spills.

The halls have always been highly waxed here, and the ability to walk through the halls calls for an unusual sense of equilibrium, and even more, when one is required to walk up or down the stairs. The steps are unusually rough, and it is a source of continuous wonder that more than few manage to take them in their stride. Take for example, the steps from first to second floor Main which are located across from Dean Savage's office. However, the steps in the newer buildings, Junior and Senior, boast of good steps which are safely lighted inside the dorms. Because Main is an older building, we have made exceptions for years while the situation grows worse.

We realize that repairs are being made as fast as possible here, but let's not overlook something that is a danger and a menace, the steps. While we may be unable to repair the steps instantly, surely something can be done immediately about the lack of lighting.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

Have you ever sat in Shannons and watched the people meander in and out and tried to guess what sort of personalities they have? Doubtlessly there are some Shannon-haunters who can readily recognize the types and pidgeonhole them as soon as they walk in. For instance there is the old-faithful who comes every afternoon and likes the same table where she, or he, can see and hail all who pass by. Then there are the love-stricken who are so engrossed in each other that they completely ignore erstwhile friends to escape to the solitude of a back booth to while away all the precious moments together. There are always the absent-minded who come in and wait their half-hour for the waitress only to remember when she comes to them that all the time they had intended going to College Shoppe for a cheese burger. You are also familiar with the just-looking-thanks who come in in search of pal or roommate to lend them ten cents, and upon encountering no friendly, benevolent face ask one feebly if she has seen someone they know full well is back at school, then beat a hasty retreat. These and others are typical of town hounds everywhere; next time you go to Shannons look for them.

After all those weird posters the Dramatic Club has been displaying, the play had better scare the living daylights out of us or we'll want to know the reason why not. The cast doesn't quite remind us of zombies, but the art of modern make up is nothing short of miraculous (prove it to yourself by getting the sleep out of your eyes one morning before making yourself a face, take a good look at yourself then) Maybe the make-up crew will. At any rate anticipation of the play is running high so don't miss it when the time comes.

Bed Check

It seems that practically the whole school pulled out this week end—some went home and some went to that "long awaited dance" but no matter where our S. T. C. gal went, she returned with glowing reports over a very happily spent weekend.

While talking about trips, let me mention the trip to the Roslyn Conference that some members of the Westminster Fellowship Council attended this weekend. It seems that it was so cold that all you had to do to brush your teeth was to hold the brush in your hand and let the shivering do the rest of the movement that is needed to do this feat.

Dot Doutt has a lot of trouble making up her mind and trying to choose between the three "men in her life". To date it has been rumored that Oscar is in the lead with Ray running a close second.

What's this about Betty Renn getting such a big present this weekend? From the looks of things, it won't be long before she "third finger left hands" it. How about it, Betty? Let us in on the dope.

Gin Bailey has gotten to be quite a hand at wielding a car jack since this Sunday. Hilda, Moore, and Duffy seem to have acquired the art of changing tires too. It really must have been exciting to say the least.

Tommy and B. J. are fast becoming a familiar twosome on campus. He's really cute.

Betty Jane Brockway can hardly wait for the time to come when the Choir journeys to ye ole Va. Tech. Could it be possible that Rodger is the cause of all this star gazing?

Mary Frances H. why don't you give that poor H. S. C. man a chance? After all the poor guy needs a break once in a long while.

Pat Davis really looked in her Seventh Heaven Sunday night. What's his name, etc.?

Mary Gin Goff took off for Philly Friday and she must have had ascrumptious time because every time any one mentions the trip to her a far away look creeps into her eyes. Philly is really one swell place.

June and Smithers are still that way about each other. Ah, isn't love grand?

The gals that attended the Baptist conference in Georgia came back with faces all aglow. Could it have been—oh no, it couldn't have, or could it?

Puckett Asher acquires boy friends so-o quickly. Well, some have it and some don't.

Jean Babb was really having a big time this week-end. Tell us more.

Until next week, Umbriago and "Madame soyez bien!" — pardon my French.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Your editorial regarding the need for more food in the dining room was provocative but some of us doubt that it presented a strictly true picture of the situation. In it, you mentioned the following items: chicken, white potatoes, string beans, and green peas. Let's look at the facts with regard to these specific foods.

The records of the College show that when fried chicken is served each table receives at least six pounds and often as much as seven and one-half pounds. When roasted chicken is served, the amount available per serving at a table is at least six ounces. Thus, no student receives less than six ounces of chicken whenever it is served—and usually more. Remember that this means nearly one-half pound per student.

The records of the college likewise show that when potatoes are served there are almost six ounces per student. In the case of the string beans, there are three ounces, and in the case of green peas there are 2.95 ounces.

Careful consideration of these figures indicate that the volume served is adequate. Could the students' complaint be due to the fact that they will eat only a few of the items served at any meal and that they are really asking for bulk in a few items rather than adequacy in a well-balanced variety?

"Do you think Frosh should be required to wear Rat-caps until Christmas?"

Anne Verser: Unless they win the hockey game against the Sophs, I certainly do!

Jean Turner: They shouldn't have to be "required". Where's their spirit?

Ann Nock: Sure, it's a tradition! Some schools require rat-caps all year! (If they win the hockey game—it's a different story!)

Betty Johnson: Yes, if we don't win the hockey game.

Grace Herrlein: I think whether or not the Frosh win the hockey game the caps should come off. You can have school spirit without greasy hair.

Kitty Hankins: Yeah!

Charlotte Willis: I guess it's all right—I want to make them wear them next year so I guess we'll just have to bear up under the strain.

Frances DeBerry: If they don't win the hockey game, of course. We did.

Gaynelle Johnson: No, I do not. I think we've been "ratted" enough. And after all, the boys don't like them.

Lizzie Bragg: Yes, I think they ought to, we did.

Martha Hall: Looks as if the '51's already think they have that Hockey game in the bag to me.

Mary Crowder: I think until Thanksgiving is long enough. We've been through Rat-day and have proved ourselves as Freshmen. That is enough.

Nancy Chambers: If they win the hockey game—why worry?

Bobbie Wall: Sure, if we lose the hockey game. But who's worrying about that!

Amid Trials, Tribulations S. T. C. Has Its Picture "Took"—Horrors

"Pictures for the annual will be taken next week. All girls who wish to have their picture in this year's edition must sign up at the table in the hall during the next two days." That's what the announcement said, or words to that effect, so what did you do? You scooted right down to the table in the hall and signed up, of course, for who doesn't want their picture in the annual??

Next there was a cute little announcement in the dining hall "All those people who have signed up for their annual picture to be taken between such and such hours on such and such and such days will please change it." So if you weren't lucky—you went dashing out to change your appointment.

Finally the big day arrived. Naturally your hair had decided that this was not the day for it to curl, but despite minor difficulties you went on down to get your picture taken. If they ran out of film before they got to you, you took it in your stride and came back the next day.

At last you were there under the lights. "Turn your head, a little more to the right, no, a bit to the left, lift your chin, smile now." Click! and it was done. "Now once again, look right up here, hold it—" Click!! After four such, you wandered out into the hall with that stiff smile still frozen on your face (and slightly blinded by the lights).

After what seemed like an eternity they finally announced that the pictures were back and that they would be given out in the "Rec". What a mad rush! After struggling through the crowd of people, and finally securing your picture from the bewildered girls who were trying to get the pictures delivered to the right people, you managed to sneak a look at them. Horrors! In spite of the fact that you had been warned that these pictures were completely unretouched you were still horrified! How could they even look half way decent with all the retouching in the world! Of course you could have retakes, you were assured, if you paid for them, that was the only catch.

After finally deciding upon the best pose, with the help of at least half, if not all, of the hall, you made the decision final. Of course, you immediately regretted it but that was beside the point. "If only they could have taken the eyes from the third pose, the mouth from the first—" you muttered to yourself.

Now all you can do is sit and wait—"they'll probably turn out much better than I expect, I hope!" or so you sit and pray.

PIGSKIN PARADE

By TONI ALLEN

The University of Virginia's ride on the victory train came to an end before 78,000 at Franklin Field, Pennsylvania, Saturday as Penn's Quakers stopped the Cavaliers, 19-7, in the day's secondary football attraction of the nation. The defeat, mainly engineered by Penn's brilliant junior half-back, Bob Deuber, sent the Cavaliers reeling from the ranks of the country's undefeated teams and maintained the Quakers' spotless record for the season, the Cavaliers becoming the sixth victim of Penn's pigskin powerhouse.

While an assemblage of 8,000 gathered in the stands to view what was scheduled to be mild slaughter, William and Mary's big Indians had to fight for their lives and a football victory over V. M. I.'s Keydets. The Keydets came back in the fourth period and, with Joe Veltri pitching, scored three times before the Indians stopped them and won a 28-20 home coming victory.

Virginia Tech's running attack was too much for the Generals of Washington and Lee in Lynchburg Stadium Saturday as the Gobblers handed Coach Art Lewis' eleven its first Southern Conference defeat of the season, 27-14, before 12,500 fans. But the Generals made a game of it by scoring twice by air lanes. The most thrilling play of the contest was an 88-yard touchdown run by Tech's speedy freshman back, Sterling Wingo. The score was tied 7-7 at the time, and it was this run that broke the Generals back.

Driving for a touchdown from the opening kickoff and adding another in the second period, Davidson's Wildcats won their first Southern Conference victory of the season in defeating the University of Richmond, 13-7, before a gathering of 4,000 at the Richmond City Stadium Saturday.

Hampden-Sydney's Tigers not only scored their first touchdown of the season Saturday—they punched across another in the last 26 seconds of play and came from behind to beat Washington College, 14-12. Lynn Chewning, potent halfback who almost beat Army last year when he was playing for Navy, came off the bench with his aching shoulder after weeks of inaction and scored both Hampden-Sydney touchdowns.

Turner To Speak In Next Assembly

In observance of National Education Week, Preston Turner, assistant secretary of the Virginia Education Association, will speak to the student body in assembly on Thursday.

An Armistice Day program was presented in chapel on Tuesday. The main speaker was Reverend Philip A. Roberts, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Farmville.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

Sports fans, gather around the dug-out for some last minute STC sport flashes for the week. The weather man is about to suggest that we pull our sports back under the roof, but there will be a few more days to play down on the field; therefore, get in all the outdoor fun you can before the weather becomes too cold.

Have you improved your aim in Archery lately? Why don't you try to collect a few extra periods by going down to the range and getting in some good practice shots? Archery is a game that takes skill, and this only comes with practice and more practice.

Tennis is a sport that you will enjoy even if you are not an expert. Rome wasn't built in a day, so give yourself some practice and you will be glad tennis is on your list of favorite sports.

Many of the girls have been riding horses in their spare time, and from all reports they have been enjoying it. Riding is an excellent way to spend your lonely Sunday afternoons with the gang, or maybe you are one of the lucky ones who can go with her friend George or Bill.

The weather has been wonderful for hiking. Why don't you go for a walk and get some fresh air in your lungs. The leaves on the trees are so beautiful at this time of year.

Perhaps you'd like to take a plunge into the pool and get in those practices for the class meets. Have you noticed the new diving board that has been so long awaited?

Speaking of the pool, the water pageant is rolling right along and you can expect to see some good performances on December 12th.

Until next time, be a good sport in all sports.

Could S. T. C. Do Without Weekends

Week ends! Ah, how STC girls long for them. How they live for them! Monday and Tuesday they are still talking about "last weekend." Wednesday and Thursday they excitely plan for "next weekend." And Friday they are busy getting ready for "tomorrow."

The week-end starts promptly at 11:05 Saturday morning. (Unless you are a lucky one without a 10:15 class.) By 11:06 the class room is vacant, books carefully (?) put away and the week-end is started. Week-ends during which you are going home are particularly anticipated. You say you are going home to get some "rest" and good (!) food? Oh, happy day! The bus station is crowded as these lucky STC'ers start home, and less fortunate ones see them off. Of course, the paper due at 9:05 Monday is forgotten, the parallel is neglected, and a Sociology book is nestled in your suitcase, "just in case I have a few minutes, "What a bliss! No bell early Sunday morning, plenty of food, no one to shoo your date off Saturday night, or to check you in Saturday night! Then the hour draws nigh to leave. Crossing your fingers that you make 5 minute bus connections, you b'd home, and start back to STC? Of course the whole hall gathers around when you get back Sunday night to hear all the highlights, and see what food you brought back(and thei to hear the highlights). Monday morning you wake up early to write that theme, and another week has

Ballerina Trends Mark New Styles

Vive la Ballerina!—for she's the lovely creature who has given impetus to the trend of this season's fashion.

The ballet skirt, which is black faille or velvet, nine times out of ten, is cut on the bias, which gives it a lovely whirl, and it hits the calf about half-way for daytime wear. It's paired with a ruffled and beribboned Gibson Girl blouse. On the feet we find our old faithful ballet slippers with maybe tiny heels and ankle straps added.

In the sportswear department we find the ballerina skirt in wool, sometimes plain colored, but more often a blazing plaid. The Gibson Girl blouse appears again, white and starched for the plaid skirt, and in plaid rayon or cotton for the plain skirt.

The ballerina skirt turns out for the not-too-formal evening affairs, lowered to the ankle, worn with sky-hi sandles, and topped by a decollete evening blouse. Sometimes a black lace overskirt is added; or we see our ballerina skirt as the lower half of a strapless gown. This gown is happily equipped with a fitted, leg o' mutton sleeved over-jacket, by means of which the dress can be transformed into an ideal late afternoon or dinner dress.

If the ballerina mode flatters you, wear it, but by all means vary it to avoid the regimented look, which has become so prevalent among American women.

Meet the Faculty

During the twenty-three years that he has been connected with this college, Dr. James Elliott Walmsley, by means of his gentle good humor, has made his History and Social Science classes, tops in every students' curriculum.

Dr. Walmsley (who cannot stand being called James E.) gives as his birthplace "the state at large." When the hearer raises his eyebrows questioningly, Dr. Walmsley explains that he was a preacher's son.

In addition to securing his A. B. and M. A. degrees at Randolph Macon College, and his Ph. D. at Illinois Wesleyan University, Dr. Walmsley has done graduate work at the Universities of Chicago and Illinois.

Like a true Southern gentleman, Dr. Walmsley states that of all the subjects in his field, the history of the South is his favorite. His one main weakness is book buying which he just can't resist. His library is the largest private library in Farmville and is well stocked with over four thousand volumes. Students in his classes would venture to say that most of these books contain some notations made by the owner, for as Dr. Walmsley would say "What good do books do just stacked on shelves?" But aside from book collecting, Dr. Walmsley is an author in his own right, having written several small books and some twenty of the sketches in the Dictionary of American Biography.

Besides being president of the local Lions Club, he is a Mason and Shriner. The American Historical Association, the Southside Historical Association, and the American Academy of Political Science also are proud to claim him as a member. Civic improvements also are among the things that interest Dr. Walmsley.

There are songs on the Hit Parade that are soon forgotten, and then there are so called "all time favorites". Dr. Walmsley is an "all time favorite" on every student's list. His untiring devotion, his active interest, and his unfailing good judgement make him indispensable to the students here. We count it a privilege to be able to say we know you and love you, Dr. Walmsley.

started. "Oh well," you sigh, "there's next week-end", and you write home for permission to come back then.

Week-ends spent at VPI, or some similar school, are—, well simply beyond description. How shall we describe these? Well, frankly, we can't!!

What about week-ends spent on campus? Imagine, a whole afternoon without classes! Little things that have accumulated all week are actually done Saturday afternoon. Oh, there's so much you're going to do! From 11:05 Saturday until 8:05 Monday morning is a long, long time. At least, that's what you think until you start your theme due at 8:05 at 7:00 Monday morning.

Week-ends? Oh, what would S. T. C. girls do without them? Pardon me, I must go and write for permission to go home next Saturday!

Magazine Opens Writers Contest

Prizes Offered For Best Stories

"Tomorrow" magazine, the increasing excellence of whose fiction has recently drawn approval from such critics as Herschel Brickell and Harrison Smith will begin its second annual college writers' contest this month. It is the purpose of the contest to implement further "Tomorrow's" well-known policy of uncovering new writing talent.

Beginning with the opening of the fall semester, the contest will run until December 31, 1947, and is open to all officially enrolled undergraduate college students in the United States. The best short story will win a $500 first prize, and the next best a $250 prize. All manuscripts received will be considered for publication, and Allan Rangoff, managing editor of "Tomorrow", declared it likely a number of the entries, in addition to the winners, will be suitable for publication. Since the magazine pays $125 and up for acceptance, this will provide additional profitable opportunity for young writers entering the contest.

The board of judges will be composed of two teachers of writing — Professor Sidney Cox of Dartmouth, author of the already famous treatise on writing, "Indirections," and Professor Mark Schorer of the University of California, well known critic and author—and two editors of Doubleday & Company. It is expected that the latter two will be alert to any book possibilities that may present themselves.

Stories should not exceed 5,000 words in length, should be typed in standard manner for submission, and should carry on both manuscript and envelope the phrase, "College Contest," and the writer's name, college, and mailing address. All entries must be accompanied by self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Lab Classes Bring Problems But Just Think--4 Credits

"Well, here I go to Lab class—whoops—forgot my hard lead pencil—well, here I go again." Or maybe it wasn't your pencil you forgot, maybe it was the key to your Lab desk or maybe it was your Lab manual. Or, maybe, just to be different, you actually left your room for the FIRST time with everything that you needed for that class! Just to be different and get away from the old routine for a while, that is.

First you get your Lab directions. (This remark is for the benefit of all those readers who do not have Lab classes. The rest of you all know about it!) Then you beat a little path to the Lab quick as a flash so you can get the slide, or the Petri dish, or the chemicals first. But perhaps today you are going to slice poor little defenseless planaria into bits. And what about washing a few Petri dishes and test tubes or cooking up some agar or nutrient broth? Or just figure out few chemical equations after, of course, you finish your other work! But don't take it so hard, it's all a lot of fun, or so the brain-children tell you. And think of the FOUR credits you are getting, IF you pass, that's the only limitation. But what a limitation!

The odd questions those instructors can ask really amaze you! "Are you sure the Amoeba looks like this drawing you made of it? Are you positive that it has cilia?" "Did you say that the formula for water is H2O2---" "Why does your write-up on the experiment to determine the antibiotic effect of B. subtilis on S. subflava tell so much about the effect of light on the growth of B. coli?" If they can't answer their own questions how in the world do they expect you to be able to? And if they can answer them—why ask you?

Then of course there is the neat little announcement they make about "Your laboratory grade is one-third of your grade for the course." "There goes that A I slaved so hard to make in Lecture class last week," you mutter to yourself as you try to polish up your drawings so they look almost like the stuff you have under the microscope. And even if that titration didn't work out right the first time you grit your teeth and start all over again.

Lab classes are really the thing! Just ask anyone who knows, in other words, anyone who has one. And that covers a lot of territory! Or didn't you know?

The Rotunda Staff dedicates this issue to the memory of Dr. Joseph Leonard Jarman who would have celebrated his eightieth birthday today. Dr. Jarman served as president of this institution for forty-four years.

Choirs Dedicate Concert To Jarman

S. T. C.'s choir and choral club and the Hampden-Sydney glee club presented their fourth performance of A. R. Gaul's oratorio, "The Holy City" in Richmond Sunday night at 8 p. m.

The groups, under the direction of Mr. T. E. Crawley, sang at Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church. Four Richmond soloists appeared with the clubs. They were Mildred Berkness, soprano; Margorie Adams, contralto; E. P. Haas, tenor; and K. Brantley Watson, bass. William H. Schutt was organist for the oratorio.

The service was dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. Joseph L. Jarman. It was broadcast over radio station WLEE.

Each of the choral groups has begun work on music for the Christmas season. Among the numbers to be done by the choir are "Ye Sons of Israel", based on Psalms 113: 1, 2 with music by Mendelssohn-Bartholdy; "Glory to God In The Highest", based on Luke 2:14 with music by Giovanni Pergolesi; and "Before the Paling of the Stars", by Christina Rossetti and A. Walter Kramer. These songs will be included on the Christmas concert scheduled for Sunday, December 14 in the S. T. C. auditorium.

BET Brings Lecturer To STC December 4

Seumas MacManus, noted Irish poet and lecturer, will appear here December 4th sponsored by Beorc Eh Thorn, the English honor society. The lecture will be given at 8:00 p. m. in the college auditorium. The subject for Mr. MacManus' lecture has not yet been announced but it will deal with some phases of Irish poetry and folk-lore. A poet in his own right, Mr. MacManus has written several books which will be on sale in the college bookstore. "Rocky Road To Dublin", his autobiography, is one of his most famous books.

Richman Leads Song Contest

Dr. Luther A. Richman, State Director of Music Education of the Commonwealth of Virginia, will lead the student body in an inter-class song contest in assembly tomorrow morning.

A native of New Palestine, Indiana, Dr. Richman was supervisor of Public School Music in Lebanon, Indiana, for two years. He has also held the positions of head of the Voice department at Northwest Missouri State Teachers College in Maryville, and professor of Voice at Iowa State Teachers College at Cedar Falls. Other positions he has held during his musical career were professor of Music at the University of Cincinnati, and professor of Music during the summer session of 1937 at the University of Pennsylvania.

Delightful Program Presented By Mac Morgan, Accompanist

After shaking in my boots, I finally summoned forth a semblance of composure and hurried in to see Mac Morgan while he was rehearsing in the auditorium. What I saw on the stage was a young man with red hair dressed in a blue pin-striped suit who was singing magnificently.

Mr. Morgan has been called many things such as a tenor, pianist, etc., but he is really a top-flight baritone. His favorite songs of all those on his program Monday night are the Welsh songs because he is partly Welsh. He also likes German songs. Mr. Morgan's program was well received here and was one of the best Lyceum programs ever presented on this campus. His facial expression delighted many, and his voice was pleasing to the ear.

He said that he liked STC very much, and thought it very attractive. He further said that this part of the country was not new to him for he had sung at Randolph-Macon and Sweet Briar. At this point in the interview, Mr. John La Montaine, the accompanist chimed in with "I like what I've seen around here." Now whether he meant the girls or the scenery I do not know. Maybe both.

Mr. Morgan and Mr. La Montaine admitted that they had had loads of fun "doing the ten-cent stores", and they also gave the Men's Department of several local stores a thorough "going over".

Both of these gentlemen were so friendly and co-operative that they made an outstanding hit with every person in the audience. It was a real pleasure to have Mr. Mac Morgan and Mr. John La Montaine on the campus. They made the first Lyceum program of this year an outstanding success.

Former President Served 44 Years

Dr. Joseph Leonard Jarman, president emeritus and former president of the State Teachers College for forty-four years, succumbed Saturday afternoon, November 14, after an extended illness. Dr. Jarman would have been eighty years old today.

Dr. Jarman took over the presidency of this institution in 1902 and earned a reputation as a pioneer in the education field in Virginia. A native of Charlottesville, he was professor of Natural Sciences at Emory and Henry College when he resigned to become the fourth head of this college.

In 1930, he was offered the post of State Superintendent of Public Instruction by the late Governor John G. Pollard, but he refused at the specific request of the students and faculty of Farmville. Dr. Jarman developed the college from a small Southern school to a $2,000,000 institution during his 44 years service, and was considered the Dean of teacher's education in the state.

He was educated at the old Miller Training School and at the University of Virginia. From 1928-1932 he served as a member of the State Board of Education. In 1906, the Virginia educator received an honorary LLD from Hampden-Sydney College and in 1937 he was elected to membership in Phi Delta Kappa, national professional fraternity in education" in recognition of distinguished services rendered" in the teaching field.

Last rites for Dr. Jarman were held Monday afternoon, November 17, at the Methodist Church in Farmville.

Nobel Prize Winner Feted With Display

A special display has been set up in the library concerning the three Nobel Prize winners as reported from Stockholm, Sweden, November 13, 1947. Andre Gide, 77 year old French novelist, won the Nobel Literary Prize. There are several of his books on display including "Thisee" contributed by Miss Helen Draper, head of the Language Department, from her own personal French library. There are several magazine articles also about this noted French author.

Two British scientists won the prizes for physics and chemistry. Sir Edward Victor Appleton, 55, world authority on radio waves, won the physics prize. Sir Robert Robinson, 61, regarded as the world's foremost authority on the synthesis or building up of natural compounds was awarded the chemistry prize. Information concerning these men and their work may be found also on display.

A clipping from the Richmond Times Dispatch with pictures of the prize winners and their story is posted over the table of the display.

In observance of children's Book Week, S. T. C.'s library staff has collected for display, some of the best known and best loved books for children. These books range from fairy tales to "The Three Musketeers" by Alexander Dumas.

Next week's Rotunda will be published on Tuesday, November 25, due to Thanksgiving holidays. The deadline for all copy is Thursday night at 10::00 p. m.

Dr. J. L. Jarman

On Saturday afternoon, November 15, the passing of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman marked the end of a magnificent life and brought to the entire student body the realization of its great loss. A friend of generations of students was gone.

Dr. Jarman was many things to us: an educator, administrator, counsellor, and friend. Not a student who attended Farmville during the years when he served so well escaped his influence. His was a wise and noble life that made the students and faculty love him. We shall never forget his love for red roses, his love of music, and above all his love for "his girls". The thousands of students who attended this institution during his administration share in a rich experience that has made them better citizens because his life touched theirs.

Dr. Jarman's name is synonomous with that of State Teachers College Assuming the Presidency here in 1902, he transformed this institution from a modest normal school to one of the most important teacher's colleges in Virginia and the South. Possessed of rare vision and intellect, he foresaw the needs in Virginia's educational program and provided leadership which brought to him the wide recognition which he so justly deserved. Today he would have celebrated his eightieth birthday. Today we mourn his passing in a time of grief made lighter by our knowledge of the fact that more than half of his rich life was given to the brilliant and devoted service among his fellow men.

We shall not forget his singing "Keep on Hoping" to the Senior class each year. We shall remember always the students as they sang "What's the matter with Jarman?"

We, the students, have lost a great friend.

Support Choral Groups

"Give praise where praise is due" is a famous quotation. It is a fine code by which to live, but one which many of us fail to remember.

Many organizations function on our campus propelled ever foreward by a small group of students who never receive adequate thanks. Such are the S. T. C. Choir and Choral Club—groups of our girls representing a cross-section of the student body. These girls meet with their challenging director at least twice a week, contributing both their time and their talents toward a finished performance of which the entire college may be justly proud. During preparations for special concerts and programs the girls work over-time seldom complaining.

The trips the girls have made recently have included many rewarding moments—moments of great happiness, but the girls have missed work and sleep, both of which are difficult to make up on such an active campus as ours.

Every member of every group is aware of the fact that she gets from the groups only what she contributes toward it. Each girl on campus also knows that "a choir is no stronger than its weakest link" and the choir and choral club members are diligent in their efforts to make their organizations strong and admirable. We, the students of S. T. C., should become the most loyal supporters of these girls if we are not filling that capacity already. No matter what the amount of praise may pour in from outside sources, the most pleasing compliments are those received from intimate associates. Our Choir and Choral Club are outstanding groups, recognized over the state, and we should be proud of them and support their every undertaking.

The letters which have poured into the hands of the groups' director since the two immediate past concerts have shown that our girls and their work are appreciated throughout the state. Certainly we, their fellow classmates, can show them an equal amount of praise and appreciation.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

Tributes have been paid to Dr. Jarman from so many sources that we feel inadequate to add any more; still that which we feel in our hearts is also a tribute to him. We who were here under his administration admired and loved him, and you who came after his resignation felt his influence and sang "What's the matter with Jarman" with us with matching enthusiasm. Dr. Jarman will be remembered in the state for his fine and loyal service, but in the hearts of "his girls" there are more familiar remembrances: the red rose bud he wore in his lapel, and the way he called us "young ladies"; his favorite hymns that we sang in chapel and the way he read the 13th chapter of Corinthians at the opening exercises. We'll long remember that he customarily sang "Keep On Hoping" to the outgoing seniors, and the little ceremony we made of giving him a birthday rose and serenading him. These are the things we remember when we think of Dr. Jarman, and his profound influence has made its mark on us to endure forever.

The lyceum program Monday night was a record occasion in that it was attended as college-sponsored events should be, and that it marked the beginning of a new plan by which we will have fewer and better known artists. Mac Morgan was well liked from the beginning, and seems to have shot the fallacious notion that all concert artists are stuffy to practical non-existence. Not to make a molehill of La Montaine, he was excellent; several people, who are in a position to know, even said that he surpassed Morgan as to musicianship. At any rate our thanks to the administration for securing them. We are looking forward to the next lyceum program.

Bed Check

Your bed checker has been very busy this week trying to keep up with the "doings" of all of you.

First of all, Laurels to the cast and staff of "Death Takes A Holiday". It was a wonderful production and appreciated by all.

Some gay romances were started by the S. T. C. Choir and Choral Club and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club to V. P. I. and Richmond.

Galloway is still raving about the wonderful time she had at Tech last week end. Tell us more about Morris!

If you are in need of medical aid when Joe De Hart gets his degree, be sure and look him up. Just think how much it will help Lou Shelor and him get a start in life.

Rushing and Sterling really looked "knocked-out" after their trip with the choir to Richmond Sunday night. Could the football game and dances at Tech have had anything to do with it?

It must be the real thing between Mary Lou Woodward and Perc. We hear hat he drove 140 miles in that model "T" convertible (in the rain and snow) just to see her.

Katie says this week-end was the "best ever" when you ask her about Homecomings at Randolph Macon. Nancy Kibler agrees also.

Where did Dot Doutt get that white carnation she was wearing in her hair Monday? Mighty pretty what-ever the source. We might ask Puckett Asher about her red rose Friday night.

We hear "Cab" and Tommy had a fine time in Richmond Sunday night. He's the "cutest one".

Bob must be something special to make Barbara Andrews crawl out of bed at 2 a. m. to polish her shoes. (Saddles at that.)

Has anyone asked Anne Joyner if she had a good time in Richmond? He's mighty good looking, Anne.

What's this we hear about "Milly" wanting to meet some new men. Isn't Hinton "the one" any more?

It has been reported that Virginia Westbrook had two dates Saturday night. Tell us more Westbrook, how do you do it??

Tindall's eyes sparkle more than usual since her week-end in Richmond. What is his name, Virginia?

It's getting late and your ole bedchecker is getting sleepy. After seeing my grade estimates, I have to do more studying and get a little more sleep. See you children next week.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

In regard to your letter of November 12, concerning the meals in the dining hall, we wish to challenge some of the statistics stated.

Before giving our argument we wish to say that we intend no reflection upon our dietician and her efforts. The meal analyzed in your letter was a typical Sunday dinner at S. T. C. Sunday dinner is definitely the best meal of the week, and it is true that it may have been a good one—but why use that for an example when the meals during the week are inadequate?

After taking an overall view of the menus from day to day, we have found that each student can get an adequate number of calories (2,000-2,500 or more per day).

Careful study, however, shows a definite deficiency in Vitamin C. "Girls of our age require a daily intake of 60 to 75 milligrams in order to maintain a fairly satisfactory amount of ascorbic-acid (Vitamin C) in the blood plasma—"

In today's (Wednesday, November12, menu), we find for breakfast: puffed rice, bacon and apples, bread and butter, and milk and coffee; for lunch: macaroni and cheese(a very little cheese), beans or cooked cabbage, grape jelly, rolls and butter, milk, and pears; for dinner: pork chops, mashed potatoes, applesauce, sliced bread, butter, milk and coffee, and jello with whipped cream

To you this menu may seem adequate, but generally speaking, does the food on each table feed ten girls? Furthermore, some tables had beans and macaroni at lunch while others had macaroni

Thanksgiving Approaches

Tribute to Dr. J. L. Jarman

Where are you going, Great Heart?
To life Today above the Past;
To make To-morrow sure and fast;
To nail God's colors to the mast.
Then God go with you, Great Heart!

This week our college community lives under the shadow of the passing of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, for forty-four years president of 'Farmville'. Since his retirement on June 30, a year ago, Doctor Jarman had been confined to his home by the illness that claimed him in death last Saturday—just four days before his eightieth birthday. He was therefore virtually unknown to our freshman and sophomores. I am certain that they must wonder what manner of man he was who could evoke such demonstrations of unfeigned devotion from all who came under his influence.

Doctor Jarman labored long for our college, and well. His administration was longer than the combined tenures of his three predecessors. In 1902, he found at Farmville a few unattractive buildings on a small city block in the heart of the town. These he expertly weaved into the gracious campus that we now enjoy. Along with material progress he advanced the standing of the institution to the commanding position that it occupies today.

These achievements alone would suffice to assure Doctor Jarman's reputation as an administrator. They could not, however, ensure him the abiding place that he occupies in the hearts of the thousands of students that have gone out from Farmville, nor account for his long standing as the first citizen of the community and as the grand old man of Virginia Education. Such evidences of respect stem from more subtle sources, the very sources that make for greatness.

If simplicity without brilliance and genuineness without genius be greatness, then Doctor Jarman was a great man. He left no learned volume to ensure a spurious immortality; he was not renowned for famous addresses; you will find no witty sayings of his. His life was simple but not austere. Almost his only indulgence was his cigar which came to be as much a part of himself as his cane which he neither used nor flaunted. The lessons that he learned in childhood, both formal and from hard experience, never forsook him, so that his attitude toward life never swerved despite the changing tempo of the times. The lessons stood him in good stead because from them issued those simple commonplace virtues which marked him the kindly gentleman.

Doctor Jarman's one shortcoming was the source of his chief strength, namely, his great heart. Because of it he was sometimes imposed upon, and he knew it. But he did not consider himself the loser thereby, because girls in trouble were attracted to him as iron to a lodestone, and through the years 'old girls' returned again and again to remind him of favors forgotten and to extend gratitude. When students did not come to him, he sought them. The sound of marching feet in the hallways at the change of classes was excuse enough for him to leave his desk, stand benignly in the hallway, blocking traffic while he "visited" with them informally in small groups. His girls responded with vigor to his friendly overtures.

Every institution as it grows in years comes to have a hall mark that is stamped upon its graduates. If, after twenty years of association with Doctor Jarman, I could epitomize what he strove to have as the hall mark of Farmville girls, I should say it was "The Art of Fine Living". He challenged staff to teach and students to achieve the joy and beauty of a rightly ordered life. By precept and by example he led the way.

The welter of educational jargon that he was obliged to listen to left him unruffled. His concepts of religion were unaffected by theological innovations and disputes. His standards of right and wrong were never watered down. Therefore, while his chapel talks, which were frequent, were more homely than homily, the humblest freshman knew what he was driving at.

Generation after generation of students listened to him intone from the twelfth chapter of First Corinthians: "Without love I am become as sounding brass or tinkling cymbal"; they heard him sing: "Be the Best of Whatever you are"; they followed his advice: "I want you to look your prettiest tonight"; they suffered his censure because it was usually deserved and always tempered with his famous smile. Whatever the occasion his "girls" were liable to burst forth with "What's the Matter With Jarman?" What it was that generated it I do not know, but that intangible something that we call the "Farmville Spirit" was Jarman's greatest contribution. It is today our most priceless asset, and we lose it at our peril.

Every institution and every individual is seeking an answer to the ancient question of Job: "Where is the way where light dwelleth?" More than anyone else that has been associated with State Teachers College, Doctor Jarman sought to find an answer to that question and he strove to have young people seek the answer. More than anyone else he helped to give substance to ideals, to give soul to body. The measure of his success can be guaged by what our college is today and what it is capable of becoming.

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mix'd in him, that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, "This was a man!"

Russell States College Fees Rise

Student fees have increased to such an extent that many intellectually capable young people are unable to attend college, according to Dr. John Dale Russell, Director of the Division of Higher Education, United States Office of Education.

The cost of college attendance has risen, and a large part of this higher cost is now met by student fees, more than 50 per cent of which are paid today by the Federal Government through provisions for veterans' education, Dr. Russell added.

"The cost of going to college will be too high for many family budgets, if student fees continue to go up and if no provision is made for increased financial supand cabbage. Where were the girls going to get any Vitamin C if they had no cabbage? Those receiving cabbage did not meet even the minimum requirement. An average serving of cooked cabbage, fried apples, applesauce and one small pear gives only 24 milligrams of Vitamin C which is approximately 1-3 of the day's requirement. A review of yesterday's menus will show that Vitamin C requirement was lacking from 1-4 to 1-2.

To us this means that we need more raw and canned citrus fruits and juices because they are among our chief sources of Vitamin C. We realize that fruits are high. However, I think we speak for each girl when we say we would be willing to have less starchy foods and more fresh fruits and vegetables.

During our analysis, we believe that with the exception of Vitamin C and Iron, other vitamins and minerals will, on the whole, meet the minimum requirements, if each girl will get and eat an average serving of each food.

Now, back to your letter, perhaps you may help us clarify a few questions. Were the potatoes peeled and cooked before weighing? Was the weight of the chicken estimated by live weight as they were bought? (A chicken loses approximately one-half pound when dressed.) Did your serving of 6 ounces include the bone? In concluding, you state that the volume is adequate. Does this mean that the food nutrients are adequate? A diet of adequate volume (calories) and one furnishing adequate nourishment have different meanings.

Interested Too

Editors note: We feel that every student has had an adequate opportunity to express her opinion on the food, so no more letters will be accepted on this subject until a committee to be appointed by Dr. Lancaster to study the food situation has made its report which will be carried in full in a future Rotunda.

PIGSKIN PARADE

By TONI ALLEN

An inspired band of fighting Citadel Bulldogs upset the dope bucket in the Southern Conference Saturday in Charleston, South Carolina, by coming from behind in the final two minutes of play to topple Virginia Military Institute's highly favored Keydets, 7-6. After the Citadel's Quarterback Chuck Goodman had sneaked over from the one-yard line, All-State Guard Bill Henderson split the uprights with a perfect kick from placement to provide the victory margin. Henderson starred both offensively and defensively all afternoon and completely stole the spotlight from VMI's Captain Malachi Mills, a big tackle that the Keydets are boosting for conference honors. It was Henderson, a Tuscaloosa, Alabama, boy who charged through to block Joe Gantt's attempted punt to set up the Citadel's touchdown as time ran out.

The Cavaliers of the University of Virginia battled rain and mud and a fighting West Virginia team in Morgantown, West Virginia, Saturday afternoon, finally blasting through to a hard-earned 6-0 victory before a homecoming crowd of 18,000. Grover Jones, pile-driving Cavalier fullback, cracked over for the lonesome touchdown, topping off an uninterrupted march of 57 yards. Jones carried the watersoaked ball three successive times from the nine-yard line, slamming across from the two with less than four minutes to go. George Grimes' placekick for the extra point was wide but the six-pointer loomed as big as 60. Previously, Virginia had been stopped twice inside the Mountaineer 20, West Virginia maneuvering into scoring once on Virginia's 17 and again within the last few seconds of the game when the Mountaineers roared back to the same spot on a long pass from Tom Keane to Jimmy Walthall. The game ended with Keane throwing futil end zone passes, but causing plenty of fear for the Cavalier defensive network.

A wet and muddy field didn't bother the powerful Indians of Williamsburg's William and Mary in the least at Victory Stadium, Roanoke, Saturday afternoon as they smothered Washington and Lee's General's 45-6, to further demonstrate that they deserve a bowl bid. It was Jack Cloud, the Flyer from Norfolk, who personally engineered four of the Braves' touchdowns. Ed Magdziak, freshman brother of Stan, went across for a pair and Lou Holtsma, junior end from Paterson, New Jersey, took in a pass from Stan Magdziak for the other. The older Mag made good three placements. The most electrifying play of the contest, however, came in the last 25 seconds of the game when Gene Bennett, W&L's sophomore back, from Hinton, West Virginia, intercepted a pass on the General's one-yard stripe and went all the way, 99 yards, to pay dirt as the final whistle blew. The Braves were knocking at the door late in the game, having moved to the Generals' 24 when the elusive Bennett jumped high into the air practically on his own goal line and was away like the breeze. One Indian almost nailed him, but Bennett shook him off, crossing the goal line just as the final whistle blew. The Generals penetrated William and Mary's 40-yard line only once, except for Bennett's run and the William and Mary line hounded Working and Boyda, their passers all afternoon. Ramsey, Tommy Thompson and Jim McDowell were particularly effective breaking through and downing W&L backs.

The hard-running Virginia Tech Gobblers were only partially slowed by a muddy field today as they rolled to a 26-14 Southern Conference triumph over the battling University of Richmonder Spiders. Some 5,500 thoroughly chilled spectators in Miles Stadium saw the Gobblers pile up a 26-lead in the first three periods and then survive a fighting finish by their Big Six foes which produced a tally in each of the last two periods. The field was soaked by a downpour which stopped shortly before game time, but, surprisingly, there was but one fumble in the soggy contest.

Roger Dughi bulled his way for five yards and a tie-breaking touchdown with four minutes left to set Randolph-Macon up with a 13-7 triumph over Hampden-Sydney Saturday afternoon in the forty-sixth showing of the State's most traditional of small college rivalries in an engagement distinguished chiefly by the fact knee-deep mud kept either side from budging more than several inches at a time under its own power. It rained before the game, it rained before the game, it rained during it, and through the long afternoon both teams suffered complete frustration at the hands of the elements. Hardly anyone could pass, hardly anyone could run, and the mud was so bad that by the time a player had been on the premises more than five minutes his identity was completely obscured. But despite the adverse weather, a Randolph-Macon home coming assemblage of over 3,500 customers turned out and most of them, though soaked and frozen through, remained until the end of a touch-and-go contest, which was exciting chiefly because no one could tell just what might happen next. Nothing went according to script. Randolph-Macon, which on dryer days this semester, had shown a fairly dis-

Meet the Faculty

Dr. J. P. Wynne, our Director of Teacher Education and Head of the Department of Education and Philosophy is a real teacher of teachers, as the many students who've studied under him will readily verify.

It was at Duke in his native North Carolina that Dr. Wynne received his A. B. and A. M. degrees. For his Ph. D. he traveled north to Columbia.

A college professor from 'way back, Dr. Wynne taught in the north, south, east, and west before coming to S. T. C. in '24. Among the colleges at which he's "professed" are: Mississippi A. and M., Millsaps College, George Washington University, the University of West Virginia, the U. of Illinois the University of Idaho, Harvard and Ohio University. Right now his teaching extension classes for the University of Virginia at Lynchburg.

It's a well known fact that Dr. Wynne has authorized quite a long string of books dealing with methods, educational philosophy, and educational and general psychology. His latest work is The Philosophies of Education. This topic, he states, is the one he likes best in his field.

Dr. Wynne holds membership in "Ninety-Nineteen", Phi Delta Kappa, Kappa Delta Pi, the Virginia Education Association, the National Education Association, the Philosophy of Education Society, the Rotary Club, and he heads the Farmville Teachers Association. Two committee chairmanships which he holds are those of the National Committee of the Philosophy of Education Society, and the Professional Standards Committee of Virginia Education Around S. T. C. Dr. Wynne sponsors the Philosophy Club and serves as chairman of the Summer School Committee, the Catalog Committee, and the Planning Committee.

On the recreational side Dr. Wynne goes in for softball, being a former member of the Farmville League. We hear tell, too, that he used to be quite a semi-pro baseball pitcher. Dr. Wynne tells us that hunting would rate higher on his sports list if it didn't involve so much climbing through barbed wire fences. Another of his indulgences is vegetable gardening.

With the very likeable, capable, and untiring Dr. Wynne teaching us to teach, our profession can't fail to reach the new heights toward which we're striving.

On The Record

In our last session we talked about Bessie Smith, one of the forerunners of jazz. She represented the lowly jazz the tradition of simplicity of style.

Columbia, last month, issued an album featuring the nucleus of Woody Herman's great band. This set is a terrific example of modern 1947 jazz.

The members of Herman's Woodpeckers are all young jazzmen. Their playing is typically modern. Men such as Bill Harris, (trombone), Billy Bamer, (guitar) Flip Phillips, (tenor), come into the top rank of musicians. These jazzists are driven at a fast pace along side such stars as Woody Herman and Red Norris.

There isn't a bad recording in the set. All the tunes but "Someday Sweetheart," and "I Surrender Dear" are written by members of the Herman Band. Unquestionably the best of the album is the latter. After a slow tempo at the outset, featuring some of Red Norris's finest vibe works, the band doubles the time and goes wild. The record is going to become a collector's item.

Six of the other seven disks, "Nero," "Steps," "Pam," "Someday Sweetheart," "Last Weekend," and "Igor" are stiff tunes featuring various Herman sidemen. Chubby Jackson, the great bass man, wrote "Four Men on a Horse" for the Woodchopper's rhythm section. These four men, Bill Benin, Jackson, Doc Lamond, and Jamacia Rawles form the greatest rhythm section yet recorded.

This album, Columbia C-121, is a must. It is tops.

Stone Jewelry Makes Come-Back

By Lela Bouldin

Along with the romantic look of full skirts and luscious colors, stone jewelry has returned to fashion, jewelry that flashes with subdued fire and glitters in settings of gold. There are real jewels if you can afford them as well as good imitations of real stones if that fits your budget better.

Rhinestones hold the top place in jewelry. Many people dress up their evening dress with rhinestone chokers or bracelets and add rhinestone clips in their hair. Or if you prefer to make your old dresses bright again, add a rhinestone pin or clips (if the dress has a square neck) and match these with rhinestone earrings. Some girls even brighten up their "baby doll' shoes with clips on one side.

There are many lovely pieces of gold jewelry. Who could want more than a pretty gold choker to set off a low necked evening dress? Gold bracelets look very attractive over black evening gloves.

Costume jewelry is again popular with many different designs to go with different costumes. Dress up your old suit or dress with a bright piece of costume jewelry and fool your "best beau" into thinking that you have on a new outfit.

It took almost nothing flat after the start of proceedings to indicate both teams would have to play a waiting game, hoping to take advantage of the mistakes of the enemy.

He went to the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for his degrees in Music, and to the University of Cincinnati for his Ph. D. and M. A. degrees.

A former member of the Cincinnati Zoo Opera Company, he has done solo work in concert, oratorios, opera, radio, and with symphony orchestras.

port from other sources after the G. I. legislation expires," he said. "More and more," Dr. Russell said, "this trend will limit college education to children of higher-income families—a counter-democratic tendency."

These outstanding developments were apparent, Dr. Russell disclosed, from a recent Office of Education survey conducted at the request of the President's Commission on Higher Education:

1. Student fees, which in previous years have paid about a third of the total annual expense bill of the colleges, now provide for more than half of the total annual college educational expenditures. Of this amount, collected as student fees during the current fiscal year, the Federal Government paid more than half, or over $300-000,000.

According to Dr. Russell, the colleges have become increasingly dependent upon student fees as their chief flexible source of income to meet rapidly incresing costs of providing higher education. Costs have increased because of the necessity of serving record enrollments. The inflationary factor in the increased educational and general cost of the colleges is estimated to be only 24 percent, much less than the national average increase in the cost of living.

Lancaster Attends College Inaugural

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the college, represented S. T. C. at the inauguration of Dr. Frank Bell Lewis as the third president of Mary Baldwin College in Staunton.

The inaugural ceremonies were held at Mary Baldwin College at 11:00 a. m. on Tuesday, November 18. Representatives of more than 150 universities, colleges and other educational institutions were in the academic procession which preceeded the ceremonies.

Red 'n' White Takes Honors In Inter-Class Song Contest

Color Rush Banners Adorn Dormitories

Top honors in the inter-class song contest, conducted in assembly Thursday, November 20, went to the red and white Senior and Sophomore classes. The Seniors won first place with their original composition of words and music while the Sophomores arranged words to the tune of "There's A Tavern In The Town."

The green and white Juniors used the melody of the University of Southern California alma mater and the Freshman composed original words to "Anchors Aweigh".

Judges for the contest were Miss Jeanne Patterson, Miss Emily Clark and Mr. Ralph Wakefield. Following the contest Dr. Luther A. Richman, State Director of Music Education of the Commonwealth of Va., led the student body in a sing and rendered several entertaining solo numbers.

Winners in the annual color rush which was held on the Athletic Field Friday afternoon, November 21, at 5 p. m. were Patsy Ritter, red and white, for Student building; Evelyn Rippon, red and white, for White House; and Betsy Carper, green and white, for Rotunda.

Also, Jessie Pickett, green and white, for Library; Nancy Cooke, green and white, for Junior building; and Alice Ann Abernathy, red and white, for Senior building. Since the score was tied with an even number of red and white and green and white winners, the 10 points received towards the color cup were divided with each color receiving five points apiece toward the cup.

Jane Burchett, president of the Athletic Association which sponsored the annual song contest in Assembly.

Assembly

Reverend McKinley Reynolds, pastor of the Farmville Methodist Church, conducted Chapel services today. He brought a Thanksgiving message to the student body. The program included also a vocal solo by Dorothy Dout. Her song was in line with the Thanksgiving program.

STC students will leave tomorrow, November 26, for the Thanksgiving holidays. All students are expected to return Sunday, November 30.

Royal Wedding Much Envied By Impoverished STC Student

I had gone to the library that night to do my Education. I simply had to look up those reference books. But, as usual, before going into the Reference Room, I stopped by the newspaper rack to glance (just glance, mind you) at the headlines. I have always considered the headlines, Terry and The Pirates, and Dagwood an important part of my Education. After reading the comics, I turned to the front of the paper and stared blankly. Princess Elizabeth, Prince Philip and the rest of the Royal family stared equally blankly back. Naturally, I had to read part of the article.

After reading the write-up, I gazed again at the picture, thinking to myself "My, that Philip, he's not half bad. And Elizabeth, she's not too bad either—but a DuBarry Sucess Course would do wonders for her. Some clothes designed by Adrian or Irene wouldn't hurt either. Still, she looks and always will look mediocre to me. Now suppose I were a princess with Philip as my prince! I really think I could acquire a taste for a set-up like that."

Once again, I glanced down at the article. When I saw there was to be a re-broadcast of the wedding ceremony, I gathered up my cumbersome, dusty, old books and marked back to the building. It was almost 8:30 p. m. by then. The Principles of Functional Contingency and Purposeful Unity would have to wait. I had some uniting of my own to do with my radio.

Back in my room, my feet on the radiator, my ears pointed toward the radio, I listened breathlessly as my friends, Elizabeth and Philip, repeated their vows. The wedding seemed to have all the pomp and splendor I had expected. As a matter of fact, I enjoyed it immensely except when Elizabeth promised to obey him—she, the future queen, and he, merely the Prince Consort. That part seemed ridiculous.

But I was so envious! When the broadcast was over, I racked back in my comfortable S. T. C. easy chair and dreamed of my own royal wedding. Oh, it would have been fabulous—much more exciting than Lizzy's and Phil's. My wardrobe would have been magnificent. The three days before the wedding would have been devoted entirely to parties and eating. I, and my prince, would have ridden around in one of those old time coaches with heralds blowing bugles for weeks. Indeed, Marie Antoinette would have been the poor man's queen in comparison with me.

In the midst of my grandest dream (my coronation) some curled and creamed female came charging in, yelling "Phone call on second floor!" I dashed up the steps, my heart pounding. "Has Philip run out on Elizabeth?" Oh yes, all sorts of wild (and yet not too far fetched) thoughts were wending their crooked little paths through my brain.

With my hot little hands I grabbed the phone and gasped into it. It happened to have been my

Library Displays Helpful Pamphlets

Material Available For STC Students

In the reserve book room of the library, there is a table of free material that proves to be helpful to both students and sudent teachers.

This material consists of reprints of articles from The World Book Encyclopedia and Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia such as pamphlets on "How to Use Webster's New International Dictionary", "How to Use the Reader's Guide", and "How Books Are Made." Additional information may be secured concerning Safety Education, bibliographies including the S. T. C. Library leaflet of recent editions to the library, and A Pictorial Map of The Americas featuring the Pan American Highway. Two pamphlets that might be of interest to teachers are "How to Organize a Library" and "Planning A School Library."

Miss Ruffin, the college librarian, reports that these materials are kept up to date. Also that she gets these materials in quantities of 25 to 50 pamphlets.

She urges that students look at home for duplicates or unwanted copies of books by these authors: Edgar Allen Poe, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Walt Whitman, Herman Melville, Ernest Hemingway, Sinclair Lewis, John dos Passos, Gertrude Stein, John Steinbeck, Ernest Caldwell, William Saroyan, and Harold Faulkner.

Books may be brought to Jacqueline Eagle in room 17 Annex in the main building or to Mary Neale Garrett in room 9 Cunningham.

Guest Artists Here For Two Xmas Concerts In December

Annual Christmas concerts will be given at S .T. C. and Hampden-Sydney this year with two guest soloists appearing with the Farmville Choir and Choral Club and H.-S. Glee Club. The program at S. T. C. will be on Sunday night, December 14, and the one at Hampden-Sydney on Monday, December 15 at 8 o'clock.

Miss Florence Manning, the soprano guest artist, is one of New York City's outstanding soloists, having sung frequently with Bob Shaw at Carnegie Hall in oratorio performances. She has been soloist for Dr. Nobel at St. Thomas's in New York and she was the soprano soloist with College Choir a number of years ago when they presented the Brahms Requiem here and in New York City. She sang the New York premier of the opera "Peter Grimes" with great success and does solo often at City Music Center of New York City. Miss Manning has made repeated appearances with the Philadelphia and Boston Symphonies and at the Philadelphia Bach Festivals. She has been acclaimed by Leon Bernstein as possessing "one of the finest vocal techniques in the country."

Miss Emma Pitt, the guest contralto for the concerts, has evoked enthusiastic responses from audiences wherevere she has appeared. She has given numerous recitals, is onc of the South's best known radio artists, and has appeared with the Nashville and Memphis Symphony Orchestras and choral groups. In 1939 Miss Pitt gave a Town Hall recital in New York, and received praise which few achieve in a debut before New York critics. The New York Herald-Tribune critic announced that Miss Pitt was one of the most promising vocalists to be heard in New York that season. She was featured performer on the radio

Dreams of Food, Football, Dates, Foreseen For Holiday

Gobble! Gobble! Yep, that well-known Thanksgiving lingo is being sprayed around again as the poor turkey runs to safety.

'Twas several days before, and all through the college, creatures were stirring. Slips are signed for cuts—the sky's the limit—everything is being cut! Everyone is tired of this monotonous thing called study.

Ah, to be home again—food! Just when our waistlines were slimming a little, too.

Let's look in on one (only because she is going home) little creature and see what is going on in her mind.

Ah, we see a dense fog (typical S. T. C.er aliright). It is beginning to clear a little as a vision of a turkey splashes across her cerebum or is it cerebellum(remind me to take another course in Biology). In a split second the turkey is pictured on the platter with steam rising (no, that is still the fog clearing). Dressing, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie and many other luscious items are next to the turkey. The scene changes. A handsome boy flashes through the mind. Things are getting better all the time. In the same picture we see a dance, football game, and several parties. The fog has cleared completely. A light bulb flashes on the mind. Our subject jumps up, dashes madly to the Dean's parlor and grabs a slip for cutting classes!! After hours and days of chasing down professors, the slip is signed.

Our gay little subject starts packing. By packing we mean cramming things into every available crack and crevice. Then comes the difficult part—having your roommate sit on it while you try to lock it. It's really an art! Try it some time!

Now our typical S. T. C. er is locking up everything in the closet, checking to see if she has her train ticket, and having her private porter (roommate) carry her bags to the station.

They play bridge while sitting on suitcases as the cards fly everywhere when the wind blows.

Ah, here comes the train. Our subject kisses roommate goodbye—she's off! She certainly is—in more than one sense of the word.

Irish Poet To Tell Fairy Tales, Lore

Seumas MacManus, Irish author of "The Rocky Road to Dublin", "Dark Patriot", "The Shell o' the World's End", and others will appear twice in the S.T.C. auditorium, December 4th.

Mr. MacManus will appear at the assembly program on Thursday following Thanksgiving holidays and his lecture will take place at 8:00 p. m. The topic for his lecture has not been received by Boerc Eh Thorn; but according to Mrs. LeGrand, who addressed the society at its last meeting, he will tell a number of folk legends and fairy tales as well as give readings of his own poems.

The lecturcs given by this Irish poet-lecturer have been well received by the colleges which he has visited so that a large attendance is expected here. Tickets will be available from members of Boerc Eh Thorn prior to the lecture Thursday night.

Committee chairmen from Boerc Eh Thorn are: program, Anne East; tickets, Jacqueline Eagle; and publicity, Iris Coleman and Betty Spindler. Posters are being made by Eula Ayres.

Officers of Beorc Eh Thorn are Mildred Davis, president; Anne East, vice-president; Edna Earle Waters, secretary; and Lucy Addleman, treasurer.

Beorc Eh Thorn is a local honor society in English founded at Farmville in October 1935. The three Old English rune letters, which it has adopted for its name, symbolize the quest of literature to which the members are pledged and inspiration and discipline which it affords. The society

In his message to the students, Dr Canfield said, "My message is twofold—as a citizen, I say, 'Denote much to China, for Russia and Communism cannot be stopped in Europe until something is done toward this end in Asia.'—as an individual I say, 'Send them the Gospel, for in it lies not only their solution but ours!'

Officers of Inter-Varsity are Melbale Boothe, president; Nadine Lewere, vice president; Christine Bunch, secretary; and Dorothy Dout, song leader.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is an inter-dcnominational group whose purpose it is to promote Christian ideals and interest on the campus.

Barter Theatre Gives "The Hasty Heart"

Robert Porterfield's Barter Players will present "The Hasty Heart" by John Patrick in the college auditorium Tuesday, December 2 at 8 p. m.

Tickets for the play will be sold at the table in the hall at various announced times. The Barter Players are now on a national tour, and they have been called the "most interesting theatre in America" by the New York Daily Mirror.

The Barter Players are not new to STC students. They have presented outstanding plays here before such as "Twelfth Night" and "State of the Union."

We Need More Fire Drills

How safe are we from the dangers of fire? How would we re-act if such an emergency occurred.

We have had only one fire drill thus far during the current college year, and only the students living in the Main building participated in that. Cunningham Hall is called fire proof, but we are inclined to believe that no building is strictly fire-proof since the Winecoff Hotel and other holocausts of the last two years.

The lack of fire drills must be attributed to apparent inefficiency on the part of the Fire Chief and her staff. Our fire drill in two and one-half months does not assure anyone that we would be able to evacuate the buildings quickly ig such a need arose. We are definitely in need of that assurance —and it can come only from regular practice.

We must have at least one fire drill a month during class time, and one during the night. Furthermore, such drills should be planned and conducted by the Fire Chief and her staff. This is their responsibility to the students and to the college.

While we have yet to see evidence this year of sufficient thought and planning on the part of those responsible for drills and other matters related to fire pervention and action in the event of fire, we hope that we may look forward to immediate improvement in the situation. Every student in every building must know how to protect herself and others if and when the need arises.

Fire is dangerous and costly in both lives and finances. We seem to realize this fact, but yet we have failed to have fire drills which are vitally important to our welfare. Some students regard these drills as a nuisance while others take a "why should I hurry—I know its only a drill attitude." Both of these attitudes are dangerous. They lend to laxity while promptness and efficiency is what we need.

We have always prided ourselves on our spirit of co-operation, but as yet, we have seen little co-operation in the important matter of fire drills.

There is no limit to the number of fire drills needed, nor can we say that we are perfect after having had only one fire drill. "Practice makes perfect" so the saying goes —and that means fire drills, too.

Appreciate Thanksgiving

Tomorrow we shall leave S. T. C., for a few days to celebrate one of our nation's most spectacular holidays—Thanksgiving. Some of us will go home and some of us to other college campuses, or a similar place, or a group of dances and parties, but whatever our destination our goal will be the same—to enjoy the holidays.

Relaxation and wholesome fun should be present in every individual's life, but in having our good times this year let us not forget the terrific cost that has been paid by our ancestors and by our immediate past comrades to make possible this time of gaiety. We must remember the true significance of Thanksgiving—that of giving thanks. Several hundred years ago when the first Pilgrims in Massachusetts knelt in their humble church to thank God for their food and their very lives they did not possess but a small per cent of the rich blessings which we have, but their hearts were grateful for what they did have, and their custom of giving thanks has lived on through both prosperity and depression.

This Thanksgiving—why not now?, as you read this—stop a moment and think about the things for which you can be grateful. You will find that it takes more than a moment to compile such a list. Be thankful for the fact that you are a college student in a position to learn how not only to get the most out of life but learning how to give something back to life. Be thankful that you live in a country where you can be warm, have clothes, and secure good food. Many people in the world today lack these three necessities of life, but they are doggedly carrying-on, ever hopeful.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

Tis the eve of Thanksgiving and bright visions of plum pudding, and turkey, and football games dance through our heads to the exclusion of all thoughts of the reams of work to be done. Anyone who can think of a theme for a term paper midst all this confusion is little short of being a genius, or at least a whiz at the art of concentration. If there be such a one among you, will you please tell the rest of us distracted souls how you do it?

Pardon us while we put in a "plug" for a very worthwhile cause. There is a feature and a news story on Scumas MacManus in this issue, but how many of you have read them? Please do! And come to hear him Thursday night. Boere Eh Thorn has made a special effort to get him here because he has the reputation for being such a delightful speaker. Last year those who heard Mr. Chase tell folk tales were charmed and Mr. MacManus is bound to be just as entertaining. It's gratifying to an author to have his lectures well attended so let's go en masse to hear him when he comes. We're almost willing to make a money-back guarantee on your being delighted by his tales and poems. (To say nothing of the rise you'll get in the estimation of your English teacher should she behold your bright and smiling countenance among those present!)

Everyone responded wonderfully to the Morgan concert—let's do the same for MacManus.

Have a happy holiday ev'body. So long, and good hunting!

Bed Check

This has been quite a week-end to say the least. First of all, ye ole bedchecker, hearing a great mumble of oh's and ah's, followed the just mentioned sounds down to Shannon's where she found the cause for all this bediam . . . The N. C. State team, calmly eating lunch oblivious to all the admiring glances. It seems that they were on their way to Wahoo Wa for the big game to be played there on Saturday.

Another happening of interest was PiKA barn dance which was held at H.-S. Everyone had a marvelous time square dancing and the like.

Anne Lynch really has it bad She was so excited about going to W. and M. last week-end that she found it practically impossible to concentrate on anything. From that dreamy gaze the trip must have really been something.

Ruby Griffith's date Wednesday night really caused a stir in Senior Parlor. What he was suppose to represent was the $64 question.

Who was Leo courting in the movies the other day?

Mary Lou Bagly and that guy of hers have that certain serious look. We wonder Hm, hm, hm!

Rose Mary Hamlett, your date last week was out of this world Bring him around more often.

What's this we hear about June failing to write that man of hers? Cregar, you should be spanked. No joke!

How about Mary Helmer getting all those long distant phone calls? Could they be from Leland pleading his cause, or is he worried about his H.-S. C. competition?

It seems that Martha Morrison is receiving numerous threats from her roommates and her suite mates. You better make up your mind, M. F.

We hear that Helen Kaknis and Anne Foreman had a big week end—the men were really cute.

Peggy Moore, Gris Boxley, Marjorie Miller, Martha Leavitt, and Caroline Page traveled to Va. this week end and according to their reports, the trip "shore" was fun!

Lizzie Bragg is really walking on air. She's going to Pennsylvania to see Buddy, and, as a minor detail, the Penn-Cornell game.

Pete Peterson was one of the casualties at the dance. She suffered a sprained ankle. By the way, Stuart Payne and Max Perrow were really "on the ball" in calling the figures for the Virginia Reel.

Marjorie Boswick can't wait to see Kent during the holidays. You should have seen the sparkle in her eyes when she found out she'd get home earlier than she had planned.

Nancye Litz's theme song these days is "Richard, Why Don't You Open The Door". For a full report see "Slitz".

Well, as it's almost time for lights out, pack your duds and take off for a wonderful time . . . (but don't eat too much turkey).

MacManus of County Donegal Well-Versed In Native Lore

By Peggy LeGrande

Seumas MacManus, famous Irish poet, author and "scanachie" will appear at S. T. C. twice December 4 under the auspices of Beorc Eh Thorn, our English honor society. He will address the students at morning assembly and at 8 p. m. will present a public lecture in the college auditorium. He will speak on Irish folklore and give new readings from his own prose and verse.

Mr. MacManus was born in County Donegal, a spot which he describes as "Ireland's wildest, most rugged and mountainous, and most beautiful corner." There as a barefoot boy he herded cattle and sheep and attended the mountain school by day, and by night sat in the little cottages before the blazing turf fires, listening to the old men tell the hero and fairy tales and the old women sing the folk songs of their people. When he was seven he was himself considered a "schanachie" or storyteller, since he could tell a hundred of the toles he loved so well.

He wrote his first poetry at the age of sixteen while herding or working the land on his father's hillside. The next year found him writing both poetry and prose which was published in the little weekly newspaper of County Donegal. At the end of three years he received his first pay, a check for ten shillings, and then he received another great honor; he was made schoolmaster of the little mountain school where sixty or seventy boys were crowded into a room thirty feet long and fifteen feet wide.

Shortly after he started teaching a penny weekly in Dublin bought nine of his stories and paid him what he considered a fine sum for them—two and half dollars each. He then heard that in America editors paid even more than that for stories, and so, to quote his own words, "I wrote a bag of stories and then, closing my school, sailed for America in the steerage of a big liner. Arrived in New York I went to Harpers with seven stories, and Mr. Alden (then editor of the magazine) was much interested in the mountain boy dressed in homespun, read the stories himself and kept six of them. To my dumbfounding, he gave me a hundred dollars each for them. With other stories then, I tried other magazines. I arrived in America in September, and sailed back to Ireland the following May with a fortune . . ."

Not only his folk and fairy tales but his novels and original stories of Irish life were warmly welcomed by American publishers and he rose swiftly to the prominent place in the literary world that he holds today. Later he discovered and entered another great field—that of lecturing. There are few great universities or colleges from coast to coast that have not heard him tell the Irish stories and folk lore in his inimitable fashion. He often lectures as many as four or five times in one city in one or two days.

Mr. MacManus now has a winter home in California, "but," he says, "for my summers I always go back to my own Donegal hills and my own Donegal people."

Burger Commended For Performance In Hockey Game

The All-England hockey team defeated the All-Virginia eleven by a score of 15-0. The game was played on the Westhampton Field before a crowd of more than 2,000 persons.

Special write-up was given Miss Elizabeth Burger, president of the Virginia Field Hockey Association and a member of STC's faculty, by Joe Nettles of the Richmond Times Dispatch who said, "The hardest working player on the field was Miss Elizabeth Burger who had the strenuous and hazardous task of defending the Virginia goal. Although the ball sped past her 15 times, on many more occasions she successfully defended."

"Miss Burger knew that she was in for a rough afternoon and came prepared with a rubber mouth piece, such as the boxing gentlemen use, which she inserted whenever the British girls came romping toward the goal."

PIGSKIN PARADE

By TONI ALLEN

A stubborn North Carolina State football team, playing a dogged defensive game throughout, capitalized on a Virginia fumble to push over a fourth-quarter touchdown in Charlottesville Saturday afternoon and upset Virginia's Cavaliers, 7 to 2. North Carolina State used a six-man defensive alignment almost exclusively against Virginia's T-formation, with the two linebackers playing up close. Except for the early minutes of the game, that defense stopped the Cavaliers' hard-driving and fast-breaking backs. After making five first downs early in the game, the Cavaliers couldn't move the stakes once during the second period; got only two first downs during the third period, and only one—Grimes' 18-yard run from kick-formation—in the fourth quarter. Statistically, the game was a Mexican standoff. The Cavaliers had a net rushing yardage of 133 yards, as against State's 130 yards. Neither team could hit with its passes. The line play was too much for the backs. The Cavaliers suffered more injuries than they had previously in seven games. Tackle Dyke Jones was helped off the field during the first half and did not return. Pennel's hip was hurt and he did not play during the second half. McCarey, too, left the field during the first half and did not return at all during the second half.

The Washington and Lee University Generals scored two first half touchdowns and added another six pointer in the final period to defeat favored Delaware University, 18 to 13, Saturday before 7,500 in Wilmington, Delaware. Washington and Lee scored in the first period, driving 61 yards after receiving the opening kick-off. Bell plunged over from the two. Walt Michaels' place kick was wide. Delaware was held on the one-yard line after Fred Sposato recovered a Washington and Lee fumble by Charlie Harrington on the 15. The period ended with Washington and Lee leading, 6 to 0. The Generals rambled from their own 40 to a first down on the Delaware 17 on a forward lateral from Working to Harrington who flipped to Bell. Washington and Lee could gain only nine yards in the next four plays and the Hens took over. W &L drove 37 yards to score again after Joe Condy's punt went out on his own 37-yard line. Henry Mastriann climaxed the march with a two-yard cutback through guard. A poor pass from center prevented Michaels from attempting the conversion. The half ended with Washington and Lee leading, 12 to 0. Delaware caught fire in the third period and with Bill Nash and Marino Stalloni ripping off big hunks of yardage marched 75 yards for the first touchdown of the game. Stan Biski booted the point. Two plays after the kickoff Harrington fumbled and Bob Gleason recovered on the Generals 36. The Hens had a first down on the eight when the period ended with Washington and Lee leading, 12 to 7. Stalloni scored again for the Hens from the one-yard line in the first minute of the fourth period, climaxing a drive of 36 yards to put Delaware ahead. The Generals, however, moved 43 yards after the ensuing kickoff in which Bell and Jim Carpenter played the leading roles. The pay off was a four-yard pass from Bell to Carpenter. Michaels placekick was blocked. Final score: Washington and Lee, 18, Delaware 13.

Knit-Wits Utilize Precious Moments

We've got knittin' needles that jingle, jangle, jingle. With all the knittin' needles floating around—here is one who is very likely to go home Thanksgiving minus an eye or two.

If you see someone mumbling to themselves, think nothing of it. They are probably going over the knit one—pearl two directions to themselves. Everything is being knitted around here from necktles to bootees. There has been some talk of girls knitting their boy friends straight-jackets.

During study hour one may walk into any room at random—and are the brains studying? No. They are knitting sweaters of every hue. The struggles that the beginners are having cannot be expressed in words. They start out with 50 stitches on the needle and by the time they get across once there is around 100 stitches on the needle. It's all very mysterious. The beginners run to the "old timers" (those who have known how to knit at least a month) to get their troubles solved. "I have dropped a stitch", a poor little freshman wails. Of course, she really had dropped about ten. She was really fouled up.

Then there is the girl who was knitting while walking downtown. She ran into the telephone pole—looked at the pole and replied "Excuse me" and went on about her knitting. The next day the same thing happened. This time the girl became violent. The joys of knittin'.

The dining room is another place where the knitters reign in all their glory. Classes are always jammed with knitters. Its quite an art to knit and study at the same time. All this must prove something, but until further research is done on the matter, we can't say what.

Simkins Will Speak To AHA Convention

Dr Francis Simkins, professor of History, will speak as a representative of the Southern Historical Association before the American Historical Association at Cleveland during the Christmas holidays. The subject of his speech will be "Religion and the Everlasting South".

program, "Letters from Home", which was broadcast to servicemen throughout the world during the war. Miss Pitt has made her television debut singing in an opera given over the American Broadcasting Company network. At present she is preparing to sing the lead with the Nashville Symphony Orchestra in the "Bell Witch Cantata", written especially for her by Charles Bryan, a young Southern composer.

Miss Manning will sing "My Heart Ever Faithful" by Bach, "God Is My Shepard" by Dvorak; and "Air di Polissena (Radmisto) by Handel-Bibb. Miss Pitt will sing "O Rest In The Lord" by Mendelssohn; "The Lord's Prayer" by Preyer; and "Christmas Candle" by Warren.

WINIFRED BEARD'S

On the Ball

Hello, once again sports fans. Weren't those hockey games exciting! Did you go out and support your team?

There will be a "water pageant" held at the pool sometime in December. You will enjoy this very much. A lot of work has been put on this so come on down. The class swimming meets were held this afternoon. Didn't you enjoy them?

The weather man is about to suggest that we pull our sports back under the roof, but there will be a few more days to play down on the field, so get in all the out door fun that you can before the snow falls—no time soon however.

We will put away our hockey sticks and tennis balls, and golf clubs this Wednesday to take a short but deserved holiday away from the wear and tear of school books for Thanksgiving. But don't forget that sports can be just as much fun on a holiday as they can be in school, so for example, there will be dancing, bowling, bridge games and any other number of games to entertain yourself in the fun with the home town gang.

You may even talk Dad, Brother, or even that "special one" into taking you along on the hunting trip, but don't forget to duck in case somebody in the group isn't too good at aiming. Get out of doors when you're home, because this is the type of weather that makes you feel good to be alive.

After that eventful holiday, stuffing ourselves with turkey and sweets, we will return to school to

Then after threatening me with a place on the local knitting mill's assembly line if my grades and finances didn't straighten out, he hung up. I sighed. Oh well, what on earth would I have done with a crown when I have two heads.

Meet the Faculty

Rumor has it that the S. T. C. physical education course is about the best to be found in these parts. What better recommendation could we ask for than Miss Mary B. Barlow, the head of our physical and health education department?

Miss Barlow received diplomas from Emerson College of Oratory and Posse School of Physical Education, and from the Teachers College of Columbia University she received her B.S. and A. M. degrees, she has done graduate work at New York University, Springfield College, Wisconsin University, and Junkers School of Gymnastics in Denmark.

When she came here in 1919, Miss Barlow had behind her a wide teaching experience. Besides teaching in high schools, she has taught at Milligan College in Tennessee, at A. and M. College in Oklahoma, and at Colorado Woman's College Methods in physical and health education are the courses Miss Barlow enjoys teaching most.

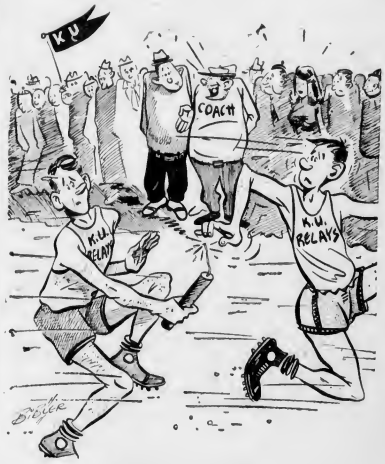
Two of Miss Barlow's favorite sports are basketball and playground ball, the latter of which we know now as softball. Camping and all forms of outdoor life rate high with Miss Barlow as with any phys. ed. teacher. She has taken for a hobby the improvement of her home in Beverly, West Virginia.

Some of the organizations in which Miss Barlow hold membership are: the National Education Association, Virginia Education Association, the Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, the American School Health Association, the Southern and National Associations for the Physical Education of College Women, the American Association of University professors, and the Farmville Woman's Club.

Perfect STC Day Incredible-No?

"My, oh my! What beautiful day!" I sing as my alarm clock wakes me with its soft musical sound. This is going to be a perfect day. A perfect at S. T. C. "Yes," I determined, "It shall be perfect."

I have five full minutes in which to get dressed for breakfast. You see, I never rush on my perfect day. "My, but I'm hungry!" I comment, as I happily devour my well-done eggs and beautiful brown biscuits. Then I have plenty of time between breakfast and my 8:05 class (a confidence that comes from having carefully prepared the assignment). I smile brightly through that class, make an "A" on my 9:05 English, and hand in a well written theme for American History. I answer all the questions the professor asked in economics, and use the few minutes before lunch to finish reading the reading letters and the telegram I received.



"What a beautiful day!" I'm still singing as I walk into the dining room to eat my favorite noodle soup. How good it is to my empty stomach! Then when the announcements are made, I am glad to find that there are no important "Called" meetings.

Undaunted by the 100 page parallel due on the morrow, I walk to Longwood that afternoon, and happily eat some of the famous buns, only to find two more letters waiting for me when I return to campus.

After a most delicious supper I settle down for a night of concentrated study. Hanging out the busy sign, I am happy when my suitemates come over for a chat. They depart only to leave others to fill their places within five minutes. I try the library, then to find that I'm way laid by an invitation to "go see Jean, she got a box from home this morning."

After so many hours of "strenuous studying, I return to prepare for bed. What care I if the hot water is cut off? What care I if the telephone does keep me awake? What care I if, when I am asleep, the door opens and a voice says, loudly, "I'm sorry!" I've had a perfect day!

"My, oh my 'What a beautiful day!'"

"We haven't lost a relay since."

For The Record

By JO STAFFORD

The other day a disc jockey asked me for a list of the 19 songs I felt had been important in my career. I was a little startled because I had never thought about it before. But I got to wondering what they were and why, and for any of you gals and guys who make with the record collections—and some of you have been awful nice to me—well, I thought I'd set down a list and let you check it off.

You see, I started singing with my sisters, Pauline and Chris. We had a trio and did pretty well on the air. Then Pauline married Galen Drake—he's the New York radio commentator—and went to New York to live. Chris got interested with her family, and I got to singing with the Pied Pipers. So that's what happened to the trio.

The Pied Pipers and I toured the country with Tommy Dorsey and it seems to me that the first recording I made with Dorsey was a little number entitled "The Little Man With the Candy Cigar." I wonder if any of you have that number.

My first solo that did anything at all was "Embraceable You" with the Pied Pipers and Dorsey—and do you know, I still like that tune . . . .

The next record that I did and enjoyed, and as a matter of fact was pretty impressed by, was a 12-inch of "For You" with Dorsey. Guess those are all gone by now.

Well, anyhow after that, the Pied Pipers and I came back to California and in 1943 I signed up with Capitol. The first records I made for that company were with Johnny Mercer for his album. They were tagged "How Sweet You Are" and "Too Marvelous for Words." Have you noticed how the latter of these two tunes has been coming back lately? I've been hearing it often.

Well, the first record I made that actually won public recognition for me, as a person, (and bless those guys overseas who made it practically a "must" on every command performance) was "Long Ago and Far Away." And from that point on things seemed to roll.

About that time I decided it was time I got away from straight ballads. I didn't know just exactly what the answer was to be, but I kind of liked a folk tune my mother sings. And so we recorded "Cindy" and while it wasn't done hill-billy style—just faster than regular ballad stuff—it marked my first effort to get away from "the usual".

Well, that's the record till here. I hope you'll like the last two. I'd like to hear if you do and if you don't. I'd like to hear what you'd enjoy next, too.

Memories of Play Linger As Superb Cast, Staff Rest

Memories of play rehearsals and the final production linger strongly in the minds of the members of the cast and staffs. The continuing tenseness of rehearsals held ample proof that P-Day (play day) was drawing near. This conveyed moments and days of anxiety when certain lines were continually muffed and other small details out of place. Even at dress rehearsal the strips of adhesive covering the cracks in the ceiling came swaying down at crucial moments. Death's make-up persisted resembling Andy Panda—all that was needed was a chic red bow at Bill's throat. And of course there were the instances that the lights went off before anyone was near the switch. All these little hitches were iron out before the big night, and I'm sure we'll all agree that it was a superb performance.

We should all be proud to be able to know and work with as fine an actor as Bill Smithers. As Death he brought shudders and squeals of apprehension, and as Prince Sirhi—well, we do expect to see him on the screen someday. Max Perrow as Duke Lambert had the sympathy of the audience as being the only person in the castle that knew the horrible truth about Prince Sirhi. The enchanting young Sgrzia, played by Nancye Mcore, captivated Death's borrowed heart. Her mother, played by Martha Smith, had an anguishing time. The English visitors, Eric and Rhoda Fenton, played respectively by Arthur Stuart and Yvonne Burch, were alternately drawn to and repulsed by the mysterious Prince. The young son of the Duke, played by Tom Vail, lost his loved one to Death. Comic old Baron Cesarea, H.-S.'s own Danny Bray, enjoyed Death's visit by relief from rheumatism. Dolly Anne Freeman was the lovely wife of Duke Lambert. Tom Foley was a major in the Foreign Legion, a very military gentleman. As for the butler and maid (Charles Talley and Martha Hatcher), Max remarked that the Duke chose the maid and his wife chose the butler.

Orchids to Miss Wheeler for directing the most dramatic production ever put on at S. T. C. and roses to the ones who made the play such a success.

Savage Addresses R.M.W.C. Students

Dean William W. Savage spoke to the students of Randolph-Macon Women's College Monday, November 24 on the subject "The Why and How of Choosing a Vocation."

Monday evening he used as his topic "Is There a Place for You In Personnel Work." Dean Savage also met with Dean C. Clement French to discuss student problems of mutual interest.

Dean Savage spoke to the Episcopal girls at the rectory of Johns Memorial Church at 8 p. m. Sunday night, November 23, on the subject "The Why and How of Choosing a Vocation."

Coats Are Longer, Hooded, Flared

The first showing of winter is sued in an entirely new style in coats for the season. Just as there had been a radical change in dresses, in shoes and in all other wearing apparel so has there been a change in those cold weather essentials. Gone is the static straight look we've followed for so many seasons, and in its place there is a flared, fluid movement.

The newest thing off the loom is the very full coat with the dramatically flowing back. Shoulders are no longer hard and square, but soft and curved, fitted over special pads. The rounded shoulders often run into sleeves with unusual cutting. They are big and baloony in keeping with the flowing lines of the back. Necklines are high riding with flaring collars and lapels to offset the longer skirts. The coat this winter must be ample enough to fit over accented hips and full skirts, and long enough to cover the long skirts. Fourteen inches from the floor is a popular length.

Many of these casuals go back a few years and pick up an old favorite, the hood. Usually detachable, the hood can be worn or discarded for most formal occasions.

If it's fitted, your coat has special lines. Princess style, the coat is very full with generous collar and lapels. Or it might be a rendition of your Mother's favorite in her younger days—the cocoon. Just as the name implies, the coat is gracefully wrapped around closely. To wear this style, however, you must possess a slender, graceful figure. You must also learn to walk and move flowingly.

Any color is good, but especially good are murky greens, blues, and browns. Not to be neglected are the large and bright plaids, a number one in any college girl's wardrobe.

After the six groups are completed the audience is invited to join in singing some Christmas Carols with the choral groups and artists. "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Brightest and Best", "The First Noel", and "O Come, All Ye Faithful" will be sung.

Miss Manning, the soprano, is well known in New York music circles. She has appeared as soloist several times with Bob Shaw, the famed choral director, at Carnegie Hall in performances of oratorioes. She has been soloist with Dr. Tertius Nobel, the famed organist, at St. Thomas's in New York. A number of years ago she was the soprano soloist with the S. T. C. Choir when they presented the Brahms Requiem both at Farmville and in New York City. She sang in the New York premier of the opera "Peter Grimes" and was acclaimed by critics. To add to her list of achievments, she has often been soloist for the Philadelphia and Boston symphonies and at the Philadelphia Bach festivals. Leon Bernstein has said of her, "She possesses one of the finest vocal techniques in the country."

Miss Pitt, the contralto soloist, also has a distinguished record. She has given many recitals, and has been received enthusiastically everywhere. She is one of the South's best known radio artists, her activities in this line centering mainly around Nashville. She has appeared as soloist in several performances with the Nashville and Memphis Symphnies and choral roups. In 1939 she gave a Town Hall recital in New York, receiving much praise from critics. She was a featured performer on the radio program "Letters from Home" which was broadcast throughout the world to our servicemen during the war. She has made her television debut singing

Faculty Contributes To Community Chest

In connection with the Community Chest drive in Farmville and the surrounding vicinity the faculty of Farmville State Teachers College contributed approximately $604.50 in cash or pledges, it has been announced by Dr. George W. Jeffers. Dr. Jeffers was in charge of the Community Chest Drive among the members of the faculty. These figures are not completely accurate since many of the faculty contributed jointly with their wives or husbands and not through Dr. Jeffers.

The entire county went well over its quota of $15,000 with cash and pledges amounting to $17,365.85.

All Activities Center Around STC's Important Home Office

Six-thirty on Saturday night in the Home Office and all is calm. But just wait—it won't be calm long once those dining room doors open. Have you ever spent a Saturday night in the Home Office? If not you can't even begin to realize what real confusion is! It won't take a whole evening, however, to find out. Just stay down there fifteen minutes and you will know. In fact, I would advise not more than fifteen minutes at first dose. Later, when you've gotten in some roadwork, three extra hours of sleep per night, and have really gotten yourself in tip-top condition—then you might be able to stay a little longer.

The scene is truly one of confusion personified. A group arrives to sign out for the movies; there are at least fifteen using or waiting to use the phone with more arriving every instant; The switchboard is in full operation—long distance for Jane Doe on third floor main—a caller in the Rotunda for Susi Q on second floor annex-etc.—the desk phone is no sooner laid down before it rings again; people dart in and out—a bevy of boys come in, all wanting their dates called; girls stream in to check out—on and on they come till it seem the walls must surely give way under the strain.

The Home Office is really the center of all operations on Saturday night. But if you think it is confused, think of the confusion there would be if it were not there! Who would take the calls and notify those for whom they were meant? Where would you check out? Where would you boys come in search of their dates? That would really be confusion to end all confusion.

Don't you just have a life size picture of the boys standing beside Joan hollowing for all they're worth in order to let their date know that they have arrived? And can't you just see every girl who has even the faintest glimmer of hope for a phone call that night lined up on the steps or in the Rotunda ready to dash for the phone the minute it rings? But then where would the phone be located? On the mantle beside the color cup, maybe? And where would you check out, perhaps they would hang a little book around Joan's neck and every one could check out there. Do you suppose that would work?

Small as it is I think you will all agree that the Home Office is very indispensible to every occupant of Main. We'd be in quite a fix without it despite all the confusion that exists there.

Miss Moran Speaks Over Station WSVS

Miss Grace Moran will speak Wednesday, December 10 at 3 o'clock on radio station WSVS. Her subject will be: Our Two Worlds. The program is sponsored by the International Relations Department of the Farmville Woman's Club.

Library Exhibits Lemen's Art Work

STC's Library is currently exhibiting a group of fifteen water colors which are the work of Mrs. Janice Lemen, Assistant Professor of Art of the college. The water color paintings represent work done during Mrs. Lemen's recent trip to Goose Rocke Beach, Maine, where she was a member of an Art Colony under the directorship of Elliott O'Hara, the well-known art critic. The water color paintings in this exhibit were done by Mrs. Lemen in the summer of 1947. Mrs. Lemen's pictures include such scenes as a "Lobsterman's Cottage", "Timber Island", "New Hampshire Birches", and many others.

The water colors are exhibited on the right hand side of the main room entering the front door. This section has been arranged to represent an art gallery. The pictures are grouped about the walls of the room, on the bulletin boards, and on the tables in the form of a square with an aisle between the pictures and the two sofas which have been placed in the middle of the square. In front of the sofas are small tables covered with art magazines and books about water color painting. The room has an appearance of an official art gallery.

On Thursday, December 11, at 4:15 p. m., the S. T. C. radio program over WFLO will be sponsored jointly by the Library and Art Department. Mrs. Lemen will discuss her water color exhibition with three S. T. C. art students.

FTA Holds Meeting To Initiate Girls

The Future Teachers of America held a meeting December 3 at 5 o'clock in Dr. Wynne's class room at which time new members were initiated. Nancy Hughes, president of the organization, presided.

Dr. Wynne, Director of Teacher Education, welcomed the new members and Miss Alice E. Carter General Supervisor of Student Teaching, was a guest. The members discussed their project for the coming year.

The F. T. A. is a national organization composed of prospective teachers enrolled in colleges who are planning to teach in high schools. The chapter at State Teachers College was organized in 1939 and known as the J. L. Jarman Chapter. This organization acquaints its members with the National Education Association and the Virginia Education Association.

Pepsi-Cola Offers Fellowship Fund

With January 2, 1948, set as the closing date on which applications for the Pepsi-Cola graduate fellowships may be made, all eligible seniors should obtain the necessary recommendations before the closing of school for the Christmas vacation, according to word just received from John M. Stalnaker, director of the fellowship program.

The completed application form endorsed by the dean or the president, must be accompanied by an official transcript of undergraduate credits through the junior year, the announcement states; and recommendations from two professors should also be sent to the Board on the forms provided All material must be in the offices of the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board in Palo Alto, California, by midnight of the closing date. Application forms may be obtained from the dean.

Twenty-six of these graduate fellowships will be awarded in March to college students scheduled to receive bachelor's degrees during the academic year 1947-48. Six winners will be selected from each of four geographic regions in the United States, and in addition, two fellows will be chosen from graduates of Negro colleges. The winners will receive $750 a year for three years and they will have their full tuition paid to any accredited graduate or professional school in the United States. They may work in any field of study which will lead to an M.A., Ph.D., M.D., or other advanced professional degree.

The fellowship program, which according to Director Stalnaker is designed to discover young men and women of marked ability and train them for intelligent leadership within their own fields, is financed as a public service by the Pepsi-Cola Company of which Walter S. Mack, Jr., is president.

An Opportunity

The season of the year which can be made the happiest of our entire twelve months will soon be upon us. In fact, we have already seen the store's displays of Christmas gift suggestions and we have seen the festive lights illuminating our larger cities' avenues.

With the approach of the Christmas season the thoughts of the majority of residents i nand near Farmville and of all the students at S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney turn to one of the highlighting entertainments of the holidays—the Christmas concerts given by the Choir and Choral Club of S. T. C. and the H.-S. C. Glee Club.

It was the song of angels that first told the Christmas message long ago over the hills of Bethlehem, and from that clear and starry night it has been impossible to think of Christmas without recalling lovely music.

In an amazingly short period of time our college choral groups and that of our neighboring college have prepared an excellent program of Christmas music which will be presented during the coming week. Many hard hours are spent in preparing a concert—hours the concert—listner cannot visualize except by appreciating the music he hears and realizing the practice needed to perfect such a product.

No member of any of the choral groups will have minded a moment's work if he or she can feel that they are appreciated by their fellow-students and by their faculty members. Therefore, let us be sure that the S. T. C. concert on Sunday night is well-attended. This will occur only if we, and all the other people of our community do our part in showing our appreciation to the boys and girls by coming.

There is no spirit that is capable of making your heart glow more or deeper than the Christmas spirit—you may be sure that your heart will capture that spirit at the concert through the medium of a language more beautiful than simple words—that of music, the universal language that knows no special tongue or dialect.

Rec or Wreck?

The Main Rec is really a wreck. Foot prints on the wall have marred the beauty of the place, and we have no one but ourselves to blame.

The lower portion of the wall of the Rec was painted approximately three or four times last year. It is a disgrace to the school and to the student body to have to paint so often. When we have visitors, they are apalled by the prints on the wall. Every student in school who has put her feet on the wall of the Rec. or allowed her date to do so should hang her head in shame.

We are not allowed to do this sort of thing at home, and we certainly should not do it here. We thought that STC-er's were ladies, but this sort of thing proves that some of us are not. Of all the unlady-like and un-gentlemanly things to do—this one tops the list.

Why should the administration do things for us when we have so little appreciation of what they have already done? We have certainly shown little appreciation of the Rec. At some other schools, students do not have the facilities we have for dating. We are fortunate, and it is about time the student body realized this fact. Suppose we had to entertain our dates in the Rotunda—would we like that?

We understand that the reason for the foot prints is that students turn the sofas around to insure privacy and then they just must prop their feet on the inviting wall. Student Standards is having posters made now requesting students to keep their feet off the wall. Won't you do what they ask? It is your duty to keep the walls of the Rec clean and free from foot prints. Our opinion of the student body is lowered every time we hear about or see such a deplorable situation. Unless you cooperate and keep the Rec. walls free from these horrid imprints, our opinion of our fellow students and friends will have hit an all-time low.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

From Jingle Bells to Christmas shopping there are already oodles of visions of sugar-plums dancing through our heads—and we don't mean the raisin kind either. We mean those masculine honey bunches that will be dancing with us through the reconverted, refurbished, resplendant arches of the dining hall come Senior Dance Saturday night. This week the reams of term papers and tests have to take a back seat while we contemplate the "eternal question" (what to wear) and lay complicated strategems finageling invitations enough to last all the holidays.

The Choir-Glee Club Concert slated for Sunday night is also subject of eager anticipation. To start the season off officially with the signing of traditional favorites will surely put the finishing touches on the Xmas in our bones and set us atingle with the glowing spirit of the season. Caroling after the concert around the streets of Farmville is also a well-loved tradition which we delight in perpetuating.

Have you sent in your letters to Santa Claus yet? If not, we have a s'prise for you. Old St. Nick himself has agreed to answer your requests in next week's Rotunda. Just drop your heart's desire into in Colonnade box in the hall on before Monday and the elves (wit ha wee bit of staff aid) will see that he gets them. Be good.

Bed Check

Better watch out and be careful what you do,

Remember "Bedcheck" is watching you,

And Santa Claus is coming to town.

Have you noticed Nancy Jessee's beaming face these past few days? Seems she had quite a time at the Pika-ball in Richmond. Tell us more about it "Jessee."

We now have another name to add to our third-finger-left-hand girls. We think it's grand, Betty Scroggins. We wish you the best of luck and happiness.

Peggy Moore must have had a great time in Florida this past week-end from all we hear.

Some girls have all the luck. Nancy Rushing was off to another school for the dances. This time it was W. & L.

Who are those cute boys we see Janie Fox and Love Bentley with so much? Tell us more about it!

Millie Spain and Betty Jefferson are fast becoming regular "prom trotters". They attended the dances at William and Mary last week-end.

Another twosome on campus is Jennie Sue and J. T.

Wilfred Price really makes the distance between Farmville and Williamsburg short. He was home again to see Virginia last week end.

Even exams can't keep Bill Watson and Chummey at Tech next week end. How do you do it Betty Ree and Laura Jean?

Marjorie Miller's favorite song is "He's Just My Bill" after this week end.

Boo Atkinson, why don't you write a book on how to keep six men on a string at one time. You could make a fortune!

Jean Dunn is now the proud displayer of a Sigma Chi pin symbol of the conquest of one Wahoo heart. Congratulations!

All seems quiet (figuratively speaking) at Table 25 now that P. A. and B. S. have gotten their respective Johnnies back under control.

Snoopin around Senior rec in an unobtrusive way we just happened to see Gee-Gee with an awfully cute man—was she trying to hide him or something? We 'most gave ourselves away too by a pleased giggle to see BeBe and Johnny together again.

Erstwhile friends of Sis Parris are wondering why she and Mac Leech walk with such a blissful struck-with-each-other air that they don't even notice anyone else. Need we ask what's up?

Maybe you think Jean Jones hurries BACK from home because of her prexy duties, but we'll bet dollars to doughnuts that Pat Stripiin is a better reason.

B-J Snapp is all excited. Seems that her man came by last night. How does she rate?

Many S. T. C. hearts are in danger of a severe cracking when we tell you this—but did you know that the idol-of-our-eye, none other than Mr. Crawley, has other attractions. Too bad girls!

Polly Nassar says that her colosal trip to Washington was well worth the cuts it took. She claims she went to the dance with a "friend", but the stars in her eyes belied the nonchalant tone in her voice.

That's all for now—and remember Santa Claus is comin' to town.

Alumnae News

Burger Selected By All-American

Miss Elizabeth Burger, Farmville, was named to the All-American Reserve Hockey team for 1947 by the National Selection committee during the National Tournament held in Philadelphia November 23-30. The selection committee was made up of members from all parts of the United States and chose Miss Burger on the basis of her playing in at least three games which they had attended.

The National Hockey Tournament marked the Twenty-Fifth Silver Jubilee celebration of the founding of hockey in this country. The tournament included 18 teams and over 200 players from all parts of the U. S.

Miss Burger captained the Virginia team which played against the English in Richmond on November 20, Virginia losing. The Southeast Team (comprising Baltimore, New Jersey, Washington, and Virginia) was also captained by Miss Burger. They played against the English at the National Tournament and lost by 6 goals. The Southeast succeeded in turning back the Northeast, (Boston, Connecticut and New York) 2 to 1. This was the first victory of Southeast over Northeast, since the organization of the teams.

The highlight of the National Tournament was the final games of the United States and U. S. Reserve Teams. The English handed out a crushing defeat to the United States Team of 1947 by a score of 8-0. The U. S. Reserve Team, captained by Miss Burger, won its final match against an All-Star Team 5 to 1.

H2O Will Present "Winter Wonderland"; Red 'n' White Victorious In Swim Meet

Left Lead

They say that riding is truly fun;
To hold with knees and let him run
But let me tell you my sad tale
Of how that mare went o'er the rail
While I hung on for precious life.

We were cantering along so very slow
That I was happy and all aglow
But then a car horn gave a blast
And she took out entirely too fast.
Straight toward a high closed gate,
She flew causing my inevitable fate.

O'er the top rail she jumped,
And the ground I definitely bumped.
I did hold on for one short while
But true, without one bit of style.
Perhaps this riding is all right,
But any ole car just suits my sight.

Around the Christmas tree, never be haphazard with a fire hazard.

Meet the Faculty

A recent but already well-loved member of our S. T. C. faculty is Ohio-born, Miss Jessie A. Patterson, Associate Professor of Music.

From her first Alma Mater, Oberlin College, Miss Patterson obtained an A.B., and she holds a B.S. in music and an M.A. from New York University. In addition, she has done graduate work at Cornell, at Northwestern, and at the Somerville College of Oxford University in England.

Before coming to us last year, Miss Patterson had taught at De Pauw University in Indiana; at State Teachers College in Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania; at the State Education Department in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; and in the Extension Division of the University of Virginia in Warwick County. She has also taught during summer sessions at Northwestern and here at S.T.C., and for six years served as supervisor of music in the schools of Warwick County. During this time she was recognized as a "First Citizen of Warwick" in the Daily News of Newport News.

Miss Patterson is a member of Pi Beta Phi, social sorority, Kappa Delta Pi, Music Educators National Conference, the American Association of University Women, the American Association of University Professors, and the Virginia Education Association.

A real globe trotter, Miss Patterson loves to travel, a pastime which she usually accomplishes in the summer. For six pre-war summers, she was a cruise hostess on a Mediterranean-Norway-Sweden cruise. Miss Patterson is eagerly looking forward to South America as her next destination when these cruises are resumed.

In a relatively short time, Miss Patterson has claimed the genuine affection of the entire student body.

KDP Entertains

Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society in education, will hold its annual banquet Wednesday, December 14, in the college tea room.

At a previous meeting members of Kappa Delta Pi heard as guest speaker, Ann Buck An., went to China as tutor for the small son of an oil company employee stationed in China. She was instructor, however, to not one, but ten children of various families affiliated with the company.

Her talk was highlighted by pictures and articles which the S. T. C. senior brought with her from China.

Underclassmen Wear Many-Hued Dresses

In just a few more days the dignified seniors will be floating over the dance floor in white evening dresses. So, all of you under-classmen be sure to wear some other color because this is the seniors night, and underclassmen are asked not to wear white.

Many different styles will be seen as the girls float over the dance floor. One of the most popular styles is the tiered skirt with small ruffles from the waist down or the three large tiers. This style will be featured with different kinds of tops. The strapless fitted top is still popular this year as well as the drop-shoulder effect with a ruffle around the top and possibly tiny puffed sleeves. Many of you may prefer the full flared skirt with different kinds of peplums. Some of the peplums may be short and gathered while others will be longer with a V effect in the back. Still others may wish to add a bustle in the back instead of the peplum. The tops are varied such as a fitted top with long sleeves ending in points over the hand. Some may prefer a low round neck or sweetheart neckline with cap sleeves.

Confusion Reigns Supreme As Siren Tolls Midnight Tune

"Hey! Guess what—we may have a fire drill tonight."

Bet you heard that remark, too, several times in fact. But if you were a Freshman and had never been through a S. T. C. fire drill you probably didn't pay much attention to it. You were soon to see that whoever made the remark had their facts straight.

All was quiet on the halls—everyone was asleep or nearly so when suddenly it happened. A long, low, pitiful sounding siren let you know that something was going on. You lay there for a second or two trying to figure out what it was when suddenly it dawned on you. Of course! You should have thought of it sooner—it was a fire drill. Up you jumped and the confusion began.

Now let's see—shoes and a coat, natch, it's cold out there, and drizzling to boot. Put windows up or down? Door open or shut? Lights on or off? Towel wet or dry? Will a notebook do instead of a book? No time to look for a handbook now! Which stairs do we go down? Wait! Someone is still asleep—you mean they haven't heard all this ruckus? Come on, come on—don't you know the building is burning down?

Finally the building was cleared and half of S. T. C. stood on the sidewalks outside, shivering.

"Next time I'm going to grab me some socks on the way out."

"If it WERE a fire instead of just a drill, at least it would be a little warmer out here."

When the all-clear (Or are all-clears only for air raids?) sounded there was a mad dash for the building, beds and warmth. That is when the hall-presidents got some work in—with all the noise, including a few sirens produced solely by vocal cords they are really busy.

But all in all it was a lot of fun—freezing and all, Just so they don't have them too often it will be alright.

Simkins' Book Reaches Public Throughout South

Historical Book Sold in Bookroom

The South, Old And New: A History 1820-1947 by Francis Butler Simkins is now on sale in book stores throughout the south and in the college bookshop. The price of this first edition is $4.50.

Dr. Simkins, professor of History at S. T. C., completed his manuscript in September of 1946 after two years of work, most of which was performed in the Reading Room of the college library. Certain important facts were added to the book after 1946 to bring it up to date. The author has stated that his work is more that of observation than research and that he is first of all a teacher and then a writer. Dr Simkins wrote his book in his spare time.

The South, Old and New is the first one volume regional history of the south to be published. The author begins with the year 1820 for he believes that is when sectionalism was born.

The book is a history of the south as a conscious minority and its uniqueness is the fact that Dr. Simkins has devoted one-third of his book to the old south and two-thirds to the new south. He believes and endeavors to show in his first publication that the south is different from the rest of the United States and that there is a marked distinction between the new south and the legendary "old south".

The South, Old And New is a living picture of Dixie which every true southerner will want to enjoy. There are now on sale 4,000 copies of the first edition.

STC Procrastinator Promises To Shop For Xmas 1948 Now

For days now, I have been walking around in a blissful daydream. Everyone seems so much happier, everything so much nicer. My eating is up to usual and I can even smile in my 8:05 class. Could all these feelings be attributed to the Christmas holidays Well, of course. Once a year I love everybody—except bill collectors, and that one time is at Christmas.

This year I made up my mind I would have none of this last minute shopping. My original plan was to do all shopping this summer, but due to one thing or the other I didn't get around to it. Last week, though, I awoke to the fact that Xmas was just three weeks off, and this little procrastinator had better "pitch in" right away.

With my Christmas list stowed away in my little brain, wallet in chapped red hands, I marched purposefully down the street. First, I wanted to find a pair of pajamas for my suitemate (I hasten to add my roommate and I were going together). As I walked into——(due to the policies of this paper no names or places may be used, but you can use your imagination) I thought I'd just check the blouses because I happened to need one Then I saw it. Oh, it was love at first sight. A lovely white tailored blouse with a tie. I couldn't resist it . . . not with those flirty lil' pearl buttons winking at me. So, brushing aside my better judgment and giving in to temptation I bought it.

On the way out, I saw some battle-ship grey stockings. I purchased a pair for Cousin Annie, a pair for my spinster aunt who is still hoping—and as it happened, just happened mind you, they had my size; I bought a pair for myself.

Next stop was——, a lovely store really. They had just gotten in some very chic perfume. A new scent called "Sinful Lust", which is supposed to drive the stronger (stronger, that is) sex simply wild, I considered a good investment At my present state nothing could hurt. I also bought "Oh, You Kid" for my grandmother.

After a few more stops and quite a few more purchases, I was forced, because of absolute Financial Depletion to call it a day. But I felt it was a day well spent. I now have many more things. There is just one drawback—I neglected to get my roommate, suitemate and about a dozen other people their presents. The fact has induced me to set down on paper a promise to begin my Christmas shopping for the next Christmas (1948) on December 26, 1947.

ACE Announces Date For Teacher Exams

College To Release Booklet for Seniors

Shortly after the Christmas holidays, State Teachers College will release a new booklet entitled "So You're a Senior." As the title indicates, it has been prepared for high school seniors and is designed to give them some assistance in making their plans for employment or additional training after they are graduated.

The booklet is prefaced by a brief letter from President Lancaster, addressed to the seniors. Following this is a concise discussion of the steps involved in making intelligent plans and a suggested list of sources of help in doing this. For those planning to attend college there is a list of pertinent questions which anyone should ask about the college that he or she plans to attend. The answers which State Teachers College can give to these are summarized.

The booklet is well illustrated with views of the campus and pictures showing various student activities here.

Copies of the booklet will be sent to seniors in the high schools throughout the state. Mrs. Mary Watkins, Executive Secretary of the College, will be glad to send copies to all persons whose names are given to her by students now enrolled here.

Last Sunday night, the Choir and Choral Club presented their annual Christmas concert in the college auditorium with a record attendance of between five and six hundred in the audience. The same program was also presented at Hampden-Sydney on Monday night. Guest artists for the occasion were Miss Florence Manning, soprano; and Miss Emma Pitt contralto.

Improvements Made and Improvements Needed

Some improvements have been made around S. T. C., but there are still some needed.

In answer to the need for more lighting, Mr. Samuel Graham has promised to put a light in front of the steps leading to Senior Building. Mr. Graham said he would try to install the light during the Christmas holidays if he could find the necessary materials.

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster has appointed a committee to look into the food situation, and this committee, after doing some research, has submitted a report to him.

However, in two instances little improvement has been made. Cigarettes still litter the floors of the college, and students are still smoking in places where smoking is prohibited. The cure for this situation lies with the students themselves. The second situation that could be vastly improved upon is in regard to the Rec. The walls of the Rec. will be painted again in the near future, and we hope it will be kept free from foot prints. How about cooperating with the administration in these two situations that need improving?

May we say that the administration has been most cooperative in helping make any improvements we have deemed necessary, and it is up to us, as students, to lend a helping hand too. We certainly want to do the thing that will be best for the college, and we want to make it a better place to live.

This college is our home for nine months of the year and every problem we have is a "family" problem. We have found that no situation that exists here is ignored by the authorities, and that they really wish to know the complaints of the student body. When we have such fine people working with us, the least we can do is to uphold our end of the bargain. Please show them that we want to help by keeping the floors free from cigarettes and the walls of the Rec. free from footprints.

Spirit of Christmas

As we approach the season of "Peace on arth Good will toward men" we feel thankful to the bottom of our hearts that we have peace here at home. Many of us however, leave off complacently there and prepare to celebrate our greatest post war Christmas. When we have all the prosperity and well being we wish, it is hard to think about the millions in Europe and Asia today who have neither peace and plenty nor even the necessities of life. But the condition is still there in spite of our obliviousness to it, and we dare say, in some measure due to our selfish interest and neglect.

Over and over we have been reminded that Christmas is the time for joy, and for peace, and for giving. True we observe these within our own land, yet we so easily forget "the least of these my bretheren" who are in such dire need. Can we really have the true spirit of Christmas, or fully share its marvelous significance if we do not have charity and compassion for our brothers the world over who are suffering?

It isn't too late to send a contribution to CARE, or to make up a box of your own. Of all the warm, glowing feelings that the Yuletide season brings to us there is none to rival that of scarifice to someone who is in need. "At Christmas time we think of giving and receiving. Some think mostly of the receiving, the gift itself, instead of the thought behind the gift. Those people we find undesirable. Then on the other hand others find a certain pleasure in giving deep down within themselves.

Friends exchange gifts among themselves and presents are given to the less fortunate people who wouldn't give a turkey, oranges, and some of the trimmings if those more fortunate did not give to them." Let us all, therefore, do what we can to make this Christmas a blessed occasion to someone miles away, restoring his faith in humanity, showing him that God the Father of us all work through us for him; and let us strive to make peace on earth our Christmas gift to the whole world.

Puddin' 'n Sauce

Parties are the thing and this week they are quite the rage. The Christmas Spirit has taken the campus by storm; a storm of shopping, caroling, hanging of greens, secrets, parties, holiday plans, and Christmas cards that is. There just isn't enough time to do all the wonderful things - - - won't somebody please ask Santa Claus to stretch the length of the days between Dec. 20 and Jan. 5 so we can get everything in?

The dining hall made a scrumptuous "ball room" for Senior Dance, didn't it? It was quite an improvement over the gym even though decorating afforded a big problem. Let's hope they make a habit of it!

The water pageant tonight has been an eagerly anticipated event for a long time. By the way, if anyone of you have a spare pair of water wings to donate to a worthy cause please bring them along for Santa Claus. He's used to having his water frozen and our name would go down among the great malefactors of all times should we drown the dear old man at a time like this!

In stirring you up this last batch of Puddin' 'n' Sauce before holidays, we want to be heavy handed in adding Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and all the best wishes for the best season ever. Hope Santa is good to everybody. "Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night."

Bed Check

Before ye ole bedchecker goes on to tell all the gossip floating around school, let me stop and thank the Seniors for a most heavenly dance last Saturday night. The very thoughts of it produced many sighs from all who attended, but most of all from the Seniors who will always remember floating around the dance floor with that special man, seeing Minetree lead the figure with Peepsie, hearing "Just the Way You Look Tonight", sporting red roses, and holding close to her heart many more things of personal significance to each Senior. Everyone agreed that the dining hall is the only place for a STC dance. It never looked prettier.

Mitty Hahn and Virginia Bailey looked most happy over those two cute dates they had, and Wilda Hunt and her man just walked around in a dream all evening.

June Cregar and David Webb looked oblivious to all. We hear wedding bells will peal for them in the near future. Mary Lou Bagley is also planning a wedding.

Binkie Motley and Tom Vail make the cutest couple. Binkie, you really looked like a dream at the dance.

From all reports a good time was had by all in Junior and Senior parlors after the dance. Parting is such sweet sorrow.

Caroling proved loads of fun after the concert Sunday night. Just ask Love Bentley and Bobbie, Betty Spindler and Johnnie, Gussie and Ben, and Puckett Asher and Max Perrow.

STC is weeping crocodile tears over the loss of its best beau, Carter Coghill, but we are consoled by having the dynamic Leo of H.-S.C.

Bill Smithers, "Somebody Else is Taking Your Place."

Forming a Lonely Hearts Club at STC isn't hard. Already the membership numbers three. If you would like to join, all you have to do is give up men—MEN, that is.

Many thanks to Lou Lancaster for the reception following the concert at H.-S.C. Betsy Gravely, the man has talent as well as looks.

We hear Ann Norman had a wonderful coming out party for her twenty-first birthday. Congratulations Ann, now you can vote.

Gin Tindall, Chan is too cute for words. Certainly must be nice to have a man like that to date, and didn't we hear you mention a June wedding?

Bobbitt, Johnnie was having a little trouble with his camera Monday night. Maybe he needed your invaluable assistance.

Tis all for now. Merry Christmas to all, and may Santa bring you your every desire. Be good and have a marvelous holiday.

Alumnae News

The Alumnae decided two years ago when Dr. J. L. Jarman retired, after serving S. T. C. forty-four years as president, to place in the proposed new auditorium a pipe organ, honoring his service. Approximately forty-five hundred dollars has been collected, but a good organ will cost at least twenty-thousand dollars. It is hoped that on Founders Day this year every student organization, every member of the faculty and of the administration will contribute to this fund. The Alumnae Association hopes to contact each Alumnae to acquaint them with this deficit, giving them an opportunity to contribute. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster has given the Alumnae a challenge to be ready to install the organ at the dedication services of the new auditorium. We hope and believe that Dr. Lancaster's very convincing appeal for a chapel that will seat the whole student body will be favorably considered by our 1948 General Assembly. Since we have raised approximately one-fifth of the purchase cost of a desirable organ, we will have to bestir ourselves to meet Dr. Lancaster's challenge. By real cooperation the Alumnae, students, faculty, and friends of the college raised one hundred ten thousand dollars for the Student Building. We can certainly raise this small amount for such an appropriate memorial to our beloved Dr. Jarman.

What do you want Santa to bring you for Christmas?

Mrs. Hamner: An automobile.

Mrs. McCoy: There's one thing I don't want. A white Christmas.

Mrs. Beazley: A long two weeks to play with my little granddaughter who calls me her adorable Mom B.

Mrs. Hammond: Some more good lil S. T. C. girls because they are all as sweet as they can be.

Mrs. Proctse: Well, it's all such a surprise I hadn't thought about it.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick: An automobile or an airplane—just something to go in.

Dean Smith: The love of my 676 girls.

Charlie Hop: Golly, you've got me there.

Miss Dabney: I just want to get home. I can't think of anything any nicer than to go home, sleep late and eat lots of food.

Practice Proves Essential Rut On The Road To Musical Fame

"One two three. One and two and three and.'

"Do, mi, sol, mi, do."

No dear students, no one is doing her exercises. And no one is crying. But students are just practicing for their next piano or voice lesson. (If they are practicing, the chances are that they have a lesson next period.)

You remember back in the summer when you got a letter asking you if you would like to take piano or voice lessons? Have you learned what happens if you sign "Yes" to the card you mailed back? Well, when you come here in September and arrange the time for your piano (or voice) lesson, you are told that you will have to practice four hours a week (and about twice that much if you are a music major). So, you determine right then and there that you will practice the required hours. Oh, wonderful resolutions are made. You are going to be the best piano player in STC. Yes, some day you'll give Rubinstein competition. Just wait, ten years after your graduation, you'll come back and give a concert in the new auditorium of State Teachers College. Won't that sound grand —"Miss Merrie Doe, contralto" or "Miss Bang Keys, pianist"? Dreams are made of wonderful stuff.

Then comes your practice hour on Monday. Remember that present you have to get down town? Indeed you do. Deciding that you will practice two hours tomorrow you wipe the dust off your music, and go down town.

Tuesday, you prepare, with an alarm clock (suppose your watch starts losing time, and you practice over time), a Clarke bar, an orange, pencil and paper, and, oh yes, your music, to practice. You do your scale. Does the scale of A have two sharps or five? Neither sounds right, so you just give up. How can you practice scales, when you don't know how many sharps or flats they have? So, you start to do your finger exercises. But, your fingers are so sore that you decide to skip the exercise this one time. Next comes the technique study. But, you don't have much technique, and five minutes is all needed. Finding that you left two pieces of sheet music in the room, you gather your things up, and go to the room to get them. Ah, fatal act. Who can resist an invitation to the movie, just to practice piano. Besides you have a vacant period tomorrow morning. (Or so you thought, until you remembered that history you had to look up in the library.)

So, thus prepared, you, the lover of good music, go to your lesson on Tuesday afternoon. It takes fully ten minutes to think of an excuse for the three hours you didn't practice! Woe is you! The music instructor, having used them all herself in the past years, knows them all. Can you help it if you haven't been taking music long enough to think of original excuses, or original music, one? (All the music I play is original, too original.) Well everyone has to learn from mistakes, you say, leaving your lesson with a new determination to play.

Forgetting the scales you can't play, forgetting the techniques you hate, and the pieces that are quite difficult for you, you dream of being a great musician. Someday hundreds of people will pack a huge auditorium. Breathlessly they'll listen to you. Hundreds of years from now students will be made to study about you, and will be quizzed about your life, your career. (But not about your date last night.)

But, all you lovers of good music, remember this—"A prophet is not without honor except in his own country." Take courage, and practice. Practice! PRACTICE!

Ole Santa Claus Is Coming To Town

STC Visions

"Hey roommate, time for lights out." she said
As she marked off another day and climbed into bed.
As oft' into dreamland the sleepy heads go
There appear images of gifts and mistletoe
Dreamland is the place where all must agree,
Life's brighter moments are shaped to a T.
An S. T. C. dream at this gay time of year
Is not of stocking, sleigh nor Santa's reindeer
But of those mid' winter parties, those gay Christmas dances
Those frivolous hours with new found romances
Well give not a thought to the drudgery and dread
Nor to those unworn books from which we have fled,
But alas, comes the morn' and again we arise,
"Only three more days," some bright girl cries.
I haste oft' to breakfast to find I'm too late
But shux, when I'm home, My Mom will wait.
Oft' to my classes with my mind in a haze
My teachers ignore my far-away gaze.
The day passes soon with classes and chatter
But with a look at the calendar, I become much sadder
For it seems to me as to all the rest
I'll never get away from a worn out desk.

Greetings

As the holiday season approaches, Mrs. Savage and I wish that we could personally extend greetings to every student here at State Teachers College. Since the large number enrolled makes this impossible, we would like to take this means of wishing each of you a merry Christmas. May it be for you and yours a season of peace and happiness which is truly representative of the joyous event in world history which we shall celebrate.

William W. Savage

Just a Boy

After a male baby outgrows long dresses and triangles, and acquires pants, freckles and so much dirt that relatives don't dare to kiss him, he becomes a boy.

A boy is nature's answer to that false belief that there is no such thing as perpetual motion. A boy is a growing animal of superlative promise who can swim like a fish, run like a deer, climb like a squirrel, balk like a mule, bellow like a bull, eat like a pig, or act like a jackass, according to climatic conditions.

A boy, if not washed too often and kept in a cool, quiet place after each accident, will survive broken bones, hornets, measles, fights and nine helpings of pie.

A boy is a piece of skin stretched over an appetite; a noise covered with smudges. A boy is the problem of our times, the hope of the woldr. Every boy born is evidence that God is not yet discouraged with men.

Dear Santa.

Since your trip takes you to al parts of the world, I'm sure you wouldn't' mind stopping a few minutes at West Virginia University to bring me a certain litlk blond-haired boy that I miss so much way down here—and Santa if you can find a spare clever mind lying around, thnk of me I'm in bad need of it with exams coming up soon.

Janice Slavin

Dear Santa,

I know he won't fit in a stocking, but why not slip him into a pair of argyle socks and stand him by my Christmas tree? Just think, Santa, this year you're getting to bring a real bargain gift. You know all that "tall dark and handsome" business that usually goe along with orders like this? Well, I've been around some, and I'm not camping such silly qualifications on my ingenious Christmas gift.

Also Santa, my girl friend wants a dolly. Not an ordinary doll, now mind you. The one for her has to have black hair and cry in distinct and imploring tones "Buddy" every hour on the hour. That's' all. I guess except "Merry Christmas" Santa!

Love,
Turner

On the good ship S. T. C.
Let's heave ho!
Lift up the anchor,
And raise high the blue and white.
Let's be working passengers
Who are happy day and night.
Let's say, "Aye, aye", to our Captain new
And all the other aids-in-crew
So that seven months hence
When we pull into port
From off the Sea of Learning
We can look back and say
It's been Bon Voyage
And a trip of direct, smooth sailing.

Puerto Rico's Sunny Christmas Described By Student At STC

By Dalila Agostini

Sunny, breezy days, and starry skies; no it's not June it 's Christmas in Puerto Rico. It's time to get ready for a magnificent celebration. Night by night, beginning the twentieth, different groups are organized for the singing of carols. There are always three men in these groups acting as the Three Kings who collect money which is always given to charitable institutions at this season.

Christmas Eve is a day of happiness for every class in Puerto Rico. A delicious supper is part of the festivities, and at midnight everybody goes to church. At the midnight service all the Puerto Rican churches ring with music, they rejoice in the coming of the Lord. On the twenty-fifth people call on each other manifesting mutual greetings. From that day on, our social groups gather and have dances that last till the end of the season.

Waiting for the New Year is another big event in our Christmas schedule. There is always a big dance, and church bells ring the New Year in, while people greet each other wishing a coming year full of happiness and prosperity.

Three Kings Day is the day for children. The night before they go to bed leaving a box full of hay grass and some water for the camels of the coming Wise Men and a letter to the three kings, who, while the children sleep will decide whether they will leave what they asked for. Trumpets blow, drums, bugles and horns everywhere announce the gala day. Puerto Rican children are happy. It is the closing day of the holiday season and with the parting of the Three Kings everybody goes back to his duties waiting anxiously for another Merry Christmas to come.

Rotunda Callers Meet Stares Of Girls on Second Floor

"Look! Quick—see that boy coming in the door now? No, the first one. Isn't he a complete dream!"

"That one there by Joan with his coat over his home is much cuter—he is really a doll!"

You guessed it—the occasion is a S. T. C. dance and the above remarks are being made by the usual circle of spectators who line second and third floor Rotunda. Mostly Freshmen, probably because they live closer, they have a remark for every one who enters the door. The short, the tall, the thin, the fat, the cute and the otherwise—there is something to be said about each.

Then of course, every formal has to be examined and admired (it always is admired, even if it looks like a burlap sack). And even new hair-dos come in for their share of comments. Some of which are made to the owners and others are merely side remarks made in a stage whisper.

Those from third floor always have to run down to second floor to get a better look. And there"s always a mad dash down the hall to tell so-and-so that her date has arrived, to assure her that she looks perfect and rush her on down to greet him.

The usual remarks about "That cute couple" and "Don't they look odd together, she's taller than he is" are always present, too.

The stags are there also, to pick out the boys they want to be introduced to—"Introduce me to your date, he's darling!"—the girls are reminded as they trip merrily down the stairs.

One of these days there is going to be a serious casualty. A perfectly darling boy is going to walk into the Rotunda and at least three girls are going to try dangling by their heels for a better glimpse and are going to slip! Then somebody is going to be misssing a roommate. Won't be long now.

The costumes worn by these spectators are really quite the thing.

Almost anything, or as the case may be, almost nothing can be and is worn. There are always the few who come near enough to the rail to peek over only when they are positive no one is looking. And even then they are taking quite a chance. The glances that are directed upward by the waiting males are not just a few. They even seem to be almost as much entertained and amused by those above them as they are with their respective dates (when they finally arrive, that is.)

Not until the last boy leaves the Rotunda do the girls sigh and go back to their rooms, wishing they too were dating merrily instead of studying or what-have-you.

The safest persons in the United States is a little girl between the ages of 5 and 14 who lives in Rhode Island, according to the National Safety Council. Rhode Island was the safest state in 1946. And the age group from 5 to 14 had the lowest accident rate of any, with girls getting hurt only one-third as often as boys.

Buy Christmas Seals

November 24, marked the beginning of the nation-wide forty-first annual Seal Sale.

To carry on its campaign against tuberculosis in 1948 the Amelia Tuberculosis Association must raise $1,012.00 in the 1947 Christmas Seal Sale.

The Tuberculosis Association derives its entire support for its extensive tuberculosis control program from funds contributed by the public during the seal sale.

75-80% of the money raised in Amelia County is used within Amelia County to fight tuberculosis. 5% is sent to the National Association. Thus 95% of the total raised in the County is used right here in Virginia to fight tuberculosis.

Last year seven persons in Amelia died of tuberculosis. There are 24 positive cases in the County now, and 12 suspect cases. 221 persons in the county are contacts, which means, these people are in contact with positive cases—Eight Amelia cases are being treated in the sanitorium now.

The 1947 Seal features a pair of oxen pulling a sled loaded with Christmas trees. They symbolize the pioneer spirit which enabled Americans to conquer a wilderness, and which enables them to work together

Motley Announces Contest Beginning For Student Poets

The annual poetry contest sponsored by the Colonnade is being opened earlier this year than it customarily is. According to Anne Motley, editor-in-chief, contributions should be submitted to the staff from January 6 to February 10 in order to be eligible for the contest. Students may submit as many entries as they choose, but each entry must be typed and on one side of separate sheets. All entries are to be placed in the Colonnade box or given to Barbara Andrews, Anne Langbein, or Betty Spindler, poetry editors.

This issue, which is to appear the first part of March, will be dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. Joseph L. Jarman. It will contain the winning poems of the contest and the three stories which won honorable mention in the recent short story contest: "Jalousie" by Sparkie Poteat, "Jamoke' by Harold T. Griffin, and "I Didn't Know Her" by Jacqueline Burkholder.

STC Dramatic Club Donates Draperies

You must have seen them. They first appeared this year at the Mac Morgan concert on November 17. We were quite proud to have so impressive a background for this fine artist. Oh yes, what are we talking about? Haven't you guessed? It's what everyone is talking about. The Dramatic Club's gift to the school—the deep blue drapes that are now being used on the stage in the auditorium. Since that first night they have added greatly to every program held in the auditorium and will continue to do so as long as they are needed.

The sensitive eyes of the Dramatic Club girls had begun to flinch everytime they looked at the soiled and ragged tan drapes that had served the school so long. Knowing that it was inadvisable to purchase new drapes with the prospect of a new auditorium so promising, the Dramatic Club generously offered their set of blue curtains to make the stage more attractive for the many programs that are held in the auditorium. These drapes were purchased several years ago by the Dramatic Club for a rather large sum of money. Since then, they have been used in several of the Club's productions where flat scenery was not appropriate. The Club has cooperated with various other organizations of the college in allowing them to be used for their programs.

The drapes themselves have been carefully taken care of and guarded as one of the valuable treasures of the Dramatic Club. We hope that the student body and those using the stage will continue to treat the "blues" with as much respect as their former owners have in the past. It is with much pride that the Dramatic Club makes this valuable gift to the college.

Winter

From The H-SC Garnet

The close of time draws nigh,
That brings the glad, new year,
But hark! that you may hear
The fierce, strong winds' low sigh.

The bitter, biting cold
That whips the storms to blow,
And drives soft swirls of snow
To cover up our fold.

But look to all your wealth,
A Christmas of good cheer,
With cakes and ginger beer
A toast! your lasting health.

Now think of all these things
Of beauty, wrought by God
Who gives the final nod
To that which winter brings.
—J. R. Sentman

Deaths from burns reach a peak in December, National Safety Council figures show. The principal reasons are defective heating appliances (or improper use of them) and defective chimneys. In December of 1945, 1,350 persons died from burns. During the summer the toll is about 500 a month.

Fire Drill

'Twas the hour before one and throughout the dorm
Not a girl was now moving, not a figure or form:
Our cookies all eaten, and books in a heap,
Our covers pulled tight, and eyes closed in sleep;
Sickroom lights were finally snapped out,
Only faithful Mrs. Stiff was moving about.
And I, after a sacred eleven-thirty date,
Was peacefully dreaming—unaware of our fate.
When out in the hall, both upstairs and down,
There came such a yell I awoke with a bound!
I stumbled and fumbled my way to the light,
Pulled open my door, and fell back in fright.
The bright exit light gave forth a red beam
On the amazing sight I'd never before seen;
For there in the hallway, so casually yelling
Stood our Vice-President, her summons now swelling.
'Twas her call in the night, so thunderous and shrill,
That started the nightmare we call a "Fire Drill!"
We grabbed shoes and robes as quick as we could,
And closed all the windows as instructed we should,
The monitor stammered, her voice weak and walley,
"Here, Reynolds and Long! Saal, Lucas, and Bailey?
To the top of the roof! To the fire-escape head!"
We rounded the tower and downward we sped.
As dreams, when disturbed by a touch or a sound,
At once take flight, near the heart to be found;
So each of us girls did excitedly scatter
To the place we recalled, the fire-escape ladder.
As I pulled on my slippers and buttoned my jacket,
I stopped to look at the source of this racket.
For a moment I thought I was dreaming again,
'Til I heard the wild cries from Carnegie's men;
Then I knew what I saw was indeed a reality,
That it wasn't just due to my loss of mentality.
At last we were down, and what a sight to behold!
Bedraggled-looking females shivering with cold.
Their eyes—how they drooped! their smiles how dreamish!
Their lips looked so blank, and their faces all creamish!
Curlers and bobby-pins with scarves bright and gay,
Took the place of the tresses combed neatly by day.
They laughed and they shouted and seemed quite perturbed
O'er their night-time siesta so so roughly disturbed.
The bell started clanging and ringing at last;
We returned to our rooms, but not very fast.
There were whispers and murmurs on all of the floors,
And fretting and fussing behind many doors.
Yet I heard one statement before the last bell
Which expressed all our feelings just ever so well.
Said a sleepy and worn-out pajama-clad Miss,
"Mama done tole me there'd be moments like this!"

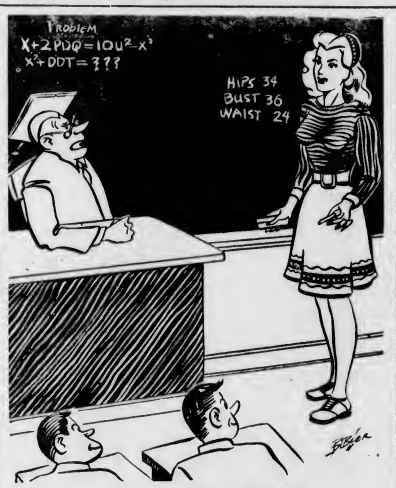
MacManus Warmly Received At STC

Seumus MacManus, Irish author, poet and story teller was warmly received by a large crowd at the S. T. C. auditorium Thursday night, December 4, at 8 o'clock. He humorously related the stories of his boyhood in the rugged country of Ireland where he was raised and dramatically told the folk stories of the Irish people.

He spoke to the students of S. T. C. Thursday morning in the college auditorium and in the afternoon spoke over radio station WFLO.

Following the evening lecture a reception was given for the writer in the student lounge. MacManus was under the sponsorship of Stonnell, Hunter Meador; world society at S. T. C.



Drill Interrupts Typical STC Night

It was a beautiful day. The rain was coming down in buckets! There had been rumors all day of a fire drill, but no one took them too seriously. The day progressed as normally as possible for S. T. C. Everyone was knee-deep in tests and other miscellaneous items. Night drew on . . . everyone was beat! Books, papers, and every thing were piled sky high on the desk. I had just thrown down my last book in disgust. I'm starving! Think I'll go out in search of some food before doing any further study . . . the time, about 11:30. Finally, I located a room where there was a scant amount of food left. We had a gay little party for about ten minutes. I returned to my room to resume my studies (a conversation with my roommate, that is). Most of my hall mates had decided to "hit the hay" early. I had just settled down with a nice "irky" book, and the hall president's words were still ringing in my ears that a call down would be given if and when we have a fire drill if directions are not carried out fully. . . . one more call down would mean campus for me and at Christmas time, too. I couldn't get on the Dean's list with a campus on my record. Dean's list? Pause here to laugh!

All was quiet. Then suddenly there arose such a clatter, that we leaped from our beds to exclaim, "Is this a fire drill?" This was followed by other censored oaths. Moans and groans were issued by each individual as they sprang out of bed. Some had just dozed off to sleep. They woke with a start thinking they were having nightmares . . . they were! I ran around like mad. "What are we supposed to do?" I wailed. I was a little confused as usual. "Can't find my scarf or anything!"

Finally we began the grand march (worse than Sherman's march to the sea!). Brr! The cold air hit us all of a sudden! The wind and rain in our hair felt none too good. I looked around me. "Horrors", I exclaimed. "What a pack of freaks we are in curlers and cold cream!" Suppose some unsuspecting victim should wander up the street. Oh well, he would never live to tell on us after such a shock. The "all clear" sounded and we took our bedraggled selves back to bed for a fitful sleep filled with nightmares!

To all of you.

Letters To Santa

Dear M. Claus,

All year long I have tried hard to be a good girl and I hope you will remember that when you get to Newport News. Next Wednesday night. If you could arrange to come through West Virginia first, I certainly would appreciate your bringing me a handsome tall, dark boy whom you can find in Charleston.

Please remember all the other boys and girls all over the world and bring them the things they desire most.

Love you so good,
Puckett

P. S. Please bring Mary Lou a bottle of "behavlor" pills so she won't make so much noise up on 3rd floor Gym when we get ready to study for exams. Thank you.

Dear Santa Claus,

Dear Santa,

Since I've been such a good little girl all year, I feel sure that it won't be askin too much when I say I want just one thing—a really live doll, the kind that wears a tuxedo and has soft brown eyes with curly brown hair—The kind that will say "Anne" instead of "Ma-Ma". Thanks—and with love,
Anne Langbein

Dear Santa Claus,

I'll study much harder and make better grades if you will only bring me a fire place with a roaring fire, and a sofa just for two in front of it. Oh yes, before I forget, may I please have Maurice to go along with it.

The Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college picked up this one. "Who is George Dixon?" demanded the city editor of the Salt Lake City (Utah) Telegram when he read copy before him:

"Because the CIO and AFL unions are campaigning for George Dixon at the Geneva Steel Plant, Gov. Herbert B. Maw has declined an invitation to speak before either group."

Finally the reporter was located. "Oh," he said, "I didn't say 'George Dixon'; I said 'Jurisdiction'."

On the Ball

Victory for the Red and Whites ended the hockey season for this fall. The games were very exciting and all the teams were well matched. Good sportsmanship was displayed by both sides.

There is going to be a water pageant at the pool sometime soon. The girls have been putting forth much effort in making it a success. From all reports it sounds as if it is going to be very pretty. There will be an announcement, so be on the look out.

Basketball has started out in a big way. Have you been down yet? If you haven't you don't know what you are missing. Don't forget your eight practices which are necessary before you can play for your class and your class needs your support. We want to find girls from all the classes out on the courts practicing. The next time someone asks you to go down for an hour of basketball practice, don't back away and say you don't know how—you will know if you give yourself a chance to learn.

Volleyball is proving to be very interesting and loads of fun for those not interested in basketball. Remember you have to have eight practices before you can play on the class team. Come on down and help support your team. If you don't have enough players to make up a team, all those girls that did come down for practice will not get to play at all.

If you don't like basketball or volleyball, why don't you go for a walk in this nice refreshing air? Everyone needs exercise and the fresh air will do you good.

College Bridge Attracts Many

Entries for the 1948 National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament are flowing in from colleges and universities from all parts of the country, it was announced last week by Nelson B. Jones, Director of Faunce House, Brown University, and Chairman of the Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee.

Invitations to compete in the event were recently sent to the authorities of more than 300 institutions accredited by the Association of American Universities. In the first three weeks, 72 colleges representing 29 states have sent in their entries.

The closing date for entries is December 20, 1947, Mr. Jones emphasized, and added that from present indications the scope of the tournament will exceed last year's field of 126 competing colleges.

Open only to undergraduates, the 1948 Intercollegiate is a duplicate Contract Bridge event. Each competing college selects, by any method it chooses, a "varsity" team of eight—four pairs—to play a set of eighteen prepared hands. These hands are sent to the colleges and returned to the Committee by mail. After scoring by a recognized Bridge expert, the sixteen highest ranking pairs are invited to the face-to-face final round to be held at the Drake Hotel, Chicago, where the finalists will be guests of the Committee.

New Conference Made

Franklin, Ind.—(I.P.)—A new athletic conference, the Hoosier College Conference, formed by eight colleges in Indiana, according to an announcement by Prof. D. F. Heath of Franklin College, temporary secretary of the conference, has as its main purpose the combating of subsidized athletes.

The participating colleges include Anderson, Canterbury, Earlham, Franklin, Hanover, Indiana Central, Manchester, and Rose Polytechnic.

Acording to the constitution, each college is required to make a written report to the secretary of the conference concerning any financial assistance rendered athletes. In addition, the constitution states that "no person shall be allowed to participate in any intercollegiate contest who received any gift, athletic scholarship, remuneration or pay for his athletic participation in any sport."

Eligibility requirements, now somewhat lax among Indiana colleges, have been stiffened considerably by the constitution of the new group. An athlete must pass at least 12 semester hours with a "C" average in order to be eligible. An athlete declared ineligible at the end of a semester remains ineligible for the whole of the succeeding semester, and no athlete may become eligible by making up work in summer school.

PIGSKIN PARADE

By TONI ALLEN

Selection of teams for the 'Gator, Dixie and Sun Bowls have filled virtually all of the New Year's Day post-season programs. Acceptances came thick and fast as, with their regulation seasons completed, at least a half dozen college elevens acted on bids extended them by bowl sponsors.

Maryland and Georgia went into the 'Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Miami (Ohio) University joined Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas, and Arkansas voted to meet William and Mary in Birmingham's Dixie Bowl.

Two other bowl games, the Alamo at San Antonio and the American Legion at Los Angeles, were cancelled, while the program for a third, the Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Arizona, was uncertain after the University of Nevada withdrew.

The reason given by the Alamo Bowl sponsors was that San Antonio was not able to get outstanding teams with outstanding records for the New Year's contest. Missouri and Vanderbilt were the remaining hopes for the game but both rejected $30,000 offers to play, a San Antonio Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

Failure to find suitable opponents also was given as the reason for cancellation of the American Legion Bowl, scheduled for Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum December 20. The decision was believed to have been prompted by a turndown from North Carolina, (virtually the last major team available for a post-season contest. The Tarheels voted to decline all bowl bids.

No explanation was given by the Nevada University board for withdrawal from the Salad Bowl, but it was believed the move was taken because of the naming of North Texas State Teachers College as the Nevada opponent. Salad Bowl officials, after receiving Nevada's acceptance, had sought to obtain such teams as Kansas, Missouri, Texas Christian or Baylor as an opponent, but were unsccessful.

Honolulu's Pineapple Bowl game January 1 was set with the acceptance of a bid by the University of Redlands (Calif.) to meet the University of Hawaii. Redlands won the Southern California Intercollegiate football championship for the third sucessive season this fall.

Of the dozen bowl games scheduled for New Year's Day, three, including the Salad Bowl, were still without complete bills. The Raisin Bowl at Fresno, Calif., seeks an opponent for College of the Pacific. The Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., still needs a team to meet Catawba.

Band Instrument Classes Commence

Through the efforts of the music department and administration plans are being made to organize a college band with hopes that sometime during the second semester a performing instrumental organization will be a reality at S. T. C.

These plans were begun before the Thanksgiving holidays when a questionaire was circulated among the students to determine the number of people playing instruments and those desiring instruction in playing instruments. As a result a group of interested girls met before and after the Thanksgiving holidays to organize a program for instrumental work.

Lessons are being offered free of charge by Mr. Ralph Wakefield to those students who wish to learn to play the clarinet and trumpet. Also a class is being taught for those students interested in the percussion instruments.

Those students who have already started in the classes are as follows: in the cornet class is Joyce Hamlit, Patty Walker, Mary Ellen Temple, Lee Robertson, Ann Robertson, Nancy Biscoe, Helen Edgerton, Puckett Asher, and Janice Gallian; in the clarinet class is Katherine Bickle, Jane Mantiply, Naomi Davey, Jean Otis Loving and Griz Boxley; and in the percussion class is Jean Hogge.

Mr. Wakefield has announced that any students wishing to join these classes should see him immediately. Also any other students who wish to join the band at a later date and can already play an instrument and have not signed up will please do so.

Freshman Commission

The first function of Freshman Commission took place last night with the traditional Hanging of the Greens ceremony. Girls who were in charge of the activities were: Betsy Carper and Nancy Cooke, handing out running cedar at the auditorium door; Mike Malone, Betty Moore, and Betsy Gravely, giving out candles in the Rotunda, and the entire commission decorating the Rotunda before the Christmas banquet.

The schedule of destinations with final dates of arrival of prepaid airmail at the Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, follows: China, Japan, Philippines, Okinawa Wake, Truk, Pelelieu, December 5, 1947; Guam, Saipan, Kwajalein, Samoa, December 10, 1947. Hawaii, Midway, Johnston, December 15, 1947.

Meet the Faculty

Mr. James Moses Grainger, who hails from Knoxville, Tennessee, is twice distinguished by being not only head of the S. T. C. English department, but senior member of the entire faculty—however, he stresses, that doesn't mean that he's the oldest member. But, there's no question in our minds about that, for we have it from reliable sources that only last summer he copped off first place in a swimming race and that he doesn't call a taxi to carry him to school when his automobile balks.

At the University of Tennessee Mr. Grainger took his first B. A., which he followed up with another of the same from the University of Cincinnati, and an M. A. from the U. of North Carolina. At Tennessee he was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. Who would have thought that at one time Mr. Grainger augmented his income by fluting, of all things? We have heard, too, that he sings a mean ballad.

Mr.Grainger has seen a lot of us come and go since he came to S. T. C. in 1910 as head of the Department of Literature, later converted into the Department of English. Before his arrival here, he taught at Baker-Himel School for Boys in Knoxville, and at the University of North Carolina. He taught at State Normal School in Hyannis, Massachusetts.

Here at school Mr. Grainger saw through their birth and infancy the Focus (predecessor of the Colonnade) and the Rotunda. He is still helping to pilot the Colonnade and Beorc Eh Thorn, the local English honor society. Also Mr. Grainger is one of the founders of Pi Kappa Omega (now Kappa Delta Pi), the first honor society on campus.

From time to time Mr. Grainger has published numerous biographical sketches and magazine articles concerning English, English education, ballad collecting, and other topics—among these, his pet dissertation, "Studies In The Syntax of The King James Version". Of particular interest to us at S. T. C. is his "A Century of Progress", which tells the history of our own Alma Mater. This was published in a 1940 Farmville Alumnae Magazine.

Mr. Grainger is a member of the Virginia Folk Lore Society, an honorary life member of Pi Kappa Omega, member of the Board of Directors of the National Council of Teachers of English, an honorary member of the Farmville S. T. C. Alumnae Association, and he has served as chairman of many school, state, and regional committees concerned mainly with English education.

Currently Mr. Grainger is interested in promoting the teaching of the Bible as literature. A true philologist (as anyone who has ever taken a class under him will verify), Mr. Grainger claims a passion for grammar of earlier periods. Also, he is interested in reinstating honors courses in our curriculum.

Although Mr. Grainger's family of nine children and nine grandchildren doesn't allow him much time for other interests, he doesn't mind telling us that he's "an expert with an axe." We're not sure whether or not he considers this recreation. In college Mr. Grainger played basketball, and later he coached it. Another of his favorite sports is tennis.

At home on the "Old Buffalo Farm" in Prince Edward County, our English profesor farms on shares, "cuts some hay", gardens cares for his cows, chickens, and mule, and has a generally bad time keeping the possum out of the chicken house.

Dramatic Club Gives Informal Party

The Dramatic Club observed the Yuletide season by entertaining at an informal party for their members on December 16, 1947. The affair was held in the Student Lounge at 10:00 p. m.

The program consisted of the singing of the favorite Christmas Carols, a solo by Jean Watts, "O Holy Night", and selected Christmas poems and stories told by Mis Leola Wheeler, Club Adviser. Martha Smith portrayed a very jolly Santa Claus and acted as master of ceremonies for the program.

Refreshments of fruit, nuts, and Christmas Candy were served.

Men are more often victims of accidents than women, according to the National Safety Council. Men far outnumber women in accidental deaths—about seven to three.

When cold weather keeps people indoors, home accidents go up, according to the National Safety Council. Home accident fatalities were fewest from April to September—2,300 to 2,600—and most frequent in cold weather—3,300 in January and 3,600 in December. There's no place like home—for accidents.

January 24-25 Proclaimed Closed Week-End for Students

The weekend of January 24-25 will be a "closed weekend" here at State Teachers College. This means, of course, that no students will be permitted to leave the campus for out-of-town trips. Students are urged to use this time as fully as possible in preparing for examinations the following week and ascertaining that their schedules for the second semester are correct.

All changes in schedules for the second semester must be made on Friday afternoon, January 23, from 2:00 P. M. to 5:00 P. M., and on Saturday, January 24, from 11:00 A. M. to 12:20 P. M. and 1:45 P. M. to 5:00 P. M., in Room 22. Heads of the various departments in the College will be there at those hours to make such changes. Students must be sure that their schedules are correct for the second semester at that time. All additions and other changes will be recorded.

In making this announcement, Dean Savage called attention to the following regulations regarding enrollment in courses:

1. A student cannot be admitted to a class by the instructor unless his or her name is on the class roll prior to the first class meeting. When a student's name is not on the roll, he or she must obtain an "add slip" from Dean Savage's office and present it to the instructor in order to be admitted.

2. A grade of "F" for that course will be assigned to the record of any student who withdraws from a course after the instructor has made the mid-semester estimates. The only exception to this ruling will be in cases of illness or accident wherein the College Physician recommends withdrawal.

The examination schedule is as follows:

1st day—8:05 Classes meeting MWF 10:15. 10:15 Classes meeting MWF 11:15.

2nd day—8:00 Classes meeting TTS 8:05. 10:15 Classes meeting TTS 9:05. 1:45 Classes meeting TT or MWF 2:45.

3rd day—8:05 Classes meeting TTS 10:15. 10:15 Classes meeting MWF 1:45. 1:45 Classes meeting TT 1:45.

4th day—8:05 Classes meeting MWF 8:05. 10:15 Classes meeting MWF 9:05.

BSU Sponsors Vocational Week

Vocational Emphasis Week, sponsored by the Baptist Student Union, began January 11 and will continue through January 18. There will be radio programs at 9:30 each morning over WFLO and lectures by people of various professions each afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The purpose of this week is to present various speakers who will tell something of his or her occupation. They will tell of the ability and training needed and the opportunities for service. It is hoped that through these people students may be helped to find their life's work.

The radio program will be general enough to be of interest to all people. It will not only interest those who have not chosen their profession but those who have. The Rev. Benjamin R. Bruner will lead and students at S. T. C. will be the speakers. The topics for the week are:

Monday—I must Accept Jesus as My Personal Savior.

Tuesday—I Must Seek to Grow in My Christian Life.

Wednesday—I Must Dedicate My Life to Him Wherever He May Lead.

Thursday—I Must Seek To Serve Wherever I Am.

Friday—I must Help Others Find Him.
